[CONTINUING BUSINESS]

§ 2113.30 Continuing decedent's business. (GC § 10509-9)

Except as otherwise directed by the decedent in his last will and testament, an executor or administrator may, without personal liability for losses incurred, continue the decedent's business during one month next following the date of the appointment of such executor or administrator, unless the probate court directs otherwise, and for such further time as the court may authorize on hearing and after notice to the surviving spouse and distributees. In either case no debts incurred or contracts entered into shall involve the estate beyond the assets used in such business immediately prior to the death of the decedent without the approval of the court first obtained. During the time the business is continued, the executor or administrator shall file monthly reports in the court, setting forth the receipts and expenses of the business for the preceding month and such other pertinent information as the court may require. The executor or administrator may not bind the estate without court approval beyond the period during which the business is continued.

2. Revised Code § 2113.30, which provides that after the expiration of one month following the date of his appointment an administrator is required to apply to the probate court for authority to continue the business, has no application where the administrator is not continuing the business but is in the process of liquidation of assets under a court order for the sale of such assets at private sale: In re Brown, 98 App 297, 57 OO 342, 129 NE(2d) 509 [affirming 67 OLA 291, 129 NE(2d) 497].

4. Under the provisions of this section, an executor has the right, even without the authorization of the probate court, to continue the business of the decedent for one month after his appointment and upon proper proof be credited with all expenses incurred during such period as well as the expenses incurred prior to the death of the decedent: In re Szakacs, 86 OLA 333, 175 NE(2d) 119 (App).

ALR

Tort claimant against decedent's estate as person or party interested, or as creditor, entitled to object to account or report of personal representative. 87 ALR2d 1231

CASE NOTES AND OAG

Scope

1. By a former statute (2 Chase, 1309, § 8), the administrator was required to charge himself with the amount of the estate, according to the inventory of sale, including all debts due the estate and moneys on hand at death: Piatt v. Longworth, 27 OS 159.

2. If the executor or administrator personally owe the estate, he must include that in his current report, even if it has not been inventoried: In re Raab, 16 OS 273; Tracy v. Card, 2 OS 431; Bigelow v. Bigelow, 4 O 138.

3. The executor need not include a debt upon which he is only contingently liable, nor one owing, not to the deceased, but to his former representative: Shields v. Odell, 27 OS 398.

4. Immediately upon the appointment of a debtor as administrator or executor such debt becomes assets of the estate, and it must be accounted for: McGaughey v. Jacoby, 54 OS 487, 44 NE 231; James v. West, 67 OS 28, 65 NE 156.

5. Title to all personal property belonging to a decedent vests in his administrator upon the acceptance of the trust, as of the date of death, but an administrator has no right to any property except that held or owned by the decedent at the time of his death: Hoover v. Hoover, 90 App 148, 47 OO 37, 104 NE(2d) 41.

Proceeds of realty

11. If the executor fraudulently sells real estate at much less than its fair value, the court may charge him in his account with the fair value of the lands so sold: Brown v. Reed, 56 OS 264, 46 NE 982 [affirming Reed v. Brown, 10 CC 44, 6 CD 15].

12. Where lands are sold by an executor at private sale for their full value, such executor must account for the total amount of the purchase price received by him, if necessary for the payment of debts. If sold for less than the full value, he must nevertheless account for the full value thereof: Hocking Val. R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354, AnnCas 1914A, 190.

13. Even if the estate is insolvent the heirs are entitled to the rents and profits until the land is sold by order of the court for the payment of debts: Overturn v. Dugan, 29 OS 230.

14. Rents collected by the executor or administrator to be applied by agreement with the parties to the payment of claims against the estate, thereby rendering it unnecessary to sell the land, are personal assets and must be accounted for: Turpin v. Turpin, 16 OS 270; Campbell v. McCormick, 1 CC 504, 1 CD 281.

[§ 2113.31.1] § 2113.311 Management of real estate by executor or administrator.

(A) If, within a reasonable time after the appointment of the executor or administrator, no one in authority has taken over the management and rental of any real estate of which the decedent died seized, the executor or administrator, or an heir or devisee may, unless the will otherwise provides, make application to the probate court for an order authorizing the executor or administrator to assume such duties. Such application shall contain:

(1) A brief statement of the facts upon which the application is based and such other pertinent information as the court may require;

(2) A description or identification of the real estate and the interest owned by the decedent at the time of his death;

(3) The names and addresses, if known to the applicant, of the persons to whom such real estate passed by descent or devise.

Notice of the time of hearing on such application shall be given to the persons designated in sub-paragraph division (A) (3) of this section, unless for good cause the court dispenses with such notice, and also to the executor or administrator, unless the executor or administrator is the applicant.

If the court finds that the statements contained in the application are true and that it would be for the best interest of such heirs or devisees that the application be granted, it may authorize the executor or administrator to assume the management and rental of such real estate.

The court may require bond, new or additional, in an amount to be fixed by the court and conditioned that the executor or administrator will faithfully and honestly discharge the duties devolving upon him by the provisions of this section.

(B) In the exercise of such authority, the executor or administrator shall be authorized to do the following:

- (1) Collect rents;
- (2) From the rents collected:

(a) Pay all taxes and assessments due on such real estate, and all such usual operating expenses in connection with the management thereof;

(b) Make repairs when necessary to preserve such real estate from waste, provided that an order of the court shall first be obtained if the cost of such repairs exceeds one hundred dollars;

(c) Insure buildings against loss by fire or other casualty and against public liability;

(3) Advance money upon an order first obtained from the court, for such repairs, taxes, insurance, and all usual operating expenses, which shall be a charge on such real estate;

(4) Rent the property on a month to month basis, or, upon an order first obtained from the court, for a period not to exceed one year;

(5) Prosecute actions for forcible entry and detention of such real estate.

The executor or administrator shall, at intervals not to exceed twelve months, pay over to the heirs or devisees, if known, their share of the net rents, and shall account for all money received and paid out under authority of this section in his regular accounts of the administration of the estate, but in a separate schedule. If any share of the net rents remains unclaimed, it may be disposed of in the same manner as is provided for unclaimed money under section 2113.64 of the Revised Code.

The authority granted under this section shall terminate upon the transfer of the real estate to the heirs or devisees in accordance with section 2113.61 of the Revised Code, or upon a sale thereof, or upon application of the executor or administrator, or for a good cause shown, upon the application of an heir or devisee.

Upon application the court may allow compensation to the executor or administrator for extraordinary services, which shall be charged against the rents, and if said rents be insufficient, shall be a charge against such real estate.

Upon application the court may allow reasonable attorney fees paid by the executor or administrator when an attorney is employed in connection with the management and rental of such real estate, which shall be charged against the rents, and if said rents be insufficient, shall be a charge against such real estate.

Executors and administrators shall be allowed commissions upon the amount of all the personal estate, including the income therefrom, received and accounted for by them and upon the proceeds of real estate sold under authority contained in a will, as follows:

(A) For the first one thousand dollars at the rate of six per cent;

(B) All above one thousand and not exceeding five thousand dollars at the rate of four per cent;

(C) All above five thousand dollars at the rate of two per cent.

Executors and administrators shall also be allowed a commission of one per cent on the value of real estate not sold. Executors and administrators shall also be allowed a commission of one per cent on all property not subject to administration that is includable for purposes of computing the Ohio estate tax, except joint and survivorship property.

The basis of valuation for the allowance of such commissions on property sold shall be the gross proceeds of sale, and for all other property the date of death value thereof as finally fixed for purposes of computing the Ohio estate tax. The commissions allowed to executors and administrators in this section shall be received in full compensation for all their ordinary services.

Amount of compensation

1. Where the testator directed certain legacies to be paid by his executors and devised lands charged with the payment of the legacies and costs of administration, and the devisee paid and took receipts from the legatees and tendered the amount of costs of administration to the executors, exclusive of any per cent on the legacies, the executors are not entitled to a per cent on the legacies: Williams v. Williams, 8 OS 300.

2. Payment of a debt of decedent by the conveyance of mortgaged real estate in satisfaction of the same, is not such a disbursement as will entitle the personal representative to the percentage designated by law. But a court will refuse to interfere to disallow such a charge after long acquiescence and a final settlement of the estate: Piatt v. Longworth, 27 OS 159.

3. Where there is a bequest of the income of certain funds, commissions due the administrator should be prorated against principal and income: Boggs v. Taylor, 29 OS 172 [for another case involving same subject matter, see 26 OS 604].

4. This section should be construed with former GC § 10809 (see now RC § 2127.38) in determining the per centum compensation for the sale of real estate, and it is to be computed on the aggregate amount arising from both real and personal property, and not each separately. In graduating the per centum compensation the higher rate prescribed by former GC § 10837 (see now RC §§ 2113.35, 2127.37) should be first applied to the personal estate: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53. Compare Flory v. Cripps, 132 OS 487, 8 OO 484, 9 NE(2d) 500 [affirming 6 OO 142 (PC)].

5. In proceedings to sell lands to pay debts, the executor's compensation is to be paid first, computed under this section, on the money arising from such sale. But if a mortgagee, whose lien is fixed by the court, becomes the purchaser, the executor is entitled to no compensation on that part of the purchase money applicable to the satisfaction of the mortgage: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53. Compare Flory v. Cripps, 132 OS 487, 8 OO 484, 9 NE(2d) 500 [affirming 6 OO 142 (PC)].

6. This provision for compensation is identical with that provided for assignees by GC § 11143 (RC § 1313.50), and the same rule applies to both: Andrews v. Johns, 59 OS 65, 51 NE 880; Shaw v. Fifth

Ward Bldg. Assn., 6 CC 41, 3 CD 340.

7. The per centum compensation for the sale of real estate is to be computed upon the aggregate amount arising from the whole estate, graduated as provided by former GC § 10837 (see now RC §§ 2113.35, 2127.37), but the higher rate should be calculated on all the other property of the estate before making any calculation of per centum on the proceeds of the sale of mortgaged real estate: Klimper v. Klimper, 12 App 332, 31 OCA 267.

8. Interest is chargeable to a personal representative on sums appropriated by him in payment of his commissions, in advance of their judicial allowance, from the date of appropriation to the date of allowance. In re Russell, 60 App 385, 13 OO 239, 21 NE (2d) 604.

9. Unfaithfulness by an executor of a decedent's estate in the discharge of his duties is the sole basis on which a court can reduce or refuse to allow his compensation fixed by this section: In re Marshall, 78 App 457, 34 OO 183, 65 NE(2d) 527.

10. While the per centum allowed under this section has no application to the proceeds derived from the sale of real estate in a land sale proceeding, nevertheless the court, in the exercise of its authority under GC § 10509-193 (RC § 2113.36), will allow the fiduciaries as compensation for extraordinary services rendered in connection with the land sale proceeding two per cent of the proceeds derived from the sale: In re Ohmer, 22 OO 147 (PC).

11. Under the power conferred by this section upon the probate court to deny an administratrix "any compensation whatsoever" or "such reduced compensation as the court may think proper should" he "find, after hearing, that" she "has in any way not discharged his (her) duties as such" administratrix, the probate court did not err in denying compensation to an administratrix who did not contest nor appeal from her removal as such, even though her services in land sale proceedings were beneficial to persons interested in the estate: In re Cohen, 54 OLA 9 (App).

12. Executor not entitled to commissions on real estate which formed part of the residuary estate, and was conveyed in accordance with an agreement of the parties: Union Sav. Bank & Co. v. Smith, 4 CC(NS) 237, 16 CD 317 [affirmed, without report, Smith v. Union Sav. Bank & Co., 74 OS 505].

12.1 Pursuant to this section, the probate court may, in its discretion, deny allowance of an administrator's fee to an administrator who the court finds did not faithfully discharge his duties: In re Gray, 118 App 547, 26 OO(2d) 65, 196 NE(2d) 131.

14. If an executor takes certain securities belonging to the testator, and holds such securities as a fund, the income of which is to be paid to such executor personally under the terms of testator's will, such executor is entitled to commissions upon the amount of the securities thus handled; and such executor will not be restricted to compensation upon the amount of cash collected and expended: In re Messang, 20 NP (NS) 60, sub nomine, In re Massang, 26 OD(NP) 533 [affirmed by court of appeals].

15. In view of the use of the word "must" in RC § 2113.35 the limit of compensation for executors and administrators for ordinary services provided by such section is mandatory and an executor or administrator upon undertaking to act in such fiduciary capacity is bound by the statutory regulation insofar as ordinary services are required: In re Haggerty, 70 OLA 463, 128 NE(2d) 680 (PC).

16. Extraordinary services of fiduciaries under a will or under the law would seem to include various forms of litigation if necessary, such as the filing of an action to construe a will or services in the defense of a will; action for declaratory judgment; prosecution or defense of litigation necessary to protect the estate and actions to sell real estate and since such services usually require the employment by the fiduciary of counsel, the fiduciary is entitled to be reimbursed for the reasonable value thereof: In re Haggerty, 70 OLA 463, 128 NE(2d) 680 (PC).

17. An executor or administrator is entitled to only such fees for the administration of the decedent's estate as are provided for by statute unless upon application to the probate court an award is made for extraordinary services and exceptions will lie to an account in which the administrator has without court approval received more than the statutory fee: In re Brown, 67 OLA 291, 129 NE(2d) 497 (PC) [affirmed in part, 98 App 297, 57 OO 342, 129 NE(2d) 509].

18. Unfaithfulness of an executor or administrator of a decedent's estate in the discharge of his duties is the sole basis on which a court can reduce or refuse to allow his compensation as fixed by this section: In re Brown, 67 OLA 291, 129 NE(2d) 497 (PC) [affirmed in part, 98 App 297, 57 OO 342, 129 NE(2d) 509].

To whom payable

22. The executor or administrator of a surviving partner, who dies with partnership assets in his possession and while engaged in settling the partnership business, has the duty of completing such settlement, and may receive compensation out of the partnership funds for his services in the performance of this duty: Dayton v. Bartlett, 38 OS 357.

23. If an estate is settled in part by an executor or administrator, and in part by his successor, the compensation should not thereby be increased; but it should be apportioned among such executor or administrator in proportion to the value of the services rendered by them: Bates v. Creed, 2 App 59, 15 CC (NS) 433, 26 CD 338 [for opinion below, see Creed v. Bates, 14 NP(NS) 81; affirmed, Colored Industrial School v. Bates, 90 OS 288]; Thurston v. Ludwig, 4 App 486, 25 CC(NS) 298 [for another case arising from same subject matter, see Wallace v. Ludwig, 18 CC(NS) 422, 25 CD 652; which was reversed, without opinion, Ludwig v. Wallace, 91 OS 397]; Hegner v. Hegner, 9 App 147, 31 OCA 418 [motion to certify record overruled, 15 OLR 199, 62 Bull 291].

24. An executor to whom an interest for life in all the personalty is given, is not entitled to the entire compensation for settling such estate even if he attempts to make a final settlement; since an administrator de bonis non must be appointed to distribute the property to the remaindermen: Hegner v. Hegner, 9 App 147, 31 OCA 418 [motion to certify record overruled, 15 OLR 199, 62 Bull 291].

25. In determining the compensation to be paid an executrix the statutory commissions, as provided in former GC § 10837 (see now RC §§ 2113.35, 2127.37), are to be calculated upon the entire estate: Hegner v. Hegner, 9 App 147, 31 OCA 418 [motion to certify record overruled, 15 OLR 199, 62 Bull 291].

25.1 An administratrix may not be deprived of the compensation due to her under the provisions of RC § 2113.35 for her services for mere delay in making and returning the inventory of the estate, when she has not been given an order requiring her, at an early day therein named, to return same, as prescribed by RC § 2115.03, or has not been notified by the court of the expiration of the time to file such inventory, as prescribed by RC § 2109.24: In re Burchett, 16 OApp(2d) 45, 45 OO(2d) 133, 241 NE(2d) 787.

26. Trust company, appointed administrator without objection, and so acting, is entitled to compensation although the act under which the appointment was made is invalid. The measure of such compensation is the amount allowed by statute to legally appointed executors and administrators: Union Sav. Bank &c. Co. v. Smith, 4 CC(NS) 237, 16 CD 317 [affirmed, without report, Smith v. Union Sav. Bank &c. Co., 74 OS 505].

27. The court may apportion the statutory commissions between two or more executors in accordance with the services performed by each, where the accounts between the estate on the one hand and the executors on the other have not been settled and determined: Meyers v. Hopkins, 7 CC(NS) 240, 18 CD 208; Hegner v. Hegner, 9 App 147, 31 OCA 418 [motion to certify record overruled, 15 OLR 199, 62 Bull 291].

28. Where one who is of the next of kin and an heir at law, by agreement or with the knowledge and consent of the other next of kin and heirs at law, undertakes to settle and adjust the affairs of the estate of a decedent and by reason of such arrangement collects assets and pays valid checks of such estate and is later duly appointed to administer thereon, the letters of administration so issued relate back to the death of the decedent and thereby legitimize all transactions made prior and by virtue of such arrangement; and such subsequent appointee may claim and be allowed the statutory per centum upon all assets so collected and disbursed. For such purpose letters of administration likewise relate back to the death of the decedent: In re Pollock, 17 NP(NS) 490, 60 Bull 273.

29. An executor may be allowed commissions for collecting rent even though he had no authority to collect: In re Thompson, 23 NP(NS) 544.

30. Where the administrator has charged the statutory six per cent on the first thousand dollars and four per cent on the next four thousand, an administrator de bonis non, who succeeds him, can only charge the percentage his predecessor could have charged upon money subsequently collected, viz., two per cent: In re Waring, 7 NP 553, 5 OD 415.

31. The superintendent of banks has no authority to administer an estate of which an insolvent trust company was executor, and may not, in his final account in probate court as liquidator, secure a credit for services rendered by him between the time of the executor's insolvency and the appointment of an administrator de bonis non with will annexed to continue administration of the estate: In re Baldwin, 1 OO 252 (PC).

Limitations

36. Allowance of administrator's commissions after final account accepted, without opening up account and notice to interested parties, is not in the nature of a judgment, and such claim would be barred in six years: Snider v. Graham, 14 CC 386, 18 CD 3.

Attachment

41. A creditor of an executor cannot reach the executor's compensation by attachment, creditor's bill or otherwise, before it is allowed by the court. It would embarrass the settlement of estates and invade the jurisdiction of the probate court: Overturf v. Gerlach, 62 OS 127, 56 NE 653, 78 AmSt 704.

§ 2113.36 Further allowance; counsel fees.

Allowances, in addition to those provided by section 2113.35 of the Revised Code for an executor or administrator, which the probate court considers just and reasonable shall be made for actual and necessary expenses and for extraordinary services not required of an executor or administrator in the common course of his duty.

Upon the application of an executor or administrator for further allowances for extraordinary services rendered, the court shall review both ordinary and extraordinary services claimed to have been rendered. If the commissions payable pursuant to section 2113.35 of the Revised Code, exceed the reasonable value of such ordinary services rendered, the court must adjust any allowance made for extraordinary services so that total commissions and allowances to be made fairly reflect the reasonable value of both ordinary and extraordinary services.

When an attorney has been employed in the administration of the estate, reasonable attorney fees paid by the executor or administrator shall be allowed as a part of the expenses of administration. The court may at any time during administration fix the amount of such fees and, on application of the executor or administrator or the attorney, shall fix the amount thereof. When provision is made by the will of the deceased for compensation to an executor, the amount provided shall be a full satisfaction for his services, in lieu of such commissions or his share thereof, unless by an instrument filed in the court within four months after his appointment he renounces all claim to the compensation given by the will.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-193; 114 v 320 (443); 119 v 394 (416); 135 v H 691. EF 6-19-74.

Expenses and extraordinary services

1. The allowance to an administrator for extraordinary services is part of the statement of his account and is to be considered by the court accordingly. Whether the allowance is made at the time of or prior to the filing of a settlement account, such allowance cannot take effect as prejudicing the rights of others interested in the settlement of the estate who have not had notice until the court, after legal notice, acts upon the settlement account itself: McMahon v. Ambach Co., 79 OS 103, 86 NE 512; see also McMahon v. Ambach, 79 OS 445, 87 NE 1138.

2. In the absence of an express contract between attorney and client which covers the work to be done by the attorney or an objective to be accomplished by him and specifies the amount or measure of compensation he is to receive therefor, the attorney, upon dismissal by the client, even without cause, is limited to the recovery of the reasonable value of the services he has rendered for the client to the date of dismissal: Bolton v. Marshall, 153 OS 250, 41 OO 270, 91 NE(2d) 508.

3. Under this section reasonable attorney fees must be based upon the actual services performed by the attorneys and upon the reasonable value of those services: In re Verbeck, 173 OS 557, 558, 20 OO(2d) 163, 184 NE(2d) 384.

4. Costs connected with the administration of the estate of a decedent and other obligations incurred in that connection are "debts" of the estate: Harbeson v. Mellinger, 2 App 75, 18 CC(NS) 504, 25 CD 195.

5. An executor is not entitled to charge the estate for the expense of conducting a defense of the will where it is adjudged invalid, although the executor is a necessary party under GC § 12080 (RC § 2741.02): Thurston v. Ludwig, 4 App 486, 25 CC(NS) 298 [for another case arising from same subject matter, see Wallace v. Ludwig, 18 CC(NS) 422, 25 CD 652; which was reversed, without opinion, Ludwig v. Wallace, 91 OS 397].

6. In the absence of a showing of an abuse of discretion, a court is not authorized to interfere with the execution of a power granted by the will of a testator to his executrix to pay to herself from his estate such sum or sums as she deems proper compensation for legal services and unusual services rendered as executrix which in her judgment are necessary or advisable in the administration of his estate: In re Ellis, 66 App 121, 19 OO 392, 32 NE(2d) 23.

7. Under this section, no distinction is made between ordinary and extraordinary legal services rendered to the executor in the administration of an estate: In re Dickey, 87 App 255, 42 OO 474, 94 NE(2d) 223.

8. Revised Code § 2113.36 authorizing the probate court to grant an additional allowance over and above that provided for in RC § 2113.35, for actual and necessary expenses and for extraordinary services not required of the administrator in the common course of his duty, does not require a formal written application therefor: In re Brown, 98 App 297, 57 OO 342, 129 NE(2d) 509.

9. Revised Code § 2113.36 which provides, in part that, "reasonable attorney fees paid by . . . the administrator shall be allowed as a part of the expenses of administration," does not expressly provide that the filing of an application therefor is essential: In re Brown, 98 App 297, 57 OO 342, 129 NE(2d) 509.

10. A testatrix's real estate was transferred by certificate to the devisees under her will. Thereafter, the executor, pursuant to the power contained in the will, sold the real estate without first having the certificate of transfer cancelled or set aside. The purchaser requested the executor to secure a quit claim deed for the property from the devisees, they being willing to execute such deed, but the executor and his attorney refused on the ground that the executor had full power to sell the real estate in order to pay debts of the estate and that the previously issued transfer was void and of no effect. Later, after demand for return of his deposit payment was refused, the purchaser instituted suit to recover it. A quit claim deed was finally executed in order to terminate the litigation. The attorney and the executor sought to recover additional compensation from the estate for additional services for defending the purchaser's suit, and for extraordinary services. Held: That these additional services were not necessary and did not come within the purview of RC § 2113.36, which provides for the allowance of additional compensation for extraordinary services: In re Schoenleben, 99 App 212, 58 OO 366, 132 NE(2d) 245.

11. A probate court may allow, as a part of the expense in the administration of a decedent's estate, compensation to an executor and attorney for services rendered in the successful defense of such decedent's will: In re Teopas, 116 App 506, 22 OO(2d) 322, 188 NE(2d) 616.

12. There is no provision in the Code which limits the authority of the court under this section to allow reasonable compensation to the fiduciary for extraordinary services not required of him in the common course of his duty: In re Ohmer, 22 OO 147 (PC).

13. Where a funeral director, as the executor of an estate, failed to file his claim for burial expenses of the deceased within the time limits set forth in RC §§ 2117.02 and 2117.07, he may thereafter file such claim for the consideration of the probate court under the authority of this section: In re Winders, 45 OLA 353, 68 NE(2d) 677 (App).

14. An executor who successfully contested an earlier will and established a later one was entitled to counsel fees incurred and other necessary expenses involved: In re Woods, 80 OLA 336, 159 NE(2d) 638.

15. Whether an executor can be allowed credit in his account for expenses incurred in the successful defense of the will depends upon the circumstances of each particular case. In a case where the attack on the will was chiefly due to the fact that a large special bequest was made to the executor, such an allowance is not permissible: Weir v. Weir, 7 CC (NS) 289, 18 CD 199.

16. The mere fact that an allowance to an administrator for extraordinary services rendered his estate seems somewhat large, will not warrant the circuit court, on error, in reversing the judgment, the probate judge, with his expert knowledge of such services, having first fixed the amount, and the common pleas court, on appeal, having fixed the same amount: Prentiss v. Woods, 20 CC(NS) 380, 31 CD 367.

17. Under circumstances warranting it, the probate court has authority to allow special compensation and attorney fees to the administrator of the estate of an administrator of another estate, for extra services performed by the last administrator and his attorneys in and about the filing of the final account of the deceased administrator of the first estate: Madden v. McGillin, 24 CC(NS) 607, 35 CD 40.

18. An administrator operating a business is entitled to statutory compensation on funds under his control and for which he is responsible, although such funds did not come into his physical possession: In re Kohanyi, 16 NP(NS) 337.

19. Where it appears that a business such as the management of a newspaper has been successfully conducted, the debts paid and confidence imparted to the enterprise, extra compensation, which together with the statutory commissions to the administrator, does not exceed three per cent of all the funds passing through his hands, is regarded, under the circumstances of this case, as a reasonable allowance. The administrator has really been operating a receivership together with the administration of an estate: In re Kohanyi, 16 NP(NS) 337.

20. A court would not be justified, in an application for additional allowance where the administrator has continued a going concern successfully, in ordering an examination to be made of the books of the business at the expense of the estate, where it is evident from the account filed by the administrator that the books have been well kept, but the books will be made accessible to interested persons desiring to examine them at their own expense: In re Kohanyi, 16 NP(NS) 337.

21. Where an administratrix brings suit to sell the real estate of the decedent and such action is contested by one of the heirs at law, such administratrix is entitled to extra compensation for her time and expenses in attending upon such suit, because such services are not in the common course of duty. She is likewise entitled to railroad fare and hotel bills under this section while traveling about in the discharge of the ordinary duties relating to the estate, and also to telephone tolls and postage. She is not entitled to per diem and allowance for expenses when traveling about the community where the estate is situated, in the discharge of her ordinary duties and where no expense is incurred. Such services are in the common course of her duty, for which the statutory per centum is intended to compensate: In re Pollock, 17 NP(NS) 490, 60 Bull 273.

Attorney fees—administration

21.1. The allowance of fees for services rendered by attorneys employed by an executor or administrator in the settlement of the estate in his hands is a matter to be determined by the probate court, and until so determined they do not constitute a valid claim against the estate: Trumpler v. Royer, 95 OS 194, 115 NE 1018 [affirming Royer v. Trumpler, 7 App 312, 27 OCA 117, 28 CD 186; for a later report, overruling motion to certify record, see Trumpler v. Royer, 16 OLR 108, 63 Bull 223].

22. As to the matter of payment, the law contemplates that the representative will himself pay the value of such services, and be reimbursed, by receiving credit for the amount paid, in the settlement of his accounts. Such items constitute a part of the expenses of administration, which, together with the funeral expenses, take precedence, under our statute, of all other demands: Thomas v. Moore, 52 OS 200, 39 NE 803.

23. Where a judicial determination is required to fix the amount of attorney fees to be paid, the determining factor is the reasonable value of the services. This determination cannot be arrived at in a controverted case solely by the application of a predetermined formula of percentages of inventory values: In re Hickok, 159 OS 282, 50 OO 290, 111 NE(2d) 925.

24. Although the usual practice in the allowance of attorneys' fees, for services rendered an estate, is for the executor or administrator to credit an allowance for such in an account filed and ask approval of the probate court, yet it is not error to permit the application to be filed and the allowance made prior to the filing of any account by the executor or administrator: Kern v. Heilker, 56 App 371, 9 OO 437, 10 NE(2d) 1005.

25. The bank is not entitled under this section to an allowance for legal services ordinarily "not required of an executor . . . in the common course of his duty": In re Langenbach, 70 App 132, 24 OO 447, 45 NE(2d) 129.

25.1 Where services are rendered by an attorney for a widow in effecting a settlement of all her rights and claims in and to the estate of her deceased husband, the probate court has jurisdiction to hear and determine an application by the attorney for the allowance of compensation out of the estate; but, although it may have been fortuitous for the estate that a settlement of many problems may have been effected, such circumstances do not justify payment of attorney fees by the estate: In re Colosimo, 104 App 342, 5 OO(2d) 24, 149 NE(2d) 31.

25.2 Fees which are reasonable must be reasonable both from the standpoint of the attorney rendering the services and from the standpoint of the estate out of which payment is being made. The ultimate determination of reasonableness must take into consideration all the factors relating to reasonableness of the fees in the particular case. The facts and circumstances vary so much from case to case that it is impossible to set forth an iron-clad rule other than that reasonable value must be substantiated by the evidence in the case: In re Love, 1 OApp(2d) 571, 30 OO(2d) 595, 206 NE(2d) 39.

25.3 Reasonable counsel fees cannot be arrived at in a controverted case solely by the application of a rule of court fixing a predetermined formula of percentages of the proceeds of sale: Glimcher v. Doppett, 5 OApp(2d) 269, 34 OO(2d) 435, 215 NE(2d) 423.

26. A probate court may not disallow the fees paid by an administratrix to an attorney employed by her in the administration of the estate as a penalty to him for failure to file an inventory within the time provided by law but must exercise its discretion in determining what constitutes reasonable fees for the attorney's services taking into consideration the scope of the services performed and whether they were performed in a professional manner: In re Burchett, 16 OApp(2d) 45, 45 OO(2d) 133, 241 NE(2d) 787.

26.1 A probate court can, sua sponte, vacate an erroneous order fixing attorney's fees for services rendered to and expenses incurred for an estate and file a new journal entry for a lesser figure which he finds to be the reasonable value of the services rendered for the benefit of an estate: In re Cercone, 18 OApp(2d) 26, 47 OO(2d) 20, 246 NE(2d) 578.

26.2 A compromise figure as to the legal fees for services performed by special tax counsel for an estate, agreed upon by and between counsel for the estate and the attorney for the special tax counsel, is in no way binding upon a probate court. Upon application to the court the sole question for determination is the reasonableness of the value of the services to the estate. This determination must be made by the probate court judge and his duty cannot be usurped by agreement of counsel: In re Cercone, 18 OApp(2d) 26, 47 OO(2d) 20, 240 NE(2d) 578.

27. The failure on the part of the administrator to make application to the probate court deprives that court of jurisdiction to hear and determine the matter on exceptions filed by the attorney to an account, in which the administrator has not claimed a credit for compensation paid to the attorney: In re Wellmeier, 11 OO 45 (PC).

27.1 A claim for attorney fees is a personal claim against the administrator and not against the estate: In re Wellmeier, 11 OO 45 (PC); In re Whinery, 11 OO 96 (CP).

28. The probate court may determine what part, if any, of attorney fees may be paid out of estate funds; when that is done, the court's power is exhausted: In re Whinery, 11 OO 96 (CP).

29. Where a land sale proceeding, wrongfully begun, has been dismissed, and there are no assets other than such real estate, the court is not required to fix the fee of the attorney for the administrator: Trisler v. Freyger, 33 OO 335, 68 NE(2d) 96 (PC).

30. A fiduciary, who is an attorney, may perform his own legal services and shall be allowed a reasonable compensation for the services so rendered: In re Cramer, 34 OO 316, 69 NE(2d) 204 (PC).

31. The rule that executors and administrators are personally liable for the services of attorneys employed by them, but that such contracts do not bind the estate, is not modified by the amendment of GC § 10838 (RC § 2113.36), to the effect that "if no definite amount has been agreed upon, the court shall fix such attorney fees as may be reasonable": McDonald v. French, 32 OLA 356.

32. Fees of an attorney of an administrator in an action to sell real estate to pay debts, general costs of administration, and premiums due a surety company upon the administrator's bond cannot be allowed as extraordinary expenses under this section: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

33. A reasonable allowance of fees will be made on equitable principles to counsel who, though not employed by the administrator, have rendered services which inured to the benefit of the trust: In re Oskamp, 1 NP(NS) 197, 49 Bull 568.

34. The fact that an executor is also an attorney does not preclude an allowance to him of fees for attorneys employed by him, where no allowance is made to him personally for performance of the same services; and the rendering of legal services for an executor is not necessarily inconsistent with the performance of like services by the same attorneys for the widow of the decedent: King v. Alt, 11 NP(NS) 433, 22 OD 183.

35. On appeal from an order of the probate court fixing attorney fees to be allowed to the executor, the court of common pleas will follow the decision of the probate court unless the facts indicate that such finding was made without due regard to the evidence presented and to the surrounding circumstances, especially as the probate judge in question has had a long experience in matters of that sort: In re Messang, 20 NP(NS) 60, sub nomine, In re Massang, 27 OD(NP) 481 [affirmed by court of appeals].

36. Attorney fees of twenty-five thousand dollars for procuring a one hundred thousand dollar trust fund for minors were held not excessive, considering the amount of work involved and the services rendered on a contingent fee basis: Sampson v. Mattern, 18 OLA 693.

38. This section, providing for the payment of legal services rendered in the administration of an estate, authorizes the payment of "reasonable attorney fees," which refers to what the services reasonably are worth and not to any contract or agreement of the parties, previously entered into: In re Bancroft, 81 OLA 548, 163 NE(2d) 68 (App).

39. Amount decreed for counsel fees was found to be manifestly against the weight of the evidence: In re Morgan, 85 OLA 481, 171 NE(2d) 921 (App).

—Contest of will

42. It is the duty of an administrator to preserve the assets of the estate; but it is not his duty to defend an action brought to decide who is entitled to the estate when the only heir at law is represented by counsel in the same case and actively contests the action: Foltz v. Boone, 107 OS 562, 140 NE 761.

43. An application by an executor to the probate court to fix the amount of attorney fees for the defense of the will presents a matter within the jurisdiction of the court, and, where facts justify, the court may modify its order, made in response to such application, by a nunc pro tunc order: State ex rel Stephens v. Wiseman, 35 OLA 586, 42 NE(2d) 240 (App).

44. The executor is entitled to counsel fees and expenses incurred in successfully defending a will contest case even though the will is sustained by virtue of a compromise: Union Sav. Bank & Co. v. Smith, 4 CC(NS) 237, 16 CD 317 [affirmed, 74 OS 505, 78 NE 1137].

46. An executor who employs an attorney to represent the estate in a will contest has no power to bind the estate by his contract. The liability is the personal liability of the executor; and he must look to the estate for reimbursement to the extent of a reasonable compensation for such services as are beneficial to the estate: In re Curry, 20 NP(NS) 49, 27 OD 485.

Forfeiture by misconduct

48. Pursuant to the provisions of RC § 2113.35, the probate court may, in its discretion, deny allowance of an administrator's fee to an administrator who the court finds did not faithfully discharge his duties. In such case, the probate court may properly refuse to allow counsel fees to such administrator who also acted as attorney for such estate: In re Gray, 118 App 547, 26 OO(2d) 65, 196 NE(2d) 131.

49. Where named executrix refused to proceed to have will probated, and named trustee thereupon proceeded to perform such services, the trustee was entitled to reasonable compensation for such services under the same principle that would have enabled the executrix to have received reasonable compensation for services rendered beyond the common course of duty. In re Allison, 9 App(2d) 333, 38 OO(2d) 388, 224 NE(2d) 386.

50. The question of extraordinary services and compensation therefor in the administration of estates concerns the fiduciary alone and does not concern the matter of counsel fees, and counsel in proper cases are entitled to reasonable compensation for services performed whether or not fiduciary services are ordinary or extraordinary in nature and such fees when approved or allowed become a part of the expenses of the administration of the estate or trust: In re Haggerty, 70 OLA 463, 128 NE(2d) 680 (PC).

51. An executor who refused to obey the order of court to file an account, although served with five citations, should not receive an allowance for extra services: Cairns v. Hedges, 2 CC 103, 1 CD 387.

55. In Ohio reasonable attorney fees should be allowed as a part of the expenses of administration of a decedent's estate: In re Jacoby, 79 OLA 247, 155 NE(2d) 282 (PC).

Compensation by will

56. Legacies to sons in excess of what they would have inherited, with a direction that in consideration thereof, no fees, commissions or charges for administering the estate shall be paid to them, disentitle them to commissions under this and the preceding sections: In re Dellenbaugh, 17 CC 302, 9 CD 380 [affirmed, without report, 62 OS 658].

57. The phrase "testamentary expenses," embraces all those expenses that arise out of the protection and defense of a will and where a testatrix provides that "testamentary expenses" be paid out of her estate, attorneys' fees incurred by an executor in defending an action involving the ownership of shares of stock in the estate are chargeable against the residuary estate even though such shares were specifically devised and such defense benefits only one legatee: In re Jacoby, 79 OLA 247, 155 NE(2d) 282 (PC).

58. Where tax dispute arose involving non-probate property not primarily within the control of the executrix, attorneys' fees incurred in defense of claim are the primary responsibility of the beneficiary even though, except for the defense, the executrix would have been personally liable for having transferred property out of estate without payment of tax liability. In re McKittrick, 15 OO(2d) 274, 172 NE (2d) 197 (PC).

59. The provisions of 26 U.S. Code § 2053 relating to deductions from the value of the gross estate for the purpose of determining the federal estate tax, make state law controlling: Union Commerce Bank v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 31 OO(2d) 252, 339 F(2d) 163.

60. Under Ohio law the probate court may properly allow as an expense of administration reasonable fees paid by an executrix to attorneys for their successful defense of a will contest, and such fees are deductible for federal estate tax purposes: Cadden v. Welch, 19 OO(2d) 355, 298 F(2d) 343.

§ 2113.37 Allowance for tombstone and cemetery lot. (GC § 10509-178)

The probate court in settlement of an executor's or administrator's account may allow as a credit to the executor or administrator a just amount expended by him for a tombstone or monument for the deceased and a just amount paid by him to a cemetery association or corporation as a perpetual fund for caring for and preserving the lot on which the deceased is buried. It is not incumbent on an executor or administrator to procure a tombstone or monument or to pay any sum into such fund.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. It was lawful for the probate court, at its discretion, to allow the administrator, in his settlement, any just and reasonable "amount expended" for a monument; but the administrator was not allowed to interfere with the heirs of the intestate in erecting one: Curtis v. National Bank, 39 OS 579.

2. The court has no authority to order the administrator to buy a monument, nor to fix a sum as a maximum to be expended by him for that purpose: In re Ferguson, 81 OS 58, 89 NE 1070 [affirming 6 NP(NS) 417, 18 OD 374].

2.1 Under the provisions of this section, the allowance, as an administrative expense, of a "just amount" to be expended by the executor or administrator as a perpetual fund for caring for and preserving the cemetery lot in which the deceased is buried is entirely a permissive matter which is within the sound discretion of the probate court: In re Nitschke, 114 App 507, 20 OO(2d) 1, 183 NE(2d) 449.

2.2 An order of the probate court allowing, as an administrative expense, payment in full of a testator's bequest to a cemetery association for the perpetual care of his cemetery lot is not a "just amount" authorized by this section, and constitutes an abuse of discretion, where the assets of the estate are insufficient to pay all specific bequests in full, and such allowance would operate to reduce specific bequests rather than to reduce the general estate; and where, by a proportionate abatement and distribution affecting all specific bequests, payment of a part of the cemetery lot bequest would insure perpetual care for the decedent's lot, and payment of the cemetery association bequest in full would create a preference for that bequest over other specific bequests, not permitted by the terms of the will or by law: In re Nitschke, 114 App 507, 20 OO(2d) 1, 183 NE(2d) 449.

3. Dependent upon the facts and circumstances in a particular case, the expenditure of a reasonable sum for a monument or marker for a deceased seventeen year old son in senior high school at the time of his death, caused by the wrongful act of a third person, may be considered as a necessary funeral expense: Caswell v. Harry Miller Excavating Co., 47 OO(2d) 307, 246 NE(2d) 921 (CP).

4. An administrator may expend a reasonable amount for markers to fix the corners of a cemetery lot: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

5. While the probate court cannot order the administrator to construct a monument, and it cannot ascertain in advance the amount to be expended therefor, the court may determine whether the amount expended was reasonable or not, after the administrator has exercised the discretion which is vested in him by this section: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

7. A bequest to a public or private cemetery association for the purpose of maintaining the testator's burial lot is allowable as a deduction from the gross estate by way of expenses of administration, if the amount is not unreasonable, having regard to all the circumstances: 1921 OAG vol.1, p.70.

[SPOUSE TAKING AT APPRAISED VALUE]

§ 2113.38 Purchase of property by surviving spouse.

A surviving spouse even though acting as executor or administrator, may purchase the following property, if left by the decedent, and if not specifically devised or bequeathed:

(A) The mansion house, including the parcel of land on which such house is situated and lots or farm land adjacent to the house and used in conjunction with it as the home of the decedent, and the household goods contained in the house, at the appraised value as fixed by the appraisers;

(B) Securities listed on an approved stock exchange, as defined in division (E) of section 1707.02 of the Revised Code, at the market price at the time of purchase;

(C) Any other real or personal property of the decedent not exceeding, with the mansion house and land used in conjunction with it, and the household goods the spouse elects to purchase, one third of the gross appraised value of the estate, at the appraised value as fixed by the appraisers.

A spouse desiring to exercise this right of purchase with respect to personal property shall file in the probate court an application setting forth an accurate description of the personal property, and the election of the spouse to purchase it at the appraised or market value, as the case may be. No notice is required for the court to hear the application, insofar as it appertains to household goods contained in the mansion house or securities listed on an approved stock exchange. If the application includes other personal property, the court shall cause a notice of the time and place of the hearing of the application with respect to such other personal property to be given to the executor or administrator, the heirs or beneficiaries interested in the estate, and to such other interested persons as the court determines.

A spouse desiring to exercise this right of purchase with respect to an interest in real estate shall file in the court a petition containing an accurate description of the real estate, and naming as parties defendant the executor or administrator, the persons to whom the real estate passes by inheritance or residuary devise, and all mortgagees and other lien holders whose claims affect the real estate or any part of it. Spouses of parties defendant need not be made parties defendant. The petition shall set forth the election of the surviving spouse to purchase the interest in real estate at the appraised value, and shall contain a prayer accordingly. A summons shall thereupon be issued and served on the defendants, in the same manner as provided for service of summons in actions to sell real estate to pay debts. No hearing on the application or petition shall be held until the inventory is approved.

On the hearing of the application or petition, the finding of the court shall be in favor of the surviving spouse, unless it appears that the appraisal was made as a result of collusion or fraud, or that it is so manifestly inadequate that a sale at that price would unconscionably prejudice the rights of the parties in interest or creditors. The action of the court shall not be held to prejudice the rights of lien holders.

Upon a finding in favor of the surviving spouse, the court shall make an entry fixing the terms of payment to the executor or administrator for the property, having regard for the rights of creditors of the estate, and ordering the executor or administrator, or a commissioner who may be appointed and authorized for the purpose, to transfer and convey the property to the spouse upon compliance with the terms fixed by the court. If the court, having regard for the amount of property to be purchased, its appraised value, and the distribution to be made of the proceeds arising from the sale, finds that the original bond given by the executor or administrator is sufficient, the court may dispense with the giving of additional bonds. If the court finds that the original bond is insufficient, as a condition to transfer and conveyance, the court shall require the executor or administrator to execute an additional bond in an amount as the court may fix, with proper surety, conditioned and payable as provided in section 2127.27 of the Revised Code. This section does not prevent the court from ordering transfer and conveyance without bond in cases where the will of a testator provides that the executor need not give bond. The executor or administrator, or a commissioner, shall thereupon execute and deliver to the spouse a proper bill of sale or deed, as the case may be, for the property, and make a return to the court.

The death of the surviving spouse prior to the filing of the court's entry fixing the terms of payment for property elected to be purchased shall nullify the election. The property, whether real or personal, shall thereafter be free of the right granted in this section.

The application or petition provided for in this section shall not be filed prior to filing the inventory, nor later than one month after the approval of the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code. Failure to file an application or petition within that time nullifies the election with respect to the property required to be included, and the property, whether real or personal, shall thereafter be free of the right granted in this section.

1.2 Where, in the administration of an estate, a motion to vacate and set aside an order previously entered approving and confirming an inventory filed therein is timely filed by the surviving spouse, although not within one month after such order approving such inventory, and is subsequently found to be well taken, and an order is thereupon entered that such previously approved inventory be modified by the deletion therefrom of certain personal property and by increasing the amount of the widow's year's allowance, such order of modification does not constitute a vacation of the previous order of approval so as to reinstate in such surviving spouse the right of election to purchase the mansion house for the one-month period, provided in this section, from the date of such order of modification: In re Hrabnicky, 167 OS 507, 5 OO(2d) 181, 149 NE(2d) 909.

1.3 Where a valid judgment entry has been made in favor of the petition of a surviving spouse to purchase an interest in real estate pursuant to this section and fixing the terms of payment therefor, the subsequent death of that spouse will not nullify the right to purchase on those terms: Witteman v. Dunkle, 21 OS(2d) 3, 50 OO(2d) 2, 254 NE(2d) 345 [affirming In re Witteman, 15 OApp(2d) 126, 44 OO(2d) 255, 239 NE(2d) 107].

2. This section does not entitle a surviving spouse to purchase, at the appraised value, the entire lot on which the mansion house is situated, where there are located on the same lot two other buildings which are rented and used for business purposes, not in conjunction with the mansion house, but limits such spouse to the purchase, at the appraised value, of only that portion of the lot which is not occupied by such other two buildings: In re Burgoon, 80 App 465, 36 OO 200, 76 NE(2d) 310.

3. In the administration of a decedent's estate, where, pursuant to this section, the surviving spouse elects to purchase the mansion house at its appraised value and such election is denied by the probate court on the ground that the lot containing the mansion house also contained a business building and the lot was appraised as a whole, such surviving spouse is entitled, on motion, to have the appraisal set aside and a reappraisalment made to remove such bar to his election, even though the surviving spouse, as administrator, had effected the appraisal: In re Burgoon, 81 App 370, 37 OO 210, 79 NE(2d) 682.

3.1 A surviving spouse has the right, under this section which provides that a surviving spouse may purchase "the mansion house, including the parcel of land on which such house is situated and lots or farm land adjacent thereto and used in conjunction therewith as the home of the decedent," to purchase, at the appraised value, an entire farm, where such farm land and the buildings thereon were used in conjunction with the mansion house in establishing and maintaining a home for the decedent and his family: In re Clark, 102 App 200, 2 OO(2d) 185, 141 NE(2d) 890 [affirming 74 OLA 460, 141 NE(2d) 259].

3.2 The provision of this section that the probate court "shall make the entry fixing the terms of payment" for property selected to be purchased by a surviving spouse, does not authorize the court to require the surviving spouse to pay more than the appraised value for the property: In re Fouts, 103 App 313, 3 OO(2d) 353, 145 NE(2d) 440.

3.3 The appraisalment of property of a decedent is made as of the time of such decedent's death, and a surviving spouse electing to purchase at the appraised value under this section, takes such property as evaluated as of the date of death. Anything which transpires after the date of such death, which affects the value of the property, is not to be considered in

1. Under former GC § 10697 (see now RC §§ 2113.38, 2113.40) the right of the widow to take personal property at the appraisalment is not limited to the time of making the appraisalment, but she may, at any time within the three months allowed the administrator for selling the same, exercise this right, until the property is put up for sale; and her right is not affected by any changes that may, in the meantime, have taken place in the market value of the property: Overturf v. Wear, 26 OS 538.

1.1 A specific legacy is a bequest of some particular thing or portion of a testator's estate which is so described by the will as to distinguish it from other articles of the same general nature in the estate: In re Mellott, 162 OS 113, 54 OO 53, 121 NE(2d) 7 [reversing Court of Appeals and reinstating judgment of Probate Court, 50 OO 517, making such valuation: In re Fouts, 103 App 313, 3 OO(2d) 353, 145 NE(2d) 440.

3.4 The words and phrases describing the real property subject to purchase by the surviving spouse under this section, may, under proper circumstances, contemplate a larger amount of property than that which would ordinarily fall within the limits of the curtilage of common law: Nagel v. Wilcox, 104 App 534, 5 OO(2d) 267, 150 NE(2d) 667.

3.5 Under this section providing that a surviving spouse may purchase "the mansion house, including the parcel of land on which such house is situated and lots or farm land adjacent thereto and used in conjunction therewith as the home of the decedent," such spouse may purchase at the appraised value the interest of the decedent in a farm which had been owned in common by the spouse and the decedent, jointly operated by them as a farm, and used by them as their residence, with all the parts of the farm being combined to make up the "farm home," and not as a business or commercial enterprise so as to deprive the spouse of such right, even though both husband and wife had outside employment: Young v. Young, 106 App 206, 6 OO(2d) 458, 154 NE(2d) 19.

3.6 The authority of a surviving spouse to elect to purchase property "not specifically devised or bequeathed," as provided by this section, applies to general, as opposed to a specific legacy, as determined by usual principles of testamentary law: In re Witteman, 15 OApp(2d) 126, 44 OO(2d) 255, 239 NE(2d) 107 [affirmed, Witteman v. Dunkle, 21 OS(2d) 3, 50 OO(2d) 2, 254 NE(2d) 345].

4. The probate court has jurisdiction under the provisions of GC § 10501-53 (RC § 2101.24) to determine whether a surviving spouse is estopped by a contract from electing to take the mansion house at the appraised value as fixed by the appraisers in a proceeding instituted under this section: Passoni v. Breehl, 29 OO 220, 14 OSupp 100 (PC).

5. When the surviving spouse of a decedent files a petition to purchase real estate under this section, and dies before the action is completed or conveyance made, such right of action abates and the estate of the first decedent will be administered as if no petition to purchase by the surviving spouse had been filed: Jewell v. Chiles, 37 OO 33 (PC).

6. The exercise of the absolute right in a surviving spouse to purchase the mansion house at the appraised value, under this section, deprives the common pleas court of any jurisdiction in partition: Strawser v. Stanton, 47 OO 255, 103 NE(2d) 797 (CP).

7. When the election to purchase is made prior to the approval of the inventory, it satisfies the requirement of this section: Strawser v. Stanton, 47 OO 255, 103 NE(2d) 797 (CP).

8. The surviving spouse is entitled to purchase the mansion house at the appraised value and either deduct from the purchase price the amount of the mortgage or pay the full purchase price and require the fiduciary to pay the amount of the unpaid mortgage: McAdams v. Bolsinger, 57 OO 338, 129 NE(2d) 878 (PC).

9. The provision of this section, giving a widow the exclusive privilege of purchasing at the appraised value any items listed in the inventory upon the filing of a proper application within one month of the approval of the inventory, is mandatory as to the time element: Palmer v. Smith, 28 OLA 673.

10. Where a nonresident widow could not assert a right to purchase certain stock of her decedent at its appraised value under the law of the state of domicile, such law being substantive in nature, the probate court is without jurisdiction to approve the election under this section by virtue of which the widow sought to purchase such stock: In re McCombs, 52 OLA 353 (PC).

11. Where the only asset in an estate was the home and the land on which it was located in the village of Donnelsville, Clark county, Ohio and testatrix's will stated "I give and devise all real estate located in the village of Donnelsville, Clark county, Ohio, that I may own at the time of my decease to my beloved husband . . . for and during the period of his lifetime, and at his death to my daughter. . . the same to be hers absolutely, and in fee simple," then the testatrix did specifically devise her home real estate to her husband for and during his lifetime, with a remainder in fee simple to her daughter: In re Reed, 65 OLA 129, 112 NE(2d) 403, 114 NE(2d) 314.

12. The right of election under this section, being a personal right, in the absence of express statutory authority, the guardian of an incompetent person cannot make such election, and such election must be made by or under the direction of a court having chancery jurisdiction over the person or estate of the incompetent, and this power in the court is an inherent power, independent of statute: Dorfmeier v. Dorfmeier, 69 OLA 15, 123 NE(2d) 681 (PC).

13. Relief to which a widow would otherwise be entitled under GC §§ 10503-4, 10509-54 (RC §§ 2105.06, 2115.13) and this section, will not be decreed where by contract she has agreed not to claim any other part of the estate than that given her by the contract: In re Schubert, 32 NP(NS) 169.

[SALE AUTHORIZED BY WILL]

§ 2113.39 Sale of property under authority of will. (GC § 10509-227)

If a qualified executor, administrator, or testamentary trustee is authorized by will or devise to sell any class of personal property whatsoever or real estate, no order shall be required from the probate court to enable him to act in pursuance of the power vested in him. A power to sell authorizes a sale for any purpose deemed by such executor, administrator, or testamentary trustee to be for the best interest of the estate, unless the power is expressly limited by such will.

3. Power given to executors to sell land ceases to exist when the estate is settled or all claims against it are presumptively satisfied by lapse of time: Ward v. Barrows, 2 OS 242.

4. Discretionary power to sell lands given by will cannot be delegated: Cleveland, P. & A. R. Co. v. Hutchins, 37 OS 282; Allen v. Globe Ins. Co., 19 Bull 198.

5. Where, under a testamentary power to sell lands the executor, in bad faith, sells them for less than their true value, he should be charged with the loss on exception to his account in the probate court: Brown v. Reed, 56 OS 264, 46 NE 982 [affirming Reed v. Brown, 10 CC 44, 6 CD 15].

6. This section as amended in 1947 which extended the permissive right to sell to executors and administrators when authorized by will or devise or to a testamentary trustee cannot be given retroactive effect: Payer v. Black, 58 OLA 421 (App).

7. Executors authorized by will to sell lands must take out letters of administration before being empowered to sell: In re Crawford, 21 CC 554, 11 CD 605 [affirmed, 68 OS 58].

8. The power to sell lands and distribute the proceeds in accordance with the will is a power that may be inferred from the expression in the will, "firmly believing they (the executors) will carry out the directions of my will," in the absence of express power thereunto: Schaupp v. Jones, 3 CC(NS) 176, 13 CD 649.

9. Where a will directs the executors to have an appraisal made of all the property belonging to the estate at a certain date and gives to any devisee the right to take any one parcel of property, not exceeding his share in the estate, at its appraised value, the executors cannot at a date subsequent to that fixed in the will, contract to sell a certain parcel to a third person, under a power given to them by will, without first having the appraisal made and offering the property to the devisees: Bailey Co. v. Bradley, 23 CC(NS) 59, 34 CD 102.

12. It seems that if an executor is sole legatee and he makes sale in a defective proceeding, the sale will be considered valid and he will be required to account for the proceeds to a creditor: Hocking Valley R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354.

13. No title is vested in executors by a naked power to sell and convey to pay debts if necessary, but the title is in the heirs at law until the power is executed: Mimmons v. Westfall, 33 OS 213, 223.

14. Where the will gave the widow power to sell, if necessary to maintain herself and children, and she exercised the power, reciting in the deed that it was necessary to sell the same to provide maintenance for herself and children, the burden is upon attacking parties to show that it was not necessary: Haun v. Block, 9 CC(NS) 328, 19 CD 460.

15. A testator, whose estate consisted of a single tract of land, occupied as a homestead, and some personal property, devised and bequeathed to his wife one-half of all his real and personal estate, and the other half to his brothers and sisters, and the children of a deceased sister naming each, and specifying the proportion or share of each. He appointed an executor, and authorized and empowered him to sell and convey "all said real estate to the purchaser or purchasers thereof, if necessary for the purpose of distributing" it "among the devisees and legatees aforesaid." Held, that this was a devise in fee, to each of the devisees by name, of an undivided estate in land, in the proportions specified, and not a bequest of the proceeds of said land: Hoyt v. Day, 32 OS 101.

18. A trust created by a testator to continue until title finally vests in testator's grandchildren, running through the lives of three classes of persons, is a trust connected with the office and not exclusively with the person named as trustee in the will, hence the powers and duties conferred on the trustee, including the power to convey land by good and sufficient title, is a power running through the life of the trust, to be exercised successively by the person or persons upon whom execution of the trust for the time being devolves: Clark v. Neil, 19 NP(NS) 449, 27 OD 328.

19. Where the executor is given power to sell to pay debts, the purchaser need not inquire as to debts unless the time between the death and sale is so long that it may be presumed that the debts are paid. Seven years will not raise such a presumption: Smith v. McIntire, 37 CCA 177, 95 Fed 585, 13 OFD 14.

20. Where a power of sale is clearly given, but the will does not provide who is to exercise it, the omission may be supplied by construction. Thus if the context of the will shows that the executors are to receive and expend the proceeds of the sale, it is held that the power of sale is given to them: Collier v. Grimesey, 36 OS 17.

21. The attachment of the share of the devisee does not defeat the right of the executor to sell: Smyth v. Anderson, 31 OS 144.

22. Neither does the sale of a share by a devisee defeat the right of the executor to sell: Hoyt v. Day, 32 OS 101.

23. An action for partition of an estate which came to the plaintiff by devise, when commenced more than one year after the appointment of the executor of the testator's estate, prevails over a purported sale by the executor under a power in the will when the latter's agreement to sell was executed after the filing of the action: Kufel v. Chopcinski, 58 OO(2d) 97, 29 OMisc 61, 278 NE(2d) 60 (CP) (1971).

Who may exercise power

28. Power given to executors to sell land may be executed by one executor, if only one accepts the office under the will: Taylor v. Galloway, 1 O 232.

29. Power to sell, without any trust attached, cannot be executed by an administrator with the will annexed: Wills v. Cowper, 2 O 124; but see case note 32, below.

30. Administrators de bonis non with will annexed have same power to sell at private sale granted by will to executors: In re Hanna, 29 NP(NS) 338.

31. One executor cannot purchase land of his co-executors, but such a sale may be confirmed by the subsequent assent and ratification of the heirs: Mitchell v. Dunlap, 10 O 117.

32. If the proceeds are to be paid over to a trustee, and the executors all resign, an administrator with the will annexed may execute the power to sell: Elstner v. Fife, 32 OS 358.

33. If a will confers upon the executor the power to sell realty, and such power is personal, the administrator with a will annexed does not possess such power. If on the other hand, the will shows that such power is annexed to the office and is a part of the trust, it passes to the administrator with a will annexed: Westwater v. Guitner, 18 NP(NS) 209, 30 OD 370.

[SALE OF PERSONAL PROPERTY]

§ 2113.40 Sale of personal property. (GC § 10509-90)

At any time after the appointment of an executor or administrator, the probate court, when satisfied that it would be for the best interests of the estate, may authorize such executor or administrator to sell at public or private sale, at a fixed price or for the best price obtainable, and for cash or on such terms as the court may determine, any part or all of the personal property belonging to the estate, except:

(A) Such property as the surviving spouse desires to take at the appraised value;

(B) Property specifically bequeathed, when sale of such property is not necessary for the payment of debts, provided that such property may be sold with the consent of the person entitled thereto, including executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees;

(C) Property as to which distribution in kind has been demanded prior to the sale by the sur-living spouse or other beneficiary entitled to such distribution in kind;

(D) Property which the court directs shall not be sold pursuant to a wish expressed by the decedent in his will; but at any later period, on application of a party interested, the court may, and for good cause shall, require such sale to be made.

In case of sale before expiration of the time within which the surviving spouse may elect to take at the appraised value, not less than ten days' notice of such sale shall be given to the surviving spouse, unless such surviving spouse consents to such sale or waives notice thereof. Such notice shall not be required as to perishable property.

The court may permit the itemized list of personal property being sold to be incorporated in documents and records relating to the sale, by reference to other documents and records which have been filed in the court. Provided that a court order shall not be required to permit the public sale of personal goods and chattels.

2.1 Executor must sell the personal property belonging to the estate, except promissory notes and other rights in action which can be collected: Weyer v. Watt, 48 OS 545, 28 NE 670.

3. At common law an executor or administrator has power to sell the assets of the estate, including notes and mortgages, without an order of court: Jelke v. Goldsmith, 52 OS 499, 40 NE 167, 49 AmSt 730.

4. An administrator has no power to sell or transfer notes secured by mortgage which belonged to deceased at time of his death: Miller v. Stark, 61 OS 413, 56 NE 11.

6. An executor may pass title to a stock certificate which stands in the name of his decedent and which the latter has indorsed in blank, within the meaning of GC § 8673-1 (RC § 1705.04) et seq, without indorsing it himself: Stoltz v. Carroll, 99 OS 289, 124 NE 226.

7. Under a will giving to an executor and trustee power to sell and lease real estate belonging to the testatrix, suspension of that power for the time being, pending a contest of the will, did not preclude the trustee from entering into an agreement for the sale or lease of property, contingent upon the validity of the said will being established where the contracting purchaser knew of the existence of proceedings involving the validity of the will; and the termination of such a suit in a judgment upholding the will leaves the trustee clothed with all the power and authority conferred by the will as and from the date of his appointment: Bernheim v. Stark, 9 App 40, 29 OCA 17, 30 CD 452 [motion for an order directing court of appeals to certify its records overruled, 16 OLR 344, 63 Bull 438].

9. An executor and trustee, having authority under the will to sell or lease property, is at liberty to enter into an agreement whereby purchaser is to pay for the property in part and take a lease for a period of years with a privilege of purchase for the amount remaining due under the agreement, interest on said amount to be paid at a stipulated rate during the term of the lease: Bernheim v. Stark, 9 App 40, 29 OCA 17, 30 CD 452 [motion to certify record overruled, 16 OLR 344, 63 Bull 438].

11. A provision in a will whereby testator gives all of his personal property, together with certain real property to his wife, shows that he does not intend that his debts shall be paid out of the personal property: Harbeson v. Mellinger, 2 App 75, 18 CC(NS) 504, 25 CD 195.

13. The probate court has authority to order the sale of securities in danger of depreciation, and the reinvestment of the proceeds therefrom: Guthrie v. Cincinnati Gas &c. Co., 2 NP(NS) 117, 15 OD 23.

14. In the absence of fraud or negligence, former GC § 10697 (see now RC §§ 2113.38, 2113.40) does not impose a personal liability upon executors of an estate for failure to sell, within a period of three months of their appointment, corporate stocks, owned by the estate, sufficient to pay debts and legacies, no absolute duty upon fiduciaries being imposed by such section: Richter v. Anderson, 56 App 291, 9 OO 385, 10 NE(2d) 789.

15. Omission by the probate court to fix the lowest price at which corporate stock belonging to the estate of a decedent may be sold at private sale, does not invalidate a sale made in all other respects in conformity with the statute, without collusion or fraud and at the market price: Burch v. Cincinnati Trust Co., 14 CC(NS) 346, 23 CD 358 [affirming 12 NP (NS) 86, 22 OD 6].

16. A buyer of stock from an executor need not take it or pay for it without proof of the official character of the seller, and that the court has fixed the price at which the sale can be made: Humphries v. Loomis, 18 CC(NS) 529, 33 CD 186 [affirmed, without opinion, 88 OS 566].

Public sales of personal property mentioned in section 2113.40 of the Revised Code shall be at public auction and, unless otherwise directed by the probate court, after notice of such sale has been given:

(A) By advertisement appearing at least three times in a newspaper of general circulation in the county during a period of fifteen days next preceding such sale;

(B) By advertisement posted not less than fifteen days next preceding such sale in at least five public places in the township or municipal corporation where such sale is to take place;

(C) By both such forms of advertisement.

Such advertisement published or posted shall specify generally the property to be sold and the date, place, and terms of sale. The executor or administrator, if he deems it for the best interests of the estate may employ an auctioneer or clerk, or both, to conduct such sale, and their reasonable fees and charges shall be deducted from the proceeds of the sale. The court for good cause may extend the time for sale.

When a person who has entered into a written contract for the sale and conveyance of an interest in real estate dies before its completion, his executor or administrator when not required to otherwise dispose of such contract, may, with the consent of the purchaser, obtain authority to complete such contract by filing an application therefor in the probate court of the county in which he was appointed. Notice of the time of hearing on such application shall be given to the surviving spouse and heirs, if the decedent died intestate, and to the surviving spouse, and devisees or legatees having an interest in such contract, if the decedent died testate. If the court is satisfied that it would be for the best interests of the estate, it may authorize the executor or administrator to complete said contract and to execute and deliver to the purchaser such instruments as are required to make the order of the court effective.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-224; 114 v 320 (450); 123 v 460 (464), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 11922.

Comment

This section and RC § 2113.49 relate only to contracts entered into by the owner of real estate who dies before the contract is completed. A distinction is made in the procedure between completion of such a contract and alteration or cancellation of such a contract.

This section relates to completion only. The purchaser under the contract may have the right to pay the balance due or has paid the entire contract price and is entitled to a deed. This section provides that an application shall be filed by the personal representative with the consent of the purchaser for authority to complete the contract and give a deed. All parties in interest are notified of the time and place of the hearing. If a party in interest objects for any reason to the contract being completed he has his remedy in the common pleas court or by obtaining leave of the probate court by being made a party-defendant and filing therein his pleading and submitting the matter to the jurisdiction of the probate court.

Generally, all parties in interest want the contract completed and a simple procedure is provided.

Revised Code § 2113.49 relates to alterations or cancellations. An adversary proceeding is required. The parties-defendant depend on whether the decedent died testate or intestate. The action may be brought in the probate or common pleas court of the county where the executor or administrator was appointed or in the county where the real estate or any part thereof is situated.

The phrase in these two sections "when not required to otherwise dispose of such contract" refers to situations where the contract was specifically bequeathed, or it is necessary to sell same to pay debts or where the provisions of RC § 2107.33 are applicable, etc.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. In an action in the common pleas court by vendee to compel conveyance by the heirs of the vendor, it is necessary to make the administrator a party: Massie v. Donaldson, 8 O 377.

2. The probate court by virtue of GC § 10509-224 (RC § 2113.48) et seq, was given jurisdiction to direct the completion of written contracts made by a decedent when the other party to the contract consents: Kramer v. Gaskill, 39 OLA 310 (App).

3. The petition of the devisees to rescind a contract and to return notes, without showing ownership and without an offer to return the money paid, is defective: Stang v. Newberger, 6 NP 60, 8 OD 80.

§ 2113.49 Court may order alteration or cancellation of contract.

When a person who has entered into a written contract for the sale and conveyance of an interest in real estate dies before its completion, his executor or administrator, when not required to otherwise dispose of the contract, may file a petition for the alteration or cancellation of the contract, in the probate court of the county in which he was appointed, or in which the real estate or any part of it is situated. If the decedent died intestate, the surviving spouse and heirs, and if the decedent died testate, the surviving spouse, and devisees or legatees having an interest in the contract, when not plaintiffs, shall, together with the purchaser, be made parties defendant.

If, upon hearing, the court is satisfied that it is for the best interests of the estate, it may, with the consent of the purchaser, authorize the executor or administrator to agree to the alteration or cancellation of the contract, and to execute and deliver to the purchaser the instruments required to make the order of the court effective. Before making such an order, the court shall cause to be secured, to and for the benefit of the estate of the deceased, its just part of the consideration of the contract. The instruments executed and delivered pursuant to such an order shall recite the order, and be as binding on the heirs and other parties in interest, as if made by the deceased in his lifetime.

2. The statute dealing with the right of an administratrix to cancel an incomplete contract for the sale of real estate entered into before the death of the decedent does not permit of an adversary proceeding since she can, under the statute, act only if the other party agrees: *Bracken v. § 2113.50 Completion of decedent's contract to buy land. (GC § 10509-226)

When a person who has entered into a written contract for the purchase of an interest in real estate dies before a conveyance thereof to him, his executor or administrator, or surviving spouse, or any heir, or any devisee or legatee having an interest in such contract, may file an application for authority to complete such contract in the probate court of the county in which the executor or administrator was appointed. Notice of the time of the hearing on such application shall be given to the surviving spouse and heirs, if the decedent died intestate, and to the surviving spouse, and devisees or legatees having an interest in such contract, if the decedent died testate, to the executor or administrator, if not the applicant, and to all other persons having an interest in such real estate. If the court is satisfied that it would be for the best interests of the estate it may, with the consent of the vendor, authorize the executor or administrator to complete the contract, pay to the vendor the amount due on the contract, and authorize a conveyance of the interest in the real estate to the persons entitled thereto. If, however, the court finds that the condition of the estate at the time of the hearing does not warrant the payment out of the estate of the amount due under the contract, it may authorize the persons entitled to the interest of the decedent in the contract to pay to the vendor the amount due on the contract. The real estate so conveyed shall thereafter be chargeable with the debts of the estate to the extent of the equitable interest of the estate therein, and may be sold in land sale proceedings, except that in the event of such sale, the persons to whom the real estate shall have been conveyed shall have a prior lien on the proceeds as against the estate to the extent of any portion of the purchase price paid by them.

The executor or administrator, or surviving spouse, or any heir, or any devisee or legatee having an interest in such a contract, may file a petition for the alteration or cancellation of the contract in the probate court of the county in which the executor or administrator was appointed. If the decedent died intestate, the surviving spouse and heirs, and if the decedent died testate, the surviving spouse, and devisees or legatees having an interest in such contract, and the executor or administrator, when not the plaintiff, together with the vendor, and all other persons having an interest in the real estate which is subject to the contract, shall be made parties defendant. If the court is satisfied that it would be for the best interests of the estate, the court, with the consent of the vendor, may authorize the executor or administrator to agree to the alteration or cancellation of the contract and to execute and deliver such deeds or other instruments to the vendor as are required to make the order of the court effective. Such deeds or other instruments as are executed and delivered pursuant to such order shall recite the order and be as binding on the parties to the suit as if made by the deceased in his lifetime.

The property of an estate which is specifically bequeathed may be delivered over to the legatee entitled thereto. Such legatee must secure its redelivery on demand to the executor or administrator. Otherwise, such property must remain in the hands of the executor or administrator to be distributed or sold, as required by law and the condition of the estate.

1. An administrator has no statutory authority to require heirs to give bond on a final distribution on general order of the probate court for distribution, but if he determines the heirs at his peril and makes an early distribution on a general order of the court, provided the proffered account is accepted by the heirs, there exists a binding contract, and when accepted by the heirs and distribution is made, it precludes further objections or exceptions to the account: *Shilling v. § 2113.53 Payment of legacies and distributions.

At any time after the appointment of an executor or administrator, the executor or administrator may distribute to the beneficiaries entitled thereto under the will, if there is no action pending to set aside the will, or to the heirs entitled thereto by law, in cash or in kind, any part or all of the assets of the estate. Each beneficiary or heir is liable to return the assets, or the proceeds therefrom, should they be necessary to satisfy the share of a surviving spouse who elects to take against the will or to satisfy any claims against the estate. If any executor or administrator distributes any part of the assets of the estate before the expiration of the time for the election of a surviving spouse or before the expiration of the time for the filing of claims, he is personally liable to any surviving spouse who subsequently elects to take against the will or to any claimant who subsequently establishes his claim against the estate. The executor or administrator shall be liable only to the extent that the sum of the remaining assets of the estate and the assets returned by the beneficiaries or heirs are insufficient to satisfy the share of the surviving spouse and to satisfy the claims against the estate. The executor or administrator shall not be liable in any case for an amount greater than the value of the estate that existed at the time that the distribution of assets was made and that was subject to the spouse's share or to the claims.

Any executor or administrator may provide for the payment of rejected claims or claims in suit by setting aside a sufficient amount of the assets of the estate for paying the claims. The assets shall be set aside for the payment of the claims in a manner approved by the probate court. Each claimant for whom assets are to be set aside shall be given notice, in the manner as the court shall order, of the hearing upon the application to set aside assets and shall have the right to be fully heard as to the nature and amount of the assets to be set aside for payment of his claim as to all other conditions in connection therewith. In any case where the executor or administrator may set aside assets as provided in this section, the court, upon its own motion or upon application of the executor or administrator, as a condition precedent to any distribution, may require any beneficiary or heir to give a bond to the state with surety approved and in an amount fixed by the court, conditioned to secure the return of the assets to be distributed, or the proceeds therefrom or as much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the claims that may be recovered against the estate, and to indemnify the executor or administrator against loss and damage on account of such distribution. The bond may be in addition to the assets to be set aside or partially or wholly in lieu thereof, as the court shall determine.

This section and RC § 2113.54 prescribe the general plan for distribution of the assets to legatees and distributees, the remaining sections, between RC §§ 2113.51 and 2113.60, inclusive, being adjective thereto.

This section provides for voluntary distributions. The executor or administrator may make partial or complete distribution after the expiration of six months following his appointment, if he can comply with the conditions precedent which are set forth in the statute. No order of distribution is required. He simply distributes the assets to the person entitled thereto, and reports the distribution in his account.

This section provides for "involuntary distributions," i.e., distributions made pursuant to an order of the court, upon application of a legatee or distributee.

The application must be made after the expiration of nine months following the appointment of the executor or administrator. While the executor or administrator may voluntarily distribute the assets to legatees or distributees at the end of six months, he cannot be compelled to do so. He is allowed nine months in which to complete the administration without interference from outside sources. The period of nine months for completing the administration is uniform. Compare RC §§ 2107.39, 2113.25, 2117.12, 2117.30. Liberal provision has been made for the extension of the period in proper cases.

Before making distribution in kind of property which is not specifically bequeathed, an executor or administrator shall obtain the approval of the probate court or the consent of all of the legatees or distributees whose interests may be affected by such distribution. A distribution in kind may be made to any beneficiary, including an executor, administrator, trustee, guardian, and the surviving spouse.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-183; 114 v 320 (441); 119 v 394 (416), § 1. Ef 10-1-53. GC § 10509-183 (119 v 394 [416]) not analogous to GC § 10509-183 (114 v 320 [441]). See former GC § 10830.

If the executor or administrator wishes to make a distribution in kind of property which is not specifically bequeathed, he must obtain the approval of the probate court or the consent of all legatees or distributees. This represents an exception to RC § 2113.53, which permits the executor or administrator to make distribution without an order of the court. Where property is distributed in kind among several legatees or distributees, it is frequently necessary to determine the value at which each item of property shall be distributed. For this reason, the executor or administrator should be required to submit the proposed plan of distribution to the probate court, unless all of the legatees or distributees are in agreement and consent to the plan of distribution.

An executor or administrator is not liable for any distribution made in compliance with sections 2113.53, 2113.54, and 2113.55 of the Revised Code, except that an order of distribution made pursuant to any of such sections may be vacated as provided in section 2109.35 of the Revised Code relating to accounts.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-183a; 119 v 394 (424), § 8; 121 v 270 (277), § 1. EFF 10-1-53.

Comment

If the executor or administrator complies with the three preceding sections, he is not subject to liability. However, this section must be read in conjunction with the provision of RC § 2113.53 to the effect that the distribution authorized therein be made "to the legatees entitled thereto under the will . . . or to the distributees entitled thereto by law." In other words, the executor or administrator may make distribution under RC § 2113.53 without an order of the court, but he must distribute the assets to the parties properly entitled thereto if he wishes to obtain the immunity afforded by this section.

When by a last will and testament the use or income of personal property is given to a person for a term of years or for life and some other person has an interest in such property as remainderman, the probate court, unless such last will and testament otherwise provides, may deliver such personal property to the person having the limited estate, with or without bond, as the court may determine; or the court may order that such property be held by the executor or some other trustee, with or without bond, for the benefit of the person having the limited estate. 2. Where the assets of an estate have (in accordance with the terms of a will) been distributed to life tenants, the estate has been closed and the final account has been settled and determined, and the life tenants die, in the absence of a motion, filed in accordance with RC §

3. The probate court has the power under this section, in the exercise of sound discretion (notwithstanding the provisions of a will), in order to protect the rights and the interests of remaindermen, to refuse distribution of life-estate assets to the life tenant and to direct delivery thereof to a trustee for management and payment of income therefrom to the life tenant during his life and payment of the remainder to the remaindermen upon the death of the life tenant, where the testator bequeathed personal property to one person for life and the remainder to others "in fee," and directed that the assets in which a life estate was so bequeathed shall be delivered to the life tenant and not to any trustee for the benefit of the life tenant: In re Miller, 160 OS 529, 52 OO 437, 117 NE(2d) 598.

4. This section, the purpose of which is to protect the interests of remaindermen under wills, contains two distinct remedies, either of which the court, in a proper case, may apply; the provisions of that section do not operate as a limitation on the plenary jurisdiction conferred on the probate court by Const., Art. IV, § 8, and GC § 10501-53 (RC § 2101.24): In re Miller, 95 App 457, 54 OO 98, 121 NE(2d) 26.

6. 7. Under this section, affording protection to a remainderman's interest in personal property, the probate court may, at its discretion and after distribution to the person having a life estate in such property, require from such person a bond at any time prior to the termination of such life estate: In re Kyle, 106 App 502, 7 OO(2d) 229, 155 NE(2d) 498.

When a beneficiary of an estate is indebted to such estate, the amount of the indebtedness if due, or the present worth of the indebtedness if not due, may be set off by the executor or administrator against any testate or intestate share of the estate to which such beneficiary is entitled.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-186; 114 v 320 (442). EFF 10-1-53.Comment

General Code § 10509-186 was an entirely new section, effective January 1, 1932. That part of the section which provides that when a beneficiary of an estate is indebted to such estate, the amount of the indebtedness as due may be set off by the executor or administrator against any testate or intestate share of the estate to which such beneficiary is entitled, is merely declaratory of the common law. [CERTIFICATE OF TRANSFER] § 2113.61 Application for certificate of transfer; duty of court.

(A) When real estate passes by the laws of intestate succession or under a will, the administrator or executor shall, prior to the filing of his final account, file in the probate court an application requesting of the court a certificate of transfer as to such real estate. Real estate sold by an executor or administrator or land registered under sections 5309.01 to 5309.98, inclusive, and 5310.01 to 5310.21, inclusive, of the Revised Code, are excepted from the above requirement. Also excepted are cases in which an order has been made relieving an estate from administration, wherein the order directing transfer of real estate to the person entitled thereto may be substituted for the certificate of transfer.

(B) Such application shall be verified on oath by the person filing it, or by some person who knows the facts therein stated, and shall contain:

(1) The name, place of residence at death, and date of death of the decedent;

(2) Whether such decedent died testate or intestate;

(3) The fact and date of the filing and probate of the will and of the appointment of an administrator or executor;

(4) A description of each parcel of real estate situated in Ohio owned by the decedent at the time of his death;

(5) In so far as they can be ascertained, the names, ages, places of residence, and relationship to the decedent of the persons to whom each such parcel of real estate passed by descent or devise;

(6) A statement that all the known debts of decedent's estate have been paid or secured to be paid, or that sufficient other assets are in hand to complete the payment thereof;

(7) Such other pertinent information as the court requires.

(C) The court shall issue a certificate of transfer for record in each county in Ohio where real estate so passing is situated which shall recite:

(1) The name and date of death of the decedent;

(2) Whether such decedent died testate or intestate and, if testate, the volume and page of the record of the will;

(3) The volume and page of the probate court record of the administration of the estate;

(4) The names and places of residence of the devisees, the interests to them passing, the names and places of residence of the persons inheriting, and the interest by each inherited, in each such parcel of real estate;

(5) A description of each such parcel of real estate;

(6) Such other information as in the opinion of the court should be included.

(D) If no administration has been had on an estate and if no administration is contemplated, or if the executor or administrator has failed to file such application before being discharged, such application for a certificate to transfer real estate, including real estate devised or inherited before September 2, 1935, may be filed by an heir or devisee, or a successor in interest, in the court where the testator's will is probated, or, in the case of intestate estates, in the court where administration was had. If no administration was had, such application may be filed in the court of the county in which such decedent was resident at the time of his death.

A foreign executor or administrator, when no ancillary administration proceedings have been had or are being had in Ohio, may, in accordance with this section, file such application in the court in any county of this state in which real estate of the decedent is located.

When a person who has entered into a written contract for the sale and conveyance of an interest in real estate dies before its completion, the interest of the decedent in such contract and the record title to the real estate therein described may be transferred to the persons, legatees, devisees, or heirs at law entitled to the interest of the decedent therein, in the same manner as provided in this section and sections 2113.62 and 2113.63 of the Revised Code, for the transfer of real estate. The application and certificate for such transfer shall also recite that the real estate therein described is subject to such written contract for the sale and conveyance thereof.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-102; 114 v 320 (424); 116 v 385 (397), § 1; 123 v 460 (463), § 1; 130 v 616, § 1. Eff 8-9-63.

Analogous to former GC § 10526.

Comment

The analogous section to GC § 10509-102 was former GC § 10526 which, however, applied only to a devise of real estate. The foregoing section, it will be noted, applies not only to a devise of real estate, but also to real estate which passes according to the law of intestate succession. It will be noted that the application for transfer is made the last step before filing the final account.

General Code § 10509-102 was amended in 1935.

The comment by the probate code committee of the Ohio state bar association with reference to the amendment to this section was as follows:

"The time for filing the application has been changed owing to the fact that, in actual practice, it is often impossible to determine whether real estate will have been sold to pay debts until the estate is otherwise fully liquidated.

"The information from which the court is to determine the interests to be transferred, especially in cases where complete and regular administration is not had, should all be contained in a verified application. Title does not originate in the certificate, to be sure, but the lay public will depend on it to an extent that its accuracy should be reasonably safeguarded.

"Under the present section it was never thought advisable by the majority of the committee to repeal the existing provision for the 'time honored' affidavit of inheritance. That course would be more feasible under the present revision and is greatly desired by probate courts and taxing authorities in the interest of preventing estates from slipping by without application for determination of inheritance tax being made.

"The last paragraph of the present section can well be omitted altogether since it is covered specifically in GC § 10511-21." (RC § 2129.19)

Following are comments on the 1949 amendment to GC § 10509-102:

By deleting the phrase "to pay debts" and substituting the phrase "by an executor or administrator" the exception will include a sale to pay debts and also a sale with the consent or at the request of all persons entitled to share in the estate upon distribution where a sale is brought about by virtue of the provision of GC § 10510-5 (RC § 2127.04).

The last paragraph added to this section provides for a certificate of transfer to be issued where a person has entered into a written contract to sell an interest in the real estate and dies before conveyance to the purchaser. The certificate will transfer the interest of the decedent in such contract to the persons entitled to receive same and also authorize the transfer of the record title to the real estate to the same persons.

In order to determine the persons entitled to receive, the principles of equitable conversion must be considered and also the provisions of GC § 10504-48 (RC § 2107.33), where the decedent died testate.

The amendment makes no change in the substantive law. It merely provides a procedure where none is now provided by the Code.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. An executor who has a beneficial private interest under a bequest which is unclaimed for two years, must use all reasonable diligence, with all the knowledge and means of knowledge at his command, to locate the beneficiary and to give notice to him. Failure to use such diligence is fraud, for which the legatee may maintain an action in conversion against the executor to recover the legacy: Morris v. Mull, 110 OS 623, 144 NE 436, 39 ALR 323.

2. Under an earlier law it was held that interest would be charged against the administrator on funds which he was ready to distribute, but could not because the heirs were unknown; it was his duty to invest the money for them. "May" in the old statute meant "must." The statute now uses "shall" instead of "may": In re Thornton, 7 NP 335, 5 OD 151.

3. Funds held by a county treasurer pursuant to RC §§ 5723.11, 2109.57 and 2113.64 must be disposed of pursuant to instructions contained therein and are not available for diversion to other uses: 1972 OAG No.72-122.

§ 2113.65 Disposition of investment.

The person investing unclaimed money under section 2113.64 of the Revised Code shall file in the probate court a memorandum thereof, with the original certificates or evidences of title representing such investment, which shall be allowed as a sufficient voucher for such payment under the order or decree. If the amount is unclaimed at the end of the period of such investment, it shall be turned into the county treasury and credited to the general fund, without liability for interest thereon. The receipt of the county treasurer taken for it and filed is a sufficient voucher.

§ 2113.69 Newly discovered assets.

When newly discovered assets come into the hands of an executor or administrator after the filing of the original inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, he shall administer, account for, and distribute such assets in like manner as if received prior to the filing of such inventory. Within thirty days, he shall file in the probate court an itemized report of such assets, with an estimate of the value thereof, but shall not be required to make an inventory or appraisal of the same unless ordered to do so by the court, either upon its own motion or upon the application of any interested party.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-147; 114 v 320 (434); 119 v 394 (414), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10747.

Comment

General Code § 10509-147, as amended in 1941, combined the provisions which formerly appeared in GC §§ 10509-73 and 10509-147, and conforms to the general policy limiting the presentation of claims to nine months. It applies to assets coming into the hands of the executor or administrator after the filing of the original inventory, rather than after the expiration of nine months, as provided in former GC § 10509-147. No inventory or appraisal is required unless ordered by the court. The executor or administrator simply files an itemized report, with his own estimate of value. Such assets are to be administered in the same manner as assets originally received by the executor or administrator, and therefore the provisions of the former statute creating a separate right of action against such assets are no longer necessary.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Where an administrator, having completely administered the assets of his deceased, is alleged to have concealed a will of such deceased, such alleged concealment does not constitute newly discovered assets within the meaning of this section so as to authorize the probate court to appoint an administrator de bonis non: In re Cassell, 53 OLA 65, 83 NE(2d) 72 (PC).

2. Where, at the time of appointment of the administrator, an estate is totally without assets, and no inventory is filed until twenty-two months thereafter, at which time certain bonds are received by the administrator as a result of a legal action in another county, an action by a creditor of the estate, commenced within two months of the filing of such inventory, may be maintained under favor of this section, allowing additional time in the case of new assets: Carrier v. Morrissey, 32 NP(NS) 362.

3. Under GC § 10747 (RC § 2113.69) a trust fund created by a decedent for care and services, and which went back into the estate because of failure of decedent to complete the trust, was considered new assets where it appeared that the demand was made upon the trustee for the fund soon after death of the decedent, but the trustee insisted on testing the validity of the trust and by reason of dilatory action on his part and that of the administrator a decision adverse to the claim of the beneficiary was not entered for almost three years after the death of the decedent: Gemin v. Salisbury, 22 NP(NS) 321, 31 OD 157 [affirmed by court of appeals].

1. A probate court in this state has, although the will has been probated therein, no right to review accounts of an executor, appointed in another state, over property situated in this state: In re Crawford, 68 OS 58, 67 NE 156 [affirming 21 CC 554, 11 CD 605].

2. By the administration law of Ohio, foreign executors and administrators may sue and be sued in this state like those appointed in Ohio, thereby in most cases making it unnecessary that any ancillary administration should be instituted. Administration may, however, be granted in all cases where property is found here to be administered: Swearingen v. Morris, 14 OS 424.

4. Foreign executors having debts owing them here as executors are liable to action here on a rejected claim if service can be made on them: Williams v. Welton, 28 OS 451 [for another opinion in this case, see Welton v. Williams, 28 OS 472].

5. An action lies here against executors appointed in another state and living there, but served with summons here, although there are no assets in this state: Craig v. Railroad, 2 NP 64, 3 OD 146. (There is a contrary decision by the New York court of appeals: Helme v. Buckelew, 229 NY 365, 128 NE 216].

6. 7. 8. A foreign administrator cannot be compelled to appear in any of our courts unless as above stated he brings himself within the jurisdiction of the local court, but he may do so voluntarily: Lampton v. Nichols, 13 DecRep 765, 2 CSCR 55.

Judicial jurisdiction over foreign executors and administrators. Editorial. 20 OSLJ 558.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The decedent had had his life insured with a Pennsylvania company for ten thousand dollars, payable on its face to his wife. After his death the wife had possession of the policy and entered suit thereon in the common pleas court of Philadelphia, and made the administrator of the deceased a party to that action. The administrator did not appear, nor do anything which voluntarily brought him within the jurisdiction of the Philadelphia court, so that a personal service might be had on him. The Philadelphia court therefore rendered a judgment in favor of the wife and paid her the claim. Under the laws of Ohio, a part of this policy would have belonged to the creditors of the deceased; and in a suit by the administrator against the widow for such portion of the money paid to her by the insurance company, it was held that the court of Pennsylvania could not determine a right against the administrator in Ohio and that the administrator was not bound by the Philadelphia suit: Cross v. Armstrong, 44 OS 613, 10 NE 160.

2. A motion to quash service will be sustained in an action for wrongful death, arising from an automobile accident which occurred in Ohio, where the defendant administrator was appointed in Illinois and served while visiting in Ohio, but no property of the estate was to be found in Ohio: Feldman v. Gross, 49 OO 415, 106 FSupp 308.

3. General Code § 10509-161 (RC § 2113.71) is merely a declaration of the common law rule permitting suits to be maintained against foreign executors and administrators to the extent of the decedent's property located within the state: Feldman v. Gross, 49 OO 415, 106 FSupp 308.

Any court of common pleas may compel a foreign administrator or executor residing in this state, or having assets or property herein, to account at the suit of an heir, distributee, or legatee, who is resident in this state, and make distribution of the amount found in his hands to the respective heirs, distributees, or legatees according to the law of the state granting such letters. When suits are pending or there are unsettled demands against such estate, the court also may require a refunding bond to be given to such executor or administrator by the heirs, distributees, or legatees entitled thereto in case the amount paid is needed to pay debts of the estate.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Payment by an Ohio debtor to an administrator appointed by another state than Ohio, prior to the appointment of an administrator in Ohio, is a satisfaction of the debt: Crawford v. Foreign Christian Missionary Soc., 10 NP(NS) 676, 22 OD 804.

2. In one case where plaintiff's intestate resided in Tennessee, where he died, and had on deposit money in this state, and administration was first granted in Tennessee and afterwards in this state, the parties with whom he had made the deposit promised to pay the same to the Tennessee administrator, without notice that one had been appointed in this state. The local administrator brought suit, and it was held that he could not recover, because, by the law of Ohio, a foreign administrator has authority to collect debts and the liability attached at the time of making the promise: Weizell v. Cincinnati Sav. Inst., 1 DecRep 54, 1 WLJ 393.

3. Executor, resident out of the state, never hav-

4. A foreign trust company, appointed and qualified to act as executor under the will of a foreign testator, may sue in the courts of this state, where the will includes real property situated here: Union Sav. Bank & Trust Co. v. Baltimore & O. S. R. Co., 6 NP(NS) 454, 53 Bull 180.

6. Foreign administrator not restricted in Ohio to suits to recover the assets of the deceased but may bring an action to recover damages for the death of his intestate, occurring outside of the state: Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Thiebaud, 114 Fed 918, 52 CCA 538, 12 OFD 254.

7. The procuring of an alien consul to act as the administrator of a deceased resident of Ohio does not, in an action against other residents of Ohio, present such a case of diverse citizenship as to give jurisdiction to a federal court. The appointment of such alien consul will be regarded as having been procured collusively and fraudulently if the testimony discloses that the sole purpose in having the said consul named as administrator was to give the federal court jurisdiction of the action for wrongful death thereafter brought by him: Cerri v. Telephone Co., 219 Fed 285, 13 OLR 425.

8. Under former GC § 10769 (see now RC § 2113.75) a Michigan administrator may maintain an action in the federal court in Ohio for a wrongful death in Illinois, though the Illinois statute does not permit actions in that state for a death outside the state, and former GC § 10770 (before amendment of 103 v 116) (see now RC § 2125.01) allows actions for death in a foreign state only in cases where such foreign state allows in its courts the enforcement of the Ohio statute: St. Bernard v. Shane, 220 Fed 852, 135 CCA 399 [reversing and remanding 201 Fed 453, 11 OLR 43].

9. Under Ohio law foreign personal representatives may maintain wrongful death actions in Ohio courts: Glenn v. Trans World Airlines, Inc., 22 OO(2d) 431, 210 FSupp 31.

§ 2113.81 Money and property to be held in trust for safe keeping for nonresidents of the United States.

Where it appears that a legatee or a distributee, or a beneficiary of a trust not residing within the United States or its territories will not have the benefit or use or control of the money or other property due him from an estate, because of circumstances prevailing at the place of residence of such legatee, distributee, or a beneficiary of a trust, the probate court may direct that such money be paid into the county treasury to be held in trust or the probate court may direct that such money or other property be delivered to a trustee which trustee shall have the same powers and duties provided in section 2119.03 of the Revised Code for such legatee, distributee, beneficiary of a trust or such persons who may thereafter be entitled thereto. Such money or other property held in trust by such county treasurer or trustee shall be paid out by order of the probate judge in accordance with section 2113.82 of the Revised Code.

1. § 2115.02 Inventory; separate schedule.

Within one month after the date of his appointment, unless the probate court grants an extension of time for good cause shown, every executor or administrator shall make and return on oath into court a true inventory of the real estate of the deceased located in this state, and the chattels, moneys, rights, and credits of the deceased that are to be administered and that have come to his possession or knowledge. The inventory is to be based on values as of the date of death of the decedent. If his predecessors have done so, a fiduciary need not return and file an inventory, unless, in the opinion of the court, it is necessary.

With the inventory, the executor or administrator shall file a separate schedule describing any legal or equitable interest owned by the decedent in real estate located outside of the state which has come to his knowledge.

Any assets, the value of which is readily ascertainable without the exercise of judgment on the part of an appraiser, shall not be appraised. The value of these assets shall be shown in the inventory and verified by the administrator or executor, and he shall provide evidence of value as the court requires.

1. Under the mandatory provisions of this section and GC § 10509-52 (RC § 2115.09) the executor must include in the inventory a statement of all debts and accounts belonging to the deceased and known to the executor, irrespective of any opinion that the testator may have had as to the value or collectibility of a debt or account: In re Doppes, 21 OO 181 (CP).

2. An agreement between the heirs of a decedent, by which one of them agrees to pay the debts of the estate in consideration of receiving all the personal property, does not operate to dispense with the absolute duty imposed upon the administrator by this section to make and return a true inventory of all the property of the decedent which has come to his possession or knowledge: In re Specht, 34 OLA 201, 36 NE(2d) 865.

If an executor or administrator neglects or refuses to return an inventory as provided by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, the probate court shall issue an order requiring him, at an early day therein named, to return an inventory.

After personal service of such order by a person authorized to make the service, if such executor or administrator, by the day appointed, does not return such inventory under oath or fails to obtain further time from the court to return it, or if such order cannot be served personally by reason of his absconding or concealing himself, the court may remove such executor or administrator and new letters shall be granted.

Such letters shall supersede all former letters testamentary or of administration, deprive the former executor or administrator of all power, authority, or control over the estate of the deceased, and entitle the person appointed to take, demand, and receive the effects of such deceased wherever they are found.

In every case of the revocation of such letters, the bond given by the former executor or administrator must be prosecuted and a recovery had thereon to the full extent of any injury sustained by the estate of the deceased, by such executor's or administrator's acts or omissions, and to the full value of all property of the deceased, received and not administered by him.

The real estate and personal property comprised in the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, unless an appraisalment thereof has been dispensed with by an order of the probate court, shall be appraised by one suitable disinterested person appointed by the executor or administrator, subject to the approval of the court and sworn to a faithful discharge of his trust. The executor or administrator, subject to the approval of the court, may appoint separate appraisers of property located in any other county and appoint separate appraisers for each asset.

If appraisers fail to attend to the performance of their duty, the executor or administrator, subject to the approval of the probate judge may appoint others to supply the place of such delinquents.

Each appraiser shall be paid such amount for his services as determined by the executor or administrator, subject to the approval of the probate judge, taking into consideration his training, qualifications, experience, time reasonably required, and the value of the property appraised. The amount of such fees may be charged against the estate as part of the cost of the proceeding.

The question whether or not an inventory shall be filed, ought to be determined at the time the letters are issued, if that is possible, for it is a usual practice to designate the names of the appraisers in the entry making the appointment; and also designate them in the letters of appointment.

The court, in appointing the appraisers, usually gives consideration to the suggestions of the administrator or executor. But care should be taken to ascertain that the persons appointed are satisfactory to the heirs and widow, as well as to the executor or administrator, for they are all interested parties.

Where personal property only is to be appraised, and such personality is located in another county, there seems to be no reason for appointing appraisers other than those who are to appraise the personality in the county where administration is commenced. But where real estate in another county is to be appraised, it probably would be well to name appraisers who live in the vicinity of the property, and who should be more familiar with its value. The expense incurred for additional appraisers should always be considered.

Experience has demonstrated in many instances this amount to be an inadequate compensation. If the appraisalment is only a few moments' work you may get competent men to attend to it. But if it is a day's work, difficulty will be experienced in getting any person to perform the duties, unless he does it as a matter of accommodation; and this should not be, for the statute expressly provides that the appraiser should be a disinterested person; that is, one who is entirely free from any influence from either the heir, widow, legatee or administrator. The difficulty in leaving the matter entirely to the discretion of the court is that very often appraisers will ask a larger sum than the estate ought to be taxed with. If the administrator cannot procure competent men for the amount allowed by statute he ought to procure the consent of the heirs to pay them an additional sum or else give them such a sum as he thinks just, and assume the responsibility that it may ultimately be allowed to him in his account.

Before proceeding to the execution of their duty, the appraisers of a decedent's estate must take and subscribe to an oath, to be inserted in or annexed to the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, before an officer authorized to administer oaths, that they will truly, honestly, and impartially appraise the estate and property exhibited to them, and perform the other duties required in the premises according to the best of their knowledge and ability. In the absence of such officer, the administrator or executor may administer the oath.

In the presence of the surviving spouse, next of kin, legatees, or creditors of the testator or intestate, or such of them as attend, the appraisers shall proceed to estimate and appraise the property and estate. 4. CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The administrator of the estate of a tenant for life is entitled to the "annual crops raised by labor" as assets of the estate of deceased, whether severed or not at his death: Noble v. Tyler, 61 OS 432, 56 NE 191, 48 LRA 735.

2. Growing grapes are emblements: Mason v. Lemon, 3 NP 116, 4 OD 322 [affirmed, without opinion, 56 OS 793, 49 NE 1113].

3. Of course the executor's or administrator's right to the crops extends only to such as were planted before the death of the deceased. The selling of the real estate by an administrator thereafter to pay debts would make no difference as to crops that might have been planted subsequently thereon, for under our law the purchaser at a judicial sale acquires no right to the landlord's share of a tenant's growing crop: Albin v. Riegel, 40 OS 339; Seybolt v. Burtner, 1 DecRep 225, 4 WLJ 551. In such cases the heirs would receive such crops: Milliken v. Wellive, 37 OS 468.

4. The rights of widow, whose estate was created by testator's will, are limited to those conferred by will, without limitation by statute relating to emblements (GC §§ 10509-49, 10509-50 [RC § 2115.10]): Snyder v. Heffner, 33 App 379, 169 NE 460.

The discharge, or bequest, in a will, of a debt or demand of a testator against an executor named therein, or against any other person, is not valid as against the decedent's creditors, but is only a specific bequest of such debt or demand. The amount thereof must be included in the inventory of the credits and effects of the deceased and, if necessary, such amount must be applied in the payment of his debts. If not necessary for that purpose, such amount shall be paid in the same manner and proportion as other specific legacies.

The naming of a person as executor in a will shall not operate as a discharge or bequest of a just claim which the testator had against such executor. Such claim shall be included among the assets of the deceased in the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code. The executor shall be liable for it as for so much money in his hands at the time such debt or demand becomes due, and must apply and distribute it as part of the personal estate of the deceased.

Comment

Under GC § 10509-67, as it existed prior to 1936, it was the established law that a surety became responsible for debts owing to the estate by an executor or administrator at the time of his appointment. In 1936, this section was amended to provide that the surety of an executor should not be held responsible for any such debt, except to the extent that the debt is made uncollectible by act of the executor after his appointment. The 1941 revision had a two-fold effect. (a) It extended the 1936 amendment to the sureties of all fiduciaries. (b) It removed the provision from the chapter on Executors and Administrators, and incorporated it in the chapter on Fiduciaries, where it was designated as GC § 10506-7a, now RC § 2109.17.

Donaldson*, 17 O 264.

6. Appointment of a debtor of the estate as executor or administrator does not extinguish the debt which he owed to the estate of the decedent; but it becomes assets in his hands for which judgment may be had against him by proceedings instituted by an administrator de bonis non: Tracy v. Card, 2 OS 431; Hall v. Pratt, 5 O 72; Bigelow v. Bigelow, 4 O 138.

7. Where a debtor is appointed administrator of the estate of his creditor, the debt becomes assets in his hands; and on exceptions to his final account, claiming that he has failed to charge himself with such debt, the probate court may hear evidence and determine the validity of such claim and the amount of such debt: In re Raab, 16 OS 273.

8. The principle that the appointment of a debtor as administrator converts the debt into assets in his hands to be accounted for, does not apply to one who is only conditionally liable to the estate. The appointment as administrator de bonis non, with the will annexed, of one who was surety on the bond of the previous executor, does not make a debt due the estate from such executor assets in the hands of such administrator by reason of his suretyship: Shields v. O'Dell, 27 OS 398.

9. The indebtedness of an executor to his testator is assets with which he is chargeable, as so much money in his hands; and the sureties on his bond are liable for his failure to administer and distribute same according to law and the will, even though he was insolvent during the continuance of his administratorship: McGaughey v. Jacoby, 54 OS 487, 44 NE 231; McCoy v. Allen, 9 CC 607, 6 CD 659 [reversed, Allen v. McCoy, 57 OS 641, on authority of McGaughey v. Jacoby, 54 OS 487].

10. A surety will not be discharged from liability on his bond by fraud of executor in procuring execution of such bond where the beneficiaries of the estate are innocent of the fraud: McGaughey v. Jacoby, 54 OS 487, 44 NE 231.

11. Administrator is chargeable with all debts which he owes individually and unconditionally to the estate. This includes a debt which he owes as principal, and which is evidenced by his note, signed also by another person who is in fact only surety. But it does not include debts owing to the estate by a firm of which he is a member: James v. West, 67 OS 28, 65 NE 156.

12. Where the executor of a will was indebted to his testator, and died while in office, without having inventoried the amount of said indebtedness and before an account was due or filed, the indebtedness was money in the hands of the executor for which his administrator must account: Jones v. Willis, 72 OS 189, 74 NE 166; see also Holcomb v. Willis, 72 OS 684, 76 NE 1126.

13. The fact that the executor is jointly obligated on a mortgage with the estate is not sufficient to constitute a ground for the removal of the executor: In re Fiebig, 61 App 40, 14 OO 216, 22 NE(2d) 288.

14. By its terms the provisions of this section are applicable only to the liability of a person named as executor, for claims owing by him to his testator, and are therefore inapplicable to the liability of an administrator for claims owing by him to his decedent: In re Deal, 70 App 503, 25 OO 305, 46 NE(2d) 643.

14.1. Under the plenary power conferred upon the probate court incident to the administration of estates it has authority, upon exceptions to an inventory, to revise the appraised value of any security listed in such inventory, but such authority should be exercised after hearing and determined upon the evidence adduced in the light of the provisions of RC §§ 2115.01, 2115.07, 2115.09 and 2115.12: In re Berman, 118 App 354, 25 OO(2d) 226, 194 NE(2d) 794.

15. A debt existing in the lifetime of the testator against one who becomes executor of his last will, is transmuted into money in the hands of such executor by virtue of this section, and no act of the executor can turn it again into the character of a mere demand or obligation: In re Koons, 11 OO 389 (PC).

16. Where the surety upon an unpaid promissory note dies and the principal maker thereof is appointed and qualified as administrator of such surety's estate, the debt represented by such note is not chargeable as assets in the hands of the administrator, before the estate has been required to pay the same or it has been presented and allowed as a valid claim against the estate: Urpman v. Urpman, 1 App 476, 21 CC(NS) 600, 25 CD 442.

17. An insolvent principal maker of a note, who is named as executor in the will of his surety, and accepts and qualifies as such, and who pays his own notes as they subsequently fall due as claims against the estate, is properly chargeable as for so much money in his hands: Yahey v. Strunk, 7 NP(NS) 177, 18 OD 726.

§ 2115.13 Repealed, 136 v S 145, § 2 [GC §§ 10509-54, -55; 114 v 320; 119 v 394; 125 v 903] Eff 1-1-76.

Scope

1. The sum allowed to the widow under this section is a charge on the real estate prior only to the claims of unsecured creditors: Dillman v. Warner, 54 App 170, 7 OO 492, 20 OLA 459, 6 NE(2d) 757.

1.1 An antenuptial agreement found to be fair, reasonable and by the decedent fully performed for some sixteen years is sufficient to preclude the widow from receiving the exemptions provided by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), and is a complete bar to setting them off to her: Cohen v. Cohen, 82 App 260, 37 OO 565, 80 NE(2d) 813.

1.2 An allowance for property exempt from administration, under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), must be set off to a nonresident surviving spouse in the local estate of a nonresident decedent: In re Mitchell, 97 App 443, 56 OO 357, 127 NE(2d) 39; In re Weatherhead, 73 OLA 524 (PC); In re Gould, 1 OO (2d) 366, 140 NE(2d) 793.

2. The lien of the federal government for unpaid income taxes does not take precedence over the widow's exemption as provided by GC § 10509-54 nor her allowance for a year's support: In re Shipley, 22 OO 372 (PC).

3. General Code §§ 10509-54 and 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13) do not provide for an apportionment of the exempted property between the widow and the minor children: Cowden v. Cowden, 28 OO 103 (PC).

4. A minor child adopted in infancy is not entitled to share in the exempted estate set aside by the appraisers of the natural father's estate for the support of the decedent's minor children: Warden v. Warden, 35 OO 374 (PC).

5. The minor child or children of a decedent are not entitled to have an exemption set off under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) in the event there is a surviving spouse: In re Schneider, 48 OO 380, 108 NE(2d) 363 (PC).

6. Petitioner, as executrix of her husband's estate, deducted from the gross estate an amount received by her as his widow pursuant to GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13). Held that such amount is includible in the gross estate and is not deductible under § 303(a) (1)(c) of the Revenue Act of 1926 as amended: In re Faber, 40 US BTA 1067.

7. This section should in no way be construed as an amendment of the law as provided in former GC § 10654 (see now RC § 2115.13): Jolley v. Brown, 15 OLA 636.

8. Property passing by this section does not come to the surviving spouse by intestate succession, i.e., under the statute of descent and distribution, nor do the heirs, devisees or legatees share in any particular in the exempted property: Tyack v. Tipton, 65 OLA 397, 115 NE(2d) 29 (App).

8.1 The exemption given a widow under this section is in the nature of a debt and a preferred claim against a deceased husband's estate: In re Matusoff, 10 OApp(2d) 113, 39 OO(2d) 187, 226 NE(2d) 140; In re Fetzer, 71 OLA 275, 130 NE(2d) 732 (App).

9. Under this section, exempting certain property from administration, a surviving spouse has the privilege of selecting assets to satisfy the claim but is not required to make a selection: Miller v. United Brethren Church, 31 NP(NS) 43.

10. It is the duty of the appraisers at the time of taking inventory and appraising assets, to set off to surviving spouse the property or money claimed as a set-off under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), and to give the widow her year's allowance as provided in GC § 10509-74 (RC § 2117.20); and this must be done whether decedent died intestate or testate, and, if testate, irrespective of any provisions made for widow in the will: In re Felman, 32 NP(NS) 73.

12. The amount of property which a widow may claim as exempt from administration may be computed only with regard to property which actually comprises assets of her husband's estate, and in the computation thereof she may not include joint and survivorship property which passed to her by contract: In re Williams, 73 OLA 441, 138 NE(2d) 189 (PC).

13. The property exempt from administration provided by this section and the year's support provided by RC § 2117.20 are not intestate successions but are debts and preferred claims arising as incidents to the marriage and therefore not affected by the simultaneous death statute: In re Priest, 79 OLA 444 (PC).

Rights of surviving spouse or children

16. The widow's year's allowance and the allowance given her under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) are a debt and preferred claim, respectively, against her deceased husband's estate, deductible before a determination of the share of the estate to be taken by the widow "under the statute of descent and distribution": Davidson v. Miners &c. Trust Co., 129 OS 418, 2 OO 404, 195 NE 845; Darrow v. Fifth Third Union Trust Co., 1 OO(2d) 104, 139 NE(2d) 112 (CP).

17. By virtue of GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) the administrator of a surviving spouse is entitled to a lien upon the real property of her predeceased spouse for the balance in money over the appraised value of the personal property of such predeceased spouse selected by such surviving spouse in her lifetime, so as to make up the maximum allowance under the statute even though no further selection has been made by such surviving spouse: Stetson v. Hoyt, 139 OS 345, 22 OO 390, 40 NE(2d) 128.

18. The rights granted to a surviving spouse by the provisions of GC §§ 10509-54, 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13) and GC § 10509-74 (RC § 2117.20), are expectant interests only, dependent upon the contingency that the property, to which such rights attach, becomes a part of the decedent's estate, which contingency does not occur if decedent has sold or given away the property during his lifetime: Neville v. Sawicki, 146 OS 539, 33 OO 19, 67 NE(2d) 323 [affirming 44 OLA 408].

19. The allowance given a surviving spouse under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) is in the nature of a debt and a preferred claim against the deceased spouse's estate, and, if a selection of property is not made or money in lieu thereof is not received by the surviving spouse during his lifetime, his personal representative may claim the allowance after the surviving spouse's decease: Raleigh v. Raleigh, 153 OS 160, 41 OO 209, 91 NE(2d) 241; see also Stetson v. Hoyt, 68 App 366, 23 OO 39, 41 NE(2d) 267 [affirmed, 139 NE(2d) 345].

20. The exemption allowed to a surviving spouse by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) must be allowed, if the selection is made, though such spouse later elects to take under a will conditioned that the surviving spouse be barred of all claims: Scharkofsky v. Landfear, 50 App 213, 3 OO 48, 197 NE 810 [reversing Landfear v. Scharkofsky, 32 NP(NS) 217].

21. General Code § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), which makes provision for a certain amount or percentage of a decedent's estate to be set aside in favor of the surviving spouse, gives such surviving spouse a claim superior to all unsecured claims, including funeral expenses, costs in the probate court, and fees of the executor and his attorneys, notwithstanding GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) prescribing the order in which debts shall be paid: In re Bremer, 67 App 144, 21 OO 150, 36 NE(2d) 48.

22. A minor child not living with the surviving spouse of a decedent is not entitled, under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) et seq to an apportionment of the money received by such surviving spouse through her selection of property to be exempt from administration under such sections: In re Clark, 70 App 204, 24 OO 555, 43 NE(2d) 621 [affirming 24 OO 544 (PC)].

23. The common pleas court has no original jurisdiction to compel an executor to pay to a surviving spouse a sum awarded as exempt from administration under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13): Saluppo v. Santangelo, 71 App 185, 26 OO 10, 48 NE(2d) 903.

24. A widow is not entitled to have set aside as a fraud upon her rights a conveyance of real estate made by her husband to his children without consideration even though he left no property from which she could receive the exemptions provided for in GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), or the year's support mentioned in GC § 10509-74 (RC § 2117.20): Dick v. Bauman, 73 App 107, 28 OO 176, 55 NE(2d) 137.

25. A finding that testator's surviving spouse is entitled to receive, towards her allowance provided for by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), twenty per cent of the additional amount of the cash on hand, is not erroneous: In re Thoroman, 76 App 309, 32 OO 16, 62 NE(2d) 530.

25.1. Even though provision is made for a widow by the testator, her husband, such fact will not of itself, in the absence of a statute requiring it, put her to election, but she may claim both the provision made for her by the will and the statutory allowance: In re Fetzer, 71 OLA 275, 130 NE(2d) 732 (App).

25.2. Where a widow is deemed by law to have elected to take under her husband's will and has without full knowledge of her rights in the estate and with no clear intention of waiving any right thereunder, elected to take as property exempt from administration certain items of personal property which were specifically bequeathed to her, such election will, upon motion, be set aside: In re Fetzer, 71 OLA 275, 130 NE(2d) 732 (App).

26. An unpaid portion of the widow's exemption provided by the provisions of GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) is a debt and a preferred claim against the estate, within the contemplation of GC § 10510-2 (RC § 2127.02), authorizing an executor or administrator to sell real estate for payment thereof: McDonald v. McDonald, 5 OO 132 (PC).

28. Where will of husband, after making certain provisions for his wife, recites that "the foregoing devises and bequests to my said wife . . . shall be in lieu of her dower and all other interest, which she may have in my estate," if wife elects to take under husband's will, such election shall bar her of her year's allowance and money exemption; and where, in such will, household goods are specifically bequeathed to wife, such election shall bar wife of her right under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), to select such household goods as property exempt from administration: Atwood v. Miller, 24 OO 398 (PC).

30. A mortgage being a secured claim should be paid in preference to the support for the widow for twelve months and also in preference to the exemption provided by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13): In re Freeman, 31 OO 232, 18 OSupp 6 (PC).

31. The executor of the estate of a surviving spouse is entitled to an order of the probate court requiring an executor of the estate of the other deceased spouse to pay the statutory exemption provided by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13): In re Faelchle, 41 OO 100 (PC).

32. General Code § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), in prescribing who should select the chattel property, grants a personal privilege which does not pass to the executor of the surviving spouse: In re Faelchle, 41 OO 100 (PC).

34. A surviving spouse may retain money set off to her as exempt from administration whether or not such spouse lives with and provides for the minor child or children of the decedent: In re Schneider, 48 OO 380, 108 NE(2d) 363 (PC).

36. All articles set off to the surviving spouse as exempt from administration under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) except wearing apparel, ornaments, one bed, bedstead and bedding for it, and not consumed by such spouse, must be forfeited to the minor child or children in the event the surviving spouse ceases to live with and provide for such minor child or children: In re Schneider, 48 OO 380, 108 NE(2d) 363 (PC).

39. Under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), this preferred claim is made a charge not only on the personal property, but on the real estate as well and is a lien thereon to that extent: Burroughs v. Raymond, 50 OO 169, 112 NE(2d) 82 (PC).

40. Judgment lienholders of the surviving spouse whose liens have been noted upon the registered land title certificate, can not have their liens attached to that portion of the exemption payable in money: Burroughs v. Raymond, 50 OO 169, 112 NE(2d) 82 (PC).

41. The allowance to minor children for a year's support as provided in GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) is prior to any claims of the United States against the estate of the decedent: In re Carl, 43 OO 52, 94 NE (2d) 239 (PC).

Divorce

48. The fact that a husband and wife separate, and live apart for a number of years, does not destroy the wife's right of exemption as a widow; but until they are divorced, the wife at his death is entitled to a year's support and the articles of personal property mentioned in the statute: In re McMillan, 8 CC (NS) 294, 18 CD 645.

Rights of third persons

53. An unpaid seller of furniture was held guilty of laches in failing to raise the issue of ownership at the time of filing the inventory of the buyer's estate in the probate court, thereby being estopped from raising the question as against the widow of the buyer by whom such furniture was chosen as part of her statutory allowance: Stoner v. Anderson, 50 App 344, 1 OO 177, 198 NE 186.

55. Under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), (the "twenty per cent" section) there was set off to a widow the sum of six hundred forty-one dollars as her separate property, exempt from administration. This amount was claimed by the widow's judgment creditor. The widow then asked allowance to her of five hundred dollars from this sum, in lieu of homestead exemption, under GC § 11738 (RC § 2329.81). The sum set off to the widow was not money due her from a person, partnership or corporation, within the provision of GC § 11738 (RC § 2329.81) that money so due cannot be held exempt: Home Finance Co. v. Wright, 22 OO 302 (CP).

57. The money which a widow is entitled to under the provisions of GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13) is a lien on the property prior to all claims excepting those which are secured claims of the estate or the deceased: Howett v. Howett, 25 OLA 150.

58. The statutory set-off of a surviving spouse under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), is a preference only over the claims of unsecured creditors: Geese v. Murphy, 8 OO 32 (PC).

Bankruptcy

63. Widow of a bankrupt is entitled to certain articles, or their equivalent in money, and allowance for a year's support for herself and children: In re Parschen, 13 OFD 443.

Court costs and expenses of administration

70. The sum provided by GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), to be paid to a surviving spouse in lieu of the specific articles enumerated therein to be set off to such spouse as property exempt from administration, should be paid free from the costs or expenses of administration: Schmehl v. Schmehl, 8 OO 104 (App) [reversing 5 OO 244].

Disposition of exempted personal chattels

77. The exception in GC § 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13) has been placed there as a penalty against the widow in case she ceases to provide for the minor children of the decedent; otherwise, she has the right to retain the exempted property: Cowden v. Cowden, 28 OO 103 (PC).

78. A minor child of the decedent, who was not a member of the decedent's household and refused to live with the widow and was not dependent upon her for support, is not entitled to claim that the exempted property be set off to him under GC § 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13): Cowden v. Cowden, 28 OO 103 (PC).

79. General Code § 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13) provides for a forfeiture and must therefore be strictly construed: In re Schneider, 48 OO 380, 108 NE(2d) 363 (PC).

80. General Code § 10509-55 (RC § 2115.13) will not be applied to terminate a surviving spouse's right of enjoyment of chattels that have been set off to such spouse as exempt from administration in the absence of a finding that such spouse has abandoned or deserted the minor child or children of the decedent: In re Schneider, 48 OO 380, 108 NE(2d) 363 (PC).

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 REPEAL]

1. Doubtful whether the allowance to the widow is part of the inventory, since it must be in a separate schedule and returned with the inventory: In re Rierdon, 5 NP 516, 5 OD 606.

Such oath must be indorsed upon or annexed to the inventory.

Upon the filing of the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, the probate court shall forthwith set a day, not later than one month after the day such inventory was filed, for hearing on the inventory and shall give at least ten days' notice by registered mail or otherwise of the hearing to the executor or administrator and to such of the following as are known to be residents of the state and whose place of residence is known.[:]

When exceptions are filed notice thereof and time of hearing thereon shall forthwith be given to the executor or administrator and his attorney by registered mail or by personal service, unless such notice is waived. At the hearing the executor or administrator and any witness may be examined under oath. The court must enter its finding on the journal and tax the costs as may be equitable.

1. The hearing of exceptions to an inventory under RC § 2115.16, is a summary proceeding conducted by the probate court to determine whether those charged with the responsibility therefor have included in a decedent's estate more or less than such decedent owned at the time of his death: In re Gottwald, 164 OS 405, 58 OO 235, 131 NE(2d) 586.

1.1 Incidental to such hearing the probate court can determine title to personal property included in such inventory, but it is a matter of discretion whether such summary proceeding shall be employed or the executor ordered to pursue other remedies: In re Gottwald, 164 OS 405, 58 OO 235, 131 NE(2d) 586; In re Brady, 21 OO 374, 6 OSupp 284 (PC).

1.2 Under RC § 2115.16, the probate court is not required to conduct an accounting between an executor to the inventory and the executor of a decedent's estate: In re Gottwald, 164 OS 405, 58 OO 235, 131 NE(2d) 586.

1.3 Where an inventory lists a margin account of a decedent with a broker, which account allegedly contains shares of stock claimed to be owned by an executor to the inventory, and where such shares of stock were voluntarily placed in said account by the executor and title to such shares registered in the name of the broker, it is not an abuse of discretion for the probate court upon the hearing of exceptions to the inventory to refuse to conduct an accounting between the executor and the executor of decedent's estate and to permit executor to pursue such other remedies as may be available: In re Gottwald, 164 OS 405, 58 OO 235, 131 NE(2d) 586.

1.4 In a proceeding in the probate court, where an exception to the inventory and appraisal in an estate is filed on the ground that a claim against a certain person should be included in the inventory and appraisal, and an application by the executor of the estate is filed to amend the inventory and appraisal to include such claim against this person, the executor and the executor are parties in the proceeding. The person against whom it is contended such claim should be made has a collateral interest in this proceeding, but he is not a party in such proceeding, where he does not enter his appearance therein and oppose the proposed changes in the inventory: In re Haas, 174 OS 277, 22 OO(2d) 336, 189 NE(2d) 65.

1.5 The determination by the probate court in the summary proceeding provided for by RC § 2115.16 that assets should be included in an estate makes the question of title res judicata as between all parties to the proceeding, but the judgment of the probate court may be attacked in a subsequent action by other interested persons who were not parties to the proceeding in probate court: Cole v. Ottawa Home & Sav. Assn., 18 OS(2d) 1, 47 OO(2d) 1, 246 NE(2d) 542.

1.6 The only parties to a hearing on exceptions to an inventory filed in the probate court pursuant to RC § 2115.16 are the executor and the executor, unless other persons voluntarily appear and are allowed by the court to be made parties to the proceeding: Cole v. Ottawa Home & Sav. Assn., 18 OS(2d) 1, 47 OO(2d) 1, 246 NE(2d) 542.

2. Claimants of stock inventoried as assets of estate, are not barred by failure to file exceptions to inventory, as they are not "persons interested" in the estate; they may raise question by direct proceeding: Brown v. Southern Ohio Sav. Bank & Co., 22 App 324, 153 NE 864.

2.1 Where exceptions to inventory raised questions regarding inheritance tax and testator's residence, judgment regarding testator's residence held not erroneous, although no notice was given to state tax commission or county auditor (former GC § 10639 [see now RC § 2115.16]): Cunningham v. Bessemer Trust Co., 39 App 535, 178 NE 217.

3. Inclusion of the real estate in the inventory of the grantor's estate, to which no exception was filed and no actual hearing conducted by the probate court, is not res judicata, and does not estop the grantee from asserting title to the real estate: Scott v. Mofford, 64 App 457, 18 OO 197, 28 NE(2d) 947.

4. Next of kin, contesting a will by which they will receive nothing from the estate, are "persons interested," within the terms of this section, and have a right to file exceptions to the inventory: In re McConney, 72 App 286, 27 OO 121, 51 NE(2d) 239.

4.1 A hearing on exceptions to an inventory is a summary proceeding in which the probate court may summarily determine whether those charged with the responsibility therefor have included in a decedent's estate more or less than such decedent owned at the time of his death, but it does not have plenary power to determine the collectibility of the debt: In re Wreede, 106 App 324, 7 OO(2d) 75, 154 NE(2d) 756.

4.2 A person who is not included in any of the classes of persons to whom notice of the filing of an inventory, the hearing thereon, the filing of exceptions, or the hearing thereon, is required to be given under this section, and who was never served with such notice but merely appeared as a witness at the hearing on exceptions to the inventory, claiming ownership of certain items of personal property claimed by the executor to belong to the estate, cannot appeal from a judgment of the probate court ordering such property included in the inventory: In re Ager, 111 App 164, 14 OO(2d) 54, 171 NE(2d) 347.

4.3 Under the plenary power conferred upon the probate court incident to the administration of estates it has authority, upon exceptions to an inventory, to revise the appraised value of any security listed in such inventory, but such authority should be exercised after hearing and determined upon the evidence adduced in the light of the provisions of RC §§ 2115.01, 2115.07, 2115.09 and 2115.12: In re Berman, 118 App 354, 25 OO(2d) 226, 194 NE(2d) 794.

4.4 A beneficiary under a will, who is not the executor, can be properly excluded from a courtroom under a ruling ordering a separation of witnesses in a proceeding upon exceptions to an inventory brought pursuant to RC § 2109.58—such beneficiary not being a party to such proceeding: In re Soeder, 7 OApp(2d) 271, 36 OO(2d) 404, 220 NE(2d) 547.

4.5 When an inventory is filed and approved by the probate court without exceptions having been taken it is not res judicata to a declaratory judgment action seeking to include other assets in the estate that were not in the approved inventory: Eger v. Eger, 39 OApp(2d) 14, 68 OO(2d) 150, 314 NE(2d) 394 (1974).

5. A maker of notes inventoried as assets of an estate is barred from claiming such notes represent an advancement upon filing exceptions to the fiduciary's account, if the maker had actual notice of the hearing on the inventory and was a required party to be given notice of the hearing on the inventory: In re Wallick, 15 OO 192 (PC).

6. This section not only permits persons "interested in the estate" to file exceptions to an inventory, but, in addition thereto, permits persons interested "in any of the property included in the inventory" to file exceptions: In re Milliken, 24 OLA 650.

7. This section, requiring that notice of the filing of an inventory and hearing thereon shall be "by registered mail, or otherwise," [this provision has been omitted from the Revised Code] is sufficiently complied with by constructive notice by insertions in a daily legal newspaper: In re Keller, 32 OLA 624.

7.1 Replevin may not be sought as alternative remedy to this section: Service Transport Co. v. Matyas, 63 OLA 236, 244, 108 NE(2d) 741.

7.2 Under this section the probate court has jurisdiction to impress a trust and order an accounting: In re Barnes, 64 OLA 6, 108 NE(2d) 88.

7.3 Executor's right to appeal, discussed: In re Byerly, 74 OLA 586, 141 NE(2d) 771.

8. If exceptions to an appraisal have been made by one of the next of kin within the time limited by statute, and no other exceptions are filed within such time, another of the next of kin cannot adopt such exceptions and make them his own so as to be heard upon such question, in case the person who originally filed such exceptions is estopped by his own conduct from attacking such appraisal: Sprinkle v. Odell, 22 CC(NS) 233, 33 CD 540 [for a former opinion in same case, see 22 CC(NS) 480, 33 CD 685, which was affirmed, without opinion, Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 78 OS 404].

9. The inconsistent attitude of an executor in filing exceptions to an appraisal, which he himself has filed as executor, does not prevent the probate court from having jurisdiction to hear and determine such exceptions: Sprinkle v. Odell, 22 CC(NS) 480, 33 CD 685 [affirmed, without opinion, Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 78 OS 404; for a later opinion in same case, see Sprinkle v. Odell, 22 CC(NS) 233, 33 CD 540].

11. Creditor of heir cannot file exceptions to account: In re Sturges, 6 NP(NS) 331, 18 OD 345.

12. The question of whether deceased left a widow is properly raised by exception to the allowance in the inventory: In re Scott, 8 NP(NS) 279, 19 OD 577.

13. In a hearing upon exception to an inventory the probate court has jurisdiction to determine the ownership of a joint bank account, standing in the name of deceased and another and included in the inventory, it being alleged in the exceptions that the major portion of such account is not properly in the inventory, being the property of such other person: In re Ray, 79 OLA 368 (PC).

14. The fact that the hearing on an inventory and appraisal of which notice was properly given to all those entitled thereto, was not had within one month after the filing of said inventory and appraisal does not invalidate such proceedings because said time limit in this section is not mandatory but directory: In re Ray, 79 OLA 368 (PC).

15. An administrator of one estate, even though not a person interested in another estate, may, in his capacity as administrator of his decedent's estate, be interested in property included in the other estate so as to have the right to file exceptions to the inventory thereto: In re Ray, 79 OLA 368 (PC).

16. The amount set off to a widow as a year's allowance may be challenged by either exceptions to the inventory under this section or by a petition to review under the provisions of RC § 2117.22: In re Stump, 89 OLA 570, 185 NE(2d) 334 (PC).

When the inventory required by section 2115.-

02 of the Revised Code has been approved by the probate court, the appraisal of the real estate as set forth therein shall be conclusive for all purposes except estate tax, unless a reappraisal is ordered by the court.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The only provision on the subject of the legal effect of the inventory is that contained in this section, which makes the appraisal set forth therein conclusive except for inheritance tax purposes, unless the court orders a reappraisal: Scott v. Mofford, 64 App 457, 18 OO 197, 28 NE(2d) 947.

2. Under this section when the inventory has been approved by the probate court, the appraisal of the real estate as set forth therein becomes "conclusive for all purposes except inheritance tax, unless a reappraisal is ordered by the court": In re Fouts, 103 App 313, 3 OO(2d) 353, 145 NE(2d) 440.

3. The probate court is not precluded from ordering a reappraisal of real estate by the fact that an appraisal has been made and approved: Walters v. Wannemacher, 6 OApp(2d) 226, 35 OO(2d) 385, 217 NE(2d) 695.

4. When an inventory has been approved by the court, the appraisal of the real estate contained therein is conclusive for all purposes except inheritance tax and a reappraisal, of the real estate will not be ordered except as otherwise provided by law: In re Meister, 34 OO 277, 71 NE(2d) 316 (PC).

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The rule of common law was, if a person was named executor in a will any debt that he might have owed the decedent was extinguished, on the theory that the executor might be compelled to sue himself in order to collect the debt, and this he could not do. It is a question whether such was ever the rule in Ohio: Tracy v. Card, 2 OS 450.

2. A claim alleged to be due a law firm, in which an executor is a partner, is subject to the mandatory requirements of this section and GC § 10509-106 (RC § 2117.02): Trustees of Masonic Temple Assn. v. Emmons, 49 App 87, 1 OO 286, 195 NE 259.

3. This section and GC § 10509-106 (RC § 2117.02) are mandatory as to how a personal representative's claim against the estate he is administering shall be allowed, and an administrator must follow them in regard to allowing a claim by his co-administrator: Fulton v. Roderick, 55 App 327, 9 OO 69, 9 NE(2d) 876.

4. By virtue of the provisions of const. art. IV, § 8, and RC title XXI [21], a probate court has jurisdiction to pass upon a claim against an estate filed individually by one of the co-administrators of such estate; but such court has no jurisdiction in such proceeding to examine into a claim of such estate against such co-administrator and her husband for moneys allegedly owing the estate on promissory notes: In re Stutz, 1 OApp(2d) 188, 30 OO(2d) 212, 204 NE(2d) 248.

6. An executor or administrator cannot apply the assets of the estate to the payment of his claim against the decedent, until after the same has been presented to and allowed by the probate court: Liggett v. Liggett, 3 NP(NS) 518, 51 Bull. 59; In re Thompson, 23 NP(NS) 544.

8. Even with the consent of the beneficiaries, an executor cannot cancel a note due from him to decedent as satisfaction of a claim from the decedent to him: In re Thompson, 23 NP(NS) 544.

An executor or administrator within three months after the date of his appointment shall present any claim he has against the estate to the probate court for allowance. The claim shall not be paid unless allowed by the court. When an executor or administrator presents a claim amounting to five hundred dollars or more, the court shall fix a day not less than four nor more than six weeks from its presentation, when the testimony touching it shall be heard. The court forthwith shall issue an order directed to the executor or administrator requiring him to give notice in writing to all the heirs, legatees, or devisees of the decedent interested in the estate, and to the creditors named in the order. The notice shall contain a statement of the amount claimed, designate the time fixed for hearing the testimony, and be served upon the persons named in the order at least twenty days before the time for hearing. If any persons mentioned in the order are not residents of the county, service of notice may be made upon them by publication for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper published or circulating in the county, or as the court may direct. All persons named in the order shall be parties to the proceeding, and any other person having an interest in the estate may be made a party.

1. Claims against an estate which were not filed within three months of the appointment of an executor or administrator as required by statute were not barred where decedent died before the effective date of the statute: Mott v. Squire, 131 OS 500, 6 OO 163, 3 NE(2d) 404.

2. A person who is appointed administratrix of an estate on the assumption that she is the sole heir at law of the decedent and who is also the only creditor of the estate is not required, as such creditor, to present her claim to the probate court and serve notice thereof on herself as such sole heir, pursuant to this section and GC §§ 10509-107, 10509-108 (RC §§ 2117.03, 2117.04). Under such circumstances it would be a vain thing to do, which the law does not command: Haag v. Meffley, 89 App 471, 46 OO 274, 103 NE(2d) 37.

3. Where the claim of an executor against the estate which he represents is not presented to the probate court and allowed, as required by the mandatory provisions of GC § 10509-106 (RC § 2117.02), such claim cannot be allowed as a deductible debt against the estate in the determination of the inheritance tax: In re Beckman, 91 App 42, 48 OO 236, 107 NE(2d) 538.

4. The provision of this section that an executor or administrator within four months after the date of his appointment shall present any claim which he has against the estate to the probate court for allowance is mandatory and constitutes a statute of limitation: Allen v. Hunter, 1 OApp(2d) 278, 30 OO(2d) 296, 204 NE(2d) 545.

5. The four-month period prescribed by this section for the presentment of claims by an executor or administrator to the probate court for allowance, begins as of the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator, and is not interrupted by the removal of the executor or administrator and the simultaneous appointment of his successor within such four-month period: Allen v. Hunter, 1 OApp(2d) 278, 30 OO(2d) 296, 204 NE(2d) 545.

6. It is the mandatory duty of the probate court to disallow the payment of the claim of a law firm where the executor, a member of the law firm, failed to present the claim for allowance within four months from the date of his appointment, as provided by this section: In re Crawford, 21 OO(2d) 215, 184 NE(2d) 779 (PC).

7. The claim of an administrator must be filed within three months after his appointment; and when no such presentation has been made, his resignation and the appointment of a successor administrator do not act to revive the claim barred by the statute of limitations: In re Grindle, 23 OO(2d) 442, 182 NE(2d) 887 (PC).

8. The tax commission is properly a party to a hearing on an executor's claim against the estate, since the commission is a "person having an interest in the estate" within the provisions of this section: In re Taylor, 51 OO(2d) 89, 23 OMisc 142, 254 NE(2d) 925 (PC).

9. Where a funeral director, as the executor of an estate, failed to file his claim for burial expenses of the deceased within the time limits set forth in this section and GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07), he may thereafter file such claim for the consideration of the probate court under the authority of GC § 10509-193 (RC § 2113.36): In re Winders, 45 OLA 353 (App).

10. This section, requiring an executor or administrator to present any claim he has against the estate to the probate court within three months after the date of his appointment, is a statute of limitations applicable to an administrator appointed before the effective date of the section but who did not present his claim until more than three months thereafter: In re Grube, 21 OLA 1.

11. The statutes do not require that the state be given notice of an action brought by an executor under this section, to establish a claim against the estate owned by such executor. The listing of a debt in the inventory and appraisal is sufficient notice to the state: In re Matthews, 60 OLA 385, 101 NE(2d) 303 (App).

12. The probate court has exclusive original jurisdiction over the claim of an administrator or executor against his decedent's estate: In re Smith, 67 OLA 409, 120 NE(2d) 632 (PC).

13. In a proceeding for the allowances of a claim of an executor against the estate, a co-executor is not a necessary party: Downing v. Downing, 3 CC(NS) 623, 13 CD 389.

14. In a proceeding by an executor to secure payment of a note held by him, payments on an insurance policy made by decedent after the death of the payee of the note (decedent's wife) to whom he had assigned the policy, and which policy insured to the benefit of the decedent's estate, cannot be set off against the note: Claypool v. Claypool, 4 CC(NS) 577, 15 CD 327 [affirmed, without report, 75 OS 578].

15. As a general rule, the estate of a minor is not liable for past support by the parents, but an exception to the rule occurs where a mother, who has furnished such support, had little or no estate in comparison with the minor, and the support was furnished under conditions which were coercive upon the mother and compelled her to assume a burden not hers alone. And when such claim is presented to the probate court under the above section, there is drawn to the court the chancery jurisdiction necessary to a complete exercise of the jurisdiction specialty conferred by the statute: Spink v. Spink, 7 CC(NS) 89, 18 CD 94.

16. An executor or administrator cannot apply the assets of the estate to the payment of his claim against the decedent, until after the same has been presented to and allowed by the probate court: Liggett v. Liggett, 3 NP(NS) 518, 51 Bull 59.

17. Under this section, an executor or administrator must present his unsecured claim against the estate to the probate court within three months after the date of his appointment or be forever barred from maintaining an action thereon: Cribbs v. Sturman, 32 NP(NS) 29.

18. Where a widow who is administratrix of her husband's estate pays indebtedness of the estate out of her individual funds, she is subrogated to all the rights of such creditors: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

At any time after the presentation by an executor or administrator of a claim which he owns against the estate he represents to the probate court for allowance, the court on its own motion, or on motion by any interested party, may appoint an attorney to represent the estate, who shall receive such compensation from the estate as may be fixed by the court. The court shall thereupon require the executor or administrator to make available to such attorney, for use in connection with the proceeding, all documents belonging to the estate relating to the subject matter of such claim.

Upon the hearing as to the allowance of an executor's or administrator's claim against the estate he represents, exceptions may be taken to a decision of the probate court upon a matter of law by any person affected thereby. Bills of exception may be taken and allowed, and appeals on law had after a final order or judgment.

On the application of an executor or administrator for authority to compromise and settle a claim in favor of or against a decedent's estate, the probate court, upon hearing on such application and after reasonable notice has been given to all persons who would be adversely affected thereby as determined by the court, may authorize or direct the executor or administrator to compromise and settle such claim on such terms as the court deems to be for the best interest of the estate. The court may dispense with the notice of such hearing if it deems notice to be unnecessary. An executor authorized by the will to make such compromise and settlement may but shall not be required to apply to the court for such authority.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1 The court being satisfied that the interest of the estate will be best subserved by compounding the claim, an entry should be made to that effect. Generally when an administrator seeks authority to compound a claim, he does so with the understanding that the debtor will accept the terms for which he asks authority to make the settlement. If claims cannot be collected they may be compounded or sold: Weyer v. Watt, 48 OS 545, 28 NE 670.

2. Where the surety on the bond of a deceased fiduciary has made a settlement with a succeeding fiduciary for certain delinquencies of the deceased fiduciary, the succeeding fiduciary is not precluded from pursuing any remedy available to him on the bond for other and separate delinquencies: In re Gray, 162 OS 384, 55 OO 224, 123 NE(2d) 408.

3. This section, providing that when a debtor of a deceased person is unable to pay all his debts, the personal representative with the approval of the probate court, may compound with such debtor, does not contemplate a debt owed by the executor to the estate: In re Koons, 11 OO 389 (PC).

4. It is highly questionable whether a fiduciary of a decedent's estate may be a party to any compromise involving successors' rights in the estate: In re Cantor, 94 OLA 102, 200 NE(2d) 515.

§ 2117.06 Presentation and allowance of creditors claims; property tax assessments; statements and notices required.

All creditors having claims against an estate shall present their claims to the executor or administrator in writing, including claims arising out of contract, out of tort, on cognovit notes, or on judgments, whether due or not due, secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated. All claims shall be presented within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator except that claims for assessments for personal and intangible property taxes and penalties for which the decedent was personally liable shall be presented by the tax commissioner or his agent within ninety days after the receipt by the clerk of the probate division of the county where the estate is being administered or receipt by the commissioner of the preliminary notice prescribed by section 5731.20 of the Revised Code. Every claim presented shall set forth the claimant's address. In the absence of any prior demand for allowance, the executor or administrator shall allow or reject all claims except tax assessment claims within thirty days after their presentation; provided that failure of the executor or administrator to allow or reject within said time shall not prevent him from doing so thereafter nor shall it prejudice the rights of any claimant. Upon the allowance of a claim the executor or the administrator, on demand of the creditor, shall furnish the creditor with a written statement or memorandum of the fact and date of such allowance. In the event the executor or administrator has actual knowledge of a pending action commenced against the decedent prior to his death in a court of record in this state, such executor or administrator shall file a notice of his appointment in such pending action within ten days after acquiring such knowledge. Where the administrator or executor is other than a natural person, actual knowledge of a pending suit against said decedent shall be limited to the actual knowledge of that person charged with the responsibility of administering said estate. Any person whose claim has been presented, and not thereafter rejected, is a creditor as that term is used in Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code. Claims that are contingent need not be presented except as provided in sections 2117.37 to 2117.42 of the Revised Code.

1. The provisions of this section and GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07) do not require the owner of a promissory note to present his claim thereunder to an executor or administrator when the executor or administrator at the time of his appointment is already in possession of the note for collection: Gerhold v. Papathanasion, 130 OS 342, 4 OO 425, 199 NE 353.

3. This section and GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07) are statutes of limitation (or nonclaim statutes) which bar creditors' claims unless presented to an executor or administrator within four months after the date of appointment: Beach v. Mizner, 131 OS 481, 6 OO 155, 3 NE(2d) 642 [affirming 52 App 348]; Prudential Ins. Co. v. Joyce Bldg. Co., 143 OS 564, 28 OO 480, 56 NE(2d) 168.

5. The superintendent of banks, seeking in his official capacity to collect a claim from an administrator or executor is amenable to the laws governing the administration of estates the same as any other creditor. Before filing an action on a claim in court, he must first present such claim to the administrator or executor for allowance or rejection as provided by statute: State ex rel. Fulton v. Coburn, 133 OS 192, 10 OO 249, 12 NE(2d) 471.

7. An unliquidated claim for damages arising out of tort does not fall within the exception contained in this section, pertaining to contingent claims; and suit thereon must be instituted within two months from the date of receipt of actual notice of disallowance of such claim by the executor or administrator, or be forever barred under the provisions of GC § 10509-133 (RC § 2117.12): Pierce v. Johnson, 136 OS 95, 16 OO 34, 23 NE(2d) 993.

9. The requirements of this section that "creditors shall present their claims, whether due or not due, to the executor or administrator within four months after the date of his appointment" are mandatory and may not be waived by him: Prudential Ins. Co. v. Joyce Bldg. Co., 143 OS 564, 28 OO 480, 56 NE(2d) 168.

10. Where an action against a deceased defendant has been revived properly it is not necessary for the plaintiff in such revived action to present his claim in writing to the executor or administrator as provided in this section: Goehring v. Dillard, 145 OS 41, 30 OO 274, 60 NE(2d) 704.

11. Where a court of chancery finds that the res of a trust is in the hands of the personal representatives of a deceased trustee, such res is not a debt and may be recovered from such personal representatives without compliance by the cestui que trust with the provisions of this section: Staley v. Kreinbihl, 152 OS 315, 40 OO 361, 89 NE(2d) 593.

11.1 The filing of a petition against an administrator of a decedent's estate, setting forth a cause of action against the estate, within four months of the administrator's appointment and accompanied by service of summons and a copy of the petition upon the administrator, constitutes a valid presentation of plaintiff's claim to the administrator and meets the requirements of this section: Fortelka v. Meifert, 176 OS 476, 27 OO(2d) 439, 200 NE(2d) 318.

11.2 Where the administrator for the estate of the deceased airplane passenger failed to present the statutory beneficiary's claim for wrongful death to the administratrix of the estate of the deceased pilot within the four-month provision of RC § 2117.06, and the nine-month provision of RC § 2117.07, but, in his capacity as next friend of the minor and sole heir of the deceased passenger, did present the minor's claim within nine months after the appointment the presentation is sufficient compliance with the provisions of RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07: Burwell v. Maynard, 21 OS(2d) 108, 50 OO(2d) 268, 255 NE(2d) 628.

11.3 Where it is alleged in an action for bodily injuries that such injuries were proximately caused by the negligence of a decedent and that he had a policy of insurance insuring him against liability for such negligence, and it does not appear that any other claims covered by such insurance have been asserted, such action may be brought against the executor or administrator of such decedent, and decedent's liability insurer, at any time within the statute of limitations on such actions without presenting a claim against the estate within the time specified in RC § 2117.06 or RC § 2117.07, and timely service of summons upon the insurer-defendant is sufficient to commence the action: Heuser v. Crum, 31 OS(2d) 90, 60 OO(2d) 56, 285 NE(2d) 340.

12. In the administration of an estate no claim need be presented unless it is such that the administrator or executor can legally refuse to pay; hence, where the testator by his will directed that the plaintiff should receive reasonable compensation for personal services rendered, her failure properly to present her claim or to bring an action thereon within a certain time does not defeat her right of recovery: Fair v. Fair, 46 App 51, 187 NE 727, 38 OLR 291.

13. Presentment to the executor of a physician's claim for services rendered during last sickness of testatrix was required in order to authorize physician's recovery therefor, although executor had knowledge thereof before testatrix' death, notwithstanding that will directed payment of debts and expenses of testatrix' last sickness: Devers v. Schreiber, 50 App 442, 4 OO 183, 198 NE 601.

13.1 A claim for unpaid installments of alimony, under a decree rendered against a decedent during his lifetime, and which are delinquent at the time of his death, is a claim that must be presented for allowance or rejection, under the provisions of this section: Swearingin v. Rendigs, 53 App 221, 5 OO 457, 4 NE(2d) 695.

13.2 Where distribution in kind is made of a promissory note, an asset of the estate, before the time has elapsed within which creditor's claims may be filed with the executrix, and no indemnifying bond is given by the distributee as provided in [RC § 2113.55], the distribution in kind is premature and ineffective to transfer the note and mortgage: Sager v. Breisach, 61 App 413, 15 OO 266, 22 NE(2d) 644.

14. The provisions of this section, requiring the filing of a claim against an administrator as a condition precedent to the bringing of an action against him on the claim, apply to a suit brought by a minor on such a claim, and the disability of infancy will not save him from the operation of the statute; and a petition by or for the benefit of a minor on such a claim which does not allege that the claim has been so presented, does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action: Breen v. Conn, 64 App 325, 18 OO 133, 28 NE(2d) 684.

15. An ancillary administrator of an estate may appeal from an order of the probate court, prescribing that he reject claims of a domiciliary executor set forth in the schedule of debts, which claims were presented to and allowed by the proper court of the state of the domiciliary executor, prescribing that the ancillary administrator require the domiciliary executor to perfect his claims under GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06) et seq, and prescribing that, after the proper adjudication of the rejection or allowance of the domiciliary executor's claims, the ancillary administrator distribute the entire funds in his hands to beneficiaries named in the will of the decedent: In re Kelley, 68 App 51, 22 OO 158, 34 NE(2d) 34.

16. Although a claim of defendant against a plaintiff may be barred by the statute of limitation at the time the plaintiff institutes his action, such defendant may set up such claim as a setoff or defense to the extent it will equalize the claim of the plaintiff: Shriner v. Price, 74 App 373, 29 OO 542, 59 NE(2d) 152.

17. In an action for wrongful death between the administrators of the estates of two decedents killed in a common accident, the pleadings show on their face and by admission the date of appointment of plaintiff administrator to be more than four months after the date of appointment of defendant administrator, thus rendering it impossible for plaintiff administrator to have presented the tort claim to defendant administrator within the time prescribed by this section: Stange v. Campbell, 75 App 316, 31 OO 77, 62 NE(2d) 185.

18. The filing of a cross-petition for a money judgment in an action by an administrator is not the presentation of the asserted claim to the administrator as required by this section and GC § 10509-113 (RC § 2117.11), even if it is filed within four months of the appointment of the administrator: Benson v. Rosine, 76 App 439, 32 OO 195, 64 NE(2d) 845 [affirming 30 OO 55, 15 OSupp 28].

19. A deficiency judgment obtained by the superintendent of banks against the administrator of the estate of a decedent in a foreclosure action in the common pleas court is void where there was no presentation of the claim involved in the foreclosure action to and rejection by the administrator of the estate before the institution of such action: Akron Commercial Securities Co. v. Ritzman, 79 App 80, 34 OO 460, 72 NE(2d) 489.

20. The holder of a contingent claim is not required to present such claim under provisions of this section or GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07): Keifer v. Kissell, 83 App 133, 38 OO 224, 75 NE(2d) 692.

21. The plaintiff in an action for money having died and the cause having been revived in the name of his administratrix, a cross-petition filed thereafter asserting a claim against the estate is subject to a demurrer unless it alleges that the claim was presented to the administratrix within four months of her appointment, as required by this section: National-Ben Franklin Fire Ins. Co. v. Woolcott, 86 App 462, 42 OO 67, 93 NE(2d) 31.

22. The presentation of a claim against an estate to the agent of an insurance company appointed by the administrator as his agent, does not satisfy the statute, and the claim becomes barred at the end of the time fixed by statute, unless otherwise properly presented: Beacon Mut. Indem. Co. v. Stalder, 95 App 441, 54 OO 69, 120 NE(2d) 743.

23. Where, in an action against an administrator for damages for personal injuries resulting from an automobile collision, it is disclosed that the petition does not allege that the claim sued on was presented to the administrator pursuant to this section, that at the close of plaintiff's case the defendant moved for a directed verdict, and that, thereafter, plaintiff's oral motion to dismiss the action without prejudice was granted and the jury dismissed, it is not prejudicially erroneous for the court to overrule plaintiff's motion for leave to withdraw the oral motion and to have the case set for trial, in the absence of a showing of abuse of discretion: Robinson v. Engle, 96 App 238, 54 OO 278, 120 NE(2d) 611.

23.1 This section, which provides, inter alia, that "all claims shall be presented within four months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator," is a "nonclaim statute," or a statute of limitation: Conrad v. Sarver, 97 App 199, 55 OO 453, 124 NE(2d) 749.

23.2 Where the maker of a note claimed by the administrator of an estate to be an asset of the estate asserts the defense of payment, it is not necessary, as a condition precedent to his right to assert such defense, that he comply with the requirement of this section, that such "claim" be presented to the administrator within four months after the appointment of such administrator: Fox v. McCreary, 103 App 73, 3 OO(2d) 155, 144 NE(2d) 546.

23.3 The provisions of RC § 5121.10, that, upon the death of a person who is or has been an inmate of any benevolent institution of the department of mental hygiene and correction, "the executor or administrator shall ascertain from the department whether the deceased person was supported while an inmate," are mandatory, place the responsibility for ascertaining whether the state's claim has been paid on such administrator, and dispense with compliance by the state with this section; and, upon the death of such person, the claim of the state becomes a preferred claim against such deceased person's estate: In re Sowards, 105 App 239, 6 OO(2d) 59, 152 NE(2d) 146.

23.4 A probate court is guilty of an abuse of discretion in refusing a claimant the right to file a claim with an executor after the expiration of the four-month time limit fixed by this section, when such refusal to allow the claim to be filed prevents the revival of an action pending against the executor's decedent in the court of common pleas, where the uncontradicted evidence establishes that the claimant was under a legal disability as defined by RC § 2131.02: Jaycox v. Fuller, 112 App 25, 15 OO(2d) 378, 174 NE(2d) 613.

23.5 The right of a part-owner who pays the tax on the whole tract of which he is part-owner to have a lien on the share of the other part-owner for the tax paid on such other's share is subject to the statute of limitation requiring presentation of claims to executors and administrators: Kuhnle v. Rusmisl, 113 App 389, 17 OO(2d) 465, 178 NE(2d) 810.

23.6 The authority to file a claim against a decedent's estate after the four-month period prescribed by this section must be in conformance with RC § 2117.07, and cannot be predicated on general equitable principles outside the purview of the statute: In re Andres, 114 App 167, 19 OO(2d) 21, 180 NE(2d) 855.

23.7 A petition in an action against an executor of the estate of a decedent, which alleges an oral presentation of a claim against the estate to, and an oral rejection of the claim by, the executor, does not state facts which show a cause of action and is subject to demurrer: Morgan v. City Nat. Bank & Co., 4 OApp(2d) 417, 33 OO(2d) 504, 212 NE(2d) 822.

23.8 A claim against a decedent's estate need not be in any particular form so long as it is in substantial compliance with this section and recognized by the fiduciary as a claim against the estate: Gladman v. Carns, 9 OApp(2d) 135, 38 OO(2d) 140, 223 NE(2d) 378.

23.9 This section applies only to claims to be filed with an executor or administrator, either ancillary or domiciliary, who has been issued letters in Ohio: Kibbey v. Mercer, 11 OApp(2d) 51, 40 OO(2d) 223, 228 NE(2d) 337.

24. If a defendant debtor is deceased, a claim for wrongful death must be presented to his legal representative in the manner and within the time limitations set forth in RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07, even though the complaint filed specifically states that damages are sought from assets other than those of the debtor's estate: King v. Hargis, 37 OApp(2d) 92, 66 OO(2d) 142, 307 NE(2d) 40 (1973).

24.1 Where no Ohio decision exists whose facts precisely fit a case involving the contention by the creditor of the decedent that a claim against the decedent's estate is not barred, since the administrator had knowledge of the creditor's claim within the statutory period, the controlling rule of law should not be fashioned until a plenary hearing is had with full exploration by cross-examination and otherwise of the facts out of which the rule of law will emerge: Hart v. Johnston, 44 OO(2d) 221, 389 F(2d) 239 [reversing 36 OO(2d) 366, 253 FSupp 621].

24.2 Where, in an action filed in the common pleas court by the administrator of a decedent's estate alleging that two defendants were liable for damages for causing the death of plaintiff's decedent, one of the defendants dies and his attorney in accordance with RC § 2313.31 files an entry in the pending case stating that the defendant had died and notified by letter the attorney for plaintiff that letters of administration had been issued, the plaintiff administrator had notice of defendant's death and of the appointment of the executrix in sufficient time to present a claim within the four-month period provided in RC § 2117.06: In re Herron, 49 OO(2d) 27, 21 OMisc 212, 252 NE(2d) 332 (PC).

24.3 A person having an unliquidated claim for damages arising from an automobile collision is a creditor within the meaning of this section, requiring presentation of claims by creditors to the executor or administrator within a specified time and such person is not entitled to the benefits of GC § 10509-216 (RC § 2117.37), governing the presentation of contingent claims: Overman v. Yake, 68 OLA 248, 109 NE(2d) 697 (App).

24.4 A contingent claim is one where the liability depends upon some future event which may or may not happen and which makes it wholly uncertain whether there ever will be a liability; a liability on an unliquidated claim for damages arising out of tort does not depend for its creation upon the occurrence of some uncertain event in the future and cannot be said to be contingent: Lewis v. Knight, 75 OLA 589, 144 NE(2d) 551 (App).

25. The word "shall" in this section makes it mandatory upon the administrator to allow or reject all claims within thirty days after the presentation: In re Heimberger, 6 OO 51 (PC).

26. The claim of a creditor filed within four months as provided by this section is not barred by a lapse of four years, where the administrator neither allows nor rejects such claim and no action is taken by the creditor: In re Heimberger, 6 OO 51 (PC).

27. The purpose of this section is that of presenting claims for allowance or rejection, and a lawsuit in another court, although involving the same parties, is not a compliance with this statute: In re Christopher, 8 OO 546 (PC) [affirmed 11 OO 251].

28. The state superintendent of banks is not chargeable with culpable neglect in failing to present a claim for superadded liability upon stock against the estate of a decedent who was the real owner of such stock within the time prescribed by this section, if the registered ownership is in the name of another person and the state superintendent had no knowledge of who the real owner was: Squire v. Oerter, 9 OO 4 (PC).

31. This section prescribes that if claims are not presented within the four-months period, they may lose their equality with claims of the same class and they may not prevail as against certain claims or against disbursements and distribution by the personal representative: Roberts v. Hickerson, 11 OO 471 (App).

32. A creditor whose claim is neither presented within four months after the appointment of an executrix, as required by this section, nor reinstated under GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07), cannot participate in the distribution of the fund to general creditors, although the executrix knows of the existence of the claim: Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 12 OO 359 (PC).

33. This section, which provides that "creditors shall present their claims, whether due or not due, to the executor or administrator within four months after the date of his appointment," is mandatory and includes a claim for support furnished minor children of a decedent: In re Riggle, 18 OO 179 (PC).

34. Where the claim accrues subsequent to the four months specified in this section, it is impossible for the claimant to present his claim within the four-month period, and the claim, is, therefore, not governed and is not barred by said statute; GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07) does not apply; and the claimant may present his claim to the administrator at any time before the administration of decedent's estate is closed, and if allowance of the claim is refused, the claimant is entitled to sue thereon: In re Runcie, 20 OO 327 (PC).

37. A person who claims to be an equitable owner of assets being administered in the estate is not required by this section to present his "claim" to the administrator before bringing an action: Williams v. Jones, 42 OO 323 (CP).

38. Interest on a claim against a decedent's estate, based on running account payable in installments, is allowable only from the date claim is presented, in absence of custom to the contrary: In re McCollum, 16 OLA 132.

41. Under this section, creditors are required to present their claims to the administrator or executor within four months after the date of his appointment; if not so presented, the creditor or person deriving title from him may petition the probate court, under GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07), for leave to file his claim for allowance and that court may permit such claim to be filed: Holmberg v. Third Nat. Bank & Co., 23 OLA 631.

42. Where stockholder's double liability claim arose before the estate was settled but after statutory period for presentation of claims, the limitation statute does not begin to run until assessment has been made: Reese v. Chapman, 23 OLA 641.

43. In order to entitle a claimant to maintain an action against an administrator to recover from an estate on a claim based on a contract alleged to have been entered into with decedent, it is necessary for plaintiff to have presented the claim to the administrator for allowance or rejection within a period of two months after his appointment: Davidson v. Miars, 31 OLA 507.

44. This section, which provides that a claimant has four months after the appointment of the personal representative within which to present his claim, does not have the effect of extending the time for bringing action after the claim is rejected, but such action must be commenced within two months as provided in GC § 10509-133 (RC § 2117.12): Chronerberry v. Bartel, 32 OLA 284.

45. This section, which requires presentation of claim within four months, is very positive in its language, without exceptions other than as to negotiable instruments maturing subsequent to the time for presentation: Prudential Ins. Co. v. Joyce Bldg. Realty Co., 44 OLA 481, 65 NE(2d) 516 (App).

46. The listing in a schedule of debts a possible claim against an estate would not constitute a waiver of the obligation placed upon the claimant to present its claim as provided under this section and GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07): Prudential Ins. Co. v. Joyce Bldg. Realty Co., 44 OLA 481, 65 NE(2d) 516 (App).

48. A party claiming to be an equitable owner of assets being administrated in an estate need not present a claim to the administrator according to this section: Williams v. Jones, 58 OLA 153 (CP).

49. Since plaintiff is claiming damages then the statutory requirements of this section that "All claimants shall present their claims to the executor or administrator in writing, including claims arising out of contract, out of tort, on cognovit notes or on judgments, whether due, secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated . . ." must be met: Buydden v. Mitchell, 60 OLA 493, 102 NE(2d) 21 (App).

50. Where plaintiff's claim for services rendered decedent were compensated by a conveyance of real estate which later was decreed void after grantor's death, plaintiff's claim is "contingent" within the meaning of this section and GC § 10509-216 (RC § 2117.37), and commencement of an action thereon within four months after the appointment of the executor or administrator or before expiration of two months after rejection of claim by decedent's administratrix is not barred by the statute of limitations: Yenzer v. Burton, 55 NE(2d) 665 (App).

51. It is not necessary that a mortgagee file its claim under the provisions of GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06) before payment can be made to it for the balance due on the mortgage: McAdams v. Bollsinger, 57 OO 338, 129 NE(2d) 878 (PC).

53. Under RC § 2117.07, a creditor may present his claim against a decedent's estate after the four month limitation period provided by RC § 2117.06, if he did not have actual notice of the death of the decedent or actual knowledge of the appointment of the fiduciary, and if such lack of knowledge is shown the court must permit the creditor to file his claim: In re Dulle, 71 OLA 114, 130 NE(2d) 253 (PC).

55. The provision in RC § 2117.06 providing that an executor or administrator shall allow or reject all claims within thirty days after their presentation is directory rather than mandatory and failure of the executor or administrator to act raises no presumption: In re Douglass, 77 OLA 89, 144 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

57. The statute of limitations as to the presentation of claims against an estate does not apply to claims of the state for support of persons in the state hospital: In re Moore, 79 OLA 112, 154 NE(2d) 675 (PC).

58. Since the bureau of support is a governmental agency within the department of mental hygiene and correction, it is in effect the state itself, and it can not be barred by a statute of limitations: In re Moore, 79 OLA 112, 154 NE(2d) 675 (PC).

59. Donee beneficiaries of an antenuptial contract, who claim as distributees through the decedent, are not required to present their claims to the executor or administrator pursuant to RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07: Cantor v. Cantor, 15 OO(2d) 148, 174 NE(2d) 304 (PC).

60. The surviving tenant in common of real estate, who had not presented her claim for rent to the administrator of the estate of the deceased cotenant within four months after his appointment, could not recover the rental value of the property by cross-petition in the administrator's action to sell the real estate: Evans v. May, 18 OO(2d) 459, 176 NE(2d) 189 (PC).

61. Notice of a claim in writing given by counsel for plaintiff to deceased's insurance company did not constitute presentment of the claim to the administrator in writing within the purview of this section requiring presentment of claim within four months after the appointment of the administrator: Simmons v. Bartley, 19 OO(2d) 335, 177 NE(2d) 77 (CP).

62. The institution of an action against the administrator about six weeks after an accident, in which the deceased was involved, and causing summons to be issued to the administrator, together with a copy of the original petition, constituted compliance with the statute requiring presentment of claims to the administrator within four months of his appointment, or made it unnecessary for such presentment of claim to be made to the administrator: Simmons v. Bartley, 19 OO(2d) 335, 177 NE(2d) 77 (CP).

63. The presentment of a claim to an insurance company is not a presentment to an administrator within the purview of this section: Wilcox v. Ceschiat, 87 OLA 225, 179 NE(2d) 544 (CP).

64. Where the claimant has actual notice of the decedent's death in sufficient time to present his claim within the statutory period, claimant is not entitled to file his claim more than four months after the appointment of an administrator: In re Young, 174 OS 516, 23 OO(2d) 149, 190 NE(2d) 273.

65. The filing of a petition to contest a decedent's will does not suspend or extend the time in which a creditor must present his claim to the executor under the provisions of RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07: In re Kehoe, 27 OO(2d) 35, 199 NE(2d) 29 (PC).

66. The general purpose of RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07 is to facilitate the early completion of administration proceedings: Baker v. Charles, 31 OO(2d) 310, 202 NE(2d) 646 (PC).

68. Where the regularly appointed attorney for the executor of an estate within four months after the appointment of such executor receives a statement of claim for services with an accompanying affidavit addressed to the executor of the estate, and where such attorney acknowledges the receipt of the claim and affidavit against said estate, signing said acknowledgment as attorney for the executor and returns that claim to the attorney for the claimant as acting within the scope of his authority, and his act in accepting the claim is the acceptance by the executor, acting through his legally appointed attorney: In re Clark, 40 OO(2d) 347, 11 OMisc 103, 229 NE(2d) 122 (CP).

69. Where the plaintiff, a resident of Pennsylvania, was involved in an automobile collision in that state with the intestate, an Ohio resident, the remedy provided by the state of Pennsylvania will not be defeated in a federal court merely because the plaintiff failed to comply with the Ohio law requiring presentation of a claim against the administratrix of the intestate within a certain time: Colman v. Pitzer, 6 OO(2d) 476, 160 FSupp 862.

70. A federal district court does not acquire jurisdiction of an action on an alleged oral promise by the defendant administrator's decedent to pay the plaintiff a sum of money unless there has been a timely presentation to and rejection by the administrator of the plaintiff's claim against the estate or the reinstatement of a claim by the probate court: Hart v. Johnston, 36 OO(2d) 366, 253 FSupp 621 [reversed, 44 OO(2d) 221, 389 F(2d) 239].

71. The law does not prescribe the form or manner in which a claim should be presented to the representative of an estate, but any presentation to a so-called agent of the administrator falls outside the requirements of the statute with respect to presentation of a claim against an estate in that the fiduciary functions of the office of administrator in his capacity as an officer of the probate court cannot be delegated to agents who do not owe the fidelity required of an officer of the court: Hart v. Johnston, 36 OO(2d) 366, 253 FSupp 621 [reversed, 44 OO(2d) 221, 389 F(2d) 239].

72. Under Ohio probate law both a claim and an action against an estate may only proceed against a fiduciary of an estate: United States v. Besase, 57 OO(2d) 51, 319 FSupp 1064.

§ 2117.07 Presentation of claims after three months.

Anyone having a claim against an estate who fails to present his claim to the executor or administrator within the time prescribed by law may file a petition in the probate court for authority to present his claim after the expiration of the time. The petition forthwith shall be assigned for hearing, and at least five days before the date of the hearing, the claimant shall give written notice of the hearing to the executor or administrator, and to other parties the court designates. The court may authorize the claimant to present his claim to the executor or administrator if, on the hearing, the court finds any of the following:

(A) That the claimant did not have actual notice of the decedent's death or of the appointment of the executor or administrator in sufficient time to present his claim within the period prescribed by section 2117.06 of the Revised Code;

(B) That the claimant's failure to present his claim was due to the absence of the executor or administrator from his usual place of residence or business during a substantial part of the period, or was due to any wrongful act or statement on the part of the executor or administrator or his attorney;

(C) That the claimant was subject to a legal disability during the period or any part of it.

A claim that is not presented within four months from the appointment of the executor or administrator shall be forever barred as to all parties, including devisees, legatees, and distributees, and no payment shall be made nor any action maintained on the claim, except as otherwise provided in sections 2117.37 to 2117.42 of the Revised Code, with reference to contingent claims.

The executor or administrator is not accountable to such a claimant for any assets of the estate that he may lawfully have paid out or distributed prior to service upon him of notice of the hearing on the petition, nor for any other action that he may lawfully have taken prior to that time, and such a claim shall not prevail against creditors, legatees, and distributees who have received payment or distribution from the assets of the estate prior to the service of such a notice, or against a surviving spouse who has made her election to take under the will or under sections 2105.01 to 2105.21 of the Revised Code, prior to that time, or against bona fide purchasers and other persons who have dealt with the executor or administrator in good faith.

This section applies to any person who is required to give written notice to the executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of death.

Nothing in this section or in section 2117.06 of the Revised Code shall reduce the time mentioned in section 2125.02, 2305.09, 2305.10, 2305.11, or 2305.12 of the Revised Code, provided that no portion of any recovery on a claim brought pursuant to any of those sections shall come from the assets of an estate, unless the claim has been presented against the estate in accordance with Chapter 2117. of the Revised Code.

1. A barred claim may be reinstated and presented to an executor or administrator upon leave first obtained from the probate court in the manner provided in this section: Beach v. Mizner, 131 OS 481, 6 OO 155, 3 NE(2d) 417 [affirming 52 App 348].

2. Subject to the limitations therein prescribed, this section confers broad discretion upon the probate court to permit or deny a petitioner the right to file his claim for allowance, where such claim has not been presented to an administrator or executor within the time prescribed by law. Where such discretion has not been abused, a decision rendered by the probate court under this section will not be disturbed by a reviewing court: State ex rel Fulton v. Coburn, 133 OS 192, 10 OO 249, 12 NE(2d) 471.

3. Where a claim, filed with an executor but not within the time required by law, is rejected by the executor, and thereafter an action is filed in common pleas court on the same claim but not within the time required by law, the refusal of the probate court at a later time to permit such claims to be filed for allowance is not an abuse of its discretion vested by this section: State ex rel Fulton v. Coburn, 133 OS 192, 10 OO 249, 12 NE(2d) 471.

5. The disjunctive conjunction "or" is used in this section in its ordinary sense and meaning, and where upon hearing of the petition for authority to file a belated claim the evidence discloses that claimant actually knew of the decedent's death and his place of residence shortly after the death occurred, and that in the exercise of reasonable diligence the claimant could have learned of the appointment of an administrator, and thereafter had a fair opportunity to present his claim within the four months prescribed by GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06), the court is chargeable with no error or abuse of discretion in denying claimant authority to present such claim: In re Marrs, 158 OS 95, 48 OO 46, 107 NE(2d) 148.

5.1 The hearing of an application to the probate court under this section for authority to present a claim to the administrator of a decedent's estate more than four months after his appointment is a special proceeding within the meaning of that term as used in RC § 2505.02: In re Wyckoff, 166 OS 354, 2 OO (2d) 257, 142 NE(2d) 660.

5.2 Under this section one who has a claim against an estate and who has failed to present it within the time prescribed by law may file a petition in the probate court to present his claim after the expiration of such time, and, upon proper showing, the probate court may extend the time for presentment to nine months from the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator; and such section applies to any person who is required to give written notice to the executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of his death: Miller v. Andre, 167 OS 83, 4 OO(2d) 52, 146 NE(2d) 598.

5.4 If such claimant had actual notice of the decedent's death in sufficient time to present his claim within the statutory period, he may not be granted such leave: Redifer Bus Co. v. Lumme, 171 OS 471, 14 OO(2d) 374, 172 NE(2d) 304.

5.5 The words, "assets of the estate," as used in the 1963 amendment of this section, include only assets (1) which "may lawfully" be "paid out or distributed" by the executor or administrator, or (2) from which "payment or distribution" may be made to "creditors, legatees, and distributees" or to a surviving spouse, or (3) which may be lawfully sold or otherwise encumbered or disposed of by the executor or administrator: Meinberg v. Glaser, 14 OS(2d) 193, 43 OO(2d) 296, 237 NE(2d) 605.

5.6 Where it does not appear that any claim covered by an automobile liability insurance policy of a decedent has been filed against the estate of the decedent within the four-month period specified in RC § 2117.06, or as provided in and within the nine-month period specified in RC § 2117.07, such policy is not an asset of the estate of the decedent within the meaning of those words as used in RC § 2117.07: Meinberg v. Glaser, 14 OS(2d) 193, 43 OO(2d) 296, 237 NE(2d) 605.

5.7 Where it is alleged in an action for bodily injuries and property damage that such injuries and damage were proximately caused by the negligence of a decedent and that he had a policy of insurance insuring him against liability for such negligence and it does not appear that any other claims covered by such insurance have been asserted, such action may be brought against the executor or administrator of such decedent at any time within two years after the cause thereof arose without presenting a claim against the estate within the four-month time specified in RC § 2117.06, or as provided in and within the nine-month time specified in RC § 2117.07: Meinberg v. Glaser, 14 OS(2d) 193, 43 OO(2d) 296, 237 NE(2d) 605.

5.8 The failure to file suit within two months of the rejection by the administrator of the estate of a claim against the estate for bodily injury does not bar an action for that bodily injury against that administrator where no part of the recovery sought is to come from "assets of the estate" as that term is defined in this section: Collins v. Yanity, 14 OS (2d) 202, 43 OO(2d) 301, 237 NE(2d) 611.

5.9 Under this section it is apparent that an action for personal injury which is not presented in due course as a claim against the estate may be brought against the estate within two years so long as recovery thereon will not subject the assets of the estate to any liability: In re George, 24 OS(2d) 18, 20, 53 OO(2d) 10, 262 NE(2d) 872.

6. Where the payee of notes executed by the decedent had accepted in satisfaction thereof a note executed by the executrix secured by a mortgage upon real estate in which she had only a life estate, the common pleas court was warranted, under authority of this section providing for the reinstatement of barred claims, in granting an order permitting the filing of such claim and directing its allowance and payment: Schindler v. Schindler, 50 App 517, 2 OO 95, 198 NE 879.

8. A court will take judicial notice that an ordinarily prudent person does not follow all the death notices in the daily papers, nor does he inform himself of the appointments of administrators published in a daily legal newspaper: Home Owners Loan Corp. v. Doolittle, 57 App 329, 10 OO 225, 13 NE(2d) 920.

9. Equity requires the reinstatement of a claim where no injury could result to creditors who have filed their claims in time or to others by the allowance of such a claim: Home Owners Loan Corp. v. Doolittle, 57 App 329, 10 OO 225, 13 NE(2d) 920.

11. This section, authorizing the probate court to permit claims to be presented when the claimant has failed to present them, does not apply to rejected claims: Busse & Borgmann Co. v. Upchurch, 60 App 349, 12 OO 493, 21 NE(2d) 349.

12. An entry of the probate court in a hearing on a petition for reinstatement, granting leave to present the claim, foreclosed inquiry by the municipal court in a subsequent case as to whether the claim had been presented prior to the date of the entry: Busse & Borgmann Co. v. Upchurch, 60 App 349, 12 OO 493, 21 NE(2d) 349.

13. This section is a statute of limitation: In re Erbaugh, 73 App 533, 29 OO 177, 57 NE(2d) 294 [affirming 24 OO 58 (PC)].

13.1 Under this section, a claimant who has failed to present his claim to the executor or administrator within the time prescribed under GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06), due to a legal disability existing during such period, may have an extension of nine months and no longer and any claim not presented within such time is forever barred and may not be revived under any of the otherwise pertinent revivor statutes: Overman v. Yake, 68 OLA 248, 109 NE(2d) 697 (App).

13.2 This section, which provides the conditions under which a claim may be presented after four months, requires that such claim must be presented within nine months or be forever barred: Conrad v. Sarver, 97 App 199, 55 OO 453, 124 NE(2d) 749.

13.3 Where a claimant seeking to file a belated claim under RC § 2117.07, actually knew of decedent's death and in the exercise of reasonable diligence could have learned of the appointment of an administrator and thereafter had a fair opportunity to present his claim within the four months prescribed by RC § 2117.06, the probate court is chargeable with no error or abuse of discretion in denying such claimant authority to present such claim: In re Miller, 98 App 445, 57 OO 481, 129 NE(2d) 838.

13.4 Where such claimant, for the four-month period following the appointment of the administrator, was able to and did go about and look into his business and affairs, he was not under legal disability so as to come within this section: In re Christman, 100 App 133, 60 OO 129, 136 NE(2d) 80.

13.5 Knowledge of a decedent's post office address is not synonymous with knowledge of his place of legal residence: In re Lathrop, 103 App 392, 1 OO (2d) 482, 141 NE(2d) 212 (App).

13.6 The mere knowledge of the death of the decedent by the claimant shortly after it occurred, is not, in and of itself, sufficient to bar the presenting of a belated claim within the provisions of RC § 2117.07(A): In re Lathrop, 103 App 392, 1 OO(2d) 482, 141 NE(2d) 212 (App).

13.13 In considering legislative intent with respect to the enactment of this section, it is clear that the legislature in limiting subsection (B) to any wrongful act or statement upon the part of the executor or administrator or his attorney did not intend expressly or by implication to extend the provisions of the act to any wrongful act or statement of the decedent: In re Natherson, 102 App 475, 3 OO(2d) 35, 134 NE(2d) 852.

13.14 Under subsection (A) of this section, such late claims against the estate of a deceased physician may not be allowed where claimants had actual notice of the decedent's death at or about the time thereof by reading newspaper articles published at the time of that event: In re Natherson, 102 App 475, 3 OO(2d) 35, 134 NE(2d) 852.

13.15 Under subsection (B) of this section, in a proceeding to file late claims against the estate of a decedent by claimants who charge that such physician had concealed his negligence in a surgical operation, the alleged wrongful acts of the physician do not qualify claimant's belated claim where it is not claimed that there was any wrongful act on the part of the administratrix or her attorney, which would qualify claimants for relief under this section, as the acts of decedent are not imputed to the administratrix or her attorney: In re Natherson, 102 App 475, 3 OO(2d) 35, 134 NE(2d) 852.

13.17 A person committed to a mental hospital for mental incompetency is of unsound mind within the definition of legal disability contained in subdivision (C) of this section and subdivision (B) of RC § 2131.02 and for which a belated claim may be filed: In re Wyckoff, 105 App 212, 6 OO(2d) 42, 152 NE(2d) 141.

13.19 This section, providing for the presentation of claims against an estate after four months, is remedial in nature and is to be construed liberally in favor of the claimant: In re Howe, 107 App 361, 8 OO(2d) 321, 159 NE(2d) 622.

13.20 Where a petition for authority to present a claim after the expiration of four months is filed under favor of this section, the nine-month period provided therein dates from the filing of such petition: In re Howe, 107 App 361, 8 OO(2d) 321, 159 NE(2d) 622.

13.21 An insurance adjuster's statement, attributable to the administrator, as to the time of the insured's death comes within that part of this section which provides that a court may authorize a claimant to present his claim if his failure to do so was due to "any wrongful act or statement on the part of the . . . administrator": In re Howe, 107 App 361, 8 OO(2d) 321, 159 NE(2d) 622.

13.22 The order of a probate court authorizing the presentation of so-called late claims to the executor of an estate pursuant to this section, is a final order affecting a substantial right in a special proceeding, and such order is subject to review on appeal: Smith v. Boyers, 110 App 291, 13 OO(2d) 70, 169 NE(2d) 479.

13.23 Where a petition is filed and summons issued in a negligence action, wherein the executor of an estate is defendant, on the last day before the expiration of the time for commencing such action, which petition contains allegations that a petition had been filed in the probate court for authority to present plaintiff's claim to such executor, and, on the same day, the petition to present such claim is filed in the probate court pursuant to this section, the order of the probate court, entered after the expiration of the statutory time for bringing such negligence action, and the presentation of such claim relate back to the time of the filing of the petition in the negligence action, and such action is deemed commenced as required by law: Smith v. Boyers, 110 App 291, 13 OO(2d) 70, 169 NE(2d) 479.

13.24 Where, upon hearing of a petition for authority to file a belated claim against a decedent's estate under authority of this section, the evidence shows that claimant actually knew of decedent's death and his place of residence shortly after the death occurred and that in the exercise of reasonable diligence the claimant could have learned of the appointment of an administrator and thereafter had a fair opportunity to present his claim within the four-month period prescribed by RC § 2117.06, the trial court is not guilty of an abuse of discretion in denying claimant authority to present his claim: In re Kiko, 83 OLA 555, 169 NE(2d) 138 (App).

13.25 The use of the word "may" in this section, relating to presentation of claims after four months, is permissive, not mandatory, and when the legislature gives such discretion to a court, they do so that he might exercise it within rather broad limits: In re Kiko, 83 OLA 555, 169 NE(2d) 138 (App).

13.26 This section provides that the probate court may authorize a claimant under certain circumstances to present her claim to the executor after the four-month period from the date of appointment but within the nine-month period: Bronson v. Haywood, 84 OLA 471 (App).

15. The provisions of this section, relating to the reinstatement of a claim against an estate, may be invoked only when such claim has not been presented or its presentation has not been waived within four months after the appointment of the estate's legal representative, in accordance with the requirements of GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06): In re Erbaugh, 73 App 533, 29 OO 177, 57 NE(2d) 294 [affirming 24 OO 58 (PC)].

20. Where a claimant against a decedent's estate was injured in an automobile accident, out of which his claim arose, and as a result of such injuries he suffered from shock, and for a period of six to eight weeks after the accident he was kept under sedatives and suffered from mental confusion, so that he was unable to look into his affairs, properly consult with counsel, prepare and present his case and assert and protect his rights in a court of justice, which condition covered approximately one-half of the four-month period, referred to in this section, the trial court did not commit error in granting claimant authority to present his claim after the expiration of the four-month period: In re Price, 87 App 23, 42 OO 272, 93 NE(2d) 769.

23. An order of the probate court granting leave to present a claim under this section, is a final order from which an appeal may be taken: In re Fahle, 90 App 195, 47 OO 231, 105 NE(2d) 429; but see In re Bauman, 26 OLA 595 (App).

24. In the absence of evidence that a creditor of a decedent has read a notice of the death or the appointment of an administrator of a decedent, proof of publication of such notice is insufficient to establish "actual notice" thereof as the term is employed in this section: In re Fahle, 90 App 195, 47 OO 231, 105 NE(2d) 429.

24.1 The words "brought pursuant to," as used in the last paragraph of RC § 2117.07 have been determined to be limited to deal only with claims as may be covered by RC § 2305.10. An action for wrongful death is not one of those claims, but deals only with bodily injury or injuring personal property: King v. Hargis, 37 OApp(2d) 92, 66 OO(2d) 142, 307 NE(2d) 40 (1973).

25. Where, however, an application for reinstatement of a barred claim, as provided by this section, is accompanied by the written consent of all interested parties, including creditors and beneficiaries of the estate, such a claim should be reinstated: In re Dudley, 8 OO 404 (PC).

26. When a claim is reinstated under the provisions of this section, the probate court has jurisdiction to direct the executor or administrator to pay the same in the order of priority set forth in said section: In re McGuire, 8 OO 409 (PC). Some of the other probate courts of the state, however, take the position that if they allow the claim to be reinstated their power is exhausted, that the claimant shall then present his reinstated claim to the executor or administrator who may accept or reject the same. If he rejects it, then the claimant must sue on the claim in a court of competent jurisdiction.

29. Where the claim against a deceased stockholder is based upon the double liability under the federal farm loan act, the right of action against such stockholder accrued at the time of the insolvency of the bank and the appointment of a receiver, and is not deferred until the federal court by which the receiver is appointed shall have determined what is the equal and ratable assessment to be collected from each stockholder: In re Christopher, 11 OO 251 (App).

30. The failure of the guardian to present the claim during the four-month period does not deprive the minor of the benefits of this section: In re Gress, 28 OO 268, 13 OSupp 70 (PC).

33. If a claimant has in some way been brought to an intelligent apprehension of the death of the decedent, or of the appointment of the executor or administrator, so that a reasonable man or ordinary man of business would act upon the information and regulate his conduct thereby, he has "actual notice" as that phrase is used in this section: In re Hamlin, 40 OO 1, 87 NE(2d) 691 (PC), discussed in 19 CinLRev 288.

34. This section applies to claims that have not been presented within the time prescribed by law, but has no application to claims which have been presented and allowed, and which the probate court has ordered rejected under GC § 10509-135 (RC § 2117.13): Homan v. Lightner, 20 OLA 76.

35. The fact that creditors do not file their claims promptly after the accrual of the cause of action against a bank stockholder or his executor may be considered by the probate judge when an application is made for reinstatement of the claim under this section: Holmberg v. Third Nat. Bank &c. Co., 27 OLA 58.

36. It is not an abuse of discretion for the probate court to refuse to permit reinstatement of a claim under this section, where the negotiations between the creditor and administrator constituted in law a waiver of formal presentation and there was an allowance of the amount originally claimed to be due as shown by the creditor's books, but after examination of the books by an auditor the application was made to file claim for a much larger amount: In re Leatherman, 30 OLA 383.

37. It is not a prerequisite to the granting of authority to reinstate and file a claim with an executor or administrator, under this section, that proof be made as to the merits thereof. Upon reinstatement under such section, the probate court is without authority to order payment of the claim out of the estate; the only effect of the reinstatement of a barred claim is to require the executor or administrator, upon presentation, to allow or reject it as provided by GC § 10509-113 (RC § 2117.11): In re Shartle, 34 OLA 203, 36 NE(2d) 534.

38. The court may reinstate a barred claim under the provisions of this section where there is sufficient evidence in the record to sustain a finding that the failure of the claimant to present his claim within the four months' period was due to pending negotiations for the purchase of the property and to statements by the executor to the claimant's attorney that he could not allow the claim for funeral expenses at the time because he had ascertained that part of it had been paid by a lodge and part by the claimant: In re Valencic, 42 OLA 478 (App).

39. No rights can inure to a claimant under this section who fails to take any action necessary to invoke the provisions of the statute: Prudential Ins. Co. v. Joyce Bldg. Realty Co., 44 OLA 481, 65 NE(2d) 516 (App).

41. Despite the fact that the permissive "may" rather than the mandatory "shall" is used in GC § 10509-134 (RC § 2117.07), designating the authority of the court of probate to permit a claimant to file a claim with an administrator more than four months after his appointment, said court abused its discretion when, in the face of a clear showing of a legal disability within the meaning of GC §§ 10512-2 and 10509-134 (RC §§ 2131.02 and 2117.07), it dismissed claimant's petition for authority to file his alleged claim with the administrator after the four months period: In re Gogan, 63 OLA 69, 108 NE(2d) 170 (App).

46. Revised Code § 2117.07 providing that claims other than contingent claims, not presented to an estate within nine months after the appointment of an executor or administrator are forever barred is mandatory and must be complied with and the fact that a claimant was negotiating with decedent's insurance carrier who failed to inform her of decedent's death until after the nine-month period does not except claimant from the operation of its provisions: In re Tomko, 77 OLA 313, 3 OO(2d) 371, 146 NE(2d) 757 (PC) [affirmed 3 OO(2d) 374, 146 NE(2d) 761].

47. The proper procedure to reinstate a claim against an estate after the expiration of the four-month period for filing claims is by petition in the probate court and not by filing the claim with the administrator, and the failure to properly present such claim within the nine-month period as provided in this section bars the claim: Wilcox v. Ceschiat, 87 OLA 225, 179 NE(2d) 544 (CP).

49. A petition for the late filing of claims in an estate may only be allowed if one of the three grounds set forth in this section exists, and the fact that through an error of the clerical staff in the probate court a claim was sent to the wrong address is not one of such grounds: Krash v. Jarvis, 90 OLA 99, 187 NE(2d) 409 (App).

51. This section as amended lengthens and stretches the nine-months statute of limitation expressly provided by it to the full two-year statute of limitation provided for by RC § 2305.10 for actions involving injury to person or property, provided only that any recovery in that event not be satisfied from the assets of the estate: Baker v. Farish, 30 OO(2d) 606, 1 OMisc 1, 202 NE(2d) 331 (CP).

53. The absence of an executor from his residence for seven days before the expiration of the period for filing claims, without having arranged to receive his mail, is a wrongful act within the meaning of this section, such as will permit the probate court to authorize presentation of the claim of one who, five days before the deadline, had mailed a statement of her claim to the executor's residence: In re McCracken, 38 OO(2d) 283, 9 OMisc 195, 224 NE(2d) 181 (PC).

54. Where the question of the validity of filing a claim prior to the expiration of the four months after the appointment of the executor, and the question of authority to file a claim after said four-month period under the provision of this section, were considered by the probate court, the common pleas court, on an appeal from an order authorizing the filing of the claim must consider both the questions: In re Clark, 40 OO(2d) 347, 11 OMisc 103, 229 NE(2d) 122 (CP).

55. The 1963 amendment of this section permits an action for bodily injury or injuring personal property to be pursued against an executor without compliance with the requirements of that section for presentation of claims, provided that any recovery thereby adjudged is not permitted to be satisfied from the assets of the estate: In re McDonald, 44 OO(2d) 262, 15 OMisc 74, 239 NE(2d) 277 (PC).

56. An action which is filed against an executor pursuant to the last paragraph of this section may result in a judgment which can be satisfied from the rights accruing under a policy of liability insurance issued to the decedent: In re McDonald, 44 OO(2d) 262, 15 OMisc 74, 239 NE(2d) 277 (PC).

57. A petition for leave to file a claim against a decedent's estate under this section will not be allowed if the claimant knew of the appointment of the executor or administrator in sufficient time to present his claim within the statutory time provided in RC § 2117.06: In re Herron, 49 OO(2d) 27, 21 OMisc 212, 252 NE(2d) 332 (PC).

When a claim is presented against the estate of a deceased person, the executor or administrator may require satisfactory written proof in support of it and also the affidavit of the claimant that such claim is justly due, that no payments have been made thereon, and that there are no counterclaims against it to his knowledge. Such affidavit shall set forth any security held for the payment of said claim and, if the claim is not due, the date of maturity. If said claim arises out of tort, or if preference in payment is claimed, the facts in connection with the alleged tort or showing the right to such preference shall be briefly set forth.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-114; 114 v 320 (427); 119 v 394 (408), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10717.

Scope and construction

1. Former GC § 10717 (see now RC § 2117.08) must be limited according to its terms to personal obligations of the decedent, and has no application to a case in which it is sought to assert title, legal or equitable, in specific property in the hands of the personal representative: Groat v. Wilkinson, 23 NP (NS) 381.

Necessity of allowance

7. In an action against an administrator, the objection that the claim sued on was not presented for allowance before the action was brought, is waived,

- where the administrator joins issue and goes to trial on the validity of the claim without objection: Pep-per v. Sidwell, 36 OS 454; Devereaux v. Hutchinson, 16 CC(NS) 447, 31 CD 619 [affirmed, without opinion, 78 OS 415; see also 21 CC(NS) 462, sub nomine, 33 CD 391].
8. Where the same person is administrator of the creditor as well as the debtor estate, no formal pres-entation or allowance of the claim within the statu-tory period is necessary: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.
9. Where a claim against an estate has been duly presented to and allowed by the administrator, no fur-ther allowance by a succeeding administrator de bonis non is required by statute: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.
10. A devise of an annuity is not a "claim" within the meaning of this section and such devisee need not file his claim with the executor for allowance or disallowance: Hunt v. Hayes, 19 CC 151, 10 CD 388.
11. Where the surety upon an unpaid promissory note dies and the principal maker thereof is appointed and qualified as administrator of such surety's estate, the debt represented by such note is not chargeable as assets in the hands of the administrator, before the estate has been required to pay the same or it has been presented and allowed as a valid claim against the estate: Urpman v. Urpman, 1 App 476, 21 CC (NS) 600, 25 CD 442.
- Presentation
17. Where an administrator has seen and examined a duly authenticated claim against the estate, and is subsequently requested to allow it, which he refuses to do, the claim being at the time present in the pocket of the owner, of which the administrator has full knowledge, a formal presentation is not neces-sary, but may be presumed to have been waived: Kyle v. Kyle, 15 OS 15.
18. A demand for a legacy need not be presented before suing: Webster v. American Bible Soc., 50 OS 1, 33 NE 297.
19. Presentation of a note, executed by deceased, to the administrator with a request for partial pay-ment, but with the statement that the administrator need not hurry, sufficiently "exhibits" the claim. The claimant need not formally present it with a demand that the administrator indorse his allowance thereon: Miller v. Ewing, 68 OS 176, 67 NE 292.
20. A claim against an estate may be orally pre-sented to the executor or administrator, and may be orally allowed by him: Weber v. Kohn, 60 App 64, 13 OO 424, 19 NE(2d) 534.
21. A claim against a decedent's estate need not be in any particular form so long as it is in substan-tial compliance with RC § 2117.06 and recognized by the fiduciary as a claim against the estate: Glad-man v. Carns, 9 OApp(2d) 135, 38 OO(2d) 149, 223 NE(2d) 378.
22. If a guardian has rendered services to an imbe-cile ward, allowance for services and compensation is, by former GC § 10953 (see now RC §§ 2109.23, 2127.37), to be determined by the court settling the guardian's account; and, it not being a personal claim against the ward, it need not, in case of his decease, be presented to his personal representatives: Scatter-good v. Ingram, 86 OS 76, 98 NE 923 [for later report in same case, see 89 OS 460; which reversed in memo-randum opinion, Ingram v. Scattergood, 15 CC(NS) 93, 23 CD 269].
23. The administrator may require proof by vouch-ers and affidavit, but unless he requires it, such strict formal presentation is not necessary: Morgan v. Bart-lette, 3 CC 431, 2 CD 244.
24. A judgment against the administrator need not be again presented for allowance: Williams v. Brad-ley, 5 CC 114, 3 CD 58.
25. No presentation or rejection is necessary of a claim against an administrator, where the claim was in suit at the time of the death of the defendant and the petition stated facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action; such a cause may proceed to judgment: Glass v. Buzzard, 14 CC(NS) 427, 23 CD 144 [af-firmed, without opinion, Buzzard v. Glass, 85 OS 461].
26. It is not a condition precedent to the enforce-ment of stockholders' liability against the estate of a decedent, that the claim be presented to the executor: Roebing Sons Co. v. Shawnee Val. Coal &c. Co., 4 NP(NS) 113, 17 OD 8 [judgment of circuit court af-firmed, without opinion, 78 OS 408]; Hull v. Standard Coal &c. Co., 7 NP 157, 7 OD 527.
27. Where the estate derives a benefit from the use, by a third person, of his own money, at the re-quest of the executrix, in paying taxes and thus saving the property from sacrifice, the estate is liable for such indebtedness, and the nature of this claim is such that it is not necessary to its validity that it be formally presented to the executrix within the pre-scribed time: Stillman v. Holmes, 9 NP(NS) 193, 20 OD 84.
- Elements of allowance
32. The executor or administrator has the right to take a reasonable time, after the presentation of a claim for allowance, to determine whether such claim ought to be allowed or rejected: Keenan v. Saxton, 13 O 41.
33. Payment of part of a claim by an administrator without disputing the balance is a sufficient allow-ance of the whole claim: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.
34. Where an executor agreed with a mortgage creditor, who had obtained decrees for the sale of the mortgaged premises, to sell the lands and pay the decrees out of the proceeds before paying other debts, such agreement in effect "allowed" the decrees as valid claims against the estate of the mortgage debtor: Western Reserve Bank v. McIntire, 40 OS 528.
35. Not disputing or rejecting a claim is a sufficient allowance of it. Formal indorsement of allowance not indispensable: Smock v. Bouse, 12 CC 46, 5 CD 293.
36. Although payment by an administrator of separ-ate interest notes may not be an allowance of the claim on the principal note, a continuance by the administrator to pay the interest on the principal note for some years after it became due does amount to an allowance of the note as a just claim against the estate. And the allowance will be treated as of the date of the payment of the first interest note: Kemper v. Apollo Bldg. &c. Co., 5 NP(NS) 403, 18 OD 484.
- Effect
42. By the allowance of a claim by the administra-tor, the statute of limitations ceases to run against it: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.
43. The allowance of a claim, when exhibited or presented to an administrator for allowance, is not conclusive against the estate as to its validity: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.

If an executor or administrator doubts the justice of any claim presented against the estate he represents, he may enter into an agreement in writing with the claimant to refer the matter in controversy to three disinterested persons, who must be approved by the probate judge.

Upon filing the agreement of reference in the probate court of the county in which the letters testamentary or of administration were issued, the judge shall docket the cause and make an order referring the matter in controversy to the referees selected.

The referees thereupon must proceed to hear and determine the matter and make their report to the court. The referees shall have the same powers and be entitled to the same compensation and the same proceedings shall be followed as if the reference were made under the provisions for arbitrations under a rule of the court of common pleas. The court may set aside the report of the referees, appoint others in their places, or confirm such report and adjudge costs as in actions against executors and administrators. The judgment of the court thereupon shall be valid and effectual.

CASE NOTES AND OAC

Disputed claims

1. The executor or administrator is a trustee for the benefit of creditors of the estate: Kilbourne v. Fay, 29 OS 264.

2. An executor or administrator has the power, at common law, to submit to arbitration a disputed claim against the estate. This power is not affected by the above statute, which is cumulative merely: Child v. Updyke, 9 OS 333.

3. Parties may waive objection as to manner of swearing arbitrators. The court may order a remittitur of what, in its opinion, is excessive in an award by an arbitrator, even though it is agreed by the parties that the award should be final: Jeffer v. Pross, 11 Bull 102.

4. Where the justice of a claim exceeding one hundred dollars is doubted by an executor or administrator, and he enters into an agreement to refer the matter to three disinterested persons, the referees shall be approved by the probate judge; but this does not authorize the probate judge or the probate court to receive the report of the referees, or to act upon it, for when the probate judge approves of the referees, his duty and authority in the matter end, and the reference must be perfected in, and the report of the referees made to, the court of common pleas, and there disposed of: Anderson v. Baker, 15 OS 173.

5. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay judgments entered upon awards of arbitrators, it is competent for the heir, upon a cross-petition in the same proceeding, to attack said judgments for fraud: Conway v. Duncan, 28 OS 102.

6. The burden to establish the credibility of a claim against an estate for services rendered is on the administrator where he initially allows such a claim: In re Bowman, 102 App 121, 2 OO(2d) 118, 141 NE (2d) 499.

7. A disputed proper claim may be settled if it is provable: Roberts v. Hickerson, 11 OO 471, 26 OLA 616, 46 NE(2d) 803.

8. A probate judge, in fixing fees and taxing them as costs, may use RC § 2315.35, since the arbitration provisions were repealed: Williard v. Kilbourne, 34 OLA 491, 38 NE(2d) 92 (1941).

Reference of claim

12. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay judgments entered upon awards of arbitrators, it is competent for the heir, upon a cross-petition in the same proceeding, to attack said judgments for fraud: Conway v. Duncan, 28 OS 102.

§ 2117.10 Failure of lienholder to present claim. (GC § 10509-123)

The failure of the holder of a valid lien upon any of the assets of an estate to present his claim upon the indebtedness secured by such lien, as provided in Chapter 2117. of the Revised Code, shall not affect such lien if the same is evidenced by a document admitted to public record, or is evidenced by actual possession of the real or personal property which is subject to such lien.

CASE NOTES AND OAC

1. Upon the decease of a debtor his estate, real and personal, stands for the payment of his general creditors alike, and one creditor cannot, by superior diligence, acquire a superior right over the others: McDonald v. Aten, 1 OS 293.

2. It is the duty of an executor, with reference to property subject to a chattel mortgage, but which is declared void as to creditors, to defend his possession against the claim of the mortgagee, notwithstanding such mortgage was valid as against the mortgagor: Kilbourne v. Fay, 29 OS 264.

3. No lien, legal or equitable, shall be impaired by an administrator, who is to a certain extent a trustee for the benefit of a mortgagee as well as other creditors of the decedent: Lingler v. Wesco, 79 OS 225, 86 NE 1004, 21 LRA(NS) 182, 128 AmSt 714.

4. Where property, subject to the lien of a chattel mortgage, is taken possession of by the administrator and sold by him, the mortgagee is not authorized to maintain an action to foreclose his mortgage. He must assert his lien against the fund arising from the sale by the administrator: Whitely v. Weber, 2 CC 336, 1 CD 517.

5. If a creditor of the estate of a decedent who claims that his mortgage is prior to another mortgage given by such decedent in his lifetime, accepts a mortgage upon decedent's realty after his death, executed by his heirs, such creditor does not waive his priority over such other mortgage, especially if the mortgage which such creditor accepts from such heirs provides expressly that such creditor by the acceptance of such mortgage did not admit a priority of such other mortgage: Schell v. Bernhard, 25 CC(NS) 411, 26 CD 39 [appeal from 24 OD(NP) 182].

6. The exceptions provided in this section, that the failure of the holder of a lien on any asset of an estate to present his claim shall not affect such lien if it is evidenced by a document admitted to record or by actual possession of the property which is subject to such lien, are conditioned upon the requirement that the excepted lien be "evidenced" by a public record or by actual possession: Kuhnle v. Rumsel, 113 App 389, 17 OO(2d) 465, 178 NE(2d) 810.

7. Where the mortgagor of goods dies, and his administrator proceeds to administer same, the mortgagee cannot maintain an action of replevin against the administrator for the possession of the mortgaged property, even though the condition was broken before the mortgagor's death. The mortgagee's interest in the property is transferred to the fund arising from the sale by the administrator: Linghler v. Kraft, 3 NP(NS) 653, 16 OD 474.

8. Where a mother died intestate having record title to real estate which descended to her daughter who alleged that she had advanced a substantial sum toward the purchase price of the real estate but had no lien evidenced by a recorded document or by actual possession of the property, the inheritance tax will be imposed upon the full value of the real estate: In re Philhower, 34 OO(2d) 415, 215 NE(2d) 627 (PC).

9. Bankruptcy act giving trustee right of lien creditor held not to create such lien as, under state statute, would preclude allowance to bankrupt's widow: Seigel v. Wells, 55 F(2d) 877; In re Seigel, 54 F(2d) 269.

An executor or administrator shall reject a creditor's claim against the estate he represents by giving the claimant written notice of the disallowance thereof. Such notice shall be given to the claimant personally or by registered mail with return receipt requested, addressed to the claimant at the address given on the claim. Notice by mail shall be effective on delivery of the mail at the address given. A claim may be rejected in whole or in part. A claim which has been allowed may be rejected at any time thereafter.

A claim is rejected if the executor or administrator, on demand in writing by the claimant for an allowance thereof within five days, which demand may be made at presentation or at any time thereafter, fails to give to the claimant, within such period, a written statement of the allowance of such claim. Such rejection shall become effective at the expiration of such period.

1. The phraseology of the last clause, when contrasted with the other sections, seems to indicate that its principal object is to compel a doubting or distrustful executor or administrator to allow the claim or to submit to an action for its enforcement. The provision is a beneficial one, and should be fairly construed. Its object is attained when the creditor is advised by the executor that his claim is rejected, and the policy of the statute then requires him to institute proceedings without delay. If such rejection is distinctly declared, and the creditor told so to regard it, no beneficial purpose can be attained by requiring a written indorsement of an allowance which he is already advised the executor will not make. The proof of rejection must, necessarily, still rest in parol, unless the executor should perform an act which the statute nowhere enjoins, by indorsing his rejection upon the claim: Harter v. Taggart, 14 OS 122-126.

2. Again the court said, "We do not conceive that by the statute or under the authority of the case referred to, the right to sue depends upon an indorsement on the claim of its disallowance, or upon the fact that the creditor has made a specific demand that the allowance of the claim be indorsed thereon. That an unequivocal rejection of the claim should be obtained before suit is brought is undoubtedly true; but the only purpose of the last clause in the section of the statute referred to, is to make a refusal on the part of the executor or administrator to indorse his allowance, when demand is made for that purpose, conclusive proof of its rejection": Stambaugh v. Smith, 23 OS 584.

5. The probate court is without authority to determine and pass upon the merits of a claim rejected by an administrator in compliance with this section. The claimant's exclusive recourse, after such rejection, is the commencement of an independent action within the time prescribed in GC § 10509-133 (RC § 2117-12): In re Buchanan, 82 App 240, 37 OO 557, 81 NE(2d) 409.

6. Presentment and rejection of claim are conditions precedent to bringing action on claim, and neither oral compliance nor service of a copy of petition on the corporate executor are sufficient: Morgan v. City Nat. Bank &c. Co., 40 OApp(2d) 417, 33 OO(2d) 504, 212 NE(2d) 822.

8. Filing of exceptions to the administrator's final account is not the proper proceeding, but the creditor shall file suit upon a claim within two months after rejection of the claim or proceed under this section in the event of the failure of the administrator to take any action: In re Heimberger, 6 OO 51 (PC).

9. A claimant may invoke the provisions of this section and demand that an allowance as a valid claim be indorsed and, upon refusal, the statute proclaims that such refusal is a rejection of the claim: Reese v. Chapman, 23 OLA 641.

10. Claimants desiring to make amendment may protect themselves from the time limitation by presenting same immediately to the personal representative with demand for indorsement of allowance as provided by this section; if, however, the personal representative refuses to make such indorsement, the claim becomes at once a disputed or rejected claim: Chronerberry v. Bartel, 32 OLA 284.

11. To constitute a rejection of a claim something must be done by the executor or administrator to show that he does not intend to pay the claim and such rejection must be plain and unequivocal and the mere indication by the administrator that he does not want to pay the claim is not sufficient: In re Douglass, 77 OLA 89, 144 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

12. The purpose of the statute providing that a rejection of a claim by an executor or administrator shall be personally or by registered mail is to provide a conclusive method of showing a rejection and is not intended to be a sole method of rejection: In re Douglass, 77 OLA 89, 144 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

13. Under RC § 2117.11 a claimant does not have any duty to make any demand on the executor or administrator for allowance of his claim and a presumption of rejection arises only if such demand is made: In re Douglass, 77 OLA 89, 144 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

14. A letter by an administratrix wherein she first specifically rejects a claim but later in the same letter offers to compromise such claim is equivocal and does not constitute a rejection of such claim: In re Douglass, 77 OLA 89, 144 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

15. The suit brought on a rejected claim is a civil action, and not a special proceeding: Kennedy v. Thompson, 3 CC 446, 2 CD 254.

16. Where the executor upon the presentation of the claim did not deny its validity but merely claimed the right of paying it in wheat, there was neither an acceptance nor rejection of the claim: Keenan v. Saxton, 13 O 41.

17. The probate court has no jurisdiction to instruct the administrator whether he should allow or reject the claim: Jackson v. Jackson, 5 Bull 647.

18. In a nisi prius case, the evidence showed that, "On the 11th day of April last the plaintiff handed to Perry G. Walker, Esq., one of the defendants, a written statement of the taxes standing charged upon the tax duplicate of this county against the estate of Mary Barney, deceased. About ten days or two weeks thereafter plaintiff spoke to Mr. Prout, Walker's co-executor, about the payment of the taxes. Prout then requested him to defer payment for a short time for the purpose of determining whether an adjustment of the matter might not be reached. A short time after the above conversation he again met Mr. Prout, when he (Prout) said, 'all I can say in reference to the tax matter is, 'No!'" After considering the decisions of the supreme court, the judge concluded: "The object of the statute referred to is to give the executor or administrator time and opportunity to investigate, and inquire into the merits of the claim and prevent needless and vexatious litigation and wasting the estate in useless costs and expenses. It is the opinion of the court that the evidence shows that the executors had ample time and opportunity to inquire into the merits of the claim, and that upon mature deliberation they decided to reject it. And we are also of the opinion, as a conclusion of law, that a right of action on said claim accrued to plaintiff from the time such decision was reached by the executor, whether he was cognizant of such decision or not": Treasurer v. Walker, 22 Bull 106.

When a claim against an estate has been rejected in whole or in part but not referred to referees, or when a claim has been allowed in whole or in part and thereafter rejected, the claimant must commence an action on the claim, or that part thereof rejected, within two months after such rejection if the debt or that part thereof rejected is then due, or within two months after the same becomes due, or be forever barred from maintaining an action thereon. If the executor or administrator dies, resigns, or is removed within such two months' period and before action is commenced thereon, the action may be commenced within two months after the appointment of a successor.

For the purposes of this section, the action of a claimant is commenced when the petition and praecipe for service of summons on the executor or administrator have been filed.

3. Where it is claimed that an administrator failed to set up the bar provided in this section, as a defense to an action on a rejected claim commenced under this section, as amended 116 v 385, 400, the burden is upon the executors to show that such action was not duly commenced within two months after receipt by the claimant of actual notice of the rejection by the administrator of a claim duly presented under GC

§ 10509-112 (114 v 320, 426) (RC § 2117.06): In re Lamberton, 142 OS 417, 27 OO 356, 52 NE(2d) 855 [reversing 24 OO 14 (PC)].

4. A failure to file suit within two months of the rejection by an administrator of a claim does not bar the action where no part of the sought recovery will come from the "assets of the estate." Collins v. Yanity, 14 OS(2d) 202, 43 OO(2d) 301, 237 NE(2d) 611 (1968).

5. The presentation to an executor or administrator of a wrongful death claim by one of the statutory beneficiaries meets the standard of RC §§ 2117.06 & 2117.07 and is not barred under this section: Burwell v. Maynard, 21 OS(2d) 108, 50 OO(2d) 268, 255 NE(2d) 628 (1970).

6. An action for services rendered to a decedent commenced six months after the administrator rejected claim is barred by the statute of limitations. A presentation of a claim does not constitute commencement of a pending proceeding under the statute: Matthews v. Raff, 45 App 242, 39 OLR 58, 15 OLA 94, 186 NE 887; Bank v. Raff, 76 F(2d) 843; see also 4 FSupp 230.

7. Delaney, 46 App 109, 187 NE 788, 39 OLR 264.

8. Where a trust company, having been appointed executor under a will and having served as such for a period exceeding nine months, not, however, having fully administered the estate, is taken over by the superintendent of banks for liquidation, and an administrator de bonis non is appointed at a later date, a cause of action accruing against the deceased in the interim must be brought against the administrator within two months after such administrator is appointed: State ex rel Squire v. Cleveland Trust Co., 58 App 16, 11 OO 420, 15 NE(2d) 640.

8.1 When a claim is first allowed, then later rejected, the statute of limitations runs from the date of rejection: Weber v. Kohn, 60 App 64, 13 OO 424, 19 NE(2d) 534; Parrish v. McKee, 73 OLA 65, 59 OO 316, 135 NE(2d) 486; Reese v. Chapman, 23 OLA 641.

9. Exceptions filed to a schedule of debts in the probate court do not, in and of themselves, preclude the exceptor from pursuing his claim by action in the court of common pleas, if such suit is brought in compliance with this section: Pfeiffer v. Sheffield, 64 App 1, 17 OO 305, 27 NE(2d) 494.

9.1 A claim of a funeral director for funeral expenses founded on a contract with the decedent during his lifetime may be maintained under this section in some other forum than probate court once the claim is rejected by the executor: Schroyer v. Hopewood, 65 App 443, 19 OO 45, 30 NE(2d) 440, 32 OLA 511.

9.2 Where an appointment of an executor for a deceased nonresident is filed in probate court in accordance with RC § 2129.02, the filing of a claim within six months is not governed by this section: Foulks v. Talbott, 74 App 281, 29 OO 434, 58 NE(2d) 790.

9.3 Revised Code § 2117.12, which provides for a suit on a rejected claim to be brought within two months provided, not an exclusive, but only an alternative remedy: In re Hedges, 75 App 518, 31 OO 301, 62 NE(2d) 613.

10. Acceptance by the state of payments less than the prescribed statutory amount for care in a state mental hospital does not waive the state's claim for the balance: Ohio v. Security Central Nat'l Bank, 100 App 425, 60 OO 346, 137 NE(2d) 158.

10.1 The division of aid for the aged, department of public welfare of the state of Ohio, is not subject to the limitation provisions of this section, barring an action on a rejected claim against an estate where not commenced within the time allowed: Division of Aid v. Mull, 105 App 305, 6 OO(2d) 100, 152 NE(2d) 295.

11. An action against an executor which alleges an oral demand and an oral rejection does not state a claim on which relief may be granted: Morgan v. City Nat'l Bank, 4 App(2d) 417, 33 OO(2d) 504, 212 NE(2d) 822 (1964); Heitz v. Iredale, 36 OLA 558, 44 NE(2d) 720.

11.1 The provisions of CivR 3(A) and CivR 4 are fully applicable to proceedings brought under RC § 2117.12, so that the requirement that a praecipe be filed, to either commence an action or generate the process of issuing summons, is eliminated: Yancey v. Pyles, 44 OApp(2d) 410, 73 OO(2d) 530, 339 NE(2d) 835 (1975).

12. Where a claim is rejected in Ohio, an action commenced in another state seven months after the rejection cannot be enforced on the Ohio estate. In re Rettig, 8 OMisc 38, 35 OO(2d) 141, 216 NE(2d) 924.

12.1 A probate court cannot re-obtain jurisdiction over a rejected claim through the device of a declaratory judgment for specific performance: Mainline Construction v. Warren, 11 OMisc 233, 40 OO(2d) 509, 227 NE(2d) 432.

13. The limitations upon the bringing of actions upon rejected claims provided by this section, or upon suits of a creditor against an administrator, under GC § 10509-144 (repealed, 116 v 385, § 5), are not limited in their application to claims required to be presented for allowance or rejection: Swearingin v. Rendigs, 5 OO 457 (App).

13.1 Where debt is not due, no action on a claim may be maintained: In re Method, 10 OO 489, 26 OLA 209, 2 OSupp 225.

14. Under this section, an appeal from the rejection by an executor of a claim against decedent's estate must be made by way of a civil action for a money judgment. The probate court has no jurisdiction to entertain such a suit: Flax v. Oppenheimer, 12 OO 48 (CP).

15. An administrator is without authority to waive any statute providing for the limitation of action set forth in the probate act affecting the administration of estates: In re Lamberton, 25 OO 14 (PC).

17. This section is clearly a statute of limitation and does not bind the sovereign: Baker v. Charles, 31 OO(2d) 310, 202 NE(2d) 646 (PC).

18. A creditor who presents a claim to the personal representative of a decedent for allowance but fails to commence his suit within two months after such claim has been rejected, is forever barred by this section from maintaining an action thereon: In re Rettig, 35 OO(2d) 141, 216 NE(2d) 924 (PC).

19. This section applies to creditors of the estate other than the executor or administrator: In re Grube, 21 OLA 1.

21. A claim for superadded liability against the estate of a deceased bank stockholder prior to the making of an assessment is a contingent claim only, and is governed by the limitation in GC § 10509-144 (repealed, 116 v 385, § 5): State ex rel Fulton v. Blackburn, 26 OLA 381.

22. The failure of the executor to plead the bar of GC § 10509-144 (repealed, 116 v 385, § 5) does not preclude its enforcement: State ex rel Fulton v. Blackburn, 26 OLA 381.

23. The rejection by an administrator of a claim must be unequivocal in order to start the time running within which an action on the claim must be commenced: Martin v. Spellman, 30 OLA 225.

26. The portion of this section, providing that one asserting a claim against the estate of a deceased person must commence an action on his rejected claim within two months after receipt of actual notice of its rejection or be forever barred from maintaining an action thereon, is a statute of limitation within the rule that such enactments do not run against the state: Division of Aid v. Marshall, 42 OLA 131, 59 NE(2d) 942 (App); Chronerberry v. Bartel, 32 OLA 284.

27. The state and its agencies are bound by this section upon receipt of actual notice of claim rejection: Division of Aid for Aged v. Wargo, 48 OLA 47, 73 NE(2d) 701 (1947); State v. Drake, 47 OO 401, 106 NE(2d) 91 (CP).

28. A claimant against a decedent's estate, other than a claimant who is also administrator or executor of said estate, must proceed under the provisions of GC § 10509-112 (RC § 2117.06) et seq, and if his claim is rejected by the executor or administrator, must bring his action in a court of general jurisdiction under the provisions of this section: In re Smith, 67 OLA 409, 120 NE(2d) 632 (PC).

29. Where a co-administrator and his wife hold a joint claim on an estate, the probate court has jurisdiction. In re Smith, 67 OLA 409, 120 NE(2d) 632.

30. The requirement for an actual rejection before suit can be brought is not jurisdictional and may be waived by the administrator by his answering of the complaint. Barman v. Feid, 27 NP(NS) 409.

31. A claimant whose claim has been reduced or rejected by an executor or administrator can bring an action under provisions of this section, or file exceptions to the schedule of debts: In re Czatt, 30 NP (NS) 355.

32. A suit on a claim which was rejected by the administrator of an estate on October 20, 1931, must have been brought not later than December 31, 1931, and not within two months from January 1, 1932, the effective date of the statute enacted in April, 1931, and shortening the period of limitations from six months to two months after rejection of a claim against the estate: Philadelphia Nat. Bank v. Raff, 76 F(2d) 843.

Scope

1. Former GC § 10722 (see now RC § 2117.12) must be limited according to its terms to personal obligations of the decedent, and has no application to a case in which it is sought to assert title, legal or equitable, in specific property in the hands of the personal representative: Groat v. Wilkinson, 23 NP(NS) 381.

2. The probate court cannot order a claim paid:

In re Miller, 12 OD(NP) 562; Jones v. Green, 21 CC 96, 11 CD 548.

3. The general rule in regard to the application of statutes of limitations is, that all persons, whether under disability or not, are barred by them, unless excepted from their operation by a saving clause: Favorite v. Booher, 17 OS 555.

When period begins to run

4. Where a creditor exhibits an authenticated claim to the personal representative of an estate, with the avowed purpose of having it allowed as a valid claim against the estate of such deceased person, and the personal representative thereupon distinctly refuses to allow it, and tells the creditor to consider the claim rejected, such claim is actually rejected, and the six months' limitation begins to run from such rejection: Harter v. Taggart, 14 OS 122.

5. As between the estate of a deceased debtor and the creditors thereof, the statute of limitations does not run against their claims after they have been presented to and allowed by the executor or administrator: Taylor v. Thorn, 29 OS 569.

6. If, within reasonable time after a claim has been presented to the administrator, he informs the claimant that the claim is rejected, the six months' statute will then begin to run. Such rejection may be made by an attorney for the estate acting for the administrator. After the expiration of six months, the administrator cannot, by estoppel or in any other manner, waive the statute and thus bind the estate: Miller v. Ewing, 68 OS 176, 67 NE 292.

7. The statute limiting the right of action to six months after the claim is rejected, does not apply to a case where the claim is allowed upon presentation, and afterwards disputed, but only to cases where it is disputed or rejected upon presentation for allowance: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112; Bray v. Darby, 82 OS 47, 91 NE 861 [see also Royer v. Hall, 82 OS 453].

8. A agreed with B that if he would render her certain services she would, in compensation thereof, make a will giving him all the property she owned at the time of her death. B performed services under the agreement. A died intestate. It was held that the statute of limitations does not begin to run against such action until the appointment of an administrator of A's estate: Walters v. Heidy, 1 App 66, 19 CC (NS) 252, 26 CD 166.

Extension of period

9. Where a claimant begins suit within six months after the rejection of the claim, and after the expiration of that period is nonsuited, limitation may be pleaded: Haymaker v. Haymaker, 4 OS 272.

10. This section must be construed with GC § 11233 (RC § 2305.19), whereby the time is prolonged by a proper attempt to sue in time: Burgoyne v. Moore, 12 CC 31, 5 CD 522 [affirmed, without report, 51 OS 626].

Effect of lapse of time

11. If the claim is not presented to the executor as required by statute, it cannot be enforced against the heirs. Former GC § 10876 (see now RC § 2117.37) et seq do not apply: Robson v. Evans, 3 App 248, 20 CC(NS) 122, 25 CD 510 [affirmed, without opinion, Evans v. Robson, 92 OS 540].

12. It is an error to render judgment against the estate upon a claim due and disallowed more than six months prior to the commencement of the action; the failure of the executor to plead the statute in bar does not give a right to such judgment: Pollock v. Pollock, 2 CC 140, 1 CD 408.

13. Under GC § 10722 (see now RC § 2117.12), that administratrix had made final account, distributed assets, and had been discharged, did not bar action on claim commenced within six months from day claim was rejected and within eighteen months from day administratrix qualified: Beck v. Schmidt, 38 App 476, 176 NE 595.

14. An action does not lie on an agreement to make testamentary provision for compensation for services in caring for the decedent and his wife in their old age, where the suit to enforce the agreement was not filed for more than two years after the appointment of the executor and more than six months after the rejection of the claim by the executor: Saylor v. Sellers, 2 App 439, 19 CC(NS) 206, 26 CD 225 [affirming, with modifications, Sellers v. Saylor, 14 NP (NS) 1, 24 OD 441].

Nature of action

15. This is not a special proceeding but a civil action: Kennedy v. Thompson, 3 CC 446, 2 CD 254; Keck v. Bahlke, 6 App 246, 26 CC(NS) 398, 27 CD 390.

Defenses

16. Former GC § 10757 (see now RC § 2113.10) requires notice to be given of the appointment of a new administrator, and where there is a failure to give such notice the limitation provided by this section will not avail as a defense to an action brought more than six months after the rejection of the claim: Croxton Mining Co. v. Hubbard, 8 App 105, 28 OCA 249, 30 CD 150 [motion to certify record overruled, 16 OLR 107, 63 Bull 223].

17. Delay in bringing suit on a claim against an estate during which delay the administrator has not refused to allow the claim, is no defense to an action thereon against an estate, though meanwhile others jointly liable with the estate on the claim have become insolvent: Bronson-Kalamazoo Cement Co. v. Second Nat. Bank, 20 CC(NS) 323, 31 CD 331 [affirmed, without opinion, 90 OS 412].

Pleading

18. In an action against the estate of a deceased person, it is not necessary to aver or prove that at the time the claim on which suit is brought was rejected by the executor or administrator, a specific demand was made for the indorsement of his allowance thereon: Stambaugh v. Smith, 23 OS 584.

19. In an action against an administrator of an estate on an account alleged to be due from his intestate, it is essential to prove a presentation of such claim to the administrator, and its rejection, or what is equivalent thereto, by him, or to show some other reason why the administrator is liable to be sued, notwithstanding the provisions of former GC § 10746 (repealed, 116 v 385, § 5): Yager v. Greiss, 1 CC 531, 1 CD 296.

20. Where a petition against an administrator does not show that the claim was presented and disallowed, or that the necessary time has preceded the commencement of the action, and the administrator makes no objection either by demurrer or answer, but goes to trial upon an answer denying the validity of the claim, it is too late after several trials have been had and costs incurred, for him to raise that issue by demurring to an amended petition: Devereaux v. Hutchinson, 16 CC(NS) 447, 31 CD 619 [affirmed, without opinion, 78 OS 415; see also 21 CC(NS) 462, sub nomine, 33 CD 391].

Evidence

21. Admissions made by an administrator, respecting a claim against the estate, when not in the act of accepting or rejecting the same, are not admissible in evidence in a suit which is brought after the person making the admission had been divested of his functions; and the fact that the administrator is one of the heirs does not alter the character of the testimony: Hueston v. Hueston, 2 OS 488.

22. Where the evidence of plaintiff tended to show a presentation of the claim and its return, with no indorsement and no verbal message, but accompanied with a letter which a witness for plaintiff stated was a rejection of the claim, and defendant was not allowed to cross-examine such witness as to such letter, or to introduce it in evidence on his cross-examination, or afterwards in chief, such action of the court was erroneous: Yager v. Greiss, 1 CC 531, 1 CD 296.

23. In an action against an administrator to recover for the board and care of his intestate, brought by a son-in-law in whose family intestate lived, a contract for such board and care is not made out by evidence that a witness saw intestate pay plaintiff one hundred dollars with the statement that it was on account, and a statement to another witness that he intended to make his home with plaintiff and had made arrangements for his board and keep while with him: Edgar v. Shock, 16 CC(NS) 118, 27 CD 603 [affirmed, without opinion, 85 OS 448, on authority of Hinkle v. Sage, 67 OS 256].

24. In an action to recover for personal services rendered a deceased person, it is not competent to introduce the decedent's will, in which she makes a bequest to the plaintiff, as evidence tending to show that the bequest was in payment for the services, unless the will so states: Fell v. Carter, 16 CC(NS) 241, 26 CD 511.

If a devisee, legatee, heir, creditor, or other interested party files in the probate court a written requisition on the executor or administrator to reject a claim presented for allowance against the estate he represents, whether the claim has been allowed or not, but which has not been paid in full and enters into a sufficient bond running to such executor or administrator, the amount, terms, and surety of which are to be approved by the probate judge, the claim shall be rejected by the executor or administrator. The notice of rejection shall inform the claimant of the filing of the requisition and of the name of the party filing the same. The condition of the bond shall be to pay all costs and expenses of contesting such claim, including such reasonable fee as the court allows to the attorney for the executor or administrator, in case the claim finally is allowed in whole, and if such claim is allowed only in part, to pay such part of the expenses as the court may determine, including such reasonable fee as the court may allow to the attorney for the executor or administrator.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-135; 114 v 320 (431); 119 v 394 (413), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10724.

1. Verbal notice to the administrator by the widow not to allow a certain claim is not sufficient proof of fraud on the part of the administrator for afterwards making such allowance: Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112.

2. In a suit by an administrator to recover upon a bond given under this section, he must show that the requirements of the bond have been strictly complied with: Fullerton v. Davis, 1 CC 572, 1 CD 320.

3. Legacy not such claim as may be disallowed by the executor at requisition of an heir. And a devisee, who has been paid in full, is not an "heir" under this section: Hunt v. Hayes, 19 CC 151, 10 CD 388.

4. General Code § 10509-135 (RC § 2117.13) et seq give to the heirs the right to prosecute error to any judgment, although not parties thereto: Spaulding v. Allen, 19 CC 609, 10 CD 259.

5. "Heir" may be construed to mean devisees and legatees, who are proper parties in any action brought upon a claim rejected under their requisition, and who have the right to defend against such claim: Todd v. Todd, 6 CC(NS) 105, 17 CD 224.

6. Where the administrator pays claims out of his own funds, a requisition for disallowance of such claims may nevertheless be filed. If disallowed, the administrator then becomes subrogated to the rights of those creditors: Glenn v. Eicher, 11 CC(NS) 95, 20 CD 821 [affirming Eicher v. Darby, 17 OD(NP) 780, 5 OLR 102].

7. A surviving husband, who is entitled to curtesy in his wife's real estate, is not thereby an heir or creditor within the meaning of this section. He has no right to contest claims accepted by the administrator, as his interests are not affected thereby: Pirrmann v. Gerhold, 7 NP 664, 5 OD 414.

8. Where a claim against an estate is contested by an heir, and the claim is greatly reduced, the claimant is still entitled to his costs; and the heir may have an allowance for attorney fees made by the probate court: Koelble v. Runyan, 25 App 426, 158 NE 279.

9. When the heirs request that a claim to an estate be rejected and execute a bond, the administrator must reject it. Suit against the administrator must be brought within six months, against the heirs at any time: Baughn v. Duncan, 31 App 518, 167 NE 490.

10. Sole legatee of deceased who entered into bond to pay expenses of contesting claim against deceased's estate could plead and make defense to action: Anderson v. Houpt, 43 App 538, 184 NE 29.

11. Where an heir who has not requisitioned the disallowance of a claim against a decedent's estate under the provisions of RC § 2117.13, et seq., but said claim is disallowed by the probate court pursuant to hearing of the schedule of claims, is permitted by the common pleas court to intervene as a party defendant in a suit filed therein against the administrator of the decedent's estate by the claimant, and in which suit the administrator fails to join issue or defend against the claim, the intervening heir, in effect, is substituted for the administrator to defend in such representative capacity the decedent's estate against the claim: Gerardot v. Parrish, 44 OApp(2d) 293, 73 OO(2d) 360, 338 NE(2d) 531 (1975).

The devisee, legatee, heir, creditor, or other interested party filing the requisition referred to in section 2117.13 of the Revised Code, shall be made a party defendant with the executor or administrator to any action on a claim rejected on requisition and have a right to plead and make any defense thereto. Any judgment in favor of the claimant shall be against the executor or administrator only.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Where a claim has been rejected by an administratrix, GC § 10509-119 (RC § 2117.17) does not prevent the operation of this section, which requires that suit be brought on such claim against the administratrix within two months after her rejection of the same: Locotosh v. Brothers, 52 App 158, 6 OO 274, 3 NE(2d) 556 [affirming In re Locotosh, 3 OO 185 (PC)].

2. The holder of a claim rejected by order of the probate court is required by this section to bring suit within two months after rejection: Homan v. Lightner, 20 OLA 76.

3. The refusal of a court to grant a continuance of an action on a claim against an estate requested because of the death of one of the heirs who was made a party defendant under this section, and refusal to substitute, was not reversible error where deceased party had not filed an answer although case had been pending several months: Homan v. Lightner, 20 OLA 78.

DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO 1932

1. Suit on a claim duly allowed and later rejected at instance of creditor, may be brought within six months after notice of such rejection, notwithstanding that, deducting the time intervening between such allowance and such rejection, more than six years have elapsed after the accruing of the cause of action: Speidel v. Phillips, 78 OS 194, 85 NE 53 [distinguishing Thomas v. Chamberlain, 39 OS 112].

2. In an action against the executor and heirs on a note allegedly executed by the deceased, the heirs and executor are permitted to call the plaintiff as a witness for cross-examination though RC § 2317.03 forbids testimony in certain cases: Atley v. Atley, 20 App 497, 3 OLA 686, 152 NE 761.

2.1 Suit on claim against estate need not be brought against heirs within six months after rejection; they may be joined any time before trial (former GC § 10725 [see now RC § 2117.14]): Baughn v. Duncan, 31 App 518, 167 NE 490.

3. In a suit to recover for services rendered to decedent, a legatee who has been made a party defendant, under former GC § 10725 (see now RC § 2117.14), is a competent witness: Anderson v. Houpt, 43 App 538, 184 NE 29, 37 OLR 234.

4. The sole legatee of a deceased, entering into bond to pay the expenses of contesting a claim against a deceased's estate, may plead and defend the action: Anderson v. Houpt, 43 App 538, 37 OLR 264, 184 NE 29, 13 OLA 312.

6. The party giving bond must be made a party to the suit and permitted to defend, if he desires, or he will not be liable for the costs and expenses of such suit: Fullerton v. Davis, 1 CC 572, 1 CD 320.

7. Where facts and dates relative to presentation and rejection are fully set out in the petition or answer, an answer averring that "the right of recovery has long since been barred" is sufficient; the statute need not be pleaded specifically: Crouse v. Frybarger, 22 CC 315, 12 CD 254.

8. A claim against an executor for room and board is recognized as a civil action for money and is within the jurisdiction of municipal court: Keck v. Bahlke, 26 CC(NS) 398, 27 CD 390.

9. Claims allowed by the administrator but later disallowed by the administrator de bonis non, may be sued on, under this section, within six months after their rejection: Eicher v. Darby, 5 OLR 102, 17 OD (NP) 780.

After three months from the appointment of an executor or administrator, he may proceed to pay the debts due from the estate in accordance with Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code. If it appears at any time that the estate is insolvent, the executor or administrator may report that fact to the court, and apply for any order that he deems necessary because of the insolvency. In case of insolvency, a creditor who has been paid according to law shall not be required to make any refund.

1. Where an administrator, supposing an estate solvent, pays a creditor beyond his distributive share, upon final settlement he may recover back the difference, in an action for money had and received: Rogers v. Weaver, 5 O 536.

2. The provision in this section for reporting the insolvency of the estate to the court and making an application for any order that the executor or administrator deems necessary, is permissive and contemplates an ex parte hearing: In re Murphy, 88 App 167, 44 OO 193, 95 NE(2d) 590.

6. In a hearing on application filed under this section, the court is without authority to question the validity of a land sale proceeding or the correctness or validity of the inventory and appraisal; to disallow a claim of a creditor of the estate when the claim has been allowed by the administrator; and to adjudicate the question of the ownership of joint and survivorship bank accounts held in the name of the decedent and his wife. The attempt to adjudicate such matters was a nullity: In re Murphy, 88 App 167, 44 OO 193, 95 NE(2d) 590.

7. When an estate is insolvent because of claims of the Department of Public Welfare, the funeral director is entitled to $300 ahead of the state and is a general creditor for amounts in excess of $300: In re Young, 74 OLA 129, 140 NE(2d) 792.

8. An administrator may pay after the year from the time notice was given, without being personally liable to a creditor who had not presented his claim, or of which he had no notice; but he must pay the debts after eighteen months: In re Wakefield, 7 NP 562, 5 OD 395.

9. If the owner of realty insures a building in a mutual insurance company, his estate is liable for assessments made in accordance with the terms of such policy up to the time of his death, and his estate is liable together with his heirs for assessments made in accordance with the terms of such policy after his death and before the expiration of such policy: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

The probate court may by rule require that every executor or administrator, after three and not later than five months following the date of his appointment, shall make and return into the probate court a schedule of all claims against the estate he represents that have then been presented to him and any other valid debts of the estate of which he has knowledge. The schedule shall state the name and address of the claimant as it appears on his claim, the amount claimed, the date of presentation of the claim, the class into which it falls for payment, the security held for it, the date of maturity if not yet due, whether allowed or rejected by the executor or administrator, and the date of allowance or rejection.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. Where no exceptions have been filed in the probate court to a schedule of debts against a decedent's estate as permitted by this section, and although the schedule of debts as filed has been approved by the probate court and the claims listed therein paid by the administrator, the validity of such claims may still be challenged by exceptions of a legatee to the account of the administrator which shows that the latter has allowed and paid such claims: In re Butler, 137 OS 96, 17 OO 432, 28 NE(2d) 186.

2. Where an estate is primarily liable for a mortgage indebtedness, no objection can be made to listing it in the schedule of debts on the ground that part of the obligation is the debt of the executor: In re Fiebig, 61 App 40, 14 OO 216, 22 NE(2d) 288.

2.1 The sole statutory obligation of an executor or administrator relative to the listing of debts against the estate he is administering is imposed by this section, which enjoins upon the fiduciary the obligation, within the time limits therein established, to verify and return to the probate court a schedule of claims against the estate he represents which have been presented to him: Conrad v. Sarver, 97 App 199, 55 OO 453, 124 NE(2d) 749.

2.2 The probate court has the statutory authority to disapprove, and thus, in effect, order rejected, a claim which, in the schedule of debts filed pursuant to this section, the executor had classified as an allowed debt or claim against an estate: In re Koplin, 100 App 553, 60 OO 421, 137 NE(2d) 424.

3. The probate court has no jurisdiction to determine the merits of a claim presented against the estate for the first time as an exception to the schedule of debts, but should order the claim filed as neither accepted nor rejected: In re Gouvy, 3 OO 58 (PC).

4. The listing of a claim known to exist but not presented, in a schedule of debts, and filing the same in the probate court after the expiration of the four months' period within which to present claims, does not operate to raise the status of such claim above that of a barred claim: Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 12 OO 359 (PC).

6. An executrix in performing her duty to comply with the provisions of this section, by listing on the schedule of debts the claims which were known to exist but which were never presented, did not waive a formal presentation: Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 12 OO 359 (PC).

7. Inquiry by the probate court into the validity of the claim as a proper inheritance tax deduction is not precluded: In re Cooke, 93 OLA 311, 29 OO(2d) 419.

8. The provisions of the probate law in effect at the time a will is admitted to probate are controlling for the duration of the action: 1932 OAG No. 4029.

The probate court on its own motion may, and on motion of the executor or administrator shall, assign the schedule of debts, filed under section 2117.16 of the Revised Code, for hearing on a day certain. Forthwith upon such assignment, and in no case less than ten days before the date fixed for hearing or such longer period as the court may order, the executor or administrator shall cause written notice thereof to be served upon the following persons who have not waived the same in writing or otherwise voluntarily entered their appearance:

(A) If it appears that the estate is fully solvent, such notice shall be given to the surviving spouse and all other persons having an interest in the estate as devisees, legatees, heirs, and distributees.

(B) If it appears probable that there will not be sufficient assets to pay all of the valid debts of the estate in full, then such notice also shall be given to all creditors and claimants whose claims have been rejected and whose rights have not been finally determined by judgment, reference, or lapse of time.

Such notice shall state that the schedule of debts has been filed, shall set forth the time and place of the hearing thereon, and shall state that the action of the executor or administrator in allowing and classifying claims will be confirmed at such hearing unless cause to the contrary is shown. Such notice shall be served personally or by registered mail in the manner specified for service of notice of the rejection of a claim under section 2117.11 of the Revised Code. Proof of such service to the satisfaction of the court, by affidavit or otherwise, and all waivers of service shall be filed in court at the time of the hearing. At any time before hearing, any interested person may file exceptions in writing to the allowance or classification of any specific claim. The court may cause or permit other interested persons to be served with notice and witnesses to be subpoenaed as may be required to present the issues fully.

The court upon hearing shall determine whether the executor or administrator acted properly in allowing and classifying each claim and shall make an order confirming or disapproving such action.

An order of the court disapproving the allowance of a claim shall have the same effect as a rejection of the same on the date on which the claimant is served with notice of the court's order. Such notice shall be served personally or by registered mail in the manner specified for service of notice of the rejection of a claim under section 2117.11 of the Revised Code. An order of the court confirming the allowance or classification of a claim shall constitute a final order and shall have the same effect as a judgment at law or decree in equity, and shall be final as to all persons having notice of the hearing and as to claimants subsequently presenting their claims, though without notice of such hearing. In the absence of fraud, the allowance and classification of such claim and the subsequent payment thereof in good faith shall not be subject to question upon exceptions to the executor's or administrator's accounts. The confirmation of a claim by the court shall not preclude the executor or administrator from thereafter rejecting such claim on discovery of error in his previous action or on requisition as provided in sections 2117.13 and 2117.14 of the Revised Code.

SECTION 3. (133 v S 185) Sections 1 and 2 of this act shall take effect on January 1, 1971. This act does not affect the administration of the estates of persons who die before January 1, 1971, and the estates of such persons shall be administered as if this act had not been passed and approved.

1. Under this section, the finding and order of the probate court overruling exceptions to an item contained in the schedule of debts involving a claim upon which the probate court is authorized by those provisions to act, are final as to parties filing exceptions or otherwise voluntarily entering their appearance, subject only to the right of review or to be opened up for fraud, collusion or mistake: In re Beabout, 136 OS 412, 16 OO 575, 26 NE(2d) 211 [affirming 15 OO 2 (App)].

2. Probate court does not have jurisdiction to review the administrator or executor on the allowance or rejection of claims. Claim must be brought within two months: Locotosh v. Brothers, 52 App 158, 6 OO 274, 3 NE(2d) 556, 21 OLA 521.

3. The effect of this section is clearly to bind the executors and those who have otherwise voluntarily entered their appearance, and where they have failed to avail themselves of the right of review, their right to open up the order entered by the court on the hearing of the schedule of debts is limited to cases of fraud, collusion or mistake: Amrine v. Gabriel, 67 App 37, 14 OO 447, 32 NE(2d) 499.

4. A hearing on a debt schedule is an in rem proceeding. Provision of the section as to a hearing without a jury does not violate any constitutional rights to a jury trial: In re Blue, 67 App 37, 14 OO 447, 32 NE(2d) 499, 29 OLA 161.

4.1 A decision by a probate court on a debt schedule is final to all persons interested in the estate subject to a right of review or to be vacated under RC § 2101.33 or to be re-opened for fraud or collusion: In re Blue, 67 App 37, 14 OO 447, 32 NE(2d) 499, 29 OLA 161.

5. The probate court had express authority under this section (116 v 398), without the intervention of a jury, to affirm, modify or reverse the action of an executor or administrator as to any items contained in the schedule of debts, except claims on which suit had been brought or which had been referred to referees or disallowed by requisition: In re Hedges, 75 App 518, 31 OO 301, 62 NE(2d) 643.

5.1 The probate court cannot act arbitrarily in the matter of disapproving a claim allowed by the executor, for this power of the court can be exercised only upon a showing that the executor allowed the claim without due examination as to the validity of such claim. Where there is no evidence offered to refute the conclusion as to validity reached by the executor, the probate court is required to find that the executor acted properly in allowing and classifying the claim: In re Koplin, 100 App 553, 60 OO 421, 137 NE(2d) 424.

5.2 The probate court has jurisdiction to pass on an application for attorney's fees to be taken out of the estate: In re Colosimo, 104 App 342, 5 OO(2d) 24, 149 NE(2d) 31.

5.3 In actions by creditors of a decedent to enforce their claims, where the personal representative of the decedent refuses or neglects to defend, an heir of the decedent may be permitted to come in and defend although he is ordinarily neither a proper nor a necessary party defendant: Gerardot v. Parrish, 44 OApp(2d) 293, 73 OO(2d) 360, 338 NE(2d) 531 (1975).

6. Where a claim for support of minor children of the deceased has been presented to an executor or administrator and disallowed, the probate court has jurisdiction of such claim, upon exceptions being filed by the claimant to the schedule of debts: In re Riggle, 18 OO 179 (PC).

6.1 Powers of examination allowed probate court on schedule of claims discussed: In re Perkins, 22 OLA 513.

7. The finding and order of the probate court affirming a schedule of debts is not final under this section, where no exceptions allowed by GC § 10509-118 (RC § 2117.16) were filed and no voluntary appearance entered; consequently claims listed therein and paid in full may still be challenged through the filing of exceptions by legatees to the account of the administrator as provided in GC § 10506-40 (RC § 2109.35): In re Butler, 32 OLA 1 [affirmed, 137 OS 96].

8. The action of the probate court in overruling exceptions, under this section, to an item in the schedule of debts is a final order as to those who filed exceptions, subject only to their right of review or to be opened up for fraud, collusion or mistake: In re Throckmorton, 34 OLA 219, 36 NE(2d) 792.

9. Probate courts may inquire into the validity of claims as deductions for income tax purposes: In re Cooke, 93 OLA 311, 29 OO(2d) 419.

10. Orders of probate courts allowing claims which adversely affect the property rights of beneficiaries are binding determinations of validity for federal estate tax purposes: Goodwin's Estate v. Commissioner, 201 F(2d) 576, 51 OO 73, 67 OLA 233.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10509-119 IN EFFECT FROM JANUARY 1, 1932 TO SEPTEMBER 2, 1935

1. The probate court is without jurisdiction to pass upon the merits or validity of the claim of a creditor on exceptions filed to the schedule of claims, debts and liabilities, when the same creditor has theretofore presented his claim for allowance, the executor has rejected the same and when action for recovery thereon has been begun in the common pleas court: In re Perkins, 22 OLA 513.

2. The probate court's jurisdiction granted by this section, relative to executor's schedule of debts, etc., is exhausted when it has ordered that the schedule be approved and confirmed: In re Perkins, 22 OLA 513.

3. General Code §§ 10509-118, 10509-119 (RC §§ 2117.16, 2117.17) and 10509-120 (repealed, 118 v 78) are in pari materia with GC §§ 10501-30, 10501-32, 11379 (RC §§ 2101.30, 2101.31, 2311.04) and 11469 (see now RC § 2315.20), and must be construed together; hence this section is applicable only in a case where the issue is one of law: In re Helfrich, 30 NP(NS) 307.

4. Where, in the administration of an estate, issues of fact arise upon exceptions to particular items contained in administrator's schedule of claims, court is obliged to disallow such claim or claims in schedule and leave claimant to his remedy as provided in code of civil procedure: In re Helfrich, 30 NP(NS) 307.

5. In a hearing upon administrator's schedule of claims a claimant is a party adverse to the estate and as such is disqualified, under GC § 11495 (RC § 2317-03), from testifying as a witness: In re Helfrich, 30 NP(NS) 307.

6. Where the item excepted to has been approved and allowed by the administrator, he is disqualified to act as a witness: In re Helfrich, 30 NP(NS) 307.

7. A claimant whose claim is reduced or rejected by an executor or administrator may bring an action or file exceptions to the schedule of debts: In re Czatt, 30 NP(ns) 355.

8. In a hearing in probate court upon the schedule of debts filed by an administrator, the court has no jurisdiction to determine the merits of a claim presented as an exception to the schedule of debts where the administrator has no previous knowledge of such claim, and the only order the court can make is that the claim be filed in the schedule as neither accepted nor rejected: In re Gouvy, 3 OO 58 (PC).

Taxes or penalties placed on a duplicate or added by the county auditor or the tax commissioner because of a failure to make a return or because of a false or incomplete return for taxation shall be a debt of a decedent and have the same priority and be paid as other taxes. Such taxes or penalties shall be collectible out of the property of the estate either before or after distribution, by any means provided for collecting other taxes. No distribution or payment of inferior debts or claims shall defeat such collection; but no such tax or penalty can be added before notice to the executor or administrator, and before an opportunity is given him to be heard. All taxes omitted by the deceased must be charged on the tax lists and duplicate in his name.

In all such additions to the personal tax lists and duplicate, each succeeding tax year shall be considered as beginning at the time of the completion of the annual settlement of the duplicate for the previous year with the county treasurer.

HISTORY: GC §§ 10509-81, 10509-82; 114 v 320 (419); 114 v 714 (774); 125 v 903 (980). Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC §§ 10662, 10663.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Taxes under this section are preferred over liens securing claims of general creditors: Pioneer Trust Co. v. Stich, 71 OS 459, 73 NE 520.

2. In so far as an intangible tax levied against a decedent's estate in the state of Ohio is concerned, such tax is definitely made a debt under the statutes: State ex rel Hostetter v. Hunt, 58 App 120, 9 OO 254, 10 NE(2d) 155 [affirmed, 132 OS 568].

2.1 A municipal income tax ordinance which is collectible as other debts has the effect of creating a debt once liability is determined: Cincinnati v. Degoyer, 16 OMisc 229, 45 OO(2d) 92, 241 NE(2d) 769 (1968).

3. As this section existed from January 1, 1932, until September 2, 1935, there was considerable difference of opinion as to whether or not it was necessary to file with the account certificates showing that taxes which had accrued on real property of the decedent at the time of his death had been paid. Many probate courts held that it was necessary to file such certificates regarding real estate taxes with the account. However, the common pleas court of Cuyahoga county held that the provisions of GC § 10509-176 (see now RC § 2109.30 et seq) and related sections did not require that a certificate of the county auditor and county treasurer be filed showing that the real estate taxes charged against the estate had been paid, before the final account may be approved: In re Kastelic, 3 OO 164.

4. Tax inquisitors are not entitled to a commission on omitted property which has been placed on the duplicate under this section from information derived from inventories in the probate court: State v. Lewis, 12 OD(NP) 46.

5. A tax inquisitor's compensation for discovery of omitted property of decedent will be limited to a percentage on taxes collected on property which should have been returned in the lifetime of the decedent: State v. Gilfillan, 3 NP(NS) 153, 15 OD 756 [affirmed, 3 OLR 476, 19 CD 709; modified, 76 OS 341].

6. County auditor not required to make search for property not placed on tax duplicate in accordance with this and preceding section: State v. Lewis, 4 NP(NS) 454, 17 OD 370.

9. When an administrator has paid taxes which were added by the county auditor by reason of the failure of the deceased to list taxable items of property for taxation during the preceding five years, the administrator or personal representative cannot recover such payment unless such payment was an involuntary one: 1932 OAG No.4403.

For the years during which property is required to be listed in the name of the executor or administrator, no percentage or part of any increased tax on such property of an estate, covered by an inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, shall be allowed or paid to a person under a contract for securing for taxation, or putting on the tax list or duplicate, property omitted, or not listed or returned for taxation.

the husband is deemed to have died last for probate purposes: In re Metzger, 140 OS 50, 23 OO 257, 42 NE(2d) 443; Harrison v. Hillegas, 13 OO 523, 28 OLA 404, 1 OSupp 160.

1.1 Rights to which a surviving spouse is entitled are contingent in the sense that they go to the survivor if not sold or given away prior to death: Neville v. Sawicki, 146 OS 539, 33 OO 19, 67 NE(2d) 323.

2. Under this section, the right of a widow to a year's allowance in the estate of her deceased husband vests immediately upon his death, becomes a preferred and secured debt of the estate, and must comprehend a sufficient support for her for a period of twelve months without respect to her actual need: In re Croke, 155 OS 434, 44 OO 411, 99 NE(2d) 84, discussed in 47 OO 303. See also 20 CinLRev 134, discussing In re Croke, 57 OLA 97 (App), which was reversed by 155 OS 434.

3. Even though such widow dies within the period of twelve months after the death of her husband and such allowance has not been set off to her during her lifetime, the allowance must be awarded, fixed, and determined on a basis of her reasonable support for twelve months, and such allowance or any unpaid balance thereof survives as an asset of her estate: In re Croke, 155 OS 434, 44 OO 411, 99 NE(2d) 84, discussed in 47 OO 303. See also 20 CinLRev 134, discussing In re Croke, 57 OLA 97 (App), which was reversed by 155 OS 434.

4. Where the widow of a testator is bequeathed for life the income of a going business which is to be operated by a trustee, she is entitled to such income from the time of the death of the testator in the absence of anything in the will to the contrary, notwithstanding the fact that she is allowed an amount in money for her year's support pursuant to GC § 10509-74 (RC § 2117.20): Holmes v. Hrobon, 158 OS 508, 49 OO 450, 110 NE(2d) 574.

4.1 A widow can be barred from any part of her husband's estate where both have substantial amounts of land from a prior marriage and execute a valid pre-nuptial agreement: Troha v. Sneller, 169 OS 397, 8 OO 435, 159 NE(2d) 899.

5. The year's allowance given to a widow by this section is governed by GC § 10510-46 (RC § 2115.07), so that the widow's claim is subject and subordinate to the claims of judgment lien creditors to the proceeds of the sale of real estate: Dillman v. Warner, 54 App 170, 7 OO 492, 6 NE(2d) 757.

6. Although a husband may, by conveyance and trust agreement made during his lifetime, defeat his widow's interest as statutory heir and distributee, yet such conveyance and trust agreement will be constructively fraudulent to the extent of the wife's statutory right to an allowance for a year's support from the state of the husband, and a lien for the amount of such allowance will be impressed on the real estate conveyed in the proportion that the value of such real estate bears to the total value of such real estate plus the value of the real estate of which the husband died seized: Routson v. Hovis, 60 App 536, 15 OO 38, 22 NE(2d) 209.

7. A widow may not set aside as fraud a conveyance without consideration made by her husband of real estate which eliminates any assets from which to pay an allowance or year's support: Dick v. Bauman, 73 App 107, 28 OO 176, 55 NE(2d) 137; In re Kusar's Estate, 5 OMisc 23, 34 OO(2d) 32, 211 NE(2d) 535.

8. A surviving spouse may waive any right to her husband's estate by virtue of a separation agreement: Burlovic v. Farmer, 96 App 403, 54 OO 349, 115 NE(2d) 411.

9. The widow's year's allowance under this section, and the allowance given her under RC § 2115.13, as property exempt from administration, are preferred claims against her deceased husband's estate and even though a wife deserted her husband through her own fault and choosing and remained separate and apart from him for a long period of time, she is nevertheless entitled to such allowance if the marriage relationship existed at the time of the husband's death: In re Clark, 99 App 458, 59 OO 244, 125 NE(2d) 917 (App).

10. The right of a widow to a year's allowance in the estate of her deceased husband vests immediately upon death and such debt survives as an asset of her estate if not contested by the children: In re Wreede, 106 App 324, 7 OO(2d) 75, 154 NE(2d) 756; Monger v. Jones, 91 App 246, 48 OO 361, 108 NE(2d) 116.

11. A widow who freely enters into a contract with other beneficiaries before an inventory was made is not entitled to rescission of the contract when she discovers she has greater rights: Carnahan v. Carnahan, 109 App 350, 11 OO(2d) 142, 159 NE(2d) 795.

12. Acceptance by a widow as sole heir and devisee under the will of a transfer of all the assets of the estate effects a merger of all claims of the widow for allowance and reimbursement for funeral expenses: Kaczinski v. Kaczinski, 118 App 225, 25 OO(2d) 68, 193 NE(2d) 731.

13. A probate court has jurisdiction to determine the issues of a common law marriage, as incident to a hearing upon exceptions to an inventory: In re Soeder, 7 OApp(2d) 271, 36 OO(2d) 404, 220 NE(2d) 547.

14. When the evidence relating to exceptions to an inventory and final account shows that the surviving spouse has, on numerous occasions, counseled and directed the administratrix of her husband's estate to pay the bills of the estate, even if such payment would result in no money being left for distribution to the surviving spouse, stating as her reason that her husband never had any bills that weren't paid, and the surviving spouse has offered no evidence of probative value to the contrary, it is clearly apparent that she has waived the determination and payment or allowance to her of the year's allowance provided by RC § 2117.20 and the property exempt from administration as provided by RC § 2115.13: In re Burchett, 16 OApp(2d) 45, 45 OO(2d) 133, 241 NE(2d) 787.

16. Unless barred by an antenuptial agreement or "the will expressly directs otherwise" as required by RC § 2107.42, a widow is entitled to her year's allowance, use of the mansion house and exemptions under RC §§ 2117.20 and 2115.13, even though she takes under the will, whether by her voluntary election or by operation of law: Jacobsen v. Cleveland Trust Co., 35 OO(2d) 366, 6 OMisc 173, 217 NE(2d) 262 (CP).

17. A daughter who was under the age of eighteen years at the time of her father's death and marries before the period of one year during which she was entitled, under this section to support from his estate, is thereby limited to an allowance for support which will end at the date of her marriage: In re Nixon, 34 OO(2d) 333, 5 OMisc 169, 214 NE(2d) 716 (PC).

18. Property passing to a widow for an allowance or to reimburse funeral expenses does not come under the half and half statute. If the widow takes the property rather than selling it to pay the claims, the statute becomes operable: Chupp v. Tomas, 7 OMisc 204, 36 OO(2d) 317, 216 NE(2d) 658.

19. An illegitimate child whose paternity has been established during the lifetime of the natural father is entitled to a year's allowance for support from the father's estate: In re Estate of Holley, 44 OMisc 78, 73 OO(2d) 265, 337 NE(2d) 675 (1975).

20. The guardian of an insane widow who killed her husband is entitled to receive the sum of money in lieu of realty while in the insane asylum and her portion of her allowance: Winters Nat'l Bank v. Shields, 14 OO 438, 29 OLA 193, 3 OSupp 134.

21. Under this section, allowance for a minor child is to be set aside only when necessary, and when the minor's natural father is dead and she is supported and maintained by her adoptive parent there is no reason, either moral or legal, why this obligation should be cast upon the estate of the said child's natural father: Warden v. Warden, 35 OO 374 (PC).

22. The term "children," as used in this section, providing for support and maintenance to the widow and minor children of the deceased husband and father for one year after his death, does not embrace illegitimate children: In re Humbert, 12 OO 241 (PC).

23. A postnuptial agreement, providing that "I hereby agree to release all claims on anything belonging to him," does not bar a surviving widow of her right to property not deemed assets under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), and her right to an allowance for a year's support under the provisions of this section: In re Crabtree, 15 OO 487 (PC).

24. Where will of husband, after making certain provisions for his wife, recites that "the foregoing devises and bequests to my said wife . . . shall be in lieu of her dower and all other interest which she may have in my estate," if wife elects to take under husband's will, such election shall bar her of her year's allowance and money exemption; and where, in such will, household goods are specifically bequeathed to wife, such election shall bar wife of her right, under GC § 10509-54 (RC § 2115.13), to select such household goods as property exempt from administration: Atwood v. Miller, 24 OO 398 (PC).

25. The surviving spouse's exempt property and year's allowance take precedence over a claim from the Division of Aid for the Aged: Fultz v. Singer, 5 OO(2d) 433, 78 OLA 177, 149 NE(2d) 270.

26. A delay of eight years in seeking her year's allowance, deprives a widow of her right to such: In re Gardner's Estate, 13 OO(2d) 293, 81 OLA 250, 160 NE(2d) 20.

27. The balance due on a year's allowance should be paid from the corpus of an amendable trust before distribution of lawful trust shares under descent and distribution statutes: Darrow v. Fifth Third Union Trust Co., 1 OO(2d) 104, 78 OLA 303, 139 NE(2d) 112.

28. This section and GC § 10509-75 (RC § 2117.21) do not create a right in favor of a widow of a non-resident decedent to a year's allowance out of the personal property located in this state: In re McCombs, 52 OLA 353 (PC).

29. The property exempt from administration provided by RC § 2115.13 and the year's support provided by this section are not intestate successions but are debts and preferred claims arising as incidents to the marriage and therefore not affected by the simultaneous death statute: In re Priest, 79 OLA 444 (PC).

30. Where a claim has not been presented within the four month statutory period, one must file a petition for permission to reinstate a claim. Failure to do so bars the claim: Wilcox v. Ceschiati, 87 OLA 225, 179 NE(2d) 544.

31. An allowance for a widow of $4500. may be upheld despite the fact she could survive on less: In re Stump's Estate, 89 OLA 570, 185 NE(2d) 334.

32. The legislative intent in providing a widow's allowance for her support for twelve months after the death of her husband was to hold sacred that amount against execution for her debts, other than for her necessary support during that period: Norwood-Hyde Park Bank & Co. v. Howard, 32 NP(NS) 191.

33. Where the payee of a promissory note, executed jointly by husband and wife, upon default and death of the husband, secured judgment against the widow, individually and as administratrix of the husband's estate, the widow's allowance for twelve months' support was not subject to levy by the payee in satisfaction of the judgment: Norwood-Hyde Park Bank & Co. v. Howard, 32 NP(NS) 191.

34. Under Ohio law, the widow's allowance is a vested interest which is not divested upon the occurrence of a contingency: Miller v. United States, 71 OO(2d) 31 (USDC 1974).

35. For the purposes of the marital deduction under Internal Revenue Code § 2056, a general award to the widow as an allowance under Ohio law is not a terminable interest and therefore may be included in the computation of the marital deduction; and this rule applies notwithstanding the presence of minor children: Miller v. United States, 71 OO(2d) 31 (USDC 1974).

Nature of allowance

1. Under statutes, appraisers of deceased husband's estate have mandatory duty to set off widow's allowance: In re Crouse, 44 App 31, 184 NE 253.

2. Where deceased's estate had not been closed, claim for widow's allowance, made over three years after it could have been made, held not stale: In re Crouse, 44 App 31, 184 NE 253.

3. That widow had consumed some personal property of deceased did not bar application for widow's allowance, since she could be charged therewith: In re Crouse, 44 App 31, 184 NE 253.

4. Executor of deceased widow could make application for widow's allowance out of estate of deceased husband: In re Crouse, 44 App 31, 184 NE 253.

5. The allowance for the support of the widow for one year is such a debt of her husband's estate, that resort may be had, for payment of same, against land conveyed away by deceased for the purpose of defrauding his creditors: Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234.

6. The year's allowance is a debt of the estate, which, on payment by an executrix, is a proper credit in her account: Watts v. Watts, 38 OS 480.

7. When a widow has consumed property of the estate greater in value than the year's allowance made for the benefit of her estate, after her death, the allowance will be held to have been paid: In re McDermott, 13 OD(NP) 390.

8. Where the appraisers in an estate set off and allow to a widow and minor children, in due form of law, a first year's support, such allowance so made becomes a debt of the estate and preserves it from the limitations of former GC § 10746 (repealed, 114 v 320), and has the same effect in law as the allowance of any other claim by an executor or administrator: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

9. Where appraisers allow a stated sum in money to a widow and likewise to each of the minor children under fifteen years of age, for a first year's support, the allowances to such of the children as are not supported during said first year by said widow, do not vest in the widow but must be applied to the support of such children: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

10. The first year's support set off and allowed to a widow and minor children under fifteen years of age vests in the widow where the widow and children reside together, and the sum allowed to such minor children is in trust to her, to be used for their benefit and support. If the widow and children do not reside together, and the appraisers have not apportioned the allowance, it shall be apportioned by the court as may seem fair and equitable: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

To whom set off—widow

11. In order to establish her claim to a year's allowance, the widow must show not only that the marriage relation once existed and was never legally severed, but also that it actually existed at decedent's death, or, if it did not exist, that it was against her wish, and without her fault: In re Roth, 6 NP 498, 9 OD 429.

12. The widow of bankrupt is entitled to certain articles, or their equivalent in money, and allowance for a year's support for herself and children: In re Parschen, 13 OFD 443.

12.1 It is the duty of the appraisers in all cases to set off, at the time of taking inventory, money to the surviving spouse claimed as a set off under RC § 2115.13, and to the widow her allowance: In re Felman, 32 NP(NS) 73.

12.2 Where an administrator is not appointed for a deceased husband and the widow dies six months later, the appraisers of the husband's estate should set aside money for the wife's allowance and charge the husband's estate with whatever was consumed: In re Phillips, 27 NP(NS) 142, 18 OD 538.

—Children

13. Children under fifteen are entitled to have set off and allowed to them, out of the estate of their deceased mother, provision for twelve months' support, in like manner as out of the estate of their deceased father: In re Hinton, 64 OS 485, 60 NE 621 [reversing Hance v. Chappell, 20 CC 214, 11 CD 139]; In re Glenn, 3 CC(NS) 608, 13 CD 397.

14. A child under fifteen which has never been a resident of Ohio is entitled to a year's support out of its father's estate, and this besides its distributive share out of the estate: Bause v. Muhme, 13 CC 501, 7 CD 224.

15. Where a minor child does not live with the mother, the year's allowance may be apportioned: In re Pollard, Goebel, 216.

Amount

16. Whether the amount fixed for the year's allowance for the widow should draw interest or not depends upon additional facts; and if the order of the probate court, which provides that such allowance shall bear interest, does not disclose the existence or nonexistence of any other facts, it cannot be presumed, in a proceeding in the court of common pleas to reverse such order, that such order was erroneous: Palmer v. Robinson, 24 CC(NS) 125, 34 CD 510 [for a former opinion, see Robinson v. Palmer, 24 CC(NS) 215, 34 CD 561].

Priorities

17. Widow not entitled to her year's support out of the proceeds of lands sold to pay debts, as against judgment liens covering more than such proceeds: Jones v. Allen, 6 NP 518, 8 OD 338.

Bar to allowance

18. Wife cannot be deprived of year's support except in cases of divorce: In re Diller, 5 NP 255, 6 OD 182.

19. Mere separation of husband and wife does not destroy the latter's right of exemption as a widow; but until they are divorced, the wife at the husband's death is entitled to a year's support and the articles of personal property mentioned in the statute: In re McMillan, 8 CC(NS) 294, 18 CD 645.

—Antenuptial contract

20. Whether an antenuptial contract, making provision for the wife in case of her survivorship, and expressed to be in satisfaction of her share of the personal estate of her husband, will operate as a bar in equity to her year's support was discussed but not decided: Lowe v. Phillips, 14 OS 308.

21. The year's support cannot be barred by antenuptial surrender: Baldwin v. Broadstone, 35 Bull 161.

—Postnuptial contract

22. Where a husband during coverture makes a provision for his wife, in full of all her claims as widow against his estate, including her right to dower, which she accepts, and he dies intestate, she is not thereby barred of her right to the year's support provided by law out of his estate: Spangler v. Dukes, 39 OS 642.

23. The year's support cannot be barred by a postnuptial agreement to make no claim on the estate: Garretson v. Garretson, 4 CC 336, 2 CD 581.

—Devise

24. A devise to a widow, expressed in the will to be in lieu of dower and all other claims against the estate of the testator, does not bar her of the right to the year's support: Collier v. Collier, 3 OS 369.

25. Where, by the terms of a will, it is plainly shown to be the intention of the testator to bar his widow of a first year's support, and a provision is made for her in lieu thereof, if she elects to take under the will, she is not entitled to the allowance: In re Witner, 7 NP 143, 10 OD 30.

26. If the will does not provide expressly that a gift of income is in lieu of a year's allowance, the widow of the testator is not deprived of her year's allowance by the fact that testator has given to her for life all the income from his property, real and personal, after the payment of his debts: In re Mesang, 20 NP(NS) 60, 27 OD 481 [affirmed by court of appeals].

—Waiver

27. Where the appraisers neglect to set off to the widow her allowance for a year's support, and she, after the expiration of the year, dies without having waived or relinquished her right to such allowance, the right to the same survives to and may be recovered by her personal representative: Bane v. Wick, 14 OS 505.

28. Demand not necessary to secure the year's allowance, and mere lapse of time is no waiver of the right to same. If the allowance has never been set off because of no appraisal made, on the widow's application an appraisal will be ordered any time while the estate remains unsettled. And the appraisers, in making their allowance, will take into consideration any part of the estate which the widow has used for her support: In re Rierdon, 5 NP 516, 5 OD 606.

29. The settlement made by an administrator will not be opened up forty years after the estate was closed in order to let in the claim of the widow for her first year's support, where no such claim was asserted at the time the estate was being settled: Evans v. Evans, 13 CC(NS) 62, 21 CD 635.

30. If an executrix who is also the widow of the decedent files an account in which she states, "That no claim is made for expenses or compensation on account of said trust by affiant, other than the amount found due her by last account, and her year's support, which she is content to leave in the farm," such statement is not a waiver of her year's support: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

31. Where a widow who administers her deceased husband's estate and to whom and her children there is set off and allowed by the appraisers, in due form of law, a first year's allowance, which she does not collect out of either the personal or real estate and she herself fully settles and distributes all the estate, or the same is done by a subsequent administrator with her full knowledge and assent, such neglect or omission on her part will be held to be a waiver or relinquishment of her right to such year's support: In re Patterson, 11 OLR 373, 58 Bull 305.

—Death

32. The allowance for a year's support confers a vested right of property, and is not divested by the widow's death, or any other contingency occurring after the amount has been fixed by the proper tribunal; and the death of the widow, within the year and before the whole amount has been expended in her support, does not bar the right of her executor or administrator to recover the balance unpaid from the representative of her husband's estate: Dorah v. Dorah, 4 OS 292.

33. The right of widow to an allowance survives her death prior to the appointment of an administrator of her husband's estate; this allowance is chargeable with the amount used by her after her husband's death: In re Phillips, 27 NP(NS) 142.

Procedure

34. The allowance herein provided for may be reviewed and increased for the benefit of the estate of the widow by the probate court, under former GC § 10659 (see now RC § 2117.22), on petition of a "person interested": Sherman v. Sherman, 21 OS 631.

35. Where the appraisers first appointed failed to make to the widow her year's allowance, and the probate court, on her application, appointed new appraisers to make such allowance, the executor or administrator should have notice of the proceedings: Heck v. Heck, 34 OS 369.

36. If injustice is done, application must first be made to the probate court: Heck v. Heck, 34 OS 369.

38. Allowances to a widow made in a proceeding to sell real estate belonging to her deceased husband to pay debts, to which no error was prosecuted or appeal taken, cannot be attacked collaterally by exception to her account as administratrix of the said estate: In re Hess, 14 CC(NS) 463, 23 CD 449.

[GC § 10509-75; 114 v 320; 116 v S 385]. Eff 1-1-76.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 REPEAL]

1. The general rules for allowing interest on the accounts of fiduciaries apply to the unpaid portion of the widow's year's allowance, and, in the absence of a showing of negligence on her part as a co-fiduciary of her husband's estate, interest is allowable thereon: Monger v. Jones, 91 App 246, 48 OO 347, 108 NE(2d) 116.

2. Year's allowance to widow and children is excessive when it is more than twice as much as the family has lived on previously, especially if this prevents payment in full of decedent's estate: In re Rahe, 12 OD(NP) 590.

3. A discussion of the rights of a widow to the Ohio property owned by a nonresident decedent appears in: In re McCombs' Estate, 52 OLA 353, 80 NE(2d) 573.

4. Where the debts of an estate exceed assets at date of death, only such debts may be deducted as do not exceed those assets. Joint bank accounts are not includable for computing such deductions: In re Williams' Estate, 73 OLA 441, 138 NE(2d) 189.

5. Whether the amount fixed for the year's allowance for the widow should draw interest or not depends upon additional facts; and if the order of the probate court, which provides that such allowance shall bear interest, does not disclose the existence or nonexistence of any other facts, it cannot be presumed, in a proceeding in the court of common pleas to reverse such order, that such order was erroneous: Palmer v. Robinson, 24 CC(NS) 125, 34 CD 510 [for a former opinion, see Robinson v. Palmer, 24 CC(NS) 215, 34 CD 561].

Construction

1. Rule 13 of the uniform rules of practice in the probate courts of Ohio, adopted pursuant to GC § 10501-13 (RC § 2101.04), and prescribing the time within which a petition shall be filed to secure a review of the allowance made to a widow or children under this section, is reasonable and valid: Brown v. Mossop, 139 OS 24, 21 OO 518, 27 NE(2d) 598.

2. If a probate court has rules prescribing the time in which a petition can be filed, it still may not diminish the allowance if the petition is filed after such time has expired: In re Johnson's Estate, 80 OLA 180, 150 NE(2d) 501.

Person interested

6. A person with whom the widow lived during the twelve months, and until her death, and who supported and took care of her, and incurred expense for her in sickness, and who has a valid claim therefor against her estate, is a "person interested," within the meaning of this section: Sherman v. Sherman, 21 OS 631.

7. Determining the amount of a widow's allowance, factor to consider: In re Clark's Estate, 99 App 458, 59 OO 244, 125 NE(2d) 917.

9. An allowance of $4500. may be upheld even where a widow could be maintained at less expense in a rest home. An allowance may be challenged under RC §§ 2115.16 or 2117.22: In re Stump's Estate, 89 OLA 570, 185 NE(2d) 334.

Review

11. The allowance may be reviewed and increased for the benefit of the widow's estate on petition of a person interested, although the petition be not filed until the expiration of twelve months, and after the death of the widow: Sherman v. Sherman, 21 OS 631.

12. The proper method to have the allowance reviewed is by petition, and not by exception to the inventory under former GC § 10639 (now GC § 10509-59 [RC § 2115.16]): In re Rierdon, 5 NP 516, 5 OD 606.

13. The court may increase or decrease the allowance, but it has not original jurisdiction to fix same: In re Roth, 6 NP 498, 9 OD 429.

14. A paper styled a motion that sets forth sufficient facts to justify a probate judge in reviewing the allowance made to the widow and children is a sufficient compliance with the above section which provides that petition shall be filed for that purpose: In re Rahe, 12 OD(NP) 590.

Second review

19. The order of court upon a petition to review is conclusive, and no relief can be granted upon a second petition to review: Moore v. Moore, 46 OS 89, 18 NE 489.

20. A widow who, after seeking the action of the probate court for an increase in the amount of the year's allowance made by the appraisers, fails to avail herself of the right to appeal or prosecute a proceeding to vacate, cannot by a new application again invoke the action of the probate court upon the same question: In re Brown, 22 OO 229, 39 NE(2d) 857 (App).

Reduction after payment

25. If the appraisers fixed the amount of the widow's allowance, and the administrator in good faith paid such allowance to the widow; and more than nine months thereafter, the creditors of the estate, upon learning that the estate was probably insolvent, filed an application to have the probate court reduce the amount of such allowance, and upon consideration the court reduced the same, the administrator cannot be charged with the amount of such reduction until he has recovered the amount thereof from the widow: Steward v. Barry, 102 OS 129, 131 NE 492.

Procedure

30. Where the appraisers of the personal estate of a decedent first appointed failed to make to the widow any allowance for her year's support, and the widow makes application to the probate court for the appointment of new appraisers for that purpose, the executor or administrator should have notice of the making and time of hearing of such application: Heck v. Heck, 34 OS 369.

33. The filing of a petition under the provisions of this section for review of the amount set off to a widow as a year's allowance is not governed by the time limit set forth in RC § 2115.16, relating to the filing of exceptions to the inventory, but may be filed within a reasonable time: In re Stump, 89 OLA 570, 185 NE(2d) 334 (PC).

When a nonresident decedent dies leaving property in Ohio, and the will of the decedent has been admitted to probate in Ohio, as provided by sections 2107.11 and 2107.18 of the Revised Code, the person granted letters testamentary or of administration shall, at any time prior to the approval of the inventory and appraisement, notify the surviving spouse and a child or children of the decedent under the age of eighteen, that each or all of them have sixty days after the approval of the inventory and appraisement to apply for an allowance to be set off out of the Ohio property of the decedent. The probate court may set off an allowance to the surviving spouse and child or children or apportion it among them as it considers just and reasonable, having due regard for the laws of the state of decedent's residence as to its provisions for a surviving spouse and children, the assets of the estate that are subject to administration in the state of decedent's residence, the amount the surviving spouse and children may be expected to receive in the state of decedent's residence, and any other facts and circumstances that may have a bearing on the case. No allowance shall be made that will exceed the amount usually allowed a surviving spouse and children under the laws of this state relating to the administration of estates of resident decedents. Any allowance granted to a child or children shall be held by the surviving spouse, if living with and supporting the child or children, or a resident or foreign guardian, with power to use it for the support of the child or children. Notice of the hearing on an application for the allowance may be given to any person as the court may require. The allowance so set off shall acquire no greater charge against the Ohio property than in estates of resident decedents.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. The provisions of this section apply equally to persons having their abode in this state but domiciled in another state, the term "nonresident" including all those persons not domiciled within the state of Ohio: In re McCombs, 52 OLA 353 (PC).

2. Under the provisions of this section the probate judge may in the exercise of his discretion fix a year's allowance for the widow of a nonresident decedent but, in any event, such allowance is not to be set off by the appraisers appointed by the court: In re McCombs, 52 OLA 353 (PC).

3. The right of a nonresident surviving spouse of a nonresident decedent to a year's allowance in property located in Ohio is governed according to the statute in effect at the time of his death: In re Weatherhead, 73 OLA 524 (PC).

4. Since the state of Texas has not made provision for a widow's year's allowance as contemplated by the Ohio legislature, a widow, a resident of Texas, whose spouse, also a resident of Texas, died owning property located in Ohio, is entitled to have set off to her a year's allowance in such Ohio property: In re Weatherhead, 73 OLA 524 (PC).

5. Under the provisions of this section it is within the discretion of the probate court, upon proper application by the widow and children, whether or not the year's allowance will be set off to a nonresident widow and children out of the local estate of a nonresident decedent: In re Weatherhead, 73 OLA 524 (PC); In re Mitchell's Estate, 97 App 443, 56 OO 357, 127 NE(2d) 39 (1954).

A surviving spouse may remain in the mansion house of the deceased consort free of charge for one year, except that such real estate may be sold within that time for payment of debts of the decedent, in which event such surviving spouse shall be compensated from the estate to the extent of the fair rental value for the unexpired term, such compensation to have the same priority in payment of debts of estates as the allowance made to the surviving spouse or children.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. This section, granting to the surviving spouse of a deceased consort the right to remain in the mansion house for one year free of charge, does not entitle a husband living separate and apart from his wife for twenty-five years to the occupancy of the mansion house for one year after the wife's death, where the husband never occupied the property after his separation from his wife and she continued to remain therein until her death: In re Lonz v. Glann, 66 App 467, 20 OO 430, 35 NE(2d) 153.

2. A surviving spouse is not entitled to money received from rental of apartment in mansion house under this section: Scobey v. Fair, 70 App 51, 24 OO 371, 45 NE(2d) 139.

3. Where there is a valid prenuptial agreement relinquishing all rights in the property of the other, the wife will be barred from all rights to the husband's estate: Troha v. Sneller, 108 App 153, 9 OO (2d) 195, 151 NE(2d) 595, 79 OLA 74.

4. An antenuptial agreement signed by the deceased's spouse bars her from exempt property and year's allowance: Troha v. Sneller, 108 App 153, 79 OLA 74, 151 NE(2d) 595.

5. A widow's right to live in the mansion house is not a vested right under Ohio law, and is therefore a terminable interest within the meaning of Internal Revenue Code § 2056, and as such, is not includible in the marital deduction: Miller v. United States, 71 OO(2d) 31 (USDC 1974).

6. Devise in will of "amount entitled to under state law" discussed in: Schardt v. Prexler, 45 OLA 119, 67 NE(2d) 549.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 8607

1. The right of a widow to remain in the mansion house of her deceased husband, as provided by statute, is not restricted to a personal continuance in the house merely, but she is entitled to a reasonable enjoyment of the possession of the premises, and may therefore either personally occupy them or she may rent them, as she may deem best promotive of her comfort: Conger v. Atwood, 28 OS 134.

2 The right of the surviving spouse of a bankrupt to remain in the mansion house of the deceased consort free of charge for one year is recognized in the bankruptcy courts: In re Parschen, 119 Fed 976, 13 OFD 443.

§ 2117.25 Order in which debts to be paid.

Every executor or administrator shall proceed with diligence to pay the debts of the deceased, and shall apply the assets in the following order:

- (A) Costs and expenses of administration;
- (B) Bill of funeral director not exceeding eight hundred dollars for funeral and burial expenses, and such funeral expenses other than the bill of the funeral director as are approved by the probate court;
- (C) The allowance made to the surviving spouse and children;
- (D) Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States;
- (E) Expenses of the last sickness of the decedent;
- (F) Personal property taxes and obligations for which the decedent was personally liable to the state or any of its subdivisions;
- (G) Debts for manual labor performed for the deceased within twelve months preceding decedent's death, not exceeding three hundred dollars to any one person;
- (H) Other debts as to which claims have been presented within three months after the appointment of the executor or administrator;
- (I) All other debts for which claims have been presented after three months from the appointment of the executor or administrator.

The part of the bill of the funeral director that exceeds eight hundred dollars, and the part of a claim included in division (G) of this section that exceeds one hundred fifty dollars shall be included as a debt under division (H) or (I) of this section, depending upon the time when the claim for the additional amount is presented.

Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code, relating to the manner in which and the time within which claims shall be presented, shall apply to claims set forth in divisions (B) and (G) of this section. Claims for an expense of administration or for the allowance for support need not be presented. The executor or administrator shall pay debts included in divisions (D) and (F) of this section, of which he has knowledge, regardless of presentation.

The giving of written notice to an executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of death shall be equivalent to the presentation of a claim to the executor or administrator for the purpose of determining the order of payment of any judgment rendered or decree entered in such an action.

No payments shall be made to creditors of one class until all those of the preceding class are fully paid or provided for. In the event of an insufficiency of assets to pay all the claims of one class, the creditors of that class shall be paid ratably.

If it appears at any time that the assets have been exhausted in paying prior or preferred charges, allowances, or claims, such payments shall be a bar to an action on any claim not entitled to such priority or preference.

Construction

1. This section construed and applied in Campbell v. Lloyd, 162 OS 203, 55 OO 102, 122 NE(2d) 695.

Manner of payment

2. When all preferred claims against the estate of a deceased person have been paid in accordance with the provisions of GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), and such estate thereafter becomes insolvent, a pro rata distribution of the remaining funds therein must be made among the general creditors in accordance with GC § 10509-122 (RC § 2117.25): Moore v. Midland Buckeye Fed. Sav. & C. Assn., 72 App 323, 27 OO 224, 51 NE(2d) 758.

2.1 Partnership creditors are not permitted to share equally with individual creditors in the separate estate of an insolvent partner, for an amount remaining due after dividends are received from the partnership estate: Union Properties, Inc. v. Anzalone, 23 OO 206 (CP).

Order in which debts to be paid

7. The debts and other expenses enumerated in GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) include the federal estate tax: Tax Commission ex rel Price v. Lamprecht, 107 OS 535, 140 NE 333, 31 ALR 985; Davidson v. Miners and Mechanics Sav. & Trust Co., 129 OS 418, 430, 2 OO 404, 409, 195 NE 845, 98 ALR 1318; In re Gatch, 38 OO 279 (PC) [affirmed, 43 OO 143 (App), and 153 OS 401].

8. General Code §§ 10509-181 and 10509-182 (RC §§ 2113.53 and 2113.54), requiring executors and administrators to pay or otherwise secure debts before the distribution of the estates of decedents, and GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), prescribing the order in which the debts of the deceased are to be paid, do not fix the ultimate burden of federal estate taxes upon the estates passed by will or under the law of descent and distribution: Miller v. Hammond, 156 OS 475, 46 OO 405, 104 NE(2d) 9.

8.1 The federal estate tax is a legal charge made upon the decedent's estate and his right to transmit it either by will or by law as an intestate, and the charges imposed by law upon an estate must first be paid out of the estate as a whole, before payment of the charges imposed upon the estate by the will of the testator; a residuary devisee or legatee is presumed in law to be in the position of the last lienholder, after all prior lawful claims and charges have been satisfied out of the estate and, therefore, must stand the burden of charges of the federal estate tax: YMCA v. Davis, 106 OS 366, 140 NE 114.

8.2 Common law liability of a husband for the funeral expenses of the wife still exists and may be enforced contrary to the will of the decedent: Lee v. Hempy, 35 App 402, 31 OLR 246, 172 NE 421, 8 OLA 155.

9. General Code §§ 10509-121 and 10510-46 (RC §§ 2117.25 and 2127.38) should be construed together: Nolan v. Kroll, 37 App 350, 174 NE 750.

10. For the purpose of the administration of a decedent's estate, a certain schedule for the payment of debts and the order in which they are to be paid in such cases is established by GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25): State ex rel Hostetter v. Hunt, 56 App 120, 9 OO 254, 10 NE(2d) 155 [affirmed, 132 OS 568].

11. The reasonableness of a funeral director's services is to be determined by such factors as the nature of the services and supplies furnished, and not by whether the services could have been done for less: Busse & Borgmann Co. v. Upchurch, 60 App 349, 12 OO 493, 21 NE(2d) 349.

12. Where a physician, for a period of several months, treated a patient for a particular disease, and upon discontinuance of the treatment the patient resumed her usual occupation for nearly a year, at the end of which period treatments for the same disease were again resumed by the same physician, the fees for the treatment given prior to the interim when she ceased to be a patient and resumed work, are not "expenses of the last sickness," within the meaning of GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), so as to be a preferred claim against the assets of the estate of the patient, although the disease of which the patient died was that for which the physician first examined and treated her: Murphy v. Langa, 62 App 192, 15 OO 500, 23 NE(2d) 516.

13. General Code § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), which provides that an executor may allow three hundred fifty dollars for funeral expenses and that the probate court must approve the allowance of any sum in excess of such amount, does not require the approval of the probate court to the allowance of a claim of a funeral director in excess of three hundred fifty dollars founded on a contract made with the decedent in his lifetime. Such a contract fixing a price in excess of three hundred fifty dollars for services rendered by the funeral director is valid: Schroyer v. Hopwood, 65 App 443, 19 OO 45, 30 NE(2d) 440 discussed in 7 OSLJ 472.

13.1 In an action by administrator to recover money in a bank, the bank may set off against claim of administrator a contractual obligation acquired by the bank: Haefner v. First Nat'l Bank, 67 App 213, 21 OO 197, 36 NE(2d) 308, 34 OLA 523.

14. General Code § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) et seq furnish the provisions for the payment of debts chargeable against the estate of a decedent: Riley v. Keel, 84 App 313, 39 OO 468, 85 NE(2d) 123.

15. General Code § 10503-5 (RC § 2105.10) is to be read in pari materia with GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) et seq: Riley v. Keel, 84 App 313, 39 OO 468, 85 NE(2d) 123.

15.1 From the wording of this section it appears that the legislature recognized an honest and proper claim for funeral expenses presented within time to an administrator of the estate of a deceased person as a debt of the estate for which the estate of the deceased is liable: Adams v. Malik, 106 App 461, 463, 7 OO(2d) 196, 155 NE(2d) 237.

15.2 Under RC § 2305.21 the administrator, as legal owner of the general personal estate of the deceased which has come to him in the course of law, may sue for injury to property comprising the estate; and, where the estate is diminished by a charge upon it for funeral expenses (RC § 2117.25) which directly resulted from another's wrongdoing, there is injury to property in the deceased's estate to the extent of the charge: Adams v. Malik, 106 App 461, 7 OO(2d) 196, 155 NE(2d) 237.

15.3 The right of a widow to a year's allowance vests immediately upon husband's death and survives the widow as an asset of her estate: In re Wreed's Estate, 106 App 324, 7 OO(2d) 75, 154 NE(2d) 756; In re Bremer's Estate, 67 App 144, 21 OO 150, 34 OLA 193, 36 NE(2d) 48.

15.4 Revised Code § 5105.13, providing for the priority of claims against certain estates, is a special statute covering only the administration of estates in which a claim of the division of aid for the aged is involved; constitutes an exception to this section, which is a general statute covering estates generally; and governs the amount allowable as a preferred claim for funeral expenses against an estate in which the division of aid for the aged has a claim (a sum not exceeding $300): In re Pfeiffer, 109 App 331, 11 OO(2d) 132, 165 NE(2d) 795.

15.5 A lien of the division of the aged takes priority over the claim of the surviving spouse for the property exempt from administration: Division of Aid for the Aged v. Huff, 110 App 483, 11 OO(2d) 397, 168 NE(2d) 316; 1938 OAG No. 2111.

15.6 Intestate personality resulting from the lapse of a will bequest shall first be applied to debt payment and then to the cost of administration: Spoerl v. Schriever, 44 OApp(2d) 161, 73 OO(2d) 159, 336 NE(2d) 851 (1975).

16. Determination of federal income tax liability on income derived from personal property discussed: In re Gamble's Estate, 8 OMisc 314, 36 OO(2d) 388, 220 NE(2d) 621.

17. The legislature's use of the word "preferred" in GC § 1359-7 (RC § 5105.13), in describing the claim of the Ohio division of aid for the aged against a recipient's estate, gives such claim priority over the claims set forth in GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25): Rogers v. Peoples Bldg. & Co., 12 OO 245 (PC).

19. A stranger who pays the decedent's funeral bill not as an officious meddler but out of the necessity of the occasion is entitled to reimbursement by the estate of the deceased provided the bill is reasonable: Textler v. Marquard, 14 OO 381 (MC).

21. Under amended paragraph 4, the unpaid taxes, penalties and assessments no longer constitute taxes and special assessments remaining unpaid against the estate; they are only a lien against the real estate and impose no obligation against the remainder of the estate or upon the heir succeeding to the estate: In re Haughton, 21 OO 360 (PC).

22. In an insolvent estate of a decedent administered in the state of Ohio, debts of the deceased due to the United States shall be paid to the extent of assets available therefor after making deductions for costs and expenses of administration, preferred claims for funeral expenses, and the amount fixed as the year's allowance for the support of the widow and children of the deceased; and after paying the claim of the United States for debts of the deceased to the extent of assets available therefor, the assets remaining shall be paid on claims in the priority listed in GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), disregarding further consideration of item 4 thereof: In re Fackler, 27 OO 232, 12 OSupp 145 (PC).

23. Under the authority of GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), an administrator can maintain an action for the benefit of his decedent's estate to recover the funeral expenses of his decedent: Hunter v. McKinney, 46 OO 17, 101 NE(2d) 810 (CP).

24. General Code § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) is a provision for payment of debts of deceased and determination of priority in which they shall be paid; in no sense does it secure the payment of any debt: Howett v. Howett, 25 OLA 150.

25. The probate court has no power to allow an amount in excess of three hundred and fifty dollars for funeral expenses, under subdivision seven of GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), so as to make the excess amount payable under subdivision one: Bush v. Cleaver, 29 OLA 284.

25.1 A preferred claim of the Division of Aid for the Aged has priority only over general claims but not over preferred claims contained in RC § 5105.13: Bush v. Cleaver, 29 OLA 284.

26. The fact that the estate of a deceased wife is liable for the expenses of her last sickness, by reason of GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25), does not in any way modify the husband's obligation with regard to medical services furnished the wife, if he would otherwise be liable under any of the three legal theories set forth next above: Heym v. Juhasz, 45 OLA 571, 68 NE(2d) 119 (App).

28. The husband is primarily responsible for the expenses of his wife's last illness and a claim for such expenditures made by a surviving husband is not a proper item to be listed by the administrator in the schedule of debts owing from the estate: In re Shields, 67 OLA 457, 116 NE(2d) 828 (PC).

29. A claimant who rendered no care to the decedent during her last illness, as contemplated by this section, is not entitled to a bequest of the residue of decedent's estate to "whoever takes care of me in my last illness": Holmes v. Krause, 56 OO 272, 123 NE(2d) 337 (PC).

30. A personal representative may properly pay and be compensated for the funeral expenses of his decedent: Hunter v. McKinney, 69 OLA 237 (CP).

31. If an administrator has paid or obligated himself to pay the funeral expenses of his decedent he may maintain an action for the benefit of the estate to recover such funeral expenses against the person who caused the wrongful death of his decedent: Hunter v. McKinney, 69 OLA 237 (CP).

31.1 Personal property of decedent is primarily liable for debts: Ginder & Smith v. Ginder, 72 OLA 277, 134 NE(2d) 603.

31.2 Regardless of whether the surviving spouse takes under the will or statute, the federal estate tax is a debt against the entire estate: Ginder & Smith v. Ginder, 72 OLA 277, 134 NE(2d) 603.

32. This section is a general statute covering the administration of estates generally while RC § 5105.13, is a specific statute covering only the administration of estates in which a claim of the division of aid for the aged is involved: In re Young, 74 OLA 129, 140 NE(2d) 792 (PC).

33. The sovereigns which have a claim against a decedent's estate and which claim comes to the knowledge of the fiduciary, should be paid regardless of whether or when the claim was presented: Baker v. Charles, 31 OO(2d) 310, 202 NE(2d) 646 (PC).

34. The United States is not required to file its claim for unpaid withholding and social security taxes against a decedent's estate within four months after appointment of the fiduciary, or within nine months after such appointment by leave of court, nor to proceed with an action within two months after the claim had been rejected; and an executor who has no objection to the merits of the claim is under a duty to pay the same before distributing the assets to the sole beneficiary: Baker v. Charles, 31 OO(2d) 310, 202 NE(2d) 646 (PC).

35. Revised Code § 5105.13 is an exception to this section and should be so read: 1940 OAG No. 1853.

Scope and effect

1. Duties of administrator or executor enumerated: Greer v. State, 2 OS 574.

2. The year's allowance is payable at once: Steward v. Barry, 102 OS 129, 131 NE 492.

Payment of debts in general

3. A recognizance for the appearance of an individual is not such special claim on the estate of the recognizer as to be entitled to a preference over ordinary creditors upon distribution of that estate: Dewitt v. Osburn, 5 O 480.

4. Under a provision in a will requiring the executor to reject all claims presented by testator's children; and providing that if one of such children should recover upon a claim against the estate, such claim should be deducted from his share, the amount recovered by an assignee of one of such children must be deducted from the share of the assignor: Scheets v. Hunter, 56 OS 761, 49 NE 1116.

5. A debtor of decedent's estate will be allowed credit on his debt for money which he has expended in paying debts of the decedent: Caraway v. Robinson, 85 OS 485, 98 NE 1121.

6. Money which has been borrowed after the death of the owner of realty and applied to the discharge of a valid ditch assessment against such property, is a lien upon such property in favor of the person advancing such money: Sears v. Walker, 85 OS 490, 98 NE 1132.

7. The charges imposed by law upon an estate must first be paid out of the estate as a whole before payment of the charges imposed upon the estate by the will of the testator: Christian Association v. Davis, 106 OS 366, 140 NE 114.

8. A residuary devisee or legatee is presumed in law to be in the position of the last lienholder, after all prior lawful claims and charges have been satisfied out of the estate: Christian Association v. Davis, 106 OS 366, 140 NE 114.

9. The liability of a husband for necessities or care furnished to his wife is not affected by the fact that he is insane or mentally incompetent to transact business, and an action for recovery for services or necessities so furnished may be maintained against the administrator of such husband, although the indebtedness was incurred during the lifetime of the husband and was not approved by his guardian: Badger v. Orr, 1 App 293, 17 CC(NS) 312, 24 CD 328.

9.1 Shares of stock are part of an estate's assets even if in the hands of remote distributees: Starr v. Weir, 35 App 374, 172 NE 537.

10. If an executor who has no authority to borrow money does so, and the money which he thus borrowed actually goes into the estate, the estate must repay the amount thus borrowed: Westwater v. Guitner, 18 NP(NS) 209, 30 OD 370.

11. If a creditor of the estate of a decedent who claims that his mortgage is prior to another mortgage given by such decedent in his lifetime, accepts a mortgage upon decedent's realty after his death, executed by his heirs, such creditor does not waive his priority over such other mortgage, especially if the mortgage which such creditor accepts from such heirs provides expressly that such creditor by the acceptance of such mortgage did not admit a priority of such other mortgage: Schell v. Bernhard, 25 CC(NS) 411, 26 CD 39 [appeal from 24 OD(NP) 182].

12. If the owner of realty insures a building in a mutual insurance company, his estate is liable for assessments made in accordance with the terms of such policy up to the time of his death, and his estate is liable, together with his heirs, for assessments made in accordance with the terms of such policy after his death and before the expiration of such policy: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

13. The fact that the executor represents the testator in giving effect to his wishes as embodied in his last will, does not justify the executor, as a matter of law, in undertaking the defense of a contest of such will at the expense of the estate: In re Curry, 20 NP (NS) 49, 27 OD 485.

14. For order for payment of debt, see Lingler v. Wesco, 79 OS 225, 86 NE 1004, 128 AmSt 714, 21 LRA(NS) 182 [affirming circuit court, which affirmed, Lingler v. Kraft, 3 NP(NS) 653, 16 OD 474]; In re Seigel, 53 F(2d) 269.

—Funeral expenses

15. Funeral expenses may include a reasonable amount for a tombstone or monument: Kilbourne v. Fay, 29 OS 264.

16. Large expenditures for burials, disproportionate to the assets of an estate, should not be encouraged: In re McKenna, 1 LegGazRep 12.

17. It has been held that an undertaker's bill of two hundred and one dollars, where the estate was seven hundred and ninety-eight dollars, was unreasonably high, and it was cut down to one hundred and fifty dollars: In re Karschner, 6 NP(NS) 459, 52 Bull 107 [affirmed, Kroll v. Close, 82 OS 190, 92 NE 29].

18. It is the duty of the probate judge, upon the hearing of an administrator's account, whether exceptions have been filed or not, to scan closely the amounts claimed to have been paid for funeral expenses, and if unreasonable and extravagant, should be disallowed, even against legatees and next of kin: Kroll v. Close, 82 OS 190, 92 NE 29.

19. Where husband and wife each held ample separate estate, the husband was not entitled to reimbursement for payment of his wife's funeral expenses: Phillips v. Tolerton, 9 NP(NS) 565, 20 OD 249 [affirmed, without opinion, 82 OS 403, 92 NE 1121].

20. The husband was held liable for payment of his wife's funeral expenses though there existed a contract of separation between them releasing him from all claims for her support, regardless of any separate estate of the deceased wife: Humphrey v. Huff, 3 App 111, 20 CC(NS) 178, 25 CD 117.

21. The husband has been held liable upon the death of his wife while divorce proceedings were pending: Eveland v. Sherman, 9 NP(NS) 559, 21 OD 726.

22. By these decisions it seems settled that a husband is liable for the funeral expenses of his deceased wife and when he pays same out of his own funds is not entitled to reimbursement therefor from her estate. However, GC § 10509-125 (RC § 2117.26) modifies these cases, allowing reimbursement to the extent that the rights of other creditors of the estate of the wife will not be prejudiced thereby.

23. Revised Statutes § 6090, which directed the payment of funeral expenses and those of last sickness, may apply to the estate of a deceased married woman, though such deceased left surviving her a husband having property: McClellan v. Filson, 44 OS 184, 5 NE 861, 58 AmRep 814.

24. In such case, where it is shown that the physician, who attended the deceased in her last illness, was called at her request under such circumstances as to warrant a charge against her, and that the purchase of coffin and other necessary articles for the funeral, being suitable to the station of the deceased, were made by the executor, such executor may properly allow such expenses, and pay them from the assets of the estate: McClellan v. Filson, 44 OS 184, 5 NE 861, 58 AmRep 814.

25. This section, which directs payment of funeral expenses and those of last sickness, may apply to the estate of a deceased married woman, though such deceased left surviving her a husband having property: McClellan v. Filson, 44 OS 184, 5 NE 861.

26. The estate of a married woman, who dies leaving property, is primarily liable for her funeral expenses, and where the husband pays them he may recover them from her administrator: Clawson v. Briggs, 16 CC(NS) 225, 26 CD 582.

27. Formerly, where an executor or administrator voluntarily or under process paid funeral expenses of deceased wife out of her estate, the estate was not entitled to reimbursement from her husband: In re Guthrie, 28 NP(NS) 447.

28. Where the consort of a deceased husband or wife received the entire property of said decedent by virtue of a devise for his or her support during life, with the remainder over, the said consort died leaving no estate, the expenses of his or her last sickness and funeral are a legal charge against the estate which passed to him or her for life: Kennedy Bros. v. Price, 23 CC(NS) 12, 27 CD 28 [affirmed, without opinion, Price v. Kennedy, 83 OS 472].

29. Unless it appears that a wife by special contract bound her separate estate for medical services rendered in her behalf during her lifetime, the husband is not relieved from liability for such services, and the physician may proceed against him without first exhausting her separate estate: Withrow v. Boone, 16 NP(NS) 506, 25 OD 402.

30. Funeral expenses and expenses of last sickness are made preferred claims under this section, and as such should be presented to the executor or administrator for his allowance or rejection, as provided by former GC § 10717 (see now RC § 2117.08): In re Miller, 12 OD(NP) 562.

—Expenses of administration

31. Necessary attorney fees in collecting assets or resisting unjust claims when paid by the administrator are expenses entitled to precedence as such: Thomas v. Moore, 52 OS 200, 39 NE 803.

32. Where the administrator is ordered by the court to pay to his attorney a sum found due him out of the assets of the estate in his hands for distribution, a failure to comply with such order is a breach of the administration bond for which the surety thereon is liable: Smith v. Rhodes, 68 OS 500, 68 NE 7.

33. An action cannot be maintained against an executor in his representative capacity for services which have been rendered by an attorney on behalf of the estate: Payne v. Rech, 6 App 327, 27 OCA 60.

34. If an executor assumes the burden of defending a proceeding to contest a will because of his own interest under such will, he is not entitled, in case of success, to be reimbursed out of the estate for the attorney fees expended by him in such contest: In re Curry, 20 NP(NS) 49, 27 OD 485.

35. The administrator may be entitled to the expenses for gathering crops: In re Turpin, 7 NP 569, 5 OD 410.

—Allowance to widow

36. The allowance of support to widow and children is made a debt of the estate by this statute, and land may, therefore, be sold to pay same: Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234; Neely v. Neely, 1 NP(NS) 97 [reversed on another ground, 49 Bull 85].

38. This section is an express declaration that the year's allowance to a widow is a debt of the estate and that she is a creditor thereof: Whitely v. Weber, 2 CC 338, 1 CD 517; Watts v. Watts, 38 OS 480.

39. Upon distribution of the proceeds of lands sold by the administrator to pay debts, the widow's claim for a year's support does not take precedence over judgment liens: Jones v. Allen, 6 NP 518, 8 OD 338.

40. Lands, upon which the widow gave a mortgage after her husband's death, having been sold to pay debts, the distribution of the fund arising therefrom must be as to the widow in accordance with the provisions of this section and not under the provisions of former GC § 10809 (see now RC § 2127.38), providing how a fund from the sale of land shall be applied: Neeley v. Neely, 1 NP(NS) 97, 48 Bull 929 [reversed on another ground, 49 Bull 85].

—Taxes

41. Taxes accumulating upon a decedent's real estate, which the personal representative has no funds to pay, are properly debts for the payment of which the lands of decedent may be sold: Welsh v. Perkins, 8 O 52.

42. The definition of taxes as "debts of decedent," under former GC § 10714 (see now RC § 2117.25), will be adopted in construing the inheritance tax law: Tax Commission v. Lamprecht, 107 OS 535, 140 NE 333, 31 ALR 985.

43. Plaintiff was entitled to the remainder in certain real estate, subject to a life estate in another. The life tenant died October 24, leaving a will of which defendant was executor. Before December 20, 1909, plaintiff requested defendant to pay the taxes for 1909, payable at that time, which defendant refused to do, the same remaining unpaid until March 16, 1910, when plaintiff paid all the taxes for 1909 and penalty attached for nonpayment of the part due December 20, 1909, and presented his claim therefor to the executor who rejected it. Suit being brought upon the claim, it was held that the taxes were a debt of the estate of the life tenant, and it was the duty of her executor to pay the same; the remainderman was not a volunteer in paying them and was entitled to recover: Robinson v. Bowler, 18 CC(NS) 372, 33 CD 102 [affirmed, without opinion, 88 OS 614].

44. Taxes and assessments and the liens for them are preferred over the liens securing the claims of general creditors: Pioneer Trust Co. v. Stich, 71 OS 459, 73 NE 520; Peoples Building Assn. v. Hanson, 5 NP 162, 7 OD 179.

45. Although an executor is made liable under the statute for payment of collateral inheritance tax, such tax is not paid on account of the estate, but on account of the legatees or distributees whom the state is unwilling to trust: State ex rel Hunt v. American Bonding Co., 16 NP(NS) 497, 23 OD 609, 58 Bull 249.

46. The taxes for the last half of a preceding year, which are due in June, whether against real or personal property, are a personal debt of a decedent, even if he dies before the time at which such taxes are payable in June. The administrator should pay such taxes out of the funds of the estate, and if he pays such taxes, he is entitled to credit on his account for such payment: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

46.1 Priority of statutory allowances to widows and minor children are fixed as of the date of the allowances and cannot be modified by subsequent developments: Swackhammer v. Fulton, 32 NP(NS) 100.

46.2 A widow and children of a deceased bankrupt are entitled to payment of a year's allowance even though the assets are in the hands of a bankruptcy trustee: Siegel v. Wells, 55 F(2d) 877.

—Expense of carrying on business

47. Where an executor, without authority, carries on the business of deceased, in order to pay debts and support the family of such testator, the general assets of the estate, not embarked in such business, are not liable for debts incurred by the executor in that business: Lucht v. Behrens, 28 OS 231.

Procedure

48. A creditor of decedent's estate may testify as to an independent claim asserted by a third person: Citizens Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 24 NP(NS) 361.

49. If a widow of decedent asserts a claim against the estate, and objection to her competency as a witness is sustained, the act of the administrator in cross-examining her is a waiver of her incompetency, and she may testify generally, except as to confidential communications: Citizens Nat. Bank v. Andrews, 24 NP(NS) 361.

50. An action by a creditor of an estate against the executor to recover judgment on a claim against decedent is not appealable from the court of common pleas: Yarian v. Stouffer, 14 App 306.

Bankruptcy

51. On death of bankrupt after adjudication and sale of assets, allowance from estate for widow's support held precluded by lien of trustee: In re Seigel, 54 F(2d) 269.

52. Bankruptcy act giving trustee right of lien creditor held not to create such lien as, under state statute, would preclude allowance to bankrupt's widow: Siegel v. Wells, 55 F(2d) 877.

§ 2117.26 Spouse's funeral expenses.

A surviving spouse is entitled to reimbursement from the estate of the deceased spouse for funeral expenses, if paid by the surviving spouse, to the extent that the rights of other creditors of the estate will not be prejudiced by such reimbursement.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-125; 114 v 320 (429); 129 v 1265, § 1. Eff 8-4-61.

A vendor's lien not disclosed of record shall not, after the death of the vendee, have priority as against general creditors of the deceased.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-126; 114 v 320 (429). EFF 10-1-53.

Comment

The purpose of this section is to prevent a vendor who has not seen fit to disclose his lien either by reservation in the deed or by taking back a purchase money mortgage and recording the same, from having preference over general creditors who may have relied upon the absence of a lien of record when the credit was extended.

Debts not due may, and on demand of the creditor shall, if assets are available therefor, be paid by the executor or administrator according to the class to which they belong. If the debt does not bear interest before maturity, it shall be discounted at the legal rate of interest; otherwise the stipulated rate of interest shall be paid to time of payment. If a creditor whose claim is not due refuses to accept payment as provided in this section, the executor or administrator shall set aside assets to satisfy such claim. The sufficiency of such assets and the manner and place of holding and preserving the same shall be first approved by the probate judge after notice to the creditor, and if such assets thereafter become insufficient to pay such claim in full because of depreciation or loss without fault of the executor or administrator, neither the executor nor administrator nor the remaining assets of the estate shall be liable to such creditor by reason thereof.

After setting aside such assets, the executor or administrator may proceed to make payment and distribution of the remaining assets of the estate and to settle the same without recourse by such creditor to the assets so distributed.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-124; 114 v 320 (429); 116 v 385 (400), § 1; 119 v 394 (411), § 1. EFF 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10735.

Comment

If the creditor refuses to accept payment, the probate court shall approve the sufficiency of the assets to be set aside and the manner and place of preserving the same. The executor or administrator may then distribute the remaining assets. If the assets set aside for payment of the claim depreciate or for any other reason become insufficient, the holder of the claim is without recourse to other assets or to other creditors who have received distribution.

This section applies to claims which are in existence at the date of death, but which are not due and payable. It does not apply to claims which are contingent at the date of death, as to which provision is made in RC § 2117.37 et seq.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. This section applies only to claims which are not disputed, and which have been allowed but are not due: In re Method, 10 OO 489 (PC).

3. Under this section, if a creditor whose claim is not due refuses to accept payment as therein provided, the executor or administrator shall set aside not only the principal then due, but also all interest at the stipulated rate up until the time of payment, i.e., the date of setting aside the assets. When this has been done, the claim is paid so far as the executor or administrator is concerned, and the court then shall order the estate released from the obligation, and order the fiduciary to cancel the same, as provided by GC § 10510-22 (RC § 2117.25): Meiser v. Kissinger, 26 OO 146, 11 OSupp 80 (PC).

5. In the absence of default under a ninety-nine year lease renewable forever, assigned by the lessee with the knowledge and consent of the lessor, mere privity of contract in the absence of privity of estate would not render the lessor's asserted claim for future rent against the estate of the deceased original lessee a debt not due as contemplated under this section, nor justify impounding such estate; such a claim is no more than a contingent claim which may never be due: Meek v. City Nat. Bank & Co., 32 OLA 201.

6. Property may be sold by an administrator to pay debts not yet due, especially where it appears that the creditor is willing to accept the money: Hunter v. Yocum, 18 NP(NS) 14, 27 OD 31.

7. The common pleas court has no jurisdiction to compel an administrator to receive payment of an unmatured note from an executor of another estate under this section: Denmead v. Sharp, 14 OD 300.

§ 2117.29 Beneficiary taking subject to mortgage. (GC § 10509-132)

When the only debts of an estate remaining unpaid are secured by liens on property of the estate, the devisees, legatees, or heirs entitled to receive such property may be permitted to take the same subject to such liens, if all the lienholders consent and waive recourse to all the other assets of the estate in the event such property so taken is insufficient to pay the debts secured by such liens.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-132; 114 v 320 (430); 119 v 394 (412), § 1. Eff 10-1-53; 129 v 582 (737). Eff 1-10-61.

Comment

A note and mortgage being a debt, it must in some way be paid or canceled as against the decedent. Sometimes a sale of the mortgaged land to pay the debt is very detrimental to an heir or legatee and yet the duty of the executor or administrator requires him to absolve the estate from all liability as to this mortgage indebtedness. The above section provides that the heir or legatee may take such land subject to the mortgage if he or she so desires and the mortgagee consents. Executors and administrators must see to it, however, that the estate is fully released from all liability, and it is suggested that proof thereof be filed in the probate court by the executor or administrator.

General Code § 10509-132, as amended in 8-22-41 (119 v 412), differed from the former GC § 10509-132 in that (a) it applied to personal property as well as real property, (b) it applied to all liens and not mortgage liens only, and (c) it applied where two or more liens existed while the former statute was limited to a single lien.

§ 2117.30 Suits against executor or administrator.

No suit shall be brought against an executor or administrator by a creditor of the decedent or by any other party interested in the estate until after five months from the time of the appointment of the executor or administrator, or the expiration of the further time allowed by the probate court for the collection of the assets of the estate, except in the following cases:

- (A) On claims rejected in whole or in part;
- (B) For the enforcement of a lien against or involving title to specific property;
- (C) For the recovery of a claim that would not be affected by the insolvency of the estate;
- (D) On account of fraud, conversion, or concealment of assets;
- (E) Any other action as to which a different rule is prescribed by statute.

When an executor or administrator dies, resigns, or is removed without having fully administered the estate of the deceased, the time between his death, resignation, or removal and the appointment of a successor shall be excluded in computing the five months or longer period provided in this section. In any event, his successor shall not be held to answer the suit until after the expiration of four months from the date of the successor's appointment, or a further time allowed him by the court for the collection of the assets of the estate.

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. A legacy bears interest after one year from notice of the appointment and qualification of the executor, unless the will, or the relationship of the parties shows a contrary intention: Webster v. American Bible Society, 50 OS 1, 33 NE 297; Gray v. Case

School, 62 OS 1, 56 NE 494 [affirming Case School v. Gray, 15 CC 488, 8 CD 241]; Ebersole v. Cole, 19 NP(NS) 507, 27 OD 175.

2. Under former GC § 10753 (repealed, 114 v. 320) where the appointment of an administrator is revoked by the probate court; but on appeal the administrator is restored to his office and duties, the period during which he was suspended from his office is to be deducted in fixing the two years' limitation for the bringing of an action against him as such administrator: Badger v. Orr, 1 App 293, 17 CC(NS) 312, 24 CD 328.

3. When an action is brought by the filing of a complaint, within the statute of limitations, complainant has one year thereafter in which to cause the appointment of a suitable personal representative and obtain service of summons against him. (Paragraphs 5 and 6 of syllabus of Wrinkle v. Trabert, 174 OS 233, 20 OO(2d) 248, supplanted by Civ.R. 3(A) and 4(A), (B) and (C).): Hayden v. Ours, 44 OMisc 62, 73 OO(2d) 224, 337 NE(2d) 183 (1975).

4. Failure of plaintiffs to aver when administrator was appointed does not violate this section: Roberts v. Hickerson, 11 OO 471, 26 OLA 616, 46 NE(2d) 803.

5. The requirement of this section that nine months shall elapse before action can be brought, may be waived by failure on part of executor or administrator to object either by demurrer or answer in civil action: Burkhardt v. Burkhardt, 12 OO 359 (PC).

6. Where an action in personal injury is filed two days prior to expiration of the statute of limitations against the administrator, such petition can be demurred to: Parrish v. McKee, 59 OO 316, 73 OLA 65, 135 NE(2d) 486.

7. When the language of RC §§ 2117.06, 2117.07 and 2117.30 is compared and the literal language applied, it will be noted there is no specific prohibition against the bringing of an action within the nine-month period of time from the date of appointment of the administrator: Simmons v. Bartley, 19 OO(2d) 335, 177 NE(2d) 77 (CP).

8. Alleged owners may not ordinarily bring replevin actions in common pleas courts against executors or administrators in the course of administration: In re Service Transport Co., 63 OLA 236, 108 NE(2d) 741.

9. Absence of a fiduciary against whom the federal government may bring an action to collect unpaid taxes tolls the six year statute of limitations: United States v. Besase, 57 OO(2d) 51, 29 OMisc 166, 319 FSupp 1064 (1970).

When two or more persons are indebted in a joint contract, or upon a judgment founded on such contract, and either of them dies, his estate shall be liable therefor as if the contract had been joint and several, or as if the judgment had been against himself alone. This section shall not affect the rights of a surety, when certified as such, in a judgment rendered jointly against him and his principal.

1. This section abrogates the common law rule, and the estate is made liable in the same manner as if the contract had been joint and several; and the survivor and the personal representative of the deceased obligor can be joined in the same action, whether the contract or obligation is in terms joint or several, or both, or is made so by this section; and it authorizes a several judgment to be rendered against each of them: Burgoyne v. Ohio Life Ins. Co., 5 OS 586; Bank of Chillicothe v. Yoe, 4 O 125; Buell v. Cross, 4 O 327.

2. Where partners are indebted for services rendered to them, the indebtedness is joint, and under the former practice, on the death of one, the only remedy of the creditor at law was a suit against the surviving partner; but by the statute the debt becomes a joint and several obligation, and the creditor has his election to sue the surviving partner, or the administrator of the deceased partner, or both the surviving partner and the administrator: Weil v. Guerin, 42 OS 299; Williams v. Bradley, 5 CC 114, 3 CD 58; 7 CC 227, 4 CD 570.

3. Where two administrators give a joint bond, with surety, for the faithful administration of the estate that may come to their possession, and thereafter all the property of the deceased comes into their joint possession, if waste is committed by one of the administrators after the death of the other, the surety can require that the estates of both be exhausted before he shall be subject for the surviving administrator's default: Eckert v. Myers, 45 OS 525, 15 NE 862; see also Horner v. Koons, 63 OS 559, 60 NE 1131.

5. A surviving spouse, who owned real property with her husband as a joint tenant with the right of survivorship, is entitled to receive contribution from her husband's estate where she has since sold the property and discharged all liability on a joint and several mortgage note which had been signed by both herself and the decedent: Pietro v. Leonetti, 30 OS(2d) 178, 59 OO(2d) 186, 283 NE(2d) 172.

6. This section affects a partnership contract as well as other joint contracts: Union Properties, Inc. v. Anzalone, 23 OO 206 (CP).

7. Unless there is a contrary provision in the partnership articles, the death of one partner dissolves the firm and upon the death of one of two or more joint defendants, the right of action becomes joint and several and one may maintain an action either severally or jointly: Fechheimer v. Kiefer, 5 OLA 265.

8. The common law liability of surviving joint obligors is in no way affected by former GC § 10733 (see now RC § 2117.31), such statute merely creating a liability against the estate of a deceased obligor which did not theretofore exist: Yoder v. Medbury-Ward Co., 10 OLA 493.

9. This section abrogates the common law rule which made joint liability on contract cease as to joint liability on death and makes the estate of such decedent jointly liable: Griffith v. Bender, 19 OLA

135; Simon v. Rudner, 43 App 38, 182 NE 650; Cornfeldt v. Rihacek, 39 App 292, 177 NE 522; In re Fouts, 103 App 313, 3 OO(2d) 353, 145 NE(2d) 440.

10. Where a surviving partner carries on the partnership business for two years after the death of the deceased partner for the joint benefit of the latter's estate and himself, in accordance with the will of the deceased partner, the latter's individual estate is not liable for debts contracted by the surviving partner during that time: Covington City Bank v. Wight, 4 NP 173, 6 OD 350.

11. In an action on a contract against a partnership, where one of the partners dies, plaintiff has his election to make the personal representative of deceased a party, or proceed against the survivor: Gaines v. Thurman & Co., 8 NP(NS) 521, 20 OD 95.

12. The death of a joint maker does not make his estate liable solely for such note as between such estate and the surviving joint maker. Accordingly, if a joint maker dies and the other joint maker is appointed his administrator, and the administrator pays such joint note out of the funds of the estate, such administrator cannot have credit for the full amount thus paid. He must be charged with his proportionate share of the amount due upon such note: In re Lones, 57 Bull 122.

13. Under GC § 10733 (see now RC § 2117.31) a claim against a deceased partner's estate, for joint firm obligations, may be filed or sued upon without first exhausting the firm assets or establishing the surviving partner's insolvency: Lackner v. McKechney, 252 Fed 403, 164 CCA 327 [writ of certiorari denied, 247 US 510].

If notice of the appointment of a former executor or administrator was not given as prescribed in section 2113.08 of the Revised Code, any new administrator shall be liable to the actions of creditors whose claims were not presented to the former executor or administrator, as if no executor or administrator had been previously appointed.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-154; 114 v 320 (435); 116 v 385 (401), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10756.

Comment

General Code § 10509-154, as effective January 1, 1932, was substantially the same as former GC § 10756 except that the former section provided that the action might be brought within two years from the date of the bond, whereas the amended section provided that action might be brought within two years from the date of his appointment.

The failure of the legislature to reduce the period of time that the new administrator, or executor shall be liable to actions of creditors, was evidently an omission, as there is no reason why such administrator or executor should be liable to actions longer than an original administrator.

General Code § 10509-154 was amended in 1935 so as to correct the omission of the legislature, effective January 1, 1932.

The comment of the probate code committee of the Ohio state bar association with reference to the amendment to this section was as follows:

"This was formerly GC § 10756 and was included in the new probate code without change through oversight. The amendment suggested puts it in harmony with the existing scheme of administration."

No execution against the assets of an estate shall issue upon a judgment against an executor or administrator unless upon the order of the probate court which appointed him. If an account has been rendered by such executor or administrator and settled by the court, such execution shall issue only for the sum that appeared, on settlement of such account, to be a just proportion of the assets applicable to the judgment. The order of the court allowing such execution shall fix the amount for which the same shall issue.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-140; 114 v 320 (432); 119 v 394 (414), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10736.

Comment

General Code § 10509-140 was the same as former GC § 10736 except that the words "twelve months" in the former section were changed to "nine months" in the present section to harmonize with the time schedule.

Committee comment on 1941 amendment (119 v 414) to GC § 10509-140 was as follows:

Execution shall not issue against an executor or administrator unless the probate court authorizes it, and the order of the court shall fix the amount for which such execution shall issue. These concepts are new. Under the former statute, execution might issue at any time after the expiration of nine months. The revisions are in harmony with the committee's policy of conferring upon the probate court complete authority to direct and control the administration of the estate. The committee believes that the probate court should dispose of all matters of a probate nature, and that courts of general jurisdiction should dispose of such matters as would be litigated in courts of general jurisdiction if the decedent were alive. Thus, a claimant whose claim has been rejected should sue the executor or administrator in the court of common pleas (or municipal court or justice's court), rather than litigate the issue on exceptions to the schedule of debts. Having obtained his judgment against the executor or administrator, however, the creditor should not be permitted to seize by levy of execution a substantial part of the assets of the estate, to the prejudice of other creditors whose claims have been allowed or established by judgment, and the probate court is empowered to prevent such action.

No real estate of a deceased person which has been aliened or encumbered by the decedent's heirs prior to the issuing of letters testamentary or of administration shall be liable while in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value or to the prejudice of a bona fide lessee or encumbrancer for value for debts of the deceased person unless letters testamentary or of administration are granted within four years from the date of death of such deceased person. No real estate of a deceased person which has been aliened or encumbered by the decedent's heirs or devisees after the issue of letters testamentary or of administration shall be liable while in the hands of a bona fide purchaser for value or to the prejudice of a bona fide lessee or encumbrancer for value for debts of a deceased person unless suit is brought to subject such real estate to the payment of such debts prior to the settlement of the executor's or administrator's final account or what purports to be his final account; provided that if such final account is not filed and settled within four years after the granting of letters testamentary or of administration, but excluding for the purposes hereof the time that any action is pending against the executors or administrators for the establishment or collection of any claim against the deceased, such real estate so aliened shall not be liable for the debts of the deceased unless suit is brought to subject such real estate thereto within such four-year period. The heir or devisee aliening such real estate shall be liable for the value thereof with legal interest from the time of alienation, to the creditors of the deceased in the manner and within the limitations provided by law. This section does not enlarge or extend the right of the creditors of any deceased person against his real estate, or repeal any limitations contained in other sections of the Revised Code, or apply to mortgages or liens of record at the time of the death of such deceased person.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-159; 114 v 320 (436). Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10774-1.

Comment

The analogous section to GC § 10509-159 was former GC § 10774-1. In 1925, the legislature enacted former GC § 10774-1 which was substantially the same as GC § 10509-159 which protected bona fide purchasers, mortgagees and lessees for value, of real estate, who obtain their title through heirs of a deceased owner, when such purchase is made more than four years after the death of such owner and no administration of the estate has been commenced. The reason for this statutory enactment was that creditors having had the right to apply for administration for four years, and not having exercised such right, were barred from holding decedent's real estate for their debts. The heirs or devisee who sold or aliened such property was, however, still liable to creditors of the decedent, up to the value of such property. General Code § 10509-159 did not affect mortgages or liens which are of record at the decease of the owner, so that in such cases administration will undoubtedly still be necessary. General Code § 10509-159 also exempted property from creditors' claims, if such property has been sold, encumbered or leased by the heirs after administration was commenced, unless such creditors have sued to subject such real estate prior to settlement of the executor's or administrator's final account, or, if the final account was not filed within four years after letters of administration are granted, then suit must have been brought by such creditors to subject the real estate within such four-year period.

Title experts and title companies generally refuse to certify title in the first purchaser from an heir or devisee, their reason being that such a purchaser cannot be a bona fide one since he knows or ought to know that he is not obtaining his deed from the record owner of the title but from an heir or devisee. They have, therefore, restricted their certification of title to subsequent purchasers from the first one.

Comment

General Code §§ 10509-216 to 10509-223 related to contingent claims. The Ohio statutes have provided for many years that if a cause of action accrues on a claim after the settlement of an estate, the heirs and distributees shall be liable to the extent of the property received by them from the estate. They have not distinguished, however, between unmaturing claims and contingent claims, i.e., claims upon which there is no liability, present or future, until the happening of a future event which may or may not happen. Under the 1941 amendments, unmaturing claims and contingent claims were carefully distinguished. Unmaturing claims must be presented as provided in RC § 2117.06. Contingent claims are governed by RC § 2117.37 et seq.

If an executor or administrator has made a partial distribution of the assets of the estate at the time a claim is presented under section 2117.37 of the Revised Code, and if the claim is allowed or after rejection is found to be due from the estate, but the assets remaining in the possession of the executor or administrator are insufficient to pay the claim in full, the assets remaining shall first be exhausted before proceeding to recover against the distributees of the assets of the estate. If a contingent claim is allowed or if after rejection it is found to be due from the estate, the creditor may bring an action thereon to recover from the distributees of the decedent's estate as provided in sections 2117.41 and 2117.42, inclusive*, of the Revised Code, within two months after the final payment on account thereof by the executor or administrator, if such recovery is necessary for the payment of the claim in full.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-216a; 119 v 394 (424), § 9. EF 10-1-53.

* So in enrolled bill.

Comment

This section relates to claims which must be presented to the executor or administrator as provided in RC § 2117.37. It has no relation to claims which fall within the provisions of RC § 2117.39. The assets in the hands of the executor or administrator must be exhausted before the creditors proceed against the distributees. Within two months after the executor or administrator makes final payment on account of the claim, the creditor may proceed against the distributees to recover the unpaid balance. The burden is upon the creditor to determine when he has received final payment from the executor or administrator. If he is in doubt as to whether a particular payment is the final payment, and cannot ascertain the true fact, the prudent creditor will institute his action against the distributees within the period of two months.

If at the time a cause of action accrues on a contingent claim against a decedent's estate, or if within two months thereafter an account of final distribution has been filed, no claim need be presented to the executor or administrator and the claimant may proceed by civil action against the distributees of the decedent's estate as provided in sections 2117.41 and 2117.42 of the Revised Code.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-216b; 119 v 394 (424), § 9. EF 10-1-53.

Comment

This section creates an exception to RC § 2117.37. It describes the circumstances under which a contingent claim need not be presented to the executor or administrator. Generally speaking, a contingent claim which gives rise to a cause of action after the final account is filed, or within two months prior thereto, need not be presented.

If a cause of action on a contingent claim accrues after the settlement of an estate or at such time that a claim thereon does not have to be presented to the executor or administrator, or if a contingent claim is presented to the executor or administrator as provided by section 2117.37 of the Revised Code, but the assets of the estate are insufficient for payment of the claim in full, then the heirs, next of kin, surviving spouse as next of kin, devisees, and legatees shall be liable for the payment of such claim or the unpaid balance thereof in an action in the court of common pleas as provided in sections 2117.41 and 2117.42 of the Revised Code.

Comment

This section and those following define the conditions upon which the holder of a contingent claim may proceed against the heirs and distributees. The heirs and distributees are liable (a) if a cause of action accrues after settlement of the estate, (b) if a cause of action accrues within two months preceding the filing of the account or final distribution, or (c) if a cause of action accrues and a claim is presented before the estate is settled and the assets of the estate are not sufficient for payment thereof.

A claimant whose cause of action accrues as provided in section 2117.37 of the Revised Code may bring suit to recover thereon against the heirs, next of kin, surviving spouse as next of kin, devisees, and legatees under the decedent's will, each of whom shall be liable to the claimant in an amount not exceeding the value of the real and personal estate that he received under the will or on distribution of the estate. If, by the will of the deceased, any part of the estate or any one or more of the devisees and legatees is made exclusively liable for the debt, in exoneration of the residue of the estate or of the other devisees or legatees, the terms of the will shall be complied with in that respect and the persons and estate so exempt by the will shall be liable for only so much of the debt as cannot be recovered from those first chargeable therewith.

No such suit shall be maintained unless commenced within six months next after the time when the cause of action first accrues, except in case the suit is for the balance due after a payment by the executor or administrator, in which case suit shall be brought within two months after the final payment by the executor or administrator. If the person entitled to bring such suit is under legal disability, he may bring such action within one year after his disability is removed.

If any of such heirs, next of kin, surviving spouse as next of kin, devisees, or legatees, dies without having paid his just proportion of such debt, his executors or administrators shall be liable therefor to the extent he would have been if living.

Comment

General Code §§ 10509-217 to 10509-223 (RC §§ 2117.41, 2117.42) were not materially modified, but their scope has been limited by virtue of the revision in 1941 (119 v 424) of GC § 10509-216 (RC § 2117.37) and the addition of GC §§ 10509-216a, 10509-216b and 10509-216c (RC §§ 2117.38, 2117.39, 2117.40). In other words, GC §§ 10509-217 (RC §§ 2117.41, 2117.42) et seq are now limited to suits for the enforcement of contingent claims.

Ohio statutes of limitation on claims against estates. Francis J. Eberly, 16 OS LJ 206.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

Limitations

1. Since GC § 11218 (RC § 2305.03) et seq do not apply, by the provision of GC § 11218 (RC § 2305.03), to cases where a different limitation is prescribed by statute, the ten year limitation prescribed by GC § 11226 (RC § 2305.12) does not apply to actions against the heirs, widow and next of kin of a decedent, for liability upon an executor's bond; but by the provision of this section such action must be brought within one year: Roth v. Hummel, 1 App 361, 17 CC(NS) 252, 25 CD 355.

5. Beneficiaries under a trust cannot maintain an action against the heirs and legatees of the deceased trustee or enforce a claim against their interest in the trust property, where no claim was asserted against his estate within the time fixed by the laws of administration: Robson v. Evans, 3 App 248, 20 CC (NS) 122, 25 CD 510 [on appeal from 13 NP(NS) 326, 24 OD 503, and affirmed, without opinion, Evans v. Robson, 92 OS 540].

6. Heirs who set aside a will over one year after administration of the estate cannot recover back money received: Swetland v. Miles, 2 OLA 187. [See also, 139 OS 501, 130 NE 22].

7. A right of action in favor of a testamentary trustee against the next of kin of an obligor of a depository bond securing trust deposits in a bank which became insolvent is barred by the provisions of GC § 10509-218 (RC § 2117.41), where the debt could have been sued for against the executrix of the obligor's estate but the action was not begun until more than a year after it accrued: Rogers v. Schuller, 27 OLA 449.

8. A claim for damages from an auto accident not presented to the executor within nine months of appointment cannot be revived even if plaintiff is a minor: Overman v. Yake, 68 OLA 248, 109 NE(2d) 697.

9. Neither the limitation in former GC § 10746 nor that in former GC § 10878 applies to a suit for specific performance of a contract to execute a will in favor of plaintiff: Ohlendiek v. Schuler, 299 Fed 182.

Heirs, etc., to contribute to pay claims after settlement of estate

11. The right of action, on a guardian's bond, to recover from the heirs of the sureties the amount remaining in his hands, first accrues to the ward, when such amount is ascertained by the probate court on the settlement of the guardian's final account. Mere delay of the ward, on arriving of age, to compel settlement, does not discharge the sureties: Newton v. Hammond, 38 OS 431.

12. From a study of RC §§ 2117.37 et seq., relating to contingent claims, it is apparent that if an executor has lawfully distributed a part or all of the estate assets, the distributee is not required to return them, and the claimant's remedy for any deficiency is by an action against the distributee: In re Robbins, 28 OO(2d) 399, 200 NE(2d) 735 (PC).

Estate of an heir liable after his death

16. The record of a judgment against the administrator, and the return of nulla bona by the sheriff to an execution issued thereon, is not evidence to show the want of assets in the hands of the administrator in an action against the heir to subject his real estate to the payment of the ancestor's debts: Donley v. Shields, 14 O 359; see also Meehan v. Burr, 58 OS 689, 51 NE 1099.

If, in the cases specified in section 2117.41 of the Revised Code, more than one person is liable for the debt, the creditor shall proceed by one action to recover such debt against all so liable, or as many of them as are within the reach of process. Thereupon, by the verdict of a jury if either party requires it, the court must determine what sum is due to the plaintiff. They also, according to the equities of the case, shall decide how much each of the defendants is liable to pay toward the satisfaction of the debt and the court shall render judgment accordingly.

No suit shall be dismissed or debarred for not making all the persons defendants who might have been included as such. In any stage of the cause the court may award process to bring in other parties and allow amendments necessary to charge them, as defendants, upon such terms as it deems reasonable.

If any of the persons who were originally liable for the debt is insolvent or unable to pay his proportion, or is beyond the reach of process, the others nevertheless shall be liable to the creditor for the whole amount of his debt; except that no one shall be compelled to pay more than the amount received by him from the decedent's estate.

If, in consequence of insolvency, absence or other cause, any of the persons liable for such debt fails to pay his just proportion to the creditor, he shall be liable to indemnify all who, by reason of such failure on his part, have paid more than their just proportion of the debt, such indemnity to be recovered by all of them jointly or in separate actions, by any one or more for his or their parts respectively, at their election.

Creditors may proceed against all in one action

1. A joint action under § 43 of the act of 1831 (3 Chase's Stat 1784), "defining the duties of executors and administrators" cannot be sustained against several heirs or devisees, where there is no joint contract, either express or implied: Spicer v. Giselman, 15 O 338.

2. In a suit against the distributees of a bondsman's estate, based on the bondsman's obligation under a surety bond, the distributees are liable only to the extent of the value of that part of the estate actually received by them, and the plaintiff must produce proof of such value: *New Philadelphia v. 3. In view of the exception appearing in the last portion of GC § 10509-221 (RC § 2117.42), "that no one shall be compelled to pay more than the amount received by him from the decedent's estate," it does become material to prove the value of property inherited by a distributee, and that value is its worth when distributed to him: *New Philadelphia v. CASE NOTES AND OAC

[CONSTRUING FORMER ANALOGOUS SECTION]

1. Where an individual leaves his family and usual place of residence and goes to parts unknown or a distant state and is not heard from for a period of seven or more years, a presumption arises that he is dead: Brunny v. Prudential Ins. Co., 151 OS 86, 38 OO 533, 84 NE(2d) 504.

2. Such presumption of death is not conclusive and may be rebutted by counterevidence: Brunny v. Prudential Ins. Co., 151 OS 86, 38 OO 533, 84 NE(2d) 504.

3. A person, who for seven years has not been heard of by those who, had he been alive, would naturally have heard of him, is presumed to be dead unless the circumstances of the case are such as to account for his not having been heard of, without assuming his death: Doty v. Ohio National Life Ins. Co., 58 App 1, 10 OO 177, 25 OLA 673, 15 NE(2d) 544.

4. Where an insurance policy is issued, the amount thereof to be paid to the beneficiary upon the receipt at the home office of the company "of due notice of death of the insured during the continuance of the policy" and an action is brought against the insurance company by the beneficiary for the amount of the policy, and it is alleged that "on or about the 15th day of November, 1928, the insured disappeared from his home and usual place of residence, and that ever since said date  he has neither been heard of, seen, or his existence or whereabouts established" and that the insured is dead, it is a question of fact for the jury to determine whether the insured, under the facts disclosed by the evidence, is actually dead: Doty v. Ohio National Life Ins. Co., 58 App 1, 10 OO 177, 25 OLA 673, 15 NE(2d) 544.

5. "Due proof" required by the policy, which would entitle the beneficiary to demand payment, need only be such as could be furnished under the circumstances. The absence of the insured for a period of seven years is presumptive evidence of death and if "due proof" of this is submitted to the company and not questioned, it is sufficient to be the basis of a demand for payment under the policy: Doty v. Ohio National Life Ins. Co., 58 App 1, 10 OO 177, 25 OLA 673, 15 NE(2d) 544.

6. Where due proof is alleged by the petition to have been furnished to the company and a claim for payment made and the company denies liability, but makes no objection to the character of the "proof of death," more formal or definite proof than that furnished by a showing of the absence of an insured for a period of seven years is waived and suit may be brought for recovery on the policy, upon the refusal of the company to pay the same: Doty v. Ohio National Life Ins. Co., 58 App 1, 10 OO 177, 25 OLA 673, 15 NE(2d) 544.

7. The common-law presumption arising after seven years' absence has not been abrogated by the presumed decedents' act which provides the procedure for administering an estate of one who is presumed to be dead on account of seven or more years' absence from the place of his last domicile: White v. Industrial Comm., 102 App 236, 2 OO(2d) 264, 142 NE(2d) 549.

8. The common law rule as to the presumption of death arising seven years after the date of disappearance has not been abrogated by the presumed decedents' act (this section): Blythe v. Vail, 11 OO 393 (CP).

9. Common law rule that unexplained absence from usual place of residence for seven years raised presumption of death, held not abrogated by this section: Morrissey v. Smith, 39 OLR 329 (App).

§ 2121.02 [Proceedings in case of presumption of death.]

(A) When such a presumption of death arises under section 2121.01 of the Revised Code with respect to a person who at the time of disappearance was domiciled in this state, the attorney general of this state or any person entitled under the last will of such presumed decedent or under sections 2105.06 to 2105.21 of the Revised Code to any share in the presumed decedent's property within this state, or any person or entity who, under the terms of any contract, beneficiary designation, trust, or otherwise, may be entitled to any property, right, or interest by reason of the death of the presumed decedent, may file a complaint setting forth the facts which raise the presumption of death in the probate court of the county of the presumed decedent's last residence.

(B) When a presumption of death arises pursuant to section 2121.01 of the Revised Code with respect to a person who at the time of his disappearance was domiciled at a place other than within the state, and the presumed decedent owns real property within this state, the complaint may be filed in the county where any part of the real property of the presumed decedent is located by any of the persons or entities referred to in division (A) of this section, or by any domiciliary executor or administrator of the decedent. A foreign fiduciary shall include with the complaint an exemplified copy of the domiciliary proceedings pursuant to which the foreign fiduciary was appointed.

(C) In the case of a presumed decedent who was domiciled in this state, the complainant shall name as parties defendant the presumed decedent and each of the following that do not join in the complaint:

(1) The presumed decedent's surviving spouse, if any;

(2) All persons known to the complainant who are entitled under the presumed decedent's last will and all persons who are entitled under sections 2105.06 to 2105.21 of the Revised Code to any share of the presumed decedent's property;

(3) All persons or entities known to the complainant who have or would have by reason of the presumed decedent's death any right or interest under any contract, beneficiary designation, trust, or otherwise;

(4) All contract obligors known to the complainant whose rights or obligations would be affected by a determination that the presumed decedent is in fact dead.

(D) In the case of a presumed decedent who was not domiciled in this state but who owned real estate in this state, the complainant shall name as parties defendant each of the following that do not join in the complaint:

(1) The presumed decedent's surviving spouse, if any;

(2) All persons known to the complainant who are entitled under the presumed decedent's last will and all persons who are entitled under sections 2105.06 to 2105.21 of the Revised Code to any share of the presumed decedent's real property within this state.

(E) All parties defendant, other than the presumed decedent, shall be served with summons in the same manner as provided by the Rules of Civil Procedure.

(F) The complainant shall cause to be advertised once a week for four consecutive weeks in a newspaper published in the county, the fact that the complaint has been filed together with a notice that on a day certain, which shall be at least four weeks after the last appearance of the advertisement, or after the final publication where any defendant is being served by publication, whichever is later, the probate court will hear evidence relevant to the allegations of the complaint.

(G) No guardian ad litem, trustee for the suit, or other representative shall be required to be appointed to represent the presumed decedent in the proceeding.

1. Where one is appointed administrator of the estate of an individual presumed to be dead by reason of seven or more years' unexplained absence, under the presumed decedents' act (this section), and brings an action to collect the proceeds of a policy of insurance issued on the life of the presumed decedent, payable upon his death, the burden rests upon the plaintiff to establish the material averments of his cause of action by a preponderance of all the evidence, which burden never shifts: Brunny v. Prudential Ins. Co., 151 OS 86, 38 OO 533, 84 NE(2d) 504.

2. The presumed decedents' act (GC § 10509-25 [RC § 2121.01] et seq), is not intended to apply when a presumed decedent leaves no estate to be administered, but is confined by its terms to the administration of the known estate of a presumed decedent: Freiberg v. Schloss, 50 OO 156, 112 NE(2d) 352. (PC).

3. Proceedings may be instituted under this section to have legally presumed dead an inmate of a state institution who has escaped and not been heard from for seven or more years, and money on deposit in the name of the superintendent of such state institution, as trustee for such inmate, may be closed out and distributed according to law after a legal presumption of death has been made out: 1934 OAG No. 3053.

§ 2121.03 [Probate court hearing.]

At the hearing the probate court shall hear such legally admissible evidence as is offered for the purpose of ascertaining whether the presumption of death is established. No person shall be disqualified to testify by reason of relationship as husband or wife to the presumed decedent, or by reason of an interest in the presumed decedent's property, or because of a right or interest under the terms of a contract, beneficiary designation, trust, or otherwise, arising by reason of the death of the presumed decedent.

When is a presumed decedent dead according to law? Francis J. Eberly. 45 OO 221.

CASE NOTES AND OAG[CONSTRUING FORMER ANALOGOUS SECTION]

1. The common law rule, so far as the administration of decedents' estates is concerned, has been modified by the presumed decedents' act, GC § 10509-25 (RC § 2121.01) et seq, and under such act the presumption of death in the case of unexplained absence for seven or more years arises as of the date of the decree of the probate court authorized by this section: In re McWilson, 155 OS 281, 44 OO 262, 98 NE(2d) 289.

2. The provisions of the presumed decedents' act (GC § 10509-25 [RC § 2121.01] et seq) may not be applied to determine the date of death of a person, who has been absent from the place of his last domicile for more than seven years, so as to make such date subsequent to the death of another person from whom such absentee would have inherited an estate had he survived such other person, and thus make such date available as an item of evidence in the determination of the right to share in the estate of such other person: Baker v. Myers, 160 OS 376, 52 OO 239, 116 NE(2d) 711.

3. The provision of RC § 2121.04 that the presumption of death shall be regarded as having arisen as of the date of the decree does not mean that the presumption proves the existence of actual life prior to the decree, so as to enable a third person to receive property through or on behalf of the "missing" person: State ex rel. Hammond v. Public Employees Retirement System, 29 OS(2d) 192, 58 OO(2d) 403, 280 NE(2d) 904.

4. That part of this section, which provides that the "presumption of death shall be regarded as having arisen as of the date of such decree," is unconstitutional: Blythe v. Vail, 11 OO 393 (CP).

5. When necessary, in determining distributive rights of devisees named in a will, the probate court, in an action brought by an executor for a declaratory judgment, where a devisee has been missing from the place of his last domicile, may declare and decree, when proven by a preponderance of the evidence, that said devisee is in fact dead, may fix the actual date of his death, and may determine what rights, if any, he has under a testator's will: Freiberg v. Schloss, 50 OO 156, 112 NE(2d) 352 (PC).

6. When it can be proven that a missing person died on a certain date, either within seven or more years absence from the place of his last domicile, his date of death shall be regarded as having arisen on such proven date, rather than on the date of the decree when he is merely presumed to be dead under GC § 10509-25 (RC § 2121.01) et seq.: Freiberg v. Schloss, 50 OO 156, 112 NE(2d) 352 (PC).

7. The date fixed by the probate court, under this section, as the date when the presumption of death arises, cannot conclude strangers to the judgment which fixes the date, and cannot prevent such other parties from asserting in an independent action that the presumption of death is complete at the end of the seven-year period specified by the common law rule: Morrissey v. Smith, 39 OLR 329 (App).

(A) Except as provided otherwise in Chapter 2121. of the Revised Code, all of the proceedings for the probate of the decedent's last will, if any, and all the proceedings, domiciliary or ancillary, for the administration of the decedent's estate that are set forth in the Revised Code for use upon the death of a decedent, shall upon the signing of the decree be instituted and carried on in the same manner as if the presumed decedent were in fact dead. All acts pursuant to these proceedings shall be as valid as if the presumed decedent were in fact dead.

(B) Following the decree the court may make such supplementary orders as in its discretion are necessary to consummate any right or interest arising by reason of the death of the presumed decedent under any contract, trust, or other non-probate property interest of any person or entity who was a party to the proceedings. The court may condition the granting of any such order by requiring any person or entity who would benefit thereby to furnish bond for a three-year period after the decree in the form and amount, with or without sureties, as the court shall order. If any supplementary order is directed to the holder of assets of the presumed decedent which were created by the decree of presumed death, the court, at the request of the party defendant to whom the order is directed, shall condition the granting of any such order by requiring any person or entity who would benefit thereby to furnish a suretyship bond for a three-year period after the decree in the amount of the assets so created by the decree with interest for the period of the bond at the rate specified in the order.

(C) The term "assets of the presumed decedent which were created by the decree of presumed death" as used in division (B) of this section and division (D) of section 2121.08 of the Revised Code, means those potential assets of the presumed decedent in which the presumed decedent had a contractual or other right, contingent upon the presumed decedent's death, to have such assets paid to his designee and the decree of presumed death would fulfill the contingency. Only that portion of the proceeds of life insurance policies on the life of the presumed decedent that exceeds any net cash surrender value of such policies on the date of the decree is within the definition of the term "assets of the presumed decedent which were created by the decree of presumed death."

(D) The bond shall provide that, if within the three-year period after the decree is entered by the court it is established that the presumed decedent is alive, such person or entity shall on the subsequent order of the court refund or return any sums, with interest as provided in the court order, or property received by virtue of such order, to the presumed decedent or to the person or entity who, by reason of the erroneous finding of death of the presumed decedent, made such payment or delivered such property. The bond shall be further conditioned on returning the fair value of the property if the same shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of in the interim.

(E) If the person or entity who would benefit by an order, as provided in division (B) of this section, fails to provide a bond for the amount of the assets of the presumed decedent which were created by the decree, with interest as specified in the order, the holder shall hold those assets for the three-year period they would have been bonded. In that event, the holder shall pay interest at the same rate specified in the order as a condition of the bond and the interest shall accumulate and be held throughout that period.

(F) Nothing in this section shall preclude such person or entity from selling, encumbering, or otherwise disposing of any property so received and any purchaser, transferee or mortgagee acquires good title to such property free and clear of any claim of the presumed decedent.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. In a proceeding to determine the participants in the estate of an actual decedent (GC § 10509-95 [RC § 2123.01] et seq), the provisions of the presumed decedents' act are not applicable in presumptively fixing the date of the death of one who if living would have the right to participate in the estate of the actual decedent: Baker v. Myers, 160 OS 376, 52 OO 239, 116 NE(2d) 711.

2. In an action under the provisions of this section to determine who is entitled to the next estate of inheritance of the adopting mother, who died prior to such declaration, leaving no issue or surviving spouse, the adopted child is entitled to the next estate of inheritance of the deceased adopting mother: Steiner v. Rainer, 69 App 6, 23 OO 306, 42 NE(2d) 684.

3. As an incident to a hearing upon exceptions to an inventory pursuant to RC § 2109.58, the probate court has jurisdiction to determine the issue of a common law marriage: In re Estate of Soeder, 7 OApp(2d) 271, 36 OO 404, 220 NE(2d) 547.

4. A judgment of the probate court in a proceeding to construe an item of a will disposing of a specific parcel of realty, to the effect that upon the death of a life tenant the fee passed to the testator's sister, does not determine the question of the vesting of the estate in remainder and is not res judicata to a later proceeding brought under authority of this section to determine heirship: Schaefer v. Gebhart, 36 OLA 73, 42 NE(2d) 931 (App).

5. An action to determine heirship under GC § 10509-95 (RC § 2123.01) et seq, is a statutory proceeding, not a chancery case and not appealable on questions of law and fact: Minnix v. Hague, 69 OLA 418, 125 NE(2d) 739 (App).

6. A proceeding under this section and RC § 2123-02 is simply one to determine who may establish such relationship to the decedent as to bring him within one of the categories of the law of descent and distribution: O'Shaughnessy v. Stofft, 55 OO 352, 117 NE(2d) 734 (PC).

7. An action in which the court is asked to "determine who are the heirs and distributees" of a decedent, "or the devisees or legatees not named in the will," was held to be an action to determine heirship; the fact that the wording of the will required consideration being only incidental and evidential on the question to be determined: Stewart v. Purget, 34 OLA 343, 37 NE(2d) 549.

In a situation described in section 2123.01 of the Revised Code, the executor or administrator may file in the probate court of the county where the estate is being administered a petition signed by such executor or administrator or his attorney, which petition shall be verified. The surviving spouse and the legatees and devisees, or the heirs and distributees of the decedent, including those whose names are unknown, shall be made parties defendant. The petition shall contain a concise statement of the pertinent facts and shall conclude with a prayer for the determination of the heirs and distributees of such decedent or of the devisees or legatees not named in the will and their respective interests in the estate.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. In a proceeding to determine heirship, it was incumbent upon the plaintiff to establish by competent evidence the fact of her legal and valid marriage to the decedent as claimed. The basis of plaintiff's claim being that such marriage was consummated in the country now known as the Kingdom of Yugoslavia, such fact must be proved either by the testimony of competent witnesses or by documentary evidence duly collated from official public records and properly authenticated as such: Olijan v. Lublin, 143 OS 417, 28 OO 354, 55 NE(2d) 658.

2. A proceeding instituted in the probate court by an executor or administrator, under GC § 10509-95 (RC § 2123.01) et seq., for a determination of those persons entitled to the property of a decedent is a special statutory proceeding ancillary to the administration of an estate, is not of an equitable nature constituting a chancery case, and is appealable to the court of appeals on questions of law only and not on questions of law and fact: Bradford v. Micklethwaite, 163 OS 301, 56 OO 275, 127 NE(2d) 21.

3. The finding of the probate court, in a proceeding under GC § 10509-95 et seq., to determine heirship is not appealable to the court of common pleas on questions of law and fact under the provisions of GC § 10501-56 (RC § 2101.42): In re Estate of Meier, 65 App 425, 19 OO 38, 30 NE(2d) 365; Stewart v. Purget, 34 OLA 343, 37 NE(2d) 549.

4. In a proceeding to determine heirship, where the petitioner claims to be the common-law wife of the decedent and the adverse parties defend as heirs and administrator of the estate of decedent, the petitioner is incompetent to testify, over objection, as to facts tending to establish the alleged common-law marriage: Brawley

v. Thomas, 82 App 400, 38 OO 61, 81 NE(2d) 719.

5. An appeal to the court of appeals from a judgment of a probate court in an action seeking a determination of heirship under the provisions of RC § 2123.01 et seq. where the primary and only relief sought by all the parties is that they be determined to be the heirs of decedent, and where the other questions raised are merely incidental to the primary questions of heirship, is an appeal on questions of law only: Bradford v. Micklethwaite, 99 App 119, 58 OO 210, 131 NE(2d) 685.

6. There is no authority for escheating property to the state, where there is no finding of an absence of heirs: Maurer v. Mihalyne, 105 App 83, 5 OO(2d) 367, 151 NE(2d) 383.

7. In an action in the probate court for a determination of heirship, where the state of the record makes it impossible to intelligently determine the heirs entitled to the estate, time should be given for additional testimony and evidence pertinent to the issue of relationship, and "letters rogatory" should be issued accordingly; and an application therefore should be allowed, even where the trial court has already rendered an opinion adverse to the applicant, but on which no judgment has been entered: Maurer v. Mihalyne, 105 App 83, 5 OO(2d) 367, 151 NE(2d) 383.

8. In an action in the probate court to determine heirship, when the court, following this section, sets out in detail its finding upon and in accordance with the evidence adduced and enters the same upon the journal, no bill of exceptions is necessary to prosecute error therefrom under GC § 11564 (RC § 2321.05): In re Stewart, 37 OLA 105 (App).

9. In a proceeding to determine heirship, a person claiming to be the common law wife of decedent is incompetent to testify in support of that claim: Lynch v. Romas, 74 OLA 1, 139 NE(2d) 352 (App).

§ 2123.06 Other persons may ask for determination. (GC § 10509-100)

Whenever it is necessary for any person other than an executor or administrator to determine who are or were the heirs at law of a deceased person, on the petition of any interested party and proceedings like those set forth in sections 2123.01 to 2123.05, inclusive, of the Revised

Code, the probate court may make a determination thereof.

2. A petition which does not allege facts showing that it is necessary for the plaintiff to determine who are the heirs-at-law of the decedent, does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action and a demurrer thereto will be sustained: Stofft v. O'Shaughnessy, 48 OO 143 (PC).

3. Necessity cannot be inferred from the mere allegation that the plaintiff is a sister of the decedent: Stofft v. O'Shaughnessy, 48 OO 143 (PC).

Any fiduciary may make a final distribution of an estate or take any other appropriate action respecting a trust, upon the determination set forth in section 2123.05 of the Revised Code, and shall thereupon, together with the surety, be discharged from liability arising from such determined interest, and the title to any property thereupon purchased from such fiduciary shall be free from such determined interest.

CHAPTER 2125: ACTION FOR WRONGFUL DEATH

Section

- 2125.01 Action for wrongful death.
- 2125.02 Proceedings.
- 2125.03 Distribution to beneficiaries.
- 2125.04 New action.

§ 2125.01 Action for wrongful death. (GC § 10509-166)

When the death of a person is caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default which would have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages if death had not ensued, the corporation which or the person who would have been liable if death had not ensued, or the administrator or executor of the estate of such person, as such administrator or executor, shall be liable to an action for damages, notwithstanding the death of the person injured and although the death was caused under circumstances which make it murder in the first or second degree, or manslaughter. When the action is against such administrator or executor the damages recovered shall be a valid claim against the estate of such deceased person.

When death is caused by a wrongful act, neglect, or default in another state, territory, or foreign country, for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages is given by a statute of such other state, territory, or foreign country, such right of action may be enforced in this state. Every such action shall be commenced within the time prescribed for the commencement of such actions by the statute of such other state, territory, or foreign country.

The same remedy shall apply to any such cause of action now existing and to any such action commenced before January 1, 1932, or attempted to be commenced in proper time and now appearing on the files of any court within this state, and no prior law of this state shall prevent the maintenance thereof.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-166; 114 v 320 (438). Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10770.

Scope and effect

1. This section is an innovation upon the principles of common law, and affords the only civil remedy for a death caused by injury: Davis v. Justice, 31 OS 359 [approved in Kirchner v. Myers, 35 OS 85, and Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Hottman, 1 CC(NS) 17, 15 CD 140; affirmed, without report, 70 OS 475].

2. In an action for injury to means of support in consequence of intoxication which caused the death of the intoxicated person, damages resulting from the death could not be recovered: Davis v. Justice, 31 OS 359.

3. Former GC §§ 10770, 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.01, 2125.02, 2125.03) and 10773 (repealed, 114 v 320) give an independent right of action for the benefit of the persons named in former GC §§ 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03) and 10773 (repealed, 114 v 320), where death has resulted from the injuries, to recover for such pecuniary loss as they have sustained by the decease of the injured person, such right being subject to the condition that the act, neglect or default is such as would have entitled such person to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof if death had not ensued: Mahoning Val. R. Co. v. Van Alstine, 77 OS 395, 83 NE 601, 14 LRA(NS) 893 [see also Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Hayes, 78 OS 431]; Wellston Iron Furnace Co. v. Rinehart, 108 OS 117, 140 NE 623 [affirming Rinehart v. Wellston Iron Furnace Co., 32 OCA 476, 35 CD 817].

4. The special provisions of former GC § 972 (see now RC § 4155.13) apply in all cases coming under the terms and provisions of GC § 898-1 et seq (RC § 4151.01) (the mining act), and the general provisions concerning rights of action in case of death by wrongful act found in former GC §§ 10770 and 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.01, 2125.02, 2125.03) do not apply in such cases: Harris v. Rail & c. Mining Co., 87 OS 450, 101 NE 923 [contra, Rankine v. Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co., 15 CC(NS) 17, 23 CD 349; which was affirmed in memorandum opinion, Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co. v. Rankine, 88 OS 555].

5. In applying the statutes on the subject of the recovery of damages for death by wrongful act, the courts should give effect to the sound and wholesome humanitarian policies designed to be promoted by their enactment: Ransom v. New York C. & c. R. Co., 93 OS 223, 112 NE 586, LRA 1916E, 704.

6. The right of action given by former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01) to persons named in former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03) is independent of the survivor action under GC § 11235 (RC § 2305.21); and a judgment for defendant in one case is not a bar to a recovery in the other: May Coal Co. v. Robinette, 120 OS 110, 165 NE 576; affirming Robinette v. May Coal Co., 31 App 113, 166 NE 818.

7. General Code § 6278 (RC § 3761.01) et seq are cumulative to former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01); and the liability of a county for death by mob violence does not affect the liability of the individual whose wrongful act caused such death: Sheet & Tin Plate Co. v. Griffith, 98 OS 73, 120 NE 207 [affirming Griffith v. Sheet & Tin Plate Co., 8 App 22, 26 CC(NS) 422].

8. A cause of action for personal injury survives the death of the injured party; and all the rights which the injured party may have had in his lifetime inure to the benefit of his personal representatives or next of kin, respectively, unless the statutes clearly provide otherwise: Wellston Iron Furnace Co. v. Rinehart, 108 OS 117, 140 NE 623 [affirming Rinehart v. Wellston Iron Furnace Co., 32 OCA 476, 35 CD 817].

9. In order to maintain an action for damages for injuries to decedent (former GC §§ 10770 and 10772 [see now RC §§ 2125.01, 2125.02, 2125.03]), for next of kin and dependents of the person injured, it must be shown that such dependents are in existence at time of trial: Fini v. Perry, 119 OS 367, 164 NE 358.

10. This section creates a new cause or right of action distinct and apart from the right of action which the injured person might have had and upon the existence of which such new right is conditioned: Karr v. Sixt, 146 OS 527, 33 OO 14, 67 NE(2d) 331.

11. Under the wrongful death statute, this section et seq., the administrator of the estate of a child who, while viable, suffered a prenatal injury through the alleged negligent act of another and who died approximately three months after its birth as a result of such injury, has a cause of action against such other for damages for the benefit of the parents of such infant: Jasinsky v. Potts, 153 OS 529, 42 OO 9, 92 NE(2d) 809.

12. An executor or administrator in maintaining an action for wrongful death of his decedent acts as trustee not of the estate of his decedent but for the sole benefit of persons designated in the statute as the next of kin of the decedent. (May Coal Co. v. Robinette, Admr., 120 OS 110, and Epinger, Admx. v. Wade, 142 OS 460, 27 OO 397, approved and followed.): Fielder v. Ohio Edison Co., 158 OS 375, 49 OO 265, 109 NE(2d) 855.

13. Where an alleged negligent act was such as would have, if death had not ensued, entitled a person to maintain an action therefor, a cause of action for wrongful death exists in such decedent's personal representative, and such cause of action for wrongful death can not be defeated merely by reason of the bar of limitation which would have been applicable to decedent's action: Klema v. St. Elizabeth's Hospital, 170 OS 519, 11 OO(2d) 326, 166 NE(2d) 765.

14. The right to sue for damages against one causing unlawful death arises from statutory liability, and is not ordinary action for tort (former GC § 10770 [see now RC § 2125.01]): Minglewood Coal &c. Co. v. Carson, 31 App 237, 166 NE 237.

15. Right to maintain civil action for damages for causing unlawful death is not an ordinary one to recover tort damages, but arises from a liability created by statute and recognized by the constitution: Minglewood Coal &c. Co. v. Carson, 31 App 237, 166 NE 237.

16. At common law no action for damages would lie for death resulting from personal injury caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default: Demos, Admr. v. Freemans, 43 App 426, 13 OLA 318, 183 NE 395.

17. Separate releases by husband and wife of a cause of action for personal injuries sustained by the wife, executed before the wife's death from injuries, were not a bar to action for wrongful death brought by the administratrix for the benefit of the children: Phillips v. Community Trac. Co., 46 App 483, 189 NE 444, 40 OLR 92.

18. A police officer is not liable under this section for the death of one of four criminals, who was shot while fleeing: Clark v. Carney, 71 App 14, 25 OO 347, 42 NE(2d) 938.

19. The rights of the next of kin in an action for wrongful death begin where those of the decedent end, are rights over which decedent can have no control and are not affected by what may have happened to decedent's right of action: DeHart v. Ohio Fuel Gas Co., 84 App 62, 39 OO 101, 85 NE(2d) 586, discussed in 18 CinLRev 548.

20. Two distinct rights of action in wrongful death cases are recognized in Ohio, each maintainable by the personal representative of the deceased person—one for the exclusive, pecuniary benefit of the next of kin, and the other for the benefit of the estate: Moss v. Hirzel Canning Co., 100 App 509, 60 OO 397, 137 NE(2d) 440.

21. A cause of action arises for the wrongful death of a viable unborn child which is subsequently stillborn: Stidam v. Ashmore, 109 App 431, 11 OO(2d) 383, 167 NE(2d) 106.

22. This section and Title 45 U. S. Code § 51 create as substantive law the legal liability for the wrongful death of another: Matz v. Erie-Lackawanna R. Co., 2 OApp(2d) 136, 31 OO(2d) 241, 207 NE(2d) 250.

23. An administratrix has a right of action for the death of a seaman under the Jones act (46 U.S. Code § 688), but not under the general maritime law doctrine of unseaworthiness and not under the Ohio wrongful death act: Gillespie v. United States Steel Corp., 25 OO(2d) 22, 321 F(2d) 518; affirmed, 379 US 148, 13 LEd(2d) 199, 85 S Ct 308.

24. The right of action for the wrongful death of a decedent is not property of a decedent: In re Walker, 21 OO 220, 6 OSupp 324 (PC).

25. The wrongful death statute does not deny or abridge the common law right of action of a husband for damages, as against one who injures his wife, for loss of services, society and consortium: Spinell v. Shaweker, 11 OLA 289, 36 OLR 20 (App); reversed on other grounds, Shaweker v. Spinell, 125 OS 423, 36 OLR 421, 181 NE 896.

26. An administrator, under authority of GC § 11235 (RC § 2305.21), may maintain an action, independently of former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01), for injuries sustained by decedent in the same manner decedent could have maintained such action if he had survived. In such action damages are limited to those for injuries accruing during the lifetime of decedent: Hillard v. Western &c. Life Ins. Co., 33 OLA 243.

27. The language of this section has been carried into GC § 1465-60 (RC § 4123.01), with reference to the liability of the employer for personal injuries sustained by his employees in the course of their employment, and caused by the wrongful act, neglect, or default of the employer: Gerthing v. Stambaugh-Thompson Co., 1 App 176, 18 CC(NS) 496, 24 CD 385, 59 Bull 17 (Ed).

28. In an action for damages for wrongful death brought under this section it is proper to apply the provisions of paragraph two of GC § 9017 (RC § 4973.08), qualifying the liabilities of railway companies for injuries to their employees: Pittsburgh, C., &c. R. Co. v. Francis, 13 CC(NS) 167, 22 CD 189.

29. General Code §§ 6242 to 6245 (RC §§ 4113.03 to 4113.06), and former GC §§ 10770 and 10772 [see now RC §§ 2125.01, 2125.02, 2125.03], as amended by act 101 v 195, which modify the law regulating the liability of employers for injuries to employees, apply to actions for injuries by an employee himself and by his administrator if he fails to survive the injury incurred: Fath Constr. Co. v. Bausmerth, 15

CC(NS) 150, 23 CD 382, 57 Bull 401 (Ed) [affirmed, without opinion, 87 OS 509].

30. This section does not prevent an action for personal injuries from being revived by the administrator of the plaintiff after the death of the latter: Hayes v. Cleveland Elec. R. Co., 21 CC(NS) 186, 33 CD 308.

31. Former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01) amended 101 v 195 was not repealed by the workmen's compensation act (102 v 524 et seq). The two statutes must be construed together and force and effect given to each, if possible; and the later statute will supersede the earlier in cases in which such later act applies specifically: Zumkehr v. Diamond Portland Cement Co., 14 NP(NS) 166, 23 OD 224, 58 Bull 157 (Ed).

32. Administration is a proceeding in rem, and whether the chose in action in favor of the wife and children for wrongful death under former GC §§ 10770 and 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.01, 2125.02, 2125.03) is a part of the estate or not, it is a trust which the statute provides shall be administered through an administrator appointed by the court: Bucyrus Steel Castings Co. v. Farkas, 15 NP(NS) 609, 27 OD 220.

Negligence and other wrongful acts

See also case notes 161, 162, 177, 178, 182, 185, 188, 189, 190, 200 under this section.

33. A receiver of a railroad is answerable for injuries to his employees and others, where the railroad company, if it were operating the road, would also be liable. And the administrator of the injured party may, under the above section, bring an action against such receiver, under the same restrictions and on the same grounds that the party injured, if death had not ensued, might have done: Murphy v. Holbrook, 20 OS 137.

34. Railroad company not liable for death of person resulting from its negligence, where such person was at a station by mere permission and sufferance and not for the purpose of transacting any business with the company: Pittsburgh, Ft. W., B. C. R. Co. v. Bingham, 29 OS 364.

35. A railway employee, who rides on one of its cars in the discharge of his duties, is not to be regarded as a passenger, and the railroad company is not liable for his death, caused by the negligence of an engineer: Kumler v. Junction R. Co., 33 OS 150.

36. An action will lie for death by wrongful act which amounts to homicide: Darling v. Williams, 35 OS 58.

37. Where a druggist delivered to a customer, instead of the medicine called for and which was known to be harmless, a poisonous drug, carelessly and without inquiry as to by whom and for what purpose it was to be used, and the customer administered same to his wife, whereof she died, a cause of action arose in favor of the administrator of the wife against the druggist: Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

38. In action against railroad company for wrongfully causing a death at a crossing, an instruction that if deceased was misled by the absence of signals or warning, and led to believe, as a reasonable person, that he could cross the tracks in safety, and while attempting to do so, without fault or negligence on his part, he was struck and killed by the running train, solely on account of defendant's negligence, the administrator would be entitled to recover, is not erroneous: Schweinfurth v. Cleveland, C., C. & C. R. Co., 60 OS 215, 54 NE 89.

39. No recovery can be had for death by wrongful act in case of a passenger who was killed while riding on a freight train with the permission of a conductor, although in violation of the rules of the railroad: Baltimore & C. R. Co. v. Cox, 66 OS 276, 64 NE 119, 90 AmSt 583.

40. Greater care and caution should be exercised to prevent injuries to children upon premises where dangerous active operations are carried on than upon premises containing a visibly dangerous static condition: Hannan v. Ehrlich, 102 OS 176, 131 NE 504.

41. A licensee takes his license subject to its attendant perils and risks, and the licensor owes him no duty except to refrain from wantonly or wilfully injuring him and to exercise ordinary care after discovering him to be in peril. He should not be exposed to hidden dangers, pitfalls or obstructions. This rule is not altered by the fact that the injured person is a child of tender years: Hannan v. Ehrlich, 102 OS 176, 131 NE 504.

42. An action for death by wrongful act may be brought where the death is due to injuries inflicted by a dog and in such a case it is not essential to aver and prove the known vicious character of the dog or negligence of the owner: Lisk v. Hora, 109 OS 519, 143 NE 545.

43. A contractor is liable for the death of a child caused by the negligence of the contractor in leaving an unsecured wagon across a street, as a part of a barricade to prevent travel upon a new pavement, if children are accustomed to play there, and the contractor has knowledge of such facts: DeGroodt v. Skrbina, 111 OS 108, 144 NE 601, 38 ALR 591.

44. When a fatal injury to a street car passenger at a railway crossing was due to the concurrent negligence of both the steam and the electric companies, the fact that a crossing gate which had been negligently raised by a watchman for the steam road was situated more than fifty feet from the crossing, and under a strict construction of the law the electric car would be bound to stop for the crossing after passing the gate, does not afford ground for relieving the steam road from liability growing out of its own negligence in raising the gate in the face of an oncoming train: Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Pritz, 1 App 119, 17 CC(NS) 96, 24 CD 411 [reversed in memorandum opinion, 90 OS 419].

45. Where the decedent, a boy twelve years of age, while walking along the sidewalk in the evening, was killed by being run over by a heavy electric truck which had been left for the night with the brake on and the controller removed, standing in an open space covered with a cement floor slanting toward the sidewalk and abutting thereon; in the absence of any evidence as to the agency which started the truck, the court held that the boy met his death by reason of the negligence of the defendant owner of the truck in not leaving it in a safe and proper place where it could not injure persons lawfully passing along the sidewalk: John C. Roth Packing Co. v. Williams, 3 App 348, 20 CC(NS) 362, 26 CD 200 [affirmed, without opinion, 92 OS 531].

46. If the death of an employee is caused by a defect in a pipe which was not intended as a means of support but which broke when he attempted to support his weight upon it, by failure to light such place adequately, there being a system of electric lights for such place which at the time of the accident was so out of repair as to leave the place in darkness, and by stretching a wire in such a way as to increase the difficulty of the workmen in moving in such place, a verdict against the employer will not be set aside, although the employer had furnished a torch which the employee did not take with him: Larkins v. Ohio Elec. R. Co., 4 App 37, 22 CC(NS) 241.

47. A board of county commissioners may be joined with a municipality in an action for wrongful death resulting to a pedestrian by falling off a sidewalk of a public street which formed an abutment to a county bridge which was not protected by guard rails as required by GC § 7563 (RC § 5591.36): Commissioners v. Shurts, 10 App 219.

48. Where a contractor has made a dangerous excavation in a street near the track of the railway, it is the duty of the railway company to see that the excavation is reasonably guarded at or near points where passengers are discharged, and to so operate its cars as not to disturb coverings placed over such excavations: Cleveland R. Co. v. Ranft, 12 App 397, 65 Bull 359 (Ed).

49. It is the duty of contractors who lawfully make dangerous excavations in public streets, over which people have a right and are accustomed to travel, to adopt reasonable precautions to guard the public against such dangerous excavations: Cleveland R. Co. v. Ranft, 12 App 397, 65 Bull 359 (Ed).

50. It is not error to refuse to give a charge that motormen are not required to exercise as great a degree of care between intersecting streets as at intersections, if the instruction does not state what degree of care is required: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Cahill, 16 App 496 [for earlier opinion, see 13 App 46].

51. In an action for the wrongful death of a child due to a motor truck backing over it, it is not error for the court to refuse to charge that the fact that children had been on the sidewalk before the truck started to back did not require employees to get off the truck and go to the rear thereof to ascertain whether any children were there, where there is nothing to show that children were known to have been on the sidewalk before the truck started back: Shillito Co. v. Shanley, 21 App 12, 153 NE 102.

52. Where a landlord expressly or impliedly reserves to himself, for the common use of his tenants, the control of a portion of the premises, he owes a duty to his tenants and their invitees to exercise ordinary care and prudence, to the end that such portion of the premises be maintained in a reasonably safe condition: Foti v. Lewis, 27 App 535, 3 OLA 69, 161 NE 365.

53. Power company, knowing of electrocution of third party by contact with sagging wires near highway, and turning on current without examining line, held negligent: Ohio Power Co. v. Fittro, 36 App 186, 8 OLA 617, 32 OLR 227, 173 NE 33.

54. A petition in an action for wrongful death which alleges, in essence, that defendant was the lessee of a farm containing an abandoned quarry 20 feet in depth with no outlet; that in 1952 children and adults played and swam in and about the quarry; that prior to the 11th of July, 1952, there had been a sign warning of the danger to swimmers, but that on that date no such warning sign was posted and that plaintiff's decedents were drowned about the hour of midnight on that day; followed by allegations not sounding in negligence but attempting to make the premises an "attractive nuisance," and which constitute conclusions of the pleader, does not state facts which constitute a cause of action and is subject to demurrer: Bronikowski v. Bigham, 75 OLA 220, 143 NE(2d) 490 (CP).

55. An action may be maintained against the county commissioners in their official capacity by an administrator of one whose death is the result of the negligence of the commissioners in failing to keep a county bridge in repair: Rohe v. Commissioners, 5 CC(NS) 97, 16 CD 489.

56. If the motorman could see, in the exercise of ordinary care, that a young child was about to cross the track, and the motorman could have stopped the car in time to avoid injury, if he had used ordinary care, the street railway company is liable for his failure so to do: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Cahill, 16 App 496 [for earlier opinion, see 13 App 46; distinguishing Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Simon, 8 CC(NS) 515, 18 CD 780].

57. Running down a six-year-old girl, who fell upon the track one hundred fifty to two hundred feet ahead of a street car, before she could recover from her fall, indicates negligence in operation, whether in running the car at a reckless rate of speed, or inattention on the part of the motorman if he was running at reasonable speed. Proof that he did not cut out the power or apply the brakes until after passing over the child or until signaled by the conductor to stop at a regular place for passengers to alight, in the absence of a reasonable account by the motorman of the cause of the accident, warrants a verdict against the company: Toledo R. & C. Co. v. Wettstein, 14 CC (NS) 441, 23 CD 15 [affirmed, without opinion, 79 OS 439].

58. In an action for damages on account of fatal injury to a pedestrian from being struck by an electric car at a street crossing, it is error for the court to charge the jury that it is the duty of the company to cause a gong to be rung as a car is about to cross a street. All that is necessary is that a warning be given as a car approaches the crossing, and this duty only arises when an ordinarily prudent person would give such warning under similar circumstances: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Charles, 14 CC(NS) 506, 23 CD 437 [affirmed, without opinion, Charles v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 87 OS 475].

59. Where the evidence as to the physical cause of an accident is largely inferential and would lead to an equally natural inference precluding negligence, it is the duty of the trial judge to withdraw the case from the consideration of the jury: Bender v. Hanna, 16 CC(NS) 387, 31 CD 560.

60. In an action to recover for death of an employee by negligence of a railroad company, evidence to the effect that decedent was standing upon the top of a car, that a noise was heard as if cars coming together, and that one of the cars was knocked off its rear tracks, is not sufficient evidence of negligence of the railway company to justify submitting the case to the jury, if there is no evidence tending to show that decedent did not know that such cars were uncoupled, if it is possible from the evidence that he uncoupled them himself, and if the position in which decedent's body was found would lead equally to the inference that he was on the ground, stumbled and fell under the wheels while attempting to climb to the top of one of the cars: Hawkins v. Lake Shore & C. R. Co., 16 CC(NS) 551, 26 CD 107 [affirmed, without opinion, 74 OS 424].

61. If the gateman at a railroad crossing opens the gates, and the pedestrian sees a caboose approaching on the track, it is said that the opening of the gates is not notice of a clear track and a safe crossing; and accordingly the administrator of such pedestrian cannot recover if he is killed by a train other than such caboose: Cerri v. Erie R. Co., 17 CC(NS) 68, 32 CD 14 [affirmed, without opinion, Midvale Goshen Coal Co. v. Cerri, 85 OS 444].

62. The operation of a motor vehicle in violation of GC §§ 12603 (see now RC § 4511.21) and 12604 (repealed, 119 v 766), is prima facie evidence of negligence, where such operation of the motor vehicle caused a pedestrian, in order to avoid it, to step back in front of a moving street car which struck and killed her: Taylor v. Cleveland R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 199, 34 CD 209.

63. If two parties are guilty of concurrent negligence, causing the death of a third party, it is reversible error for the court to charge the jury that they are to determine whether such death was caused by one of these parties or by the other: Baus v. Cleveland, S & C. R. Co., 29 OCA 284, 35 CD 577.

64. A violation of a traffic ordinance which is intended for the protection of the public is negligence per se: Russo v. Cleveland, 31 OCA 423, 35 CD 453 [for another opinion in same case, see 28 OCA 25, 29 CD 445, which was affirmed in memorandum opinion, Cleveland v. Russo, 98 OS 465, on authority of Toledo v. Cave, 41 OS 149].

65. An employee who was in the exercise of due care and diligence at the time of the accident has a right of action where his injuries resulted from defective machinery which had not been inspected with proper care and diligence, and if he dies from the injury, there is a right of action under the above section: Clark v. Stillwell-Bierce & Smith-Vaile Co., 6 NP(NS) 448, 18 OD 741 [reversed by circuit court, without report; circuit court reversed and common pleas affirmed, without report, 76 OS 576].

66. The addition of the words "such as would have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof if death had not ensued" tends to show that the words "wrongful act, neglect or default" taken by themselves would include even slight negligence, and would not be limited to a want of ordinary care. Accordingly GC § 1465-60 (RC § 4123.01) which imposes liability in case of "wrongful act, neglect or default" imposes liability if there is even slight negligence: Schaefer v. Cincinnati Bickford Tool Co., 13 NP(NS) 553, 24 OD 266.

67. It is not error for the court to instruct the jury that the druggist is bound to use ordinary care in and about the conduct of his business so as not to cause injury to persons buying by failing to give the drug asked for and giving instead some other drug or drugs which would be likely to cause injury and to further instruct the jury that if the druggist failed to give the drug asked for, but instead gave the drug asked for together with some other drug of dangerous properties, that would be failure to exercise ordinary care for which a recovery might be had in case of death resulting therefrom: Meyer v. Flannery, 18 NP (NS) 361, 26 OD 424 [affirmed by court of appeals, without opinion, February 8, 1916].

68. If an employee of a traction company is riding from his work along with other laborers upon a car, and while so riding he is killed by the negligence of the traction company, his administrator may bring an action against the traction company upon the theory of the relation of master and servant. A judgment in favor of the administrator will not be reversed in a proceeding in error, on the ground that the administrator did not establish the relation of passenger and carrier: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Ginocchio, 60 Bull 377 (Ed).

69. If a traction company transports more than fifty of its employees upon a flat car, so that they are obliged to sit with their feet hanging over the sides of the car, the question of whether it was exercising proper care in transporting its employees in this way, while the car was running at a high rate of speed, is a question for the jury: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Ginocchio, 60 Bull 377 (Ed).

Proximate and remote cause

70. Where a railroad conductor, lawfully and with reasonable care, expels a passenger who is afterward run over by another train and killed, the expulsion itself is not such proximate cause of the death as will make the company liable: Railroad Co. v. Valleley, 32 OS 345.

71. If the employee of a railroad company who has charge of the gates raises the gates and a street car passes across the track, and a passenger in such car, seeing a train close upon him, jumps from the car and is killed, his administrator may maintain an action against such railway company, even though the street car passed in safety: Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Pritz, 1 App 119, 17 CC(NS) 96, 24 CD 411 [reversed in memorandum opinion, 90 OS 419].

72. Damages for alleged negligent acts causing the death of the plaintiff's decedent can be recovered only if the negligent act complained of is the proximate cause of the accident: Cleveland Transp. Co. v. Anderson, 12 App 286, 31 OCA 233 [motion to certify record overruled, 16 OLR 67, 65 Bull 269]; Rohr v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 275, 31 OCA 108.

73. In an action to recover damages for wrongful death, instruction to find for defendants if death was result of "unavoidable accident" held erroneous, where allegations of both petition and answer charged negligence, and "unavoidable accident" is necessarily accident occurring without apparent cause of fault attributable to any one: Avra, Admx. v. Karshner, 32 App 492, 168 NE 237.

74. For plaintiff to recover in action for wrongful death, negligence of defendant must be proximate cause of injury, and instruction requiring defendant's negligence to be sole and proximate cause of injury placed greater burden on plaintiff than law required and was erroneous: Avra, Admx. v. Karshner, 32 App 492, 168 NE 237.

75. Evidence that the employer failed to instruct the employee as to hazard of employment, and that the employee was killed by an accident in the discharge of his duty, is not sufficient to go to a jury where there is no evidence that the failure to instruct caused the accident: Hawkins v. Lake Shore & C. R. Co., 16 CC(NS) 551, 26 CD 107 [affirmed, without opinion, 74 OS 424].

76. In an action to recover for death by wrongful act, it is not necessary that the injuries which were received should be the sole cause of death. Recovery may be had if such injuries were the primary cause of the death, or if they contributed to produce the disease which caused the death: Mansfield R., Light & C. Co. v. Kiner, 17 CC(NS) 431, 25 CD 175.

77. Where the defendant was driving upon the wrong side of the street in violation of a former statute analogous to former GC § 6310 (see now RC § 4561.17), and at a speed of ten or twelve miles an hour in violation of the city ordinances, and plaintiff's intestate, a child of seven, after dodging from behind other vehicles going in the right direction, was knocked down by the front legs of defendant's horses and killed by being run over by defendant's wagon, the question of whether or not defendant's negligence in driving so fast that he could not stop in time to avoid running over the child was the proximate cause of its death is a question for the jury: Harris v. Williams, 22 CC(NS) 412, 33 CD 650 [affirmed, without opinion, Williams v. Harris, 77 OS 633].

78. Whether the undisputed violation of two city ordinances by one of the city's employees driving a garbage wagon was the proximate cause of plaintiff's injury is a question for the jury: Russo v. Cleveland, 31 OCA 423, 35 CD 463 [for another opinion in same case, see 28 OCA 25, 29 CD 445, which was affirmed in memorandum opinion, Cleveland v. Russo, 98 OS 465, on authority of Toledo v. Cave, 41 OS 149].

79. Where a druggist sold poison to an intoxicated man, without labeling same, who administered it to himself, the proximate cause of the man's death was his own act and not that of the druggist, and the latter is not liable: Ronker v. St. John, 21 CC 39, 11 CD 434.

Contributory negligence

See also case notes 166, 171, 173, 198, 199 under this section.

80. It is error to charge the jury that if deceased, by his own fault, contributed to his injury, defendant must then show that he was without fault himself; and that no man can be shown without fault, unless he has done all in his power to avoid the injury: Pendleton St. R. Co. v. Stallman, 22 OS 1.

81. Where deceased was guilty of contributory negligence, the action will not lie: Pittsburgh, Ft. W. &c. R. Co. v. Krichbaum, 24 OS 119.

82. Under a statute providing that the damages recoverable for death by wrongful act must be assessed by the jury in a lump sum, contributory negligence of some of the beneficiaries did not defeat the action: Cleveland, C., C. &c. R. Co. v. Crawford, 24 OS 631.

83. Under a statute requiring the jury to assess the damages for the beneficiaries distributively, contributory negligence of some of the beneficiaries is a defense as against them, but not as against other beneficiaries not contributorily negligent: Wolf v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co., 55 OS 517, 45 NE 708, 36 LRA 812.

84. Where the defense is that defendant was not guilty of negligence, it is error to charge the jury on the subject of contributory negligence: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Stephens, 75 OS 171, 79 NE 235.

85. In an action of negligence where the answer of defendant contains a general denial and an averment that the "death of deceased was caused wholly and solely through his own fault and without any fault whatever on the part of the defendant," and evidence is introduced at the trial by each party in support of its claims, from which the jury might properly find that both defendant and deceased were negligent in such material matters as combined to produce the proximate cause of the injury, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury as to the law governing the situation thus developed; and it is error for the court to charge the jury that contributory negligence is not in the case; if defendant caused the death of deceased through its negligence, plaintiff is entitled to a verdict; and if the death of deceased came about through his own want of ordinary care, through his own act solely, defendant is entitled to a verdict: Rayland Coal Co. v. McFadden, 90 OS 183, 107 NE 330.

86. An allegation of contributory negligence necessarily implies an admission that defendant has been negligent to some extent. There is no arbitrary rule of pleading which requires defendant who contends that he has not been guilty of any negligence to elect between conceding a negligence which he in fact denies, or waiving the defense of contributory negligence: Rayland Coal Co. v. McFadden, 90 OS 183, 107 NE 330.

87. In an action for wrongful death of a pedestrian it is error for the trial court to direct a verdict for the defendant on the ground that the decedent was guilty of contributory negligence, where the evidence shows that decedent was almost totally deaf and that the motor truck which struck him was, at the time of the accident, on the left side of the street, contrary to traffic rules; the evidence not being clear as to whether the decedent started from the curb before or after the truck turned the corner into the street decedent was crossing and there being a conflict in the evidence as to the speed of the truck and the distance of decedent from the curb at the time of the collision: Goodrich v. Cleveland, 15 App 15 [motion to certify record overruled, Cleveland v. Fowler, 19 OLR 517; for former opinion on demurrer in supreme court, see Fowler v. Cleveland, 100 OS 158].

88. In a negligence action for the death of a boy ten years of age, the defense of contributory negligence is available against the father and mother as beneficiaries, and is a question for the jury, under proper instructions. In case the issue is resolved against such beneficiaries, the right of recovery is not affected, but only the amount of recovery, when there are other beneficiaries not charged with negligence: Cleveland, C., C. &c. R. Co. v. Grambo, 103 OS 471, 134 NE 648, 20 ALR 1214.

89. A traveler upon a street, crossing the track of an interurban railway, has a right to presume that the interurban railway company will conform to an ordinance prohibiting the running of interurban cars through its limits at a rate of speed greater than that named in the ordinance. If the traveler acts in accordance with such presumption in the absence of knowledge of the fact that the interurban railway company is exceeding such speed limit in running an interurban car, such action upon the part of the traveler will not of itself constitute an act of negligence: Norris v. Jones, 110 OS 598, 144 NE 274 [approving and following Hart v. Devereux, 41 OS 565].

90. In a wrongful death action based on negligence in selling fuel oil mixed with gasoline or naphtha, the purchaser, having asked for fuel oil, is not to be deemed guilty of contributory negligence as a matter of law in pouring such oil upon a fire in a stove, believing it to be fuel oil: Douglas v. D.B. Coal Co., 135 OS 641, 15 OO 12, 22 NE(2d) 195, 123 ALR 761.

91. Where the deceased met his death while driving over a railroad crossing in the country, and the evidence shows that the train was approaching at the rate of twenty-five or thirty miles an hour, and that, if he had looked at a time when looking would have been effective, he could, in the exercise of ordinary care, have seen the engine in time to avoid injury, and no reasonable excuse exists for failing to look, the decedent was guilty of such contributory negligence as requires a reversal of the judgment rendered in favor of the plaintiff, the same being against the weight of the evidence as to contributory negligence: Erie R. Co. v. Dump, 2 App 210, 21 CC(NS) 300, 25 CD 425.

92. Where the testimony shows that the windows of the building where the accident occurred may be safely cleaned from the inside, but the decedent refused to clean them in that way, or to use a safety belt or other device to prevent falling, and had been threatened with discharge for his carelessness in that regard, and there is no direct proof of negligence on the part of the owners of the building or of facts from which negligence may reasonably be presumed, a judgment in favor of the administrator for damages will be reversed and the cause remanded for retrial: Neave Bldg. Co. v. Roudebush, 2 App 330, 18 CC(NS) 426, 24 CD 404 [for later opinion, see 28 CC(NS) 229, 26 CD 589, 61 Bull 291 (Ed); which was affirmed, without opinion, 96 OS 40, 14 OLR 56, 62 Bull 127].

93. An employee of one railroad, who is familiar with the tracks and passage of other trains and who steps off the running board of an engine upon which he is riding, immediately in front of an approaching train of another road on an adjoining track, without first looking to see whether he is safe in so doing, and after a warning of the approaching train has been given by both the engineer of the engine upon which he was riding and of the other train, is guilty of contributory negligence: Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Cramer, 9 App 6, 31 OCA 167.

94. When the inference of contributory negligence does not arise from evidence offered by the plaintiff, the burden rests on the defendant to show the same by a preponderance of the evidence, and it is not established by evidence which only equals in weight that offered by the plaintiff: New York, C. &c. R. Co. v. Aigler, 10 App 195, 29 OCA 385, 64 Bull 61 (Ed).

95. An engineer who has the right of way on the main track is justified in assuming that a train moving on a side-track will stop before it reaches the main track; and it is not contributory negligence for him to proceed: New York C. & C. R. Co. v. Aigler, 10 App 195, 29 OCA 385, 64 Bull 61 (Ed).

96. In an action for death by wrongful act, the court may refuse to charge on the question of contributory negligence of the beneficiary, if contributory negligence is not pleaded, and if there is no evidence tending to establish it: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Cahill, 16 App 496 [for earlier opinion, see 13 App 46].

97. The mere failure of a pedestrian to look to the right in crossing a street, when, according to all traffic rules, traffic would ordinarily be expected to come only from the left, is not in itself a failure to exercise ordinary care: Goodrich v. Cleveland, 15 App 15 [motion to certify record overruled, Cleveland v. Fowler, 19 OLR 517; for former opinion on demurrer in supreme court, see Fowler v. Cleveland, 100 OS 158].

98. In an action by a father to recover for loss of services arising from the death of his infant son, the negligence of the father in permitting the child to play in the place of danger where he was killed is a defense: St. Bernard v. Steingrube, 16 App 151.

99. In action for death of minor, that court charged on contributory negligence held not prejudicial to defendant: Shillito Co. v. Shanley, 21 App 12, 4 OLA 701, 152 NE 102.

100. In action for death of automobile passenger in collision with train at grade crossing, instruction on contributory negligence held properly given, although negligence of automobile driver was not imputable to passenger, since passenger is required to use ordinary care in exercise of own faculties in looking and listening as car approached crossing: Tyler v. H.V. Ry. Co., 28 App 88, 5 OLA 546, 162 NE 623.

101. Deceased on public road, electrocuted when coming near high-voltage wires, held not contributorily negligent as matter of law: Ohio Power Co. v. Fittro, 36 App 186, 8 OLA 617, 32 OLR 227, 173 NE 33.

102. On motion for directed verdict, plaintiff's scintilla of evidence as to defendant's negligence must not raise presumption of contributory negligence as matter of law: La Dow, Admr. v. B. & O. Rd. Co., 40 App 458, 11 OLA 491, 178 NE 697.

103. Where deceased, a boy of seventeen years, was killed while attempting to put a belt on a rapidly revolving wheel, having only been employed at that place for three weeks and having no previous experience at that kind of work, and being instructed to do the work without any warning as to its dangerous character, it is for the jury to say whether the danger was so apparent that deceased was guilty of contributory negligence: Jackson Knife & C. v. Hathaway, 7 CC(NS) 242, 17 CD 745 [affirmed, without report, 72 OS 623].

104. In an action against a traction company on account of the death of a boy eight years old from being struck by a car, it is prejudicial error to fail to so modify the usual charge to the jury with reference to negligence as to hold the decedent to only that degree of care and prudence which may be expected from a child of his age, capacity and intelligence: Fritch v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 14 CC(NS) 79, 22 CD 536 [affirmed, without opinion, Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Fritch, 88 OS 525].

105. If the doctrine of the last clear chance is not involved in the pleadings or in the evidence, it is error for the court to charge with reference thereto: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Charles, 14 CC(NS) 506, 23 CD 437 [affirmed, without opinion, Charles v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 87 OS 475].

106. In an action for death caused by negligence, it is error to charge: "If you find that the company's foreman was negligent and that the deceased was without knowledge of that negligence, nor of the danger to which he was exposing himself, that he would not have met his death but for that negligence, then under the statute, the decedent's representative, the plaintiff administratrix, would be entitled to recover," since the court should have added that the same result would follow if the decedent had a means of knowing equal with that of defendant: Wellman, Seaver, Morgan Co. v. Wood, 18 CC(NS) 65, 32 CD 597.

107. Since the jury should find in its verdict which, if any, of the beneficiaries was guilty of contributory negligence, a verdict in favor of the administrator in which there is no finding of contributory negligence on the part of any of the beneficiaries amounts to a finding that such beneficiaries were not guilty of contributory negligence: Campbell v. Tarr, 18 CC(NS) 323, 33 CD 66.

108. In an action for wrongful death, if the evidence of the plaintiff suggests contributory negligence on the part of the deceased, then it becomes the duty of the plaintiff, before he can recover, to remove that suggestion of contributory negligence: Galati v. Erie R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 63, 34 CD 106.

109. One who steps back from one railway track to another because he is in a position of danger upon the first railway track and because he cannot cross to the other side of the street on account of an automobile, is not, as a matter of law, guilty of negligence: Taylor v. Cleveland R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 199, 34 CD 209.

110. If the contributory negligence of the parents is pleaded as a defense in an action to recover for the death of their child by the wrongful act of defendant, such contributory negligence is said to be a subsequent defense which cannot be made out, nor can evidence tending to establish such contributory negligence be introduced until after plaintiff has rested his case: Scott v. Wingenberg, 26 CC(NS) 1, 29 CD 479.

111. The doctrine of last clear chance does not apply if it was physically impossible to avoid the injury after discovering the situation of danger: Brierly v. Burton, 29 OCA 545, 35 CD 563.

112. Whether or not plaintiff was guilty of contributory negligence which proximately caused his injury is a question for jury: Russo v. Cleveland, 31 OCA 423, 35 CD 463 [for another opinion in the same case, see 28 OCA 25, 29 CD 445, which was affirmed in memorandum opinion, Cleveland v. Russo, 98 OS 465, on authority of Toledo v. Cave, 41 OS 149].

Assumption of risk

113. An action can be maintained for the death of a woman who died as a result of an illegal abortion although she consented thereto: Milliken v. Heddesheimer, 110 OS 381, 144 NE 264, 33 ALR 53 [approving Barholt v. Wright, 45 OS 177].

114. In operating the train in violation of the rules of the railway company the engineer did not assume the extraordinary risk of the negligence of the company: Pennsylvania Co. v. Wasson, 3 App 458, 21 CC(NS) 481.

115. Though the employer knew that a place under the control of another was not a safe place to work, or by the exercise of ordinary care might have known it, the employee cannot recover if he also knew the same thing, or, by the exercise of ordinary care, might have known it: Wellman, Seaver, Morgan Co. v. Wood, 18 CC(NS) 65, 32 CD 597 [citing and following Chicago & O. Coal &c. Co. v. Norman, 49 OS 598].

116. If the evidence shows that the injury complained of was due to an obvious risk which was equally within the knowledge of the employee and the employer, a verdict for the defendant should be directed in an action brought by the employee's administrator against the employer to recover damages after the death of such employee: Prescott v. Albrecht, 21 CC(NS) 198, 33 CD 314.

117. If trespasser voluntarily comes in contact with an electric wire, the electric company is not liable for injury resulting therefrom: Jesson v. Mansfield R., Light &c. Co., 30 OCA 170, 35 CD 657.

Imputed negligence

118. The doctrine of imputed negligence does not prevail in Ohio: Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

119. A corporation not for profit, which has as its purpose the maintenance and operation of a hospital, is, under the doctrine of respondeat superior, liable for the negligent acts of its employees, irrespective of whether those acts are administrative or medical: Klema v. St. Elizabeth's Hospital, 170 OS(2d) 519, 11 OO(2d) 326, 166 NE(2d) 765.

120. In an action against the owner of a wagon for death from wrongful act occurring through the negligence of a driver of the wagon in running over an infant playing in the street, the fact that the driver was in charge of and driving the team attached to the wagon sufficiently established his agency so as to charge the owner thereof with liability: Becker v. Howanycz, 18 CC(NS) 19, 32 CD 561.

121. In an action by a mother for damages on account of the death of her four-year-old child, for which she sues as administratrix, it is error to refuse to give a special charge, requested by the defendant before argument, to the effect that the said mother was responsible for the act of those in whose custody she had placed the child, and if it appear from the evidence that they failed to exercise ordinary care for the safety of the child under the circumstances, damages cannot be recovered by the mother for her own benefit: Eisen v. Halloran, 25 CC(NS) 29, 35 CD 158.

122. If the driver of an automobile is not under the control of a passenger, and they are not engaged in a joint enterprise, the negligence of the driver cannot be imputed to the passenger: Baus v. Cleveland, S. &c. R. Co., 29 OCA 284.

Foreign right of action

123. An administrator appointed in this state cannot maintain an action in the courts of Ohio on a cause of action arising under a similar statute in another state: Woodard v. Michigan, S. &c. R. Co., 10 OS 121; see also Brooks v. Railway, 53 OS 655, 44 NE 1131.

124. The provisions of the act of March 25, 1851 (S&C 1139), did not extend to cases where the wrongful act which caused the death was committed outside of this state: Hover v. Pennsylvania Co., 25 OS 667; see also Brooks v. Railway, 53 OS 655, 44 NE 1131.

125. Where there is an act in Indiana similar to former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01), but a subsequent act regulates the liability of railroads for injuries to employees, fixes the rules of evidence which shall govern in such cases, and provides that the decisions or statutes of other states shall not be pleaded as a defense, both acts are to be treated in pari materia, and the enforcement of such acts in Indiana is not the equivalent of the enforcement of the statute of this state of like character; Ohio courts cannot hear a suit for the wrongful death of a railroad employee occurring in Indiana: Wabash R. Co. v. Fox, 64 OS 133, 59 NE 888, 83 AmSt 739 [reversing 20 CC 440, 11 CD 148].

126. Where a nonresident of the state of Ohio is killed in an automobile accident which occurs in Ohio, his personal representative may bring an action in this state against a nonresident motor vehicle operator who is alleged to have caused the death, pursuant to the provisions of RC §§ 2125.01, 4515.01 and 2703.20, which establish the right to recover for wrongful death, authorize the bringing of an action for injury arising out of the operation of a motor vehicle in the county in which the injury occurred and provide for service upon nonresident operators of motor vehicles: Ellis v. Garwood, 168 OS 241, 6 OO(2d) 22, 152 NE(2d) 100; affirming Ellis v. Garwood, 80 OLA 443, 143 NE(2d) 715 (App).

127. Under former GC § 10771 (see now RC § 2125.-07) (repealed, 101 v 195), no action could be maintained in the courts of this state upon a cause of action for wrongful death occurring in another state, except where the person wrongfully killed was a citizen of the state of Ohio: Baltimore &c. R. Co. v. Chambers, 73 OS 16, 76 NE 91, 11 LRA(NS) 1012.

128. The amendment to GC § 11273 (RC § 2307.-37) in 109 v 81, excludes from the jurisdiction of the state courts of Ohio all causes against the persons and companies therein referred to for injuries to person or property or for wrongful death occurring without the state of Ohio unless such claimant is a resident of this state: Loftus v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 107 OS 352, 140 NE 94.

129. In an action brought in Ohio under RC § 2125.01 by the Ohio administrator of the estate of an Ohio resident who was killed in a motor vehicle collision in another state, where there was no citizen or resident of that state involved in the collision, and there is no issue of liability, Ohio has all the substantial governmental interests and the law of Ohio is determinative of the damages recoverable: Fox v. Morrison Motor Freight, 25 OS(2d) 193, 54 OO(2d) 301, 267 NE(2d) 405.

130. Revised Code § 2125.01 which provides a right of action for death caused by a wrongful act in another state "for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages is given by a statute of such other state," does not require the application of that state's limitation of the amount of damages recoverable: Fox v. Morrison Motor Freight, 25 OS(2d) 193, 54 OO(2d) 301, 267 NE(2d) 405.

131. In suits under foreign death statutes, the Ohio courts look to the law of the state whose statute is invoked to determine questions relating to the rights and liabilities thereunder; a federal court setting in Ohio in diversity suit must do likewise: Carlson v. Glenn L. Martin Co., 48 OO 409, 103 FSupp 153.

132. A statute of Pennsylvania will be enforced in Ohio for negligently causing death in that state to a citizen of that state: Schell v. Iron and Sheet Co., 4 CC(NS) 172, 16 CD 209, but see (case note 117 above) and Chambers v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 207 US 142, 52 LED 143, 28 Sct 34, 6 OLR 498, 16 OFD 123.

133. In an action in Ohio for wrongful death of a husband, resident of Ohio, occurring in New York, where such husband left no issue, the damages recovered are payable to his widow, notwithstanding the general rule that such damages are to be distributed in accordance with the statutes of the state in which the wrongful act was committed: Miller v. Miller, 9 CC(NS) 315, 19 CD 353.

134. The general rule that no action can be maintained in the courts of this state upon a cause of action for wrongful death occurring in another state, except where the person wrongfully killed was a citizen of Ohio, is so modified by the federal employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, regulating the liability of interstate railway carriers for the death or injury of their employees while engaged in interstate commerce, as to permit the maintenance of such action by the proper representative of a deceased employee of an interstate railway carrier, although said employee was not a citizen of Ohio and was killed in some other state: Waring v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 15 CC(NS) 33, 23 CD 194.

135. It is in violation of the constitution to permit a suit for damages for wrongful death to be maintained where deceased was a citizen of Ohio, while denying the right to maintain such suit where the deceased was not a citizen of Ohio: Chambers v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 207 US 142, 52 LEd 143, 28 S Ct 34, 6 OLR 498, 16 OFD 123.

136. The action is transitory in its character, and the courts of Ohio have jurisdiction to take cognizance of it where the injury occurred in another state: Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Joy, 173 US 226, 43 LEd 677, 19 S Ct 387, 12 OFD 435; Essenwine v. Pennsylvania Co., 11 DecRep 277, 25 Bull 396.

137. Under an earlier form of GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01), the restrictive provision which allowed actions for death in a foreign state only in cases where such foreign state allowed in its courts the enforcement of the Ohio statute, did not apply to the federal courts, and a Michigan administrator could maintain an action in the federal court of Ohio for a death that occurred in Illinois: St. Bernard v. Shane, 220 Fed 852, 135 CCA 399 [reversing and remanding 201 Fed 453, 11 OLR 43].

138. The laws of Indiana govern in an action in the federal court in Ohio against a railroad company for death by reason of the company's negligence occurring in Indiana: Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Thieband, 114 Fed 918, 52 CCA 538, 12 OFD 254.

Proceedings barred

139. Under the original form of this section (49 v 117, § 1), the right to commence an action for wrongfully causing death abated by the death of the wrongdoer: Russell v. Sunbury, 37 OS 372.

140. An action for personal injuries began by a decedent and prosecuted by his personal representative is not a bar to recovery by the representative for wrongful death: Mahoning Val. R. Co. v. Van Alstine, 77 OS 395, 83 NE 601, 14 LRA(NS) 893; see also Cleveland Elec. R. Co. v. Hayes, 78 OS 431, 85 NE 1123.

141. Where the widow as administratrix brought the action, but died during its pendency, and there were no next of kin, the action cannot be maintained thereafter: Doyle v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 81 OS 184, 90 NE 165, 135 AmSt 775.

142. An individual whose act as a member of a mob causes a death, and the county which is liable therefor by statute, are not jointly liable; and the fact that the executor has brought an action against the county is not a bar to a subsequent action against the wrongdoer: Sheet & Tin Plate Co. v. Griffith, 98 OS 73, 120 NE 207 [affirming Griffith v. Sheet & Tin Plate Co., 8 App 22, 26 CC(NS) 422].

143. An application to the industrial commission for compensation, which was refused on the sole ground that the deceased employee was not in the employ of his alleged employer, and was not killed in the course of employment, does not prevent the representative of such deceased employee from bringing an action for death by wrongful act: Conrad v. Youghiogheny & O. Coal Co., 107 OS 387, 140 NE 482, 36 ALR 1288.

144. An action under this section by an administrator to recover damages for the wrongful death of his decedent, and an action theretofore instituted by the decedent in his lifetime against the same defendant to recover damages for the injuries ultimately resulting in his death, which action was settled and dismissed, are not actions "upon the same matter between the same parties": Gorman v. Columbus &c. Elec. Co., 144 OS 593, 30 OO 194, 60 NE(2d) 700.

145. Where, during the pendency of an action for wrongful death brought under favor of GC § 10509-166 (RC § 2125.01), the only heir and next of kin of the decedent, who has sustained pecuniary injury by reason of such death, dies, no one remains within the purview of this section, in whose behalf the action may be further prosecuted, and the sustaining of a motion by the defendant for a directed verdict or for a dismissal of the action is proper: Danis v. New York Cent. R. Co., 160 OS 474, 52 OO 356, 117 NE(2d) 39.

146. Negligence of administrator suing for death of boy could not bar right to recover: Fach v. Canton Yellow Cab Co., 36 App 247, 9 OLA 189, 173 NE 245.

147. A judgment denying recovery for personal injuries is not a bar to an action, under this section and GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), for the benefit of the next of kin of the injured person who died as a result of such injuries: DeHart v. Ohio Fuel Gas Co., 84 App 62, 39 OO 101, 85 NE(2d) 586, discussed in 18 CinLRev 548.

148. A release executed by an injured person, discharging a tort-feasor from all claims for damages resulting from the latter's wrongful act, is not a bar to a wrongful death action brought by the personal representative of the injured person; but a settlement agreement between the tort-feasor and next of kin of the injured person, during the latter's lifetime, is a bar to the administrator's action for wrongful death: Pilkington v. Saas, 25 OLA 663.

149. A settlement made by the wrongdoer with the next of kin and a general release executed and delivered by the next of kin to the wrongdoer after the death of the decedent constitutes a bar to an action by the administrator of the decedent's estate for the benefit of the next of kin under the wrongful death statute: Featherolf v. Casserly, 75 OLA 332, 144 NE(2d) 114 (App).

150. An action for damages for personal injuries caused by wrongful act does not abate by the death of the plaintiff, even though the wrongful act complained of was the direct cause of the death, but may be revived in the name of the administrator: Hayes v. Cleveland Elec. R. Co., 21 CC(NS) 186, 33 CD 308.

151. Where an action for personal injuries had been begun by a decedent and prosecuted to judgment by his administrator after his death, it is a bar to another action by the administrator for wrongful death of decedent resulting from the same injuries as those upon which the previous suit was predicated: Johnson v. Cleveland, C., C. &c. R. Co., 22 CC(NS) 264, 33 CD 554 [for a former opinion, see 21 CC(NS) 268, 33 CD 341].

152. Former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01) and GC §§ 11235 (RC § 2305.21) and 11397 (RC § 2311.21), are to be construed in pari materia, and where a party who has been injured by another's negligence brings suit in his lifetime to recover for such injury, and, pending suit, died of said injury, said action cannot be revived in the name of the administrator. Former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01) then provides the exclusive remedy. General Code §§ 11235 (RC § 2305.21) and 11397 (RC § 2311.21) do apply, however, where death results from other causes than the negligent injury: Gallagher v. Furnace and Dock Co., 2 NP(NS) 661, 15 OD 789; but see Mahon- ing Val. R. Co. v. Van Alstine, 77 OS 395, 83 NE 601, 14 LRA(NS) 893.

153. When a workman has been killed by the actionable negligence of a third person, the fact that his personal representative has already received payment from the state insurance fund under the workmen's compensation act, will not prevent such representative from maintaining an action against the tort-feasor for damages for causing the death, nor will the fact that the tort-feasor himself also contributes to the state fund affect his liability: Kenning v. Interurban R. &c. Co., 18 NP(NS) 526, 30 OD 446.

154. The fact that the wife of an employee who has been killed by the negligence of a person other than his employer, has received compensation from the state insurance fund is not a defense in an action by such wife as administratrix of such employee against such wrongdoer to recover damages for such death by wrongful act: Brunk v. Cleveland, C. & C. R. Co., 20 NP(NS) 360, 28 OD 320.

154.1 Where there was a collision with defendant's train, by which the intestate was killed, and his horses and wagon destroyed, a suit by the administrator under this act, for wrongful death, is not barred by the former recovery of the value of the horses and wagon, in another suit by the administrator: Peake v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 26 Fed 495, 5 OFD 491.

Jurisdiction and venue

155. The action herein provided may be brought in any county in the state where the defendant, or any of the defendants, reside or may be served: Drea v. Carrington, 32 OS 595.

156. The administrator of one who is killed by the negligence of the owner of an automobile, may bring an action for such injury in the county in which decedent resided: Wellston Iron Furnace Co. v. Rinehart, 108 OS 117, 140 NE 623 [affirming Rinehart v. Wellston Iron Furnace Co., 32 OCA 476, 35 CD 817].

157. Where a case that may be, is duly removed from a state to a federal court, the jurisdiction of the state court over the cause at once ceases, and it can take no further step therein: and if, thereafter, the case is disposed of in the federal court, otherwise than on the merits, the plaintiff can not recommence the action in the state court, although, under like circumstances, he might have done so had the cause not been removed: Railway Co. v. Fulton, Admr. 59 OS 575, 53 NE 265, 44 LRA 520.

158. A writ of prohibition will be issued to restrain a judge from assuming jurisdiction of a wrongful death action, since the Industrial Commission is the only body empowered by law to provide redress for the work-related death of a person employed by a complying employer: State ex rel. Allied Chemical Corp. v. Earhart, 37 OS(2d) 153, 66 OO(2d) 313, 310 NE(2d) 230 (1974).

159. In an action to recover for death by wrongful act, the administrator is the real party in interest; and accordingly if the administrator is a citizen of the same state as that of which the defendant is a citizen, the administrator cannot bring an action in the federal courts on the ground of diversity of citizenship, even though the beneficiaries are aliens: Laubsher v. Fay, 197 Fed 879, 10 OLR 456, 57 Bull 317 (Ed).

160. The procuring of an alien consul to act as the administrator of a deceased resident of Ohio does not, in an action against other residents of Ohio, present such a case of diverse citizenship as to give jurisdiction to a federal court. The appointment of such alien consul will be regarded as having been procured collusively and fraudulently if the testimony discloses that the sole purpose in having the said consul named as administrator was to give the federal court jurisdiction of the action for wrongful death thereafter brought by him: Cerri v. Akron-Peoples Tel. Co., 219 Fed 285, 13 OLR 425.

Pleading

161. It is not necessary to allege in the petition all the facts which contribute to the primary act complained of, or which tend to establish the negligence of such act: Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

162. For a defective attempt to plead negligence in permitting a child to play in a dangerous sand-bank, see Hannan v. Ehrlich, 102 OS 176, 131 NE 504.

163. For a petition in an action for wrongful death, sufficient as against demurrer, see Ford v. Cleveland, C. & C. R. Co., 107 OS 100, 140 NE 664 [approving and following Harriman v. Pittsburgh, C. & C. R. Co., 45 OS 11].

164. Failure to allege in the petition that, in addition to the widow and two children mentioned in the petition, the decedent was also the father of two other children by a divorced wife, does not invalidate the judgment recovered, where the recovery is for the entire amount permissible under the statute; but in such a case the claim of the two unnamed children may be presented to the probate court and their share apportioned to them out of the judgment: Pittsburgh, C. & C. R. Co. v. Pritz, 1 App 119, 17 CC(NS) 96, 24 CD 411 [reversed in memorandum opinion, 90 OS 419].

165. In an action to recover damages for death caused by negligence, where the petition avers that the decedent left no widow or children and that his father, mother, brother and sister are his next of kin, it is not error for the trial court to allow a child by a common law marriage to be made a party and file a pleading in which she avers that her mother, brother and herself are the next of kin of deceased, and thus enable the court to protect the rights of the true beneficiaries: Erie R. Co. v. Dump, 2 App 210, 21 CC(NS) 300, 25 CD 425.

166. Contributory negligence may arise as an inference from plaintiff's own evidence and be recognized as an issue in the case although not pleaded by defendant: Rohr v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 275, 31 OCA 108.

167. In an action for wrongful death a defense that the death was "due solely to the careless and negligent conduct and acts of the decedent" and of a third person is immaterial and should be stricken: DeHart v. Ohio Fuel Gas Co., 84 App 62, 39 OO 101, 85 NE(2d) 586, discussed in 18 CinLRev 548.

168. The petition need not allege that the next of kin have sustained pecuniary damage by the death: Jackson Knife &c. Co. v. Hathaway, 7 CC(NS) 242, 17 CD 745 [affirmed, without report, 72 OS 623, 76 NE 1126].

169. General Code § 6245 (RC § 4113.06) as amended by 101 v 195 (the Norris law), and which modifies the rule of assumption of risk of employees as to certain defects in appliances and places of work, abrogates the rule of pleading as to denial of knowledge, actual or constructive, of defects causing the injury alleged: Fath Constr. Co. v. Bausmerth, 15 CC(NS) 150, 23 CD 382, 57 Bull 401 (Ed) [affirmed, without opinion, 87 OS 509].

170. In an action for death by wrongful act, caused by a defect in the appliances, places or ways which the employer has furnished for his employee, it is necessary to aver want of knowledge of such defect or danger on the part of the employee, and an averment that the employee did not know or appreciate the danger of the particular casualty by which he was in fact overtaken is not sufficient: Lake Erie Iron Co. v. Karpinski, 21 CC(NS) 207, 33 CD 323 [affirmed, without opinion, Karpinski v. Lake Erie Iron Co., 76 OS 621].

171. Plaintiff cannot recover for negligence which warrants the application of the rule of "last chance" without alleging it in his petition: Galati v. Erie R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 63, 34 CD 106.

172. It is not error for the court, in its instructions to the jury, to call attention to a statute making it unlawful to sell a poisonous drug without labeling it "poison": Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

Procedure

173. If the trial court charges the jury that the question of contributory negligence is not in this case, that the plaintiff is to recover if the injury complained of was due to the defendant's negligence, and that the defendant is entitled to a verdict if the jury finds that the injury complained of was caused solely by the negligence of the injured party, defendant does not waive any objection to such charge by failing to request the court to charge that contributory negligence is an element in such case and that recovery cannot be had, even if the injury complained of was caused by the negligence of the defendant, if the plaintiff by his own negligence contributed directly thereto: Rayland Coal Co. v. McFadden, 90 OS 183, 107 NE 330.

174. In actions for wrongful death the amount of pecuniary injuries sustained is an issuable fact; and, when denied, must be determined from the evidence peculiar to each case. If the damages are found to be excessive by a reviewing court, such finding involves the weight of the evidence: Schendel v. Bradford, 106 OS 387, 140 NE 155.

175. Directed verdict on opening statement held error: Fini v. Perry, 119 OS 367, 164 NE 358.

176. For charge in an action for death by wrongful act against a police officer who killed the decedent in a fight which grew out of the attempt of the police officer to search the decedent to see if he was carrying concealed weapons, where there was no evidence that the officer was attempting to arrest the decedent, see Rasey v. Ciccolino, 1 App 194, 18 CC(NS) 331, 59 Bull 17 (Ed), sub nomine, Rasey v. Ciccolono, 24 CD 294.

177. It is not always incumbent upon one about to cross a street car track, either on foot or with a team, that he should look and listen for an approaching car, but it is sufficient if reasonable care is exercised, and whether or not reasonable care was exercised in a given case is a question of fact for the jury dependent upon the surrounding circumstances: Mansfield R. Light &c. Co. v. Kiner, 2 App 82, 17 CC(NS) 431, 25 CD 175.

178. Whether the striking by a backing car of one who has just alighted therefrom while the car was at a standstill, was due to the negligence of the company or its operatives or to the contributory negligence of the one so injured, is a question for the jury, and their finding where supported by the evidence will not be disturbed by a reviewing court: Northern Ohio Trac. &c. Co. v. Jenkins, 3 App 161, 19 CC(NS) 602, 26 CD 30.

179. Where it appears that the intestate, a driver who was killed at a railway crossing, was walking beside his wagon, which was between him and the railway track and was piled high with lumber so as to obstruct the view of an approaching train, and there is evidence that the whistle was blown for the crossing, it is error in an action for damages on account of his death to overrule a motion to direct a verdict for the railway company: Pittsburgh, C. C. &c. R. Co. v. Stugard, 3 App 344, 21 CC(NS) 396,

33 CD 370 [judgment of court of appeals rendering final judgment reversed, its judgment reversing judgment of superior court affirmed and cause remanded to superior court for new trial: Stugard v. Pittsburgh, C. C. &c. R. Co., 92 OS 318].

180. In a suit by an administrator of a deceased employee for damages on account of the alleged negligence of the employer, which negligence it is charged caused such death, the law presumes at the outset of the case that both parties are free from negligence: Cincinnati &c. Trac. Co. v. Murphy, 6 App 1, 28 OCA 316, 30 CD 82 [motion to certify record overruled, 12 OLR 23, 59 Bull 174].

181. Where a case has been reversed and remanded by the court of appeals on the ground that the judgment is against the weight of the evidence, it is the duty of the trial court upon retrial to submit the case to the jury if there is a scintilla of variation in the evidence offered upon retrial in addition to that presented at the preceding trial. Whether or not the reversal by the court of appeals on the ground that the evidence was insufficient would control the retrial of the case, where the evidence upon retrial is without variation, was discussed but not decided: Schaffer v. Cleveland Co., 10 App 76.

182. If an injury is the result of a neglect to perform a common duty resting on two or more persons, although there may be no concert of action between them, a person injured may elect to sue all parties owing the common duty, or each separately, treating the liability as joint and separate: Commissioners v. Shurts, 10 App 219.

183. It is reversible error for the trial court to overrule a motion for a directed verdict where the plaintiff failed to prove one of the necessary and essential facts alleged in his petition: Gilmore v. Alberry, 11 App 336, 29 OCA 437.

184. An instruction to the jury is not rendered erroneous by reason of the fact that standing alone and not further explained it might be construed as in effect saying to the jury that the proximate cause of the accident was as there stated, where the charge as a whole clearly explained the instruction and made it applicable to the pleadings and proved facts: Gilmore v. Alberry, 11 App 336, 29 OCA 437.

185. In an action for damages for alleged negligent acts causing the death of the plaintiff's decedent, the question as to whether or not ordinary care was used is a question for the jury, as is also the question whether the explanation offered by the defendants was sufficient to relieve them: Cleveland Trans. Co. v. Anderson, 12 App 286, 31 OCA 233 [motion to certify record overruled, 18 OLR 67, 65 Bull 269].

186. In an action for negligence growing out of a grade-crossing accident, it is proper for the court to refuse to charge the jury that there exists a license or implied invitation for the public to use a crossing constructed and maintained by the traction company where the road and crossing are private: Rohr v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 275, 31 OCA 108.

187. Under GC §§ 10214 and 11363 (RC §§ 1.11 and 2309.58), amendment of petition in action for wrongful death, to charge a willful tort as well as negligence, held not erroneous: Coca-Cola Bottling Works Co. v. Meyer, 28 App 468, 162 NE 826.

188. Judgment may be rendered against both of joint tortfeasors sued or against one of them: Ohio Power Co. v. Fittro, 36 App 186, 8 OLA 617, 32 OLR 227, 173 NE 33.

189. In an action for wrongful death the question whether or not decedent used the care which a reasonably prudent person is accustomed to use under the same or similar circumstances should have been submitted to the jury under proper instructions:

Meier v. Jos. R. Peebles Sons Co., 57 App 80, 9 OO 121, 11 NE(2d) 707.

190. Where, upon defendant's motion for a directed verdict at the conclusion of plaintiff's case in a wrongful death action, plaintiff's evidence is such that it cannot be said as a matter of law that such evidence created an inference or presumption of plaintiff's decedent's contributory negligence, it is prejudicial error for the court to direct a verdict for the defendant upon the theory that plaintiff failed to sustain the burden of dispelling or counterbalancing such inference or presumption: Long v. Maxwell Co., 118 OApp 134, 24 OO(2d) 446, 193 NE(2d) 423.

190.1 In a wrongful death action against policemen alleged to have shot plaintiff's decedent, the question whether defendants acted without right or justification is for the jury: Stevens v. Atzberger, 18 OLA 133.

191. Damages having been awarded against an interurban railway company for the death of a licensee upon its tracks who was struck by a car, the judgment will not be reversed on the weight of the evidence, where the testimony for the plaintiff was to the effect that the deceased had caught his foot and could not get off the track and others with him were signaling the motorman to stop, and the motorman himself testified that he saw persons on the track in ample time to have stopped the car but did not see any signal to stop or become aware of the peril of the decedent until too late to avoid the accident: Cincinnati, G. & P. R. Co. v. Dameron, 14 CC(NS) 49, 23 CD 123 [affirmed, without opinion, 86 OS 321].

192. The use by the court, in his instructions to the jury as to determination of damages, of the word "peculiar" as applied to injury resulting from the death of a six-year-old child by negligence, where qualified or defined in other parts of the charge relating to the same subject as "pecuniary" injuries, is not necessarily or presumably prejudicial: Toledo R. & Co. v. Wettstein, 14 CC(NS) 441, 23 CD 15 [affirmed, without opinion, 79 OS 439].

193. It is improper to suggest to the jury that expert witnesses might, through inattention, fail to comprehend the true meaning of hypothetical questions put to them: Ellis v. Twigg, 17 CC(NS) 172, 32 CD 96.

194. In an action against a physician for malpractice which is claimed to have resulted in blood poisoning, it is error to refuse to submit to the jury the following interrogatory: "When did the decedent first manifest fever or chill, as a symptom of the infection of which she died?" Such interrogatory would have tended to test the correctness of the general verdict and should have been submitted, although the most favorable answer thereto might not have justified the court in entering a verdict in favor of the defendant, if the general verdict was against him: Ellis v. Twigg, 17 CC(NS) 172, 32 CD 96.

195. The testimony indicating that the decedent had warning of his danger in time to have saved himself, the question of his contributory negligence became one for the court, and was not one to be submitted to the jury, and therefore no error in directing a verdict for the defendant: Arras v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 20 CC(NS) 387, 26 CD 214 [affirmed, without opinion, 89 OS 420].

196. Where in an action for wrongful death, plaintiff's petition and reply seeks to establish the relationship of master and servant, and makes allegations of negligence on the part of the employer in that he failed to furnish a safe place to work and employed a servant whom he knew or should have known to be incompetent; the plaintiff's evidence simply shows negligence on the part of one who would be a fellow servant under his theory of the case but no negligence on the part of the employer, it is the duty of the court to direct a verdict for the defendant: Snyder v. American Cigar Co., 22 CC(NS) 45, 33 CD 440 [affirmed, without opinion, 81 OS 568].

197. In an action to recover damages for death by negligence in turning steam into a boiler after an employee had been directed to enter such boiler, in which one of the defenses was that such employee was not directed to enter it, but on the contrary was forbidden to enter it until a superior servant of the defendant returned, a charge which implies that plaintiff might recover for such injury if such employee had violated such order, and the steam had been turned on by another employee with knowledge of the fact that the injured employee was in the boiler, is not necessarily erroneous, since the circumstances thus indicated might indicate wilful injury; but if such charge is in part misleading, it is cured by a subsequent portion of the charge which states expressly that plaintiff cannot recover if such employee was directed not to enter the boiler until his superior servant returned, and that, while he was in such boiler in violation of such order, steam was turned on by another employee without knowledge of his presence therein: Hollenden Hotel Co. v. Jackson, 22 CC(NS) 485, 28 CD 540 [affirmed, without opinion, 78 OS 440].

198. In an action for death by wrongful act, it is not improper to charge "If the evidence of the plaintiff suggests contributory negligence on the part of the deceased in this case, then it would be the duty of the plaintiff, before he could recover, to remove that suggestion of contributory negligence." It is not necessary to limit such instruction to cases where the evidence raises the presumption on the part of the party who is injured: Galati v. Erie R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 63, 34 CD 106 [citing Robinson v. Gary, 28 OS 241].

199. In an action by an executor or administrator of one who is employed by a railway company to work upon a ditch near the railway track, a charge, "The fact that a freight train was passing on a west bound track and making a loud noise at the time A was killed, would not excuse him from looking and listening for approaching trains, but on the contrary, since the noise of the freight train would to a certain extent prevent his hearing the noises of the bell or the whistle of the passenger train, it became A's duty to be all the more careful in looking for trains, which might approach on the track near or upon which he was killed," is not erroneous at least if the ditch was of sufficient width to have enabled him to stand where he would not have been injured by the passing of a train: Galati v. Erie R. Co., 23 CC(NS) 63, 34 CD 106.

200. A court cannot apportion negligence as between persons or agencies either in degree or as to time, but must accept the finding of the jury in that behalf where based upon the evidence and circumstances of the case: Pritz v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & Co., 12 NP(NS) 481, 22 OD 570 [affirmed, Pittsburgh, C., C. & Co. v. Pritz, 1 App 119, 17 CC(NS) 96, 24 CD 411; which was reversed in memorandum opinion, 90 OS 419].

201. Inasmuch as a fund recovered on account of wrongful death constitutes no part of the estate of the decedent, an order by the probate court apportioning such a fund between the parents of a decedent is not appealable: Parker v. Parker, 31 OLR 314.

203. Although a person may prosecute in a federal court in forma pauperis, nevertheless, an affidavit of poverty made by a plaintiff who sues as administratrix of her deceased husband to recover damages for his wrongful death, under a state statute which gives the right of action in favor of the widow and children of the deceased, should show that neither the estate nor the beneficiaries of the action are able to prepay or secure the costs: Reed v. Penn. Co., 13 OFD 782.

204. The verdict of the jury in an action for death by wrongful act, which finds that the deceased left a widow and children, and that his life was of financial value to them, is supported by sufficient evidence, if the administrator of the deceased testifies that he had corresponded with the widow in Italy, that she was left with three children, and that she had sometimes received money from the deceased: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Ginocchio, 60 Bull 377 (Ed).

Evidence

205. As to questions of pleading and evidence in questions under this section, see Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

206. Admissions of deceased after the injury are competent evidence: Helman v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co., 58 OS 400, 50 NE 986, 41 LRA 860.

207. In an action to recover damages for death resulting from an injury sustained while crossing a street, it is error to admit evidence of an ordinance forbidding pedestrians to cross except at designated crossings, and then at right angles, only; and to charge that violation of such ordinance was negligence, if it was not shown that a street crossing had been designated at the crossing at which the injury occurred; but such error is cured by a finding that the injured person failed to look for vehicles before crossing the street: Whitaker v. Luebbering, 101 OS 292, 128 NE 76 [affirming Luebbering v. Whitaker, 10 App 365, 31 OCA 219].

208. A rule of the company requiring every employee to exercise the utmost caution to avoid injury to himself or to his fellows is competent evidence in the trial of an action to recover damages for the death of an employee, and it is prejudicial error to exclude the same: Sherman v. Toledo & C. R. Co., 1 App 279, 20 CC(NS) 464, 25 CD 449 [affirmed, in memorandum opinion, Toledo & C. R. Co. v. Sherman, 88 OS 617].

209. In an action for death by reason of a defective brake and platform, evidence of the defective condition of such brake and platform, of the fact that the decedent was last seen alive at such brake while the car was making a flying switch, that his body was found mutilated on the track near the place where the switch was made a short time afterwards, and that he was a skillful brakeman and a man of good habits, is sufficient, although there was no witness of his death: Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Stewart, 2 App 72, 21 CC(NS) 399, 25 OCD 364 [affirming Stewart v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co., 11 OLR 430; motion to certify record overruled, Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Stewart, 11 OLR 409].

210. A jury may properly accept the testimony of the decedent's own physician as to the cause of his death, as against the testimony of the physician of the company whose car struck him and that of an expert medical witness: Mansfield R., Light & C. Co. v. Kiner, 2 App 82, 17 CC(NS) 431, 25 CD 175.

211. For circumstantial evidence of negligence sufficient to require submission of the case to the jury, see Grunkemeyer v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co., 3 App 62, 19 CC(NS) 366, 25 CD 230 [affirmed, without opinion, Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Grunkemeyer, 92 OS 524].

212. While an ordinary person may not be at all accurate in giving in figures the speed of a car or train at a given moment, yet his knowledge of speed may be sufficiently substantial to enable him to give testimony which will be an aid in determining whether under all the circumstances of the case the speed was excessive at the time of the accident: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Beebe, 3 App 213, 21 CC(NS) 513, 28 CD 641 [affirmed, without opinion, 91 OS 418].

213. A municipal corporation is authorized by GC § 3781 (RC § 723.48) to regulate the speed of trains within its limits, and such ordinance is admissible in evidence in an action for death by negligence, if the evidence shows that the train was running at a much higher rate of speed than that fixed by the ordinance: Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Buxton, 3 App 298, 20 CC(NS) 22, 26 CD 304 [affirmed, without opinion, 91 OS 423].

214. In an action to recover damages for wrongful death of a wife under former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01), the defendant may introduce evidence tending to show the relation of the deceased and her husband during her lifetime, the state of mind of the deceased towards her husband, and a different situation than that claimed by the plaintiff: Welling v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 136.

215. Alterations or repairs to equipment, machinery, and the like, made after an accident as a precaution against future accidents, are not admissible in evidence as an admission of responsibility for the past or that defendant had been negligent before the accident, or had knowledge of any defects: Rohr v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 275, 31 OCA 108.

216. The unexplained breaking of a part of the ship, such as the rail running on the top of the bulwarks and designed as a protection to seamen, unless under extraordinary or unprecedented circumstances, is sufficient proof of unseaworthiness to entitle a seaman injured thereby to recover if such breaking is the proximate cause of the accident: Cleveland Transp. Co. v. Anderson, 12 App 286, 31 OCA 233 [motion to certify record overruled, 18 OLR 67, 65 Bull 269].

217. Although offers of compromise and negotiations for compromise are incompetent, evidence tending to prove admissions of defendant as to the ownership of the car, and as to the alleged agency of the party driving same on the day in question is competent, although such statements were made contemporaneous with negotiations for compromise: Weyant v. McCurdy, 12 App 491.

218. In action for death of passenger in automobile in collision with train at grade crossing, refusal to admit in evidence rule requiring fireman to keep a careful watch on track when not otherwise engaged held not error, in that rule, if properly made and enforced, imposed no duty on fireman other than enjoined by law: Tyler v. H.V. Ry. Co., 28 App 88, 5 OLA 546, 162 NE 623.

219. In an action for death by electrocution, demonstrative evidence to show distance voltage would jump from wire held properly excluded, in view of impossibility of performing experiment on facts in issue: Ohio Power Co. v. Fittro, 36 App 186, 8 OLA 617, 32 OLR 227, 173 NE 33.

220. In suit for wrongful death, excluding deceased's declaration made shortly after accident relating to manner he was injured held error: Hauer v. French Bros.-Bauer Co., 43 App 333, 11 OLA 217, 36 OLR 51, 183 NE 186.

221. Where in a wrongful death action the plaintiff produces a witness as to facts alone, to permit the defendant, upon cross-examination, to qualify such witness as an expert and to elicit his opinion that the defendant was not negligent is prejudicially erroneous: Long v. Maxwell Co., 118 OApp 134, 24 OO(2d) 446, 193 NE(2d) 423.

221.1 In an action for wrongful death, testimony that the decedent was greatly attached to his children is irrelevant, and in the case under consideration must have been brought out for the purpose of influencing the amount of damages the said children should receive as beneficiaries, and the court being unable to say that this purpose was not accomplished, it must be assumed that prejudicial error resulted: Roth v. Bien, 15 CC(NS) 109, 23 CD 480 [affirmed, without opinion, Bien v. Roth, 87 OS 483].

222. Evidence given by men who were employed in a mine eight or nine months before the explosion in question, with reference to the condition of the mine as to means of ventilation and gas, is not too remote: Wellman, Seaver, Morgan Co. v. Wood, 18 CC(NS) 65, 32 CD 597.

223. Where defendant admits that death resulted from the injuries received, it is not error to admit testimony as to the nature of the injuries where such testimony may throw light on the allegations in the petition as to how the accident occurred or in what respects defendant was negligent: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Moeller, 17 OD(NP) 22.

224. In an action against a druggist for wrongfully causing the death of the plaintiff's decedent by reason of selling to the son of the decedent a package of Rochelle salts containing cyanide of potassium, where the defense is that the cyanide of potassium was not in the package containing the Rochelle salts at the time of its delivery, it is not error for the court to permit a third person to testify that he had purchased Rochelle salts shortly before and that no injurious results were manifested from the use of same: Meyer v. Flannery, 18 NP(NS) 361, 26 OD 424 [affirmed by court of appeals, without opinion, February 8, 1916].

Costs and attorney fees

225. Where a law firm contracted with the administratrix to prosecute the suit for a share of the judgment, and defendant, with knowledge of this, settled with the administratrix without knowledge of the attorneys, who thereupon sued the defendant in the previous suit, the administratrix as such and individually, and the guardian of deceased's children as such and individually: Held: There was no cause of action against either representative party as such, but there was a good cause against the administratrix individually, and against the railroad, and these two parties can be properly united in the case as defendants: Connell v. Brumback, 18 CC 502, 10 CD 149 [affirming Hurd v. Wheeling &c. R. Co., 4 NP 404, 6 OD 545].

226. No action at law, for lawyer fees, in a suit brought by an administratrix for the wrongful death of her intestate, can be maintained as against the administratrix in her representative capacity: Hurd v. Wheeling &c. R. Co., 4 NP 404, 6 OD 545.

227. A justice of the peace has no jurisdiction to try an action for wrongful death. Therefore, when the plaintiff recovers in the action, he is entitled to recover his costs, although the amount is less than one hundred dollars: Sponseller v. Cleveland Term. & V. R. Co., 6 NP 422, 8 OD 307.

228. An attorney cannot make a contract to prosecute an action for wrongful death for a certain per cent of the amount recovered with the administratrix as such. It must be with her individually: McMahon v. Merrill, 37 Bull 21, 8 OD(NP) 583 [reversing Merrill v. McMahon, 5 NP 77, 7 OD 136].

Workmen's Compensation

See also case notes 27, 29, 31, 143, 152, 153, 158 under this section.

229. The Ohio workmen's compensation act provides an insurance fund operated by the state for the benefit of injured employees and their dependents, and in that respect it is not an award of damages for a wrong committed by one person upon another: Ellis v. Garwood, 80 OLA 443, 143 NE(2d) 715 (App).

230. In Ohio an award of compensation for death of an employee paid an employee's dependents under the Ohio workmen's compensation act is not a bar to an action by such dependents against a fellow employee who caused the death: Ellis v. Garwood, 80 OLA 443, 143 NE(2d) 715 (App).

231. An award of compensation for death of an employee paid to a deceased employee's dependents out of the New York workmen's compensation fund for death occurring in Ohio as the result of an accident in Ohio involving decedent and a fellow employee, both residents of New York and working temporarily in Ohio for a New York employer, is not a bar to an action for wrongful death brought in Ohio by such dependents against the fellow employee who caused the death, and the provision of the workmen's compensation act of New York that "the right to compensation or benefits under this chapter shall be the exclusive remedy to an employee or in the case of death his dependents, when such employee is injured or killed by the negligence or wrong of another in the same employ," is no defense to the action in Ohio: Ellis v. Garwood, 80 OLA 443, 143 NE(2d) 715 (App).

An action for wrongful death must be brought in the name of the personal representative of the deceased person, but shall be for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse, the children, and other next of kin of the decedent. The jury may give such damages as it thinks proportioned to the pecuniary injury resulting from such death to the persons, respectively, for whose benefit the action was brought, and the reasonable funeral expenses incurred as a result of the wrongful death. In its verdict the jury shall set forth separately the amount of damages, if any, awarded for reasonable funeral expenses. Except as otherwise provided by law, every such action must be commenced within two years after the death of such deceased person. Such personal representative, if he was appointed in this state, with the consent of the court making such appointment may, at any time before or after the commencement of the suit, settle with the defendant the amount to be paid.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-167; 114 v 320 (438); 125 v 903 (981) (E# 10-1-53); 133 v S 104. E# 11-21-69.

Analogous in part to former GC § 10772.

Construction and effect

1. The limitations imposed by former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), upon an action for death by wrongful act, is not modified by Art. I, § 19a of the Ohio constitution: Kennedy v. Byers, 107 OS 90, 140 NE 630.

2. For history of this section, see Klema v. St. Elizabeth's Hosp., 170 OS 519, 11 OO(2d) 326, 166 NE(2d) 765.

3. Under former GC § 10618 (see now RC §§ 2109.-04, 2109.07), the bond of administrator shall secure the faithful performance of duties imposed on personal representative of deceased person under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03): Fidelity & Guaranty Co. v. Decker, 122 OS 285, 171 NE 333.

4. Under this section a presumption of pecuniary injury ordinarily exists in favor of those persons legally entitled to services, earnings or support from the decedent: Karr v. Sixt, 146 OS 527, 33 OO 14, 67 NE (2d) 331.

5. The term "pecuniary injury," as used in this section, comprehends essentially injury measured by the prospective advantages of a pecuniary nature which have been cut off by the premature death of the person from whom they would have proceeded. The term does not embrace such elements as bereavement or mental pain and suffering: Karr v. Sixt, 146 OS 527, 33 OO 14, 67 NE(2d) 331.

6. This statute is procedural and remedial in its nature, and should be construed liberally: Kyes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 158 OS 362, 49 OO 239, 109 NE(2d) 503.

7. Action for wrongful death by administrator on behalf of wife's sisters and brother, against husband who killed wife, held not to lie: Demos v. Freemas, 43 App 426, 183 NE 395.

8. Where applications are made in probate court by a widow and her adult son for an order of distribution of funds received by her, as executrix, from a railroad company engaged in interstate commerce, in settlement for the death of her husband who had been killed in the course of his employment with such company, the federal employers' liability act, US Code, Title 45, c. 2, § 51 et seq, rather than this section and GC § 10509-168 (RC § 2125.03), applies as to such distribution: In re Backus, 73 App 262, 28 OO 432, 55 NE(2d) 811.

9. A cause of action arises for the wrongful death of a viable unborn child which is subsequently stillborn: Stidam v. Ashmore, 109 App 431, 11 OO(2d) 383, 167 NE(2d) 106.

10. The words "such action," used in this section, refer to both provisions of former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01): Miller v. Miller, 21 CC(NS) 181.

11. This section as amended in 101 v 195 was not repealed by the workmen's compensation act (102 v 524 et seq). The two statutes must be construed together and force and effect given to each, if possible; and the later statute will supersede the earlier in cases in which such later act applies specifically: Zumkehr v. Diamond Portland Cement Co., 14 NP (NS) 166, 23 OD 224, 58 Bull 157 (Ed); Bucyrus Steel Castings Co. v. Farkas, 15 NP(NS) 609, 27 OD 220; In re Balbo, 16 NP(NS) 9, 29 OD 603.

Beneficiaries

For rights of beneficiaries guilty of contributory negligence, see case note 80 et seq under RC § 2125.01.

12. The action may be maintained by the administrator for the benefit of the next of kin, though deceased left no widow or children, and though the petition does not contain a statement of special circumstances rendering the death a pecuniary injury to them, as such circumstances can only affect the amount, and not the right, of recovery: Lyons v. Cleveland & T.R. Co., 7 OS 336.

13. Where deceased was a woman and left a child surviving her, the question of the legitimacy or illegitimacy of the child can in no way affect the right of action in its behalf: Muhl v. Michigan Southern R. Co., 10 OS 272.

14. Under this act, persons who had no legal claim for support upon the deceased, may, as next of kin, have the action herein provided for maintained for their benefit: Grotenkemper v. Harris, 25 OS 510.

15. A husband is next of kin, for whose benefit this action may be brought, where the wife comes to her death leaving no children or their legal representatives: Steel v. Kurtz, 28 OS 191.

16. The administrator may bring this action for the next of kin although the latter are alien nonresidents of this state: Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co. v. Naylor, 73 OS 115, 76 NE 505, 112 AmSt 701, 3 LRA(NS) 473 [affirming same case, Naylor v. Pittsburgh, C., C. & C. R. Co., 4 CC(NS) 437, 16 CD 277].

17. Where the widow of deceased was his sole heir and next of kin, but deceased had some collateral heirs, and the mother of said widow survived her. Held: After the widow's death, there remained no statutory beneficiary for whose behoof the action could be maintained: Doyle v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 81 OS 184, 90 NE 165, 135 AmSt 775.

18. Under the federal statute for the recovery of damages for wrongful death by personal representatives, and also under the Ohio statutes on the same subject, the words "parents" and "children" are used without limit or qualification and include adopting parents and adopted children, as well as natural parents and natural children: Ransom v. New York, C. & C. R. Co., 93 OS 223, 112 NE 586, LRA 1916E, 704.

19. A husband and wife sustained personal injuries causing the death of both, but the latter survived her husband a few hours. After the death of the wife, the husband's personal representative instituted suit, under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), for the benefit of the husband's father, mother, brothers and sisters, there being no children of the deceased. It was held that the action was properly brought: Garrard v. Mahoning Val. R. Co., 100 OS 212, 126 NE 53 [reversing 10 App 37, sub nomine, Gerrard v. Mahoning Val. R. Co., 29 OCA 241].

20. In an action for recovery of damages for wrongful death, the record did contain evidence from which reasonable minds might draw different conclusions with reference to pecuniary injury to half brothers of the deceased: Krieg v. Cleveland R. Co., 136 OS 229, 16 OO 249, 24 NE(2d) 946.

21. Within the meaning of this section the phrase, "and other next of kin," is used in a broad sense and includes the brothers and sisters of a decedent as well as his parents, when both classes of kindred are in existence: Karr v. Sixt, 146 OS 527, 33 OO 14, 67 NE(2d) 331.

22. In an action to recover damages for death caused by negligence, where the petition avers that the decedent left no widow or children and that his father, mother, brother and sister are his next kin, it is not error for the trial court to allow a child by a common law marriage to be made a party and file a pleading in which she avers that her mother, brother and herself are the next of kin of deceased, and thus enable the court to protect the rights of the true beneficiaries: Erie R. Co. v. Dump, 2 App 210, 21 CC(NS) 300, 25 CD 425.

23. This section, which provides that a recovery in an action for wrongful death "shall be for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse, the children and other next of kin of the decedent," does not contemplate a recovery for a child born out of wedlock after the death of the reputed father. Such child does not fall within the classes named in the statute: Bonewit v. Weber, 95 App 428, 54 OO 20, 120 NE(2d) 738.

24. An illegitimate child who has been acknowledged by its putative father before or after birth should be considered as a beneficiary or dependent in a wrongful death action growing out of the death of such putative father: Bonewit v. Weber, 66 OLA 519, 105 NE(2d) 683 (CP); affirmed Bonewit v. Weber, 95 App 428, 54 OO 20, 120 NE(2d) 738.

25. The law presumes a pecuniary loss to a parent or parents entitled to the services and earnings of their minor child by the wrongful death of such child even before it has reached an age when it is actually able to render services or assistance of a pecuniary nature: Nelson v. Horton, 31 OApp(2d) 159, 60 OO(2d) 246, 287 NE(2d) 108 (1971).

26. A stepson is not next of kin of the decedent and, therefore, is not entitled to participate in proceeds of a wrongful death action: In re Gorman, 15 OO 253 (PC).

27. Adult children who are without money and have demonstrated that they have suffered a direct pecuniary loss through the death of their father, qualify for participation in the fund paid to the executor of the estate in settlement of the claim for wrongful death: In re Miller, 59 OO 425, 127 NE(2d) 409 (App).

28. Where a resident of this state met death by wrongful act in New York, and the claim was settled without suit, the proceeds of such settlement were distributed under former GC § 10773 (repealed, 114 v 320), and the father of deceased was not entitled to share with the wife as a distributee of the fund: Miller v. Miller, 9 CC(NS) 315, 19 CD 353.

29. Where an administrator, appointed by an Ohio court to administer the estate of a citizen of Ohio, recovered damages for the wrongful death of his decedent which occurred in another state, the beneficiaries to such fund were determined by former GC § 10773 (repealed, 114 v 320), and not by the laws of the state where the act which caused the wrongful death occurred: Miller v. Miller, 21 CC(NS) 181.

30. An action will not lie to recover damages for wrongfully and negligently causing the death of an adopted child, where such recovery is sought for the sole benefit of the adopting parent: Boswell v. Lake Shore Elec. R. Co., 22 CC(NS) 251, 25 CD 522 [affirmed, without opinion, 88 OS 563].

31. The jury must determine from the evidence who the beneficiaries of decedent are, and the pecuniary loss sustained by each: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Moeller, 17 OD(NP) 22.

32. Where decedent died leaving a father and mother and brothers and sisters, the action was properly brought for their joint benefit, and not for the benefit of decedent's next of kin, excluding his parents: Toledo, St. L. & W. R. Co. v. Connolly, 149 Fed 398, 16 OFD 304.

33. An action may be maintained for the benefit of nonresident aliens under this act: Toledo, St. L. & W. R. Co. v. Connolly, 149 Fed 398, 79 CCA 218, 15 OFD 526.

34. An action against an employer for the death of a child, killed while employed in a mill or factory in violation of GC § 12993 (RC § 4109.10), cannot be maintained for the benefit of a parent who consented to such employment: Star Fire Clay Co. v. Budno, 269 Fed 508.

35. Ohio provides that the recovery shall be for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse, the children, and other next of kin of the decedent: Satchwill v.

Vollrath Co., 47 OO(2d) 75, 293 FSupp. 533.

Parties

36. The widow and next of kin cannot maintain this action in their own names, but it must be brought by the personal representative. And where the action is brought in the names of the former, this cannot be cured by having one of the parties, after the bringing of the action, appointed administrator and made a party to the same by leave of court, for a good petition must contain a cause of action in favor of the plaintiff: Weidner v. Rankin, 26 OS 522.

37. In an action for wrongful death, properly brought in a court of competent jurisdiction by the personal representative of the decedent under authority of this section, such personal representative is but a nominal party, and the designated beneficiaries for whose exclusive benefit the action is maintainable are the real parties in interest: Gibson v. Solomon, 136 OS 101, 16 OO 36, 23 NE(2d) 996; (affirming 30 OLA 666).

38. Under GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), an action for wrongful death must be brought in the name of the personal representative of the deceased person: Kyes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 158 OS 362, 49 OO 239, 109 NE(2d) 503.

39. The term "personal representative," as used in this statute, includes an ancillary administratrix: Kyes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 158 OS 362, 49 OO 239, 109 NE(2d) 503.

40. In such an action it is not error to permit the substitution of an administratrix as party plaintiff after the lapse of the two-year statutory period of limitation where the cause of action remains unchanged and the suit was duly instituted by an ancillary administrator within the period: Kyes v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 158 OS 362, 49 OO 239, 109 NE(2d) 503.

41. In an action for wrongful death, the personal representative is merely a nominal party and the statutory beneficiaries are the real parties in interest: Burwell v. Maynard, 21 OS(2d) 108, 50 OO(2d) 268, 255 NE(2d) 628.

42. In a wrongful death action, the administrator instituting the action is only a nominal party, and the designated beneficiaries, for whose exclusive benefit the action is brought, are the real parties in interest: Brinkman v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co., 111 App 317, 14 OO(2d) 286, 172 NE(2d) 254.

43. Under the principles of res judicata and estoppel by judgment, a judgment in a wrongful death action that the defendant was not negligent bars the daughter of the decedent, who was a real party in interest in the action which caused the death of her father, from subsequently bringing an action against the same defendant to recover for her injuries: Brinkman v. Baltimore & Ohio R.R. Co., 111 App 317, 14 OO(2d) 286, 172 NE(2d) 254.

44. The survivors of decedent in a wrongful death action are the real parties in interest and it is necessary that the personal representative, as plaintiff, name in the petition who are "the surviving spouse," or "the children," or the "other next of kin of the decedent," for if no known person comes under the classes of survivors named in the statute, there would not be any pecuniary loss to anyone and an action for wrongful death would not lie: Fisher v. Butler, 11 OMisc 116, 40 OO(2d) 139, 224 NE(2d) 923 (CP).

45. In an action for wrongful death under this section, the court has the power to substitute a correct party plaintiff after the statute of limitations has run, and such substitution relates back to the date of the filing of the action: Renner v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 61 OLA 298, 103 NE(2d) 832 (App).

46. Former GC § 972 (see now RC § 4155.13) must be construed in connection with former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01) et seq., and the action for death by wrongful act under former GC § 972 (see now RC § 4155.13) must be in the name of the administrator, at least, if the death resulted from an act of negligence which is not wilful: Rankine v. Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co., 15 CC(NS) 17, 23 CD 349 [affirmed in memorandum opinion, Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co. v. Rankine, 88 OS 555, on the authority of Saxton v. Seiberling, 48 OS 554; contra, Harris v. Rail & c. Coal Min. Co., 87 OS 450].

47. This section and GC §§ 6242 to 6245 (RC §§ 4113.03 to 4113.06) and former GC § 10770 (see now RC § 2125.01), as amended by act 101 v 195, which modify the law regulating the liability of employers for injuries to employees, apply to actions for injuries by an employee himself and by his administrator if he fails to survive the injury incurred: Fath Constr. Co. v. Bausmerth, 15 CC(NS) 150, 23 CD 382, 57 Bull 401 (Ed) [affirmed, without opinion, 87 OS 509].

48. A certificate by a trial judge in an action for death by wrongful act, that the fact of the representative character of plaintiff as administrator of a deceased employee was conceded by defendants, is conclusive; therefore, failure to prove such fact is not ground for reversal: Fath Constr. Co. v. Bausmerth, 15 CC(NS) 150, 57 Bull 401 (Ed) [affirmed, without opinion, 87 OS 509].

49. A claim for wrongful death is a chose in action, and as such is property and a part of the special estate of the decedent, to be recovered in the name of the administrator for the benefit of the beneficiaries named in the statute: In re Arduino, 9 NP(NS) 369, 20 OD 461.

50. In an action to recover for wrongful act, the administrator is the real party in interest: Laubsher v. Fay, 197 Fed 879, 10 OLR 456, 57 Bull 317 (Ed).

51. The settlement of a decedent's estate is not made by the heirs or legal representatives, but by a personal representative, which is either an administrator or executor: Barreille v. Bettman, 199 Fed 838.

52. The parents of a fourteen-year-old only son who was drowned while working on a boat are "claimants" within the federal statute requiring the owner of the vessel to institute a proceeding for limitation of liability within six months after claimant has given such owner written notice of the claim, although if a wrongful death action were filed to enforce the parents' claim the appointment of an administrator would be necessary to satisfy the requirements of this section: In re Donnelly's Petition, 60 OO 142, 138 FSupp 823, affirmed, In re Petition of Donnelly, 60 OO 141, 230 F(2d) 169 (6th Cir.).

53. A personal representative, under this section, is not a mere dry trustee. The federal court will not look back of the residence and citizenship of a personal representative to ascertain the citizenship of the real beneficiaries. And where the plaintiff, and administrator, and the defendant are residents of Pennsylvania, a federal court sitting in Ohio will not entertain jurisdiction thereof, notwithstanding the plaintiff administrator was appointed by a court in Ohio, and the real beneficiaries are residents of this state: Lally v. Pennsylvania Co., 12 OFD 750 [for decision in state court, see 56 OS 735].

Damages

54. No damages can be given on account of bereavement, mental suffering, or as a solace on account of such death: Steel v. Kurtz, 28 OS 191.

55. The amount of damages recoverable for death by wrongful act must be limited to the pecuniary loss sustained by the beneficiaries: Steel v. Kurtz, 28 OS 191; Russell v. Sunbury, 37 OS 372; Cincinnati St. R. Co. v. Altemeier, 60 OS 10, 53 NE 300 [affirming judgment of circuit court, which affirmed Altemeier v. Cincinnati St. R. Co., 4 NP 224, 5 OD 655]; Kennedy v. Byers, 107 OS 90, 140 NE 630.

56. The jury must determine the amount of damages, within the limits of the law, from the proofs in the case, and should be a fair and just compensation with reference to the pecuniary injury resulting to the beneficiary from such death; and in determining this, the reasonable expectation of what the next of kin might have received from the deceased, had he lived, is a proper subject for the consideration of the jury: Steel v. Kurtz, 28 OS 191; Grottenkemper v. Harris, 25 OS 510.

57. Where an action is brought for the benefit of a surviving husband, evidence that the husband had again married, and that his second wife performed like services and duties, and contributed in like manner as the first wife to the support of the family and the accumulation of property, is not admissible in mitigation of damages: Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 OS 470, 15 NE 350, 4 AmSt 548.

58. It need not affirmatively appear that the next of kin sustained any loss, as where deceased lived apart from his family: Lake Shore &c. R. Co. v. Murphy, 50 OS 135, 33 NE 403.

59. The amount of recovery is limited to pecuniary loss and nothing can be allowed for mental suffering or punitive damages: Cincinnati St. R. Co. v. Altemeier, 60 OS 10, 53 NE 300.

60. It is error to permit the parent of a deceased child to give his opinion as to the value of the child's services, that being for the determination of the jury: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Stephens, 75 OS 171, 79 NE 235.

61. In an action brought to recover damages for wrongful death, damages which may be recovered are limited to the pecuniary loss sustained by the beneficiaries and do not include such elements as bereavement, or mental pain and suffering of the beneficiaries, or the loss of the society or comfort of the deceased: Kennedy v. Byers, 107 OS 90, 1 OLA 228, 20 OLR 610, 140 NE 630.

62. If verdict in action for unliquidated damages is, in opinion of trial court, excessive, but not influenced by passion or prejudice, court may, with assent of plaintiff, reduce verdict by remittitur to amount warranted by evidence: Chester Park Co. v. Schulte, 120 OS 273, 166 NE 186.

63. Where an action for the wrongful death of a minor child is brought for the benefit of his parents and his brothers and sisters as beneficiaries, the court should instruct the jury as to the considerations to be applied to each in fixing the amount of any damage award: Karr v. Sixt, 146 OS 527, 33 OO 14, 67 NE(2d) 331.

64. Where an action is brought under this section for pecuniary injury resulting from the wrongful death of an infant, there is no exact rule regarding the amount of damages which a jury may award. Factors for consideration by the jury are the age, sex and physical and mental condition of the child and the position in life, occupation and physical and economic conditions of the parents. It cannot be said as a matter of law that there is no pecuniary damage to the parents of an infant whose death is caused by the wrongful act of another, nor can it be said that the expense of maintaining and educating the child would necessarily exceed any pecuniary advantage which the parents could have derived from his services had he lived: Immel v. Richards, 154 OS 52, 42 OO 128, 93 NE(2d) 474 [affirming 56 OLA 132 (App)].

65. The plaintiff has the burden of proving that the tortious act was the proximate cause of the acceleration of death. In mitigation of damages the defendant may offer evidence as to the weakness, diseased condition, impaired earning power or lack of activity of the decedent or other facts tending to prove that he would have lived only a very short time had his death not been accelerated by the tortious act: Larrissey v. Norwalk Truck Lines, Inc., 155 OS 207, 44 OO 238, 98 NE(2d) 419.

66. In an action under this section, based upon a tortious act which proximately accelerated the death of a decedent, the trial court should fully charge the jury as to the consideration it should give to the length of the period by which decedent's life was shortened and what damages flowed only therefrom: Larrissey v. Norwalk Truck Lines, Inc., 155 OS 207, 44 OO 238, 98 NE(2d) 419.

67. In a wrongful death action, where it is claimed that the death was accelerated by the wrongful act of the defendant, recovery can be had only where it is shown by the evidence that death was accelerated by an appreciable period of time as a direct result of the wrongful act: Lopresti v. Community Trac. Co., 160 OS 480, 52 OO 359, 117 NE(2d) 2.

68. This section after providing for the bringing of a wrongful death action by the personal representative of the deceased for the exclusive benefit of his next of kin, provides that "the jury may give such damages as it thinks proportioned to the pecuniary injury resulting from such death to the persons, respectively, for whose benefit the action was brought": Flory v. New York Cent. R. Co., 170 OS 185, 190, 10 OO(2d) 126, 163 NE(2d) 902, affirming 109 App 501, 12 OO(2d) 95, 163 NE(2d) 796.

69. Revised Code § 2125.01 which provides a right of action for death caused by a wrongful act in another state "for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages is given by a statute of such other state," does not require the application of that state's limitation of the amount of damages recoverable: Fox v. Morrison Motor Freight, 25 OS(2d) 193, 54 OO(2d) 301, 267 NE(2d) 405.

70. In an action brought in Ohio under RC § 2125.01 by the Ohio administrator of the estate of an Ohio resident who was killed in a motor vehicle collision in another state, where there was no citizen or resident of that state involved in the collision, and there is no issue of liability, Ohio has all the substantial governmental interests and the law of Ohio is determinative of the damages recoverable: Fox v. Morrison Motor Freight, 25 OS(2d) 193, 54 OO(2d) 301, 267 NE(2d) 405.

71. In determining what amount of damages, if any, may be awarded to parents for the wrongful death of a minor child, the jury may consider the age and sex of the child, the circumstances and condition of life of the parents, and other helpful facts existing at the time of the child's death: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Beebe, 3 App 213, 21 CC(NS) 513, 28 CD 641 [affirmed, without opinion, 91 OS 418].

72. A verdict of five thousand four hundred dollars on account of the wrongful death of a man thirty-eight years of age, who left a wife and two small children, and who was in perfect health and earning twenty dollars a month and board as a driver on a milk route, is not excessive: Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. v. Buxton, 3 App 298, 20 CC(NS) 22, 26 CD 304 [affirmed, without opinion, 91 OS 423].

73. In an action to recover damages for death by wrongful act it is not error to charge the jury that they could take into consideration the care, instruction, training, advice and guidance, if any, which the evidence shows the decedent reasonably might have been expected to give his children during their minority, and include the pecuniary value thereof in the damages assessed, if any: New York, C. & C. R. Co. v. Aigler, 10 App 195, 29 OCA 385, 64 Bull 61 (Ed).

73. In an action to recover damages for death by wrongful act it is not error to charge the jury that they could take into consideration the care, instruction, training, advice and guidance, if any, which the evidence shows the decedent reasonably might have been expected to give his children during their minority, and include the pecuniary value thereof in the damages assessed, if any: New York, C. & C. R. Co. v. Aigler, 10 App 195, 29 OCA 385, 64 Bull 61 (Ed).

74. The amount of damages recoverable for death by wrongful act is for the jury to determine: Welling v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 12 App 136.

75. A verdict in an action for death by wrongful act will not be set aside as excessive unless it appears to be the result of passion or prejudice or a misunderstanding of the rights of the parties and the duty of the jury: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Cahill, 16 App 496 [for earlier opinion, see 13 App 46].

76. In an action for the wrongful death of a child, four years of age, a verdict of five thousand dollars is not so excessive as to indicate that it was given under the influence of passion or prejudice: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Cahill, 16 App 496 [for earlier opinion, see 13 App 46].

77. In an action for wrongful death brought under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03) for the benefit of the heirs and next of kin of a minor decedent, it is not error for the court, in charging on damages, not to exclude any earnings the minor might have made before reaching the age of twenty-one, even though the action was not for the exclusive benefit of decedent's parents: Shillito Co. v. Shanley, 21 App 12, 153 NE 102.

78. The law giving right of recovery for unlawful death, not providing rule to determine amount of damages, except that "the jury may give such damages as it may think proportioned to the pecuniary injury resulting from such death," the jury may use their own experience in the conduct of human affairs in arriving at verdict, based upon facts established: Minglewood Coal & C. Co. v. Carson, 31 App 237, 166 NE 237.

79. Evidence showing pecuniary injuries to beneficiaries, also circumstances, age, health, and means of support of beneficiary, if parent or next of kin, and age, health, disposition, and thrift of decedent, may be shown: Greer v. Commissioners, 33 App 539, 169 NE 709.

80. Where the verdict of a jury and the judgment entered on it are so grossly inadequate as to shock one's sense of justice and fairness—after it is found from the record facts that a recovery should be had—it is the bounden duty of a reviewing court to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial: Greer v. Commissioners, 33 App 539, 169 NE 709.

81. Fourteen thousand dollars damages for death of plumber, forty-two years of age, earning fifteen hundred dollars yearly, and sole support of wife and two children, was not excessive: Ohio Power Co. v. Fittro, 36 App 186, 173 NE 33.

82. In an action for wrongful death brought in the name of the personal representative of the deceased person for the benefit of the surviving children, it is reversible error for the court to refuse a requested charge that the jury should consider the pecuniary injury to each beneficiary and to then mass the aggregate of their total losses into one sum in the verdict: Wartik v. Miller, 48 App 494, 2 OO 103, 194 NE 433.

83. In an action for wrongful death the absence of evidence that decedent supported a family does not entitle the defendant to a charge limiting recovery to nominal damages. There are elements of pecuniary loss other than support: Smith v. Cushman Motor Delivery Co., 54 App 99, 7 OO 426, 6 NE(2d) 594.

84. Collateral heirs are not entitled to recover damages for the wrongful death of a sister who at the time of her death was but eight years old, partially blind and likely to be dependent upon someone all her life, in the absence of positive proof of pecuniary loss to such heirs, which is a condition precedent to recovery: Martin v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 55 App 205, 8 OO 503, 9 NE(2d) 302.

85. In an action for wrongful death brought under this section and GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), the funeral expenses of the decedent, not being a pecuniary injury to any of the specified beneficiaries, are not recoverable: Gaus v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 56 App 299, 9 OO 389, 10 NE(2d) 635.

86. In an action against a corporation for wrongful death, a charge to the jury that whatever rights the decedent had because of the accident are preserved by statute to his next of kin, though inaccurate, is not prejudicially erroneous when followed by a correct charge as to the nature of the case and measure of damages: Chowning v. Ajax Motor Service, Inc., 60 App 470, 14 OO 507, 21 NE(2d) 1021.

87. Generally, damages recoverable for wrongful death, under GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), are to be determined by considering the victim's life expectancy, character, health, habits, talents, prospects, prior earnings, probable future earnings, and needs of and contributions to dependents and current returns on investments: Sutfin v. Burton, 91 App 177, 48 OO 298, 104 NE(2d) 53.

88. Funeral and burial expenses incurred by a surviving spouse for the funeral and burial of his wife, who has sustained a fatal injury by the wrongful act of a third person, are recoverable in a direct action by the husband, on the ground that it is the husband's duty to provide for the funeral and burial of his wife; a plaintiff's petition therefor states a good cause of action; the expenses incurred thereby are not regarded as a pecuniary loss to the wife's estate or recoverable under the wrongful death statute; and a demurrer to plaintiff's petition is not well taken: Moss v. Hitzel Canning Co., 100 App 509, 60 OO 397, 137 NE(2d) 440.

89. RC § 2305.21, which provides for the survival of causes of action for injuries to the property of a person, notwithstanding his death, is sufficiently comprehensive to allow a personal representative of a deceased, liable for funeral expenses of the deceased under the statute, to recover such expenses for the benefit of the estate from a tort-feasor who negligently caused the death: Adams v. Malik, 106 App 461, 7 OO(2d) 196, 155 NE(2d) 231.

90. As to the issue of excessiveness of a jury verdict, a reviewing court must subscribe to the sensible rule that it is not to substitute its judgment for that of the jury when there is sufficient evidence before the jury to resolve the issue: Diener v. White Consolidated Industries, Inc., 15 OApp(2d) 172, 44 OO(2d) 301, 239 NE(2d) 421.

91. Where, in a wrongful death action brought under this section, on behalf of the parents of a killed son, there is no evidence that, at the time of his death, the son contributed to the support of either parent or that either parent could reasonably have anticipated contributions in the future or would need support money, or that the son was in the process of accumulating an estate which either parent might inherit; the claim that either parent suffered "pecuniary injury" is not supported, and they cannot recover for the death of such son: Murray v. Long, 21 OApp(2d) 194, 50 OO(2d) 332, 256 NE(2d) 225.

92. In order to support a judgment of recovery in a wrongful death action under this section, it must be shown that the beneficiaries of such judgment received financial aid from the decedent during his lifetime and would likely have continued to receive such aid and/or would have, in reasonable probability, inherited from an accumulating estate program cut short by the death of decedent. The circumstances, age, health and means of support of such beneficiaries, and the age, health, disposition and thrift of decedent are factors to be considered in determining whether there has been "pecuniary injury" to such beneficiaries: Murray v. Long, 21 O App(2d) 194, 50 OO(2d) 332, 256 NE(2d) 225.

93. The damages recoverable in a wrongful death action brought for the benefit of those named in this section, must be "proportioned to the pecuniary injury" resulting from the death: Murray v. Long, 21 O App(2d) 194, 50 OO(2d) 332, 256 NE(2d) 225.

94. In a wrongful death action before a jury, the widow of the deceased, having remarried, is entitled to a pretrial order that she may be sworn and identified throughout the trial by her former name, and that no reference to her remarriage may be made, in order to prevent an unlawful diminution of damages: Helmick v. Netzley, 12 OMisc 97, 40 OO(2d) 104, 229 NE(2d) 476.

95. Funeral expenses incurred by a husband for the funeral and burial of his wife who has sustained a fatal injury by the wrongful act of a third person, are not to be considered as a pecuniary injury under the wrongful death statutes: Barcus v. Union Hospital Assn., 43 OO(2d) 407, 14 OMisc 168, 236 NE(2d) 232 (CP); Caswell v. Harry Miller Excavating Co., 47 OO(2d) 307, 246 NE(2d) 921 (CP).

96. Medical expenses accruing during the lifetime of a deceased wife because of an injury resulting in death sustained by the wrongful action of a third person do not constitute an element of damages in a wrongful death action: Barcus v. Union Hospital Assn., 43 OO(2d) 407, 14 OMisc 168, 236 NE(2d) 232 (CP).

97. While a father may recover the necessary funeral expenses incurred by him for the funeral and burial of a minor child from a wrongdoer who causes the death of such minor child, such funeral expenses are not part of the damages recoverable for pecuniary loss for the death of said son under the wrongful death statutes: Caswell v. Harry Miller Excavating Co., 20 OMisc 46, 47 OO(2d) 307, 246 NE(2d) 921 (1969).

98. Contra: Funeral expenses constitute a proper item of damage in an action for wrongful death: Buchanan v. Battson, 13 OLA 551.

99. A judgment for thirty-five hundred dollars in action for wrongful death of a farmer seventy years of age, in good health, is not sustained by the evidence when there is no evidence that had he lived his life would have been of pecuniary value to his children whom he had not supported for many years: Brownlee v. Stanley, 28 OLA 119.

100. This section does not provide for the allowance of funeral, medical and hospital expenses as the subject of award as damages: Sprung v. E.I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., 16 OO 352, 30 OLA 278, 34 NE(2d) 41 (App) [appeal dismissed, 136 OS 94].

101. In an action for wrongful death it is proper for the personal representative who brings the action to set forth in his petition and prove as a part of the damages sought a funeral bill paid by the widow, for whose benefit the action has been brought: Albers v. Great Central Transp. Corp., 28 OO 287 (CP).

102. Although an administrator can maintain an action for the benefit of his decedent's estate to recover the funeral expenses of his decedent, such a suit cannot be brought under the wrongful death statute, since this statute excludes funeral expenses as an item of damage in a wrongful death action: Hunter v. McKinney, 46 OO 17, 69 OLA 237, 101 NE(2d) 810.

103. Funeral expenses are recoverable as damages in an action for death by wrongful act: McManus v. Buskirk, 21 OO(2d) 243, 89 OLA 97, 183 NE(2d) 473.

104. Except in a case involving the death of a breadwinner of a family, the amount of a verdict in every wrongful death is conjectural and, ordinarily, upon the review of the amount of a judgment in a wrongful death action, the reviewing court should not substitute its own speculation for that of the jury unless the amount be manifestly against the weight of the evidence: Crider v. Columbus Plastic Products, Inc., 90 OLA 605, 190 NE(2d) 63 (App).

105. In determining the amount which may be awarded to a parent for the wrongful death of a child, the jury should consider the age and sex of the child, and the parents' mode of living: Burns-Bowe Baking Co. v. Pakos, 32 OLR 593.

106. The question of damages is within the discretion of the jury, and a reviewing court is not justified in disturbing the verdict unless it clearly appears that it is grossly excessive and out of all proportion to what the evidence shows could possibly be the pecuniary loss of the next of kin: Burns-Bowe Baking Co. v. Pakos, 32 OLR 593.

107. Where the next of kin was an invalid father, and the decedent was a son who earned $325 a month, and was accustomed to give to his father $100 to $125 each month together with other help, and the father's expectancy of life was 13.82 years, a verdict of $12,000 was not excessive and requires no intervention by a reviewing court: Burns-Bowe Baking Co. v. Pakos, 32 OLR 593.

108. Where the captain of a fire truck, who earned nine hundred dollars a year and was fifty-two years old, was killed by a street car, a verdict of three thousand dollars in favor of his widow and grown-up children was not excessive: Toledo R. & C. Co. v. Ward, 2 CC(NS) 256, 15 CD 399.

109. The measure of damages is the reasonable expectancy of what the family or next of kin might have received from the decedent and not the amount it is reasonably certain they would have received: New York, C. & C. R. Co. v. Roe, 4 CC(NS) 284, 15 CD 628 [affirmed, without report, 73 OS 382].

110. Under this section, prescribing the bringing of actions for death by wrongful act, the apportionment of damages therefor is of no concern or interest to the negligent party against which damages are recovered, and it follows, therefore, that an instruction to the jury in such a case to take into consideration the money value of the services of the child to the father, mother, and next of kin, although erroneous as to the "next of kin" is not prejudicial in that nobody but the father and, in some contingencies, the mother, have any pecuniary interest in such services. The jury should allow the full value for such services, and it is not to be supposed that in apportioning the damages they would multiply the value of the services by the number of beneficiaries: Toledo R. & C. Co. v. Wettstein, 14 CC(NS) 441, 23 CD 15 [affirmed, without opinion, 79 OS 439].

111. A verdict of one thousand dollars, under 101 v 195, for the death of a six-year-old girl, large for her age and bright and active, and a helper in a large family of moderate means where all were expected to assist, was not excessive: Toledo R. & C. Co. v. Wettstein, 14 CC(NS) 441, 23 CD 15 [affirmed, without opinion, 79 OS 439].

112. It is said that since this section fixed the maximum amount of recovery, GC § 972 (see now RC § 4155.13) et seq did not fix such amount, and that this section was adopted by reference in such sections: Rankine v. Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co., 15 CC(NS) 17, 23 CD 349 [affirmed, in memorandum opinion, Pennsylvania & O. Coal Co. v. Rankine, 88 OS 555, on authority of Saxton v. Seiberling, 48 OS 554; contra, Harris v. Rail &c. Coal Min. Co., 87 OS 450].

113. In an action for wrongful death it is unnecessary to show more than that the deceased bore the relation of wife and mother to the persons for whose interest the action is brought, in order to authorize substantial, as distinguished from nominal, damages: Ellis v. Twiggs, 17 CC(NS) 172, 32 CD 96.

114. While the jury is not permitted to guess at the amount of damages, they are not restricted to absolute certainties in estimating damages in a case such as an action for death by wrongful act, where the actual damages would depend upon the length of decedent's life if the accident had not occurred, and the amount which he would have contributed to the support of his family and next of kin: Becker v. Howanyecz, 18 CC(NS) 19, 32 CD 561.

115. A verdict of eight hundred dollars for the death of an infant two years old will not be set aside as excessive, even though there was no evidence introduced as to the probable length of life of the infant or as to what it would probably have contributed to the support of the beneficiaries of the judgment, if it had lived: Becker v. Howanyecz, 18 CC(NS) 19, 32 CD 561.

116. In an action for the wrongful death of a child five years old, a judgment of one thousand eight hundred dollars will not be set aside, though there is some evidence that the mother, one of the beneficiaries, was negligent, and that the father had deserted the mother and child: Campbell v. Tarr, 18 CC(NS) 323, 33 CD 66.

117. In view of the fact that the legislature has removed the former limitation on the amount which may be recovered for wrongful death, an award of seven thousand dollars cannot be regarded as excessive for the death of a vigorous man, twenty-six years of age, industrious, temperate and thrifty, who had contributed toward the support of his next of kin and who left surviving him a father and mother and ten brothers and sisters: Ohio Trac. Co. v. Flynn, 26 CC(NS) 250, 35 CD 118.

118. Damages in the amount of twenty-five hundred dollars, under 101 v 195, were not excessive in an action for causing the death of an apparently able-bodied workman: Williams v. Bishop, 12 NP(NS) 7, 22 OD 401 [reversed on other grounds, Griffith v. Williams, 15 CC(NS) 9, 23 CD 401; which was dismissed, without opinion, Williams v. Griffith, 57 Bull 464].

119. Funeral expenses are not recoverable in an action brought by a widower, as administrator, for damages on account of the wrongful death of his late wife: Harry v. Seibel, 29 NP(NS) 81.

120. In an action to recover damages for death by wrongful act, a verdict for four thousand dollars is not excessive, if the evidence shows that the deceased was a laboring man, that he was frugal, that he was very strong, and that he left a wife and three children surviving him; and a judgment for such amount entered upon such verdict will not be reversed: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Ginocchio, 60 Bull 377 (Ed).

121. The pecuniary loss recoverable under the employers' liability act of 1908, by one dependent upon the employee wrongfully killed, must be a loss which can be measured by one standard and does not include an inestimable loss such as that of society and companionship of the deceased or of care and advice in case of a husband for his wife: Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Vreeland, 227 US 59, 57 LEd 417, 33 S Ct

192, AnnCas 1914C, 176 [reversing Vreeland v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 189 Fed 495, 16 OFD 642, 9 OLR 249, 56 Bull 189 (Ed)].

122. A minor child sustains a loss from the death of a parent of a different kind from that of a wife or husband from the death of the spouse; while the former is capable of definite valuation the latter is not: Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Vreeland, 227 US 59, 57 LEd 417, 33 S.Ct. 192, AnnCas 1914C, 176 [reversing Vreeland v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 189 Fed 495, 16 OFD 642, 9 OLR 249, 56 Bull 189 (Ed)].

123. A verdict, in an action for wrongful death, taking into consideration the financial interest of the wife in the wages earned by her husband, her expectancy as his sole heir to mutual and prospective accumulated savings therefrom, will not be deemed excessive when the amount adjudged if invested in an annuity for her life would not produce a greater sum than a fair share of her husband's earning capacity if living: Vreeland v. Michigan Cent. R. Co., 189 Fed 495, 9 OLR 249, 56 Bull 189, 16 OFD 642 [reversed, on other grounds, Michigan Cent. R. Co. v. Vreeland, 227 US 59].

124. Under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), it is not reversible error to refuse to ask the jury to state the names of the persons sustaining legal damages by the death of the deceased, as this section does not require that the verdict or judgment state the names of the beneficiaries, but contemplates a verdict for a gross sum to be apportioned by the court appointing the representative: Pittsburgh, C., C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Scherer, 205 Fed 356, 123 CCA 484.

125. Ohio law controls the standard to be applied in an Ohio diversity action in determining damages under the Ohio wrongful death statute: Blasky v. Wheatley Trucking Co. 482 F(2d) 497 (1973).

126. Ohio law is applicable in determining the measure of damages for wrongful death pursuant to Title 28 U.S.C. § 1346(b) (1964), which provides that the United States shall be liable "in accordance with the law of the place where the act or omission occurred: Wasilko v. United States, 300 F.Supp 573, 50 OO(2d) 290.

127. The term "pecuniary injury" for which damages may be recovered in a wrongful death action means injury measured by the prospective advantages of a pecuniary nature which have been cut off by the premature death of the person from whom they would have proceeded; the term does not embrace bereavement or mental pain and suffering or the loss of society or comfort: Wasilko v. United States, 50 OO(2d) 290, 300 F.Supp. 573.

128. Proper elements in determining compensatory damages for the wrongful death of a child are chance of future support by the child of the parent, the age, sex, and physical and mental condition of the child and the position in life, occupation, and physical condition of the parents: Wasilko v. United States, 50 OO(2d) 290, 300 F.Supp. 573.

Compromise

129. The application of an administrator to the probate court, under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), for consent to make settlement for injuries resulting in the death of his decedent while in the course of employment, is not the institution of proceedings in the courts for damages, within the contemplation of GC § 1465-76 (repealed, 114 v 76): State ex rel Trumbull Steel Co. v. Industrial Commission, 106 OS 82, 138 NE 530.

130. The obtaining by the administrator of consent to make settlement for injuries resulting in the death of his decedent while in the course of employment, and the execution of a release of damage by the dependent, do not constitute a waiver by the latter of her claim for compensation: State ex rel Trumbull Steel Co. v. Industrial Commission, 106 OS 82, 138 NE 530.

131. This section provides a specific remedy for the wrongful death of another by prescribing that the cause of action must be brought in the name of the personal representative of the decedent, and that such personal representative, with the consent of the court making the appointment of such personal representative, may settle with the defendant the amount to be paid as damages: Matz v. Erie-Lackawanna R. Co., 2 OApp(2d) 136, 31 OO(2d) 241, 207 NE(2d) 250.

132. The statutory procedure under this section providing for the settlement of a claim for wrongful death is exclusive in the personal representative of the deceased person, subject to the approval of the probate court making the appointment of such personal representative: Matz v. Erie-Lackawanna R. Co., 2 OApp(2d) 136, 31 OO(2d) 241, 207 NE(2d) 250.

133. A settlement by the widow and administratrix of a decedent, killed by a wrongful act, is void as against the minor children of the deceased, where it does not appear that the probate court consented to and approved the settlement: Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Hottman, 1 CC(NS) 17, 15 CD 140 [affirmed, without report, 70 OS 475].

134. A release executed by an employee in full for all claims for damages growing out of an injury received by him while in said employment, bars his estate from further recovery in the event of his subsequent death in consequence of said injuries, but leaves intact any claim for loss sustained by the widow or next of kin: Maguire v. Cincinnati Trac. Co., 14 CC(NS) 431, 23 CD 24 [affirmed, without opinion, Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Maguire, 87 OS 512].

135. An agreement to pay a widow a specified sum of money in full settlement of her claim for the wrongful death of her husband, and also to pay her lawyer a stipulated sum under his agreement with her when he took the case, or to protect her against the claim of the lawyer, is so far repudiated by a subsequent refusal to settle with the lawyer as to justify the party of the first part in tendering back the amount she had received and declaring the whole agreement at an end: Farley v. Cleveland, C., C. & C. R. Co., 24 CC(NS) 12, 34 CD 446.

136. Under former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), a settlement obtained with the consent of the probate court cannot be invalidated by a later withdrawal of the consent: Bragg v. Ohio Elec. R. Co., 23 NP(NS) 140, 31 OD 125.

137. Settlement with the injured party in his lifetime is a bar to an action on behalf of his beneficiaries after his death, under the federal employers' liability act: Connors v. New York Cent. R. Co., 20 NP(NS) 573, 29 OD 64.

138. If one who is injured in a railway accident enters into a compromise with the railway company during his lifetime, in settlement of his claim for such injury, and he subsequently dies, such compromise is not a defense in an action brought by the administrator for the benefit of the widow and surviving children; and it is error to exclude evidence thereof: Cincinnati Trac. Co. v. Ginocchio, 60 Bull 377 (Ed).

Pleading and procedure

139. Where, in an action under this section, the administrator, though appointed, failed to qualify until more than two years after the death, his qualification at that time relates back to the time of his appointment, as regards acts done for the benefit of the estate, and the commencement of the suit by him, being for the benefit of the estate, was the valid commencement of an action: Archdeacon v. Cincinnati Gas & C. Co., 76 OS 97, 81 NE 152 [reversing 3 NP(NS) 45, 15 OD 585, and 3 NP(NS) 606, 16 OD 775].

140. In an action for wrongful death (former GC § 10770 [see now RC § 2125.01] et seq), plaintiff's opening statement admitting inability to prove that the next of kin in Italy were living and dependent, did not warrant a directed verdict against plaintiff: Fini v. Perry, 119 OS 367, 164 NE 358.

141. Where a widow institutes an action, as administratrix, for damages for the wrongful death of her husband, under the mistaken belief that she had been duly appointed and had qualified as such, thereafter discovers her error and amends her petition so as to show that she was appointed administratrix after the expiration of the statute of limitation applicable to such action, the amended petition will relate back to the date of the filing of the petition, and the action will be deemed commenced within the time limited by statute: Douglas v. D.B. Coal Co., 135 OS 641, 15 OO 12, 22 NE(2d) 195, 123 ALR 761.

142. As a general rule, a person can not in the same action sue in more than one distinct right or capacity, and, in the absence of an enabling statute, an executor or administrator is precluded from joining a cause of action for personal injury to his decedent with a cause for the decedent's wrongful death: Fielder v. Edison Co., 158 OS 375, 49 OO 265, 109 NE(2d) 855, 35 ALR(2d) 1365.

143. Where from the averments of a petition it is apparent that the action is for wrongful death instead of for personal injuries suffered before death, and, as such, the court rules the petition defective because it does not name the next of kin entitled to receive the amount recoverable, an amendment adding the names of the beneficiaries does not plead a new and separate cause of action, and is proper although made after the period of the statute of limitations: Brown v. Bauman, 49 App 49, 2 OO 210, 195 NE 69.

144. Where an action for wrongful death arose prior to the effective date of this section, but the petition was filed after such date, such section replacing former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03), and including additional beneficiaries and changing the amount of damages collectible, it is error for the court to charge according to this section, thereby giving it retroactive effect: Cincinnati v. Bachmann, 51 App 108, 3 OO 271, 199 NE 853.

145. Where an administrator brings an action under this section to recover for the wrongful death of his decedent in an automobile collision, he acts as a trustee for the sole benefit of decedent's next of kin. A counterclaim interposed in that action by defendant to recover for personal injuries sustained by defendant in the same collision, presents a claim against the estate of the decedent. In such a situation the administrator acts in different capacities as to each cause of action, there is no mutuality of parties as required by the rule governing counterclaims, and an order requiring the counterclaim of defendant to be docketed as an independent action is proper: Epinger v. Wade, 73 App 231, 28 OO 358, 55 NE(2d) 679.

146. In a wrongful death action by the administrator of the decedent, the petition alleging that plaintiff's decedent died leaving  his mother, a dependent, and that by reason of his wrongful death resulting from the negligence of defendant's decedent, the estate of plaintiff's decedent has been damaged in the sum of $10,000," sets forth such mother's dependency and pecuniary loss occasioned by the death of her son and states a cause of action: Ebeling v. Harman, 83 App 519, 38 OO 567, 52 OLA 78, 80 NE(2d) 704.

147. In a wrongful death action, it is within the discretion of the trial court to exclude from the courtroom the children of the decedent who are of tender years: Long v. Maxwell Co., 118 OApp 134, 24 OO(2d) 446, 193 NE(2d) 423.

148. The survivors named in the wrongful death statute need not be named in an action under RC § 2305.21 (the so-called survivor statute): Fisher v. Butler, 11 OMisc 116, 40 OO(2d) 139, 224 NE(2d) 923 (CP).

Limitations

149. The proviso in the act of March 25, 1851 (S&C 1139), that the action must be commenced within two years after the death, was a condition qualifying the right of action, and not a mere limitation on the remedy. The amendment of the section during the existence of the right of action, and the omission of the proviso in the amended section did not extend the time within which the action could be brought: Pittsburgh, C. & C. R. Co. v. Hine, 25 OS 629.

150. The provision of this section, that "except as otherwise provided by law, every such action [for wrongful death] must be commenced within two years after the death of such deceased person," is a restriction qualifying the right of the action and is not merely a time limitation upon the remedy: Sabol v. Pekoc, 148 OS 545, 36 OO 182, 76 NE(2d) 84.

151. Where a petition in an action for wrongful death shows upon its face that the action was not commenced within two years after such death, a cause of action is not stated and a demurrer to the petition should be sustained: Sabol v. Pekoc, 148 OS 545, 36 OO 182, 76 NE(2d) 84.

152. Where the administrator for the estate of the deceased airplane passenger failed to present the statutory beneficiary's claim for wrongful death to the administratrix of the estate of the deceased pilot within the four-month provision of RC § 2117.06, and the nine-month provision of RC § 2117.07, but, in his capacity as next friend for the minor and sole heir of the deceased passenger, did present the minor's claim within nine months after the appointment the presentation is sufficient compliance with the provisions of RC §§ 2117.06 and 2117.07: Burwell v. Maynard, 21 OS(2d) 108, 50 OO(2d) 268, 255 NE(2d) 628.

153. Where wife of deceased employee brought civil action under GC § 1465-76 (repealed, 114 v 76) against employer while her application under workmen's compensation law was pending before industrial commission, and obtained a judgment, such judgment is not wholly void and may not be collaterally attacked, even though it was not brought within the two years required by former GC § 10772 (see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03); trial court had jurisdiction to determine whether wife had right of action under former GC § 10772 and that determination, whether erroneous or not, cannot be attacked in another action following disposition of case by industrial commission: Straka v. Cleveland R. Co., 34 App 252, 170 NE 611.

154. Where a cause of action in favor of a decedent for personal injuries resulting from malpractice was not barred at the time of his death by the one-year period of limitation provided by GC § 11225 (RC § 2305.11), applicable to such action, his administrator has, under the provisions of this section, two years from the date of death to bring an action for wrongful death originating in the same wrongful act: Naticcioni v. Felter, 54 App 180, 7 OO 55, 6 NE(2d) 764.

155. The language used in the wrongful death statute, this section, providing for the term within which such action must be commenced after the death of the deceased person, must be construed so that the first day of the period named is excluded and the last-named day included. The provisions of GC

§ 10216 (RC § 1.14) are applicable to this section: Young v. New York Cent. R. Co., 64 App 362, 18 OO 149, 28 NE(2d) 687.

156. Amended GC § 1465-70 (RC § 4123.74) is an exception to the two-year limitation fixed by this section: Bryson v. American Tool Works Co., 18 OO 1 (CP).

157. Where no cause of action existed against defendant by reason of lapse of two-year period (former GC § 10772 [see now RC §§ 2125.02, 2125.03]), court had power to dismiss action on motion to quash service: Knight v. Schlachter, 28 App 70, 162 NE 455.

158. The limitation contained in former GC § 10773 (repealed 114 v 320), that every action based on a claim for wrongful death shall be brought within two years, was a part of the right of action itself, and not merely a limitation on the remedy; and the saving clause of GC § 11233 (RC § 2305.19), relating to causes commenced or attempted to be commenced in due time, but which have failed for some reason other than on the merits, was without application in such a case: Collins v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 11 NP(NS) 251.

159. Where an alleged negligent act was such as would have, if death had not ensued, entitled a person to maintain an action therefor, a cause of action for wrongful death exists in such decedent's personal representative, and such cause of action for wrongful death cannot be defeated merely by reason of the bar of limitation which would have been applicable to decedent's action: Klema v. St. Elizabeth's Hosp., 170 OS 519, 11 OO(2d) 326, 166 NE(2d) 765.

160. If the beneficiaries of a claim for death by wrongful act are nonresident alien enemies, the right of action is suspended during the period of the war; and the action may be brought after peace is declared as long as the period elapsing between the death and the time of bringing the action, less the period during which the state of war existed, does not exceed the period limited by statute: Borovitz v. American Hard Rubber Co., 287 F 368, 1 OLA 342, 21 OLR 175.

161. Where a purported service of summons fails because it is quashed, it is a nullity and does not serve as the commencement of or an attempt to commence an action so as to authorize an extender of one year in addition to the two years within which an action may be brought under GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), for wrongful death: Bronikowski v. Bigham, 76 OLA 65, 145 NE(2d) 331 (App).

162. Where a petition in an action for wrongful death shows upon its face that the action was not commenced within two years after such death, a cause of action is not stated, and a demurrer thereto should be sustained: Bronikowski v. Bigham, 75 OLA 220, 143 NE(2d) 490 (CP).

163. The provision of RC § 2305.17 (a general limitation of action statute), that "an attempt to commence an action is equivalent to its commencement, when the party diligently endeavors to procure a service, if such attempt is followed by service within sixty days" applies not only to the general limitation of action statutes enumerated in such section but also any special statutory limitation such as that prescribed in the wrongful death statute: Bakin v. Marti, 118 App 244, 25 OO(2d) 87, 194 NE(2d) 145.

164. Where the petition in a wrongful death action is filed, and summons thereon is issued, within the two-year limitation prescribed by this section, but service of summons is not obtained, the voluntary appearance by the defendant within sixty days thereafter is equivalent to service of summons and the action is deemed "commenced" within the time prescribed for commencement of the action: Bakin v.

The amount received by a personal representative in an action for wrongful death under sections 2125.01 and 2125.02 of the Revised Code, whether by settlement or otherwise, shall be distributed to the beneficiaries or any one or more of them, and unless the share of each is adjusted among themselves, the court making the appointment shall adjust such share in such manner as is equitable, having due regard to the pecuniary injury to each beneficiary resulting from such death and to the age and condition of such beneficiaries. The court shall distribute the amount of funeral expenses awarded or received by settlement by reason of the death, to the personal representative of the deceased to be expended by the personal representative in payment thereof or reimbursement therefor.

1. The amount recovered in such action is for the exclusive benefit of the widow and next of kin, and is to be distributed among them in the proportions provided by law in relation to the distribution of personal estates of persons dying intestate. The risk of ascertaining the persons entitled to the benefit of the recovery, and the duty of making the distribution, are not imposed on the defendant, but on the personal representatives of the deceased: Weidner v. Rankin, 26 OS 522.

2. The administrator is only a trustee for the beneficiaries and has no interest for himself or the estate he represents: Wolf v. Lake Erie &c. R. Co., 55 OS 517, 45 NE 708, 36 LRA 812.

3. Where an attorney representing an administrator in the enforcement of a claim for wrongful death files a report in the probate court with regard to distribution of the proceeds of a settlement of that claim and showing a payment to such attorney of $525 for counsel fees and where the rules of that probate court require that the court shall be advised as to the arrangement for and shall review such fees and where at the time of the filing of such report such attorney has already been paid $975 for such counsel fees, the filing of such report may constitute a contempt of the probate court, regardless of whether the foregoing rules of court are or are not valid: In re La Penta, 167 OS 536, 5 OO(2d) 211, 150 NE (2d) 404.

4. Although such report may have correctly represented the facts at the time it was executed and sworn to by the administrator before payment of or any agreement to pay to such attorney any amount in excess of $525 for his fees, the attorney, by his conduct in later filing that report with the court after receiving $450 more for his fees and without any disclosure to the court as to his receipt of such additional $450, thereby misrepresents the facts as to the amount of his fees: In re La Penta, 167 OS 536, 5 OO(2d) 211, 150 NE(2d) 404.

4.1. Neither former GC § 10859 (analogous GC § 10509-190 repealed, 120 v. 649), nor former GC § 11206 (see now RC § 2101.42) authorizes appeal from apportionment of net amount realized by administratrix under wrongful death statute: Parker v. Parker, 35 App 321, 172 NE 450.

5. Evidence in action for wrongful death of plumber held sufficient to show pecuniary loss or dependency of next of kin: Paul A. Sorg Paper Co. v. Hayes, 43 App 140, 182 NE 886.

6. Where one of the beneficiaries for whose benefit the action was brought, by his own negligence contributed toward the injury which caused the death, damages cannot be awarded on account of the pecuniary loss to such beneficiary, and such beneficiary is not entitled to share in the proceeds of the action by reason of his having incurred funeral expenses: Gaus v. Pennsylvania Rd. Co., 56 App 299, 9 OO 389, 25 OLA 24, 10 NE(2d) 635.

7. By the terms of Section 10509-168, General Code (now RC § 2125.03), the Probate Court, in making a distribution of the proceeds of such action among the beneficiaries, may consider funeral expenses incurred by any of the beneficiaries by reason of the death: Gaus v. Pennsylvania Rd. Co., 56 App 299, 9 OO 389, 25 OLA 24, 10 NE(2d) 635.

8. In an action for wrongful death brought under GC §§ 10509-166 and 10509-167 (RC §§ 2125.01 and 2125.02), the funeral expenses of the decedent, not being a pecuniary injury to any of the specified beneficiaries, are not recoverable: Gaus v. Pennsylvania R. Co., 56 App 299, 9 OO 389, 10 NE(2d) 635.

9. A father, as administrator of the estate of a deceased son, having received a sum of money in settlement of an action for the wrongful death of that son, by agreement with two children of the full blood of the decedent under authority of this section, orally approved by the probate judge appointing the administrator, may apportion said sum one-half to himself and one-half to such children, and when pursuant to the agreement he invests the sum apportioned to the children in land, the title to which is placed in the name of one of the children, one-half interest therein being held by her as trustee for the other child, a minor brother, a court of equity will not, at the instance of the trustee in bankruptcy of the father's estate, order a reconveyance of the land to the father, even though the probate court in its journal entry apportions the entire amount of the settlement to the father who was adjudged a bankrupt within four months thereafter: Harry v. Russell, 68 App 877, 23 OO 67, 41 NE(2d) 424.

10. Where applications are made in Probate Court by a widow and her adult sons for an order of distribution of funds received by her, as executrix, from a railroad company engaged in interstate commerce, in settlement for the death of her husband who had been killed in the course of his employment with such company, the Federal Employers' Liability Act, Title 45, Chapter 2, Section 51 et seq., U.S. Code, rather than Sections 10509-167 and 10509-168, General Code (now RC §§ 2125.02 and 2125.03) applies as to such distribution: In re Backus, 73 App 262, 28 OO 432, 55 NE(2d) 811.

11. In an action to determine the apportionment among a widow and three adult children of a part of the settlement of a wrongful death claim it is error to refuse to allow one of such children to testify whether he is in need of money: In re Estate of Miller, 102 App 493, 59 OO 425, 72 OLA 546, 127 NE(2d) 409.

12. The presumption that there is a pecuniary injury to persons legally entitled to care and support from a decedent, in an action for wrongful death, is negated as to a widow where such widow was accorded no care and support, and none was expected or required by her from her husband, and her income is adequate for her needs; and where the adult children of such decedent are without money and living on a hand-to-mouth basis and the decedent had permitted them to live on certain of his properties rent free, and where it is probable that they will have to pay rent for the future use of such properties, such children have suffered a direct pecuniary loss through the death of the decedent and qualify for participation in the proceeds from such wrongful death claim: In re Estate of Miller, 102 App 493, 59 OO 425, 72 OLA 546, 127 NE(2d) 409.

13. Where an adult child is deceased there is no presumption of pecuniary injury or loss, and any claimant seeking to participate in the distribution of the wrongful death proceeds must prove actual pecuniary loss: In re Cline, 1 OMisc 28, 30 OO(2d) 221, 202 NE(2d) 736 (PC).

14. This section gives the probate court discretion in apportioning distributive shares in a wrongful death judgment in accordance with established principles of equity, without regard to the statute of descent and distribution, and without regard for any precise mathematical formulae: In re Cline, 1 OMisc 28, 30 OO(2d) 221, 202 NE(2d) 736 (PC).

15. Under this section the amount which is recovered is apportioned among the beneficiaries by the court which appointed the administrator, and neither the court of common pleas nor the jury in such court has anything to do with such apportionment: Campbell v. Tarr, 18 CC(NS) 323, 33 CD 66.

16. Ohio law applies as to distribution to beneficiaries, where wrongful death occurs in Wisconsin and heirs of decedent are Ohio citizens since Ohio has the greater interest in the resolution of this issue: Satchwill v. Vollrath Co., 293 FSupp 533 (E.D. Wis 1968)

§ 2125.04 New action. (GC § 10509-169)

In every action for wrongful death commenced or attempted to be commenced within the time specified by section 2125.02 of the Revised Code, if a judgment for the plaintiff is reversed or if the plaintiff fails otherwise than upon the merits, and the time limited by such section for the commencement of such action has expired at the date of such reversal or failure, the plaintiff or, if he dies and the cause of action survives, his representative may commence a new action within one year after such date.

1. Where an action for wrongful death has been brought within two years after the death, and after two years have elapsed and the action has been disposed of otherwise than upon the merits, this section does not permit the commencing of a new action based on the same death against a different person, within one year after the date of disposition of the former action: Sabol v. Pekoc, 148 OS 545, 36 OO 182, 76 NE(2d) 84.

2. When an action for wrongful death has been commenced in due time, and is thereafter voluntarily dismissed by the plaintiff after the time limit for the commencement of the action has expired, a new action for the same cause is barred although brought within one year after the dismissal of the former:

Stone v. Siegel, 32 OO 411, 17 OSupp 131 (CP).

3. A plaintiff by the voluntary dismissal of his first action does not fail otherwise than upon the merits, within the purview of this section: Stone v. Siegel, 32 OO 411, 17 OSupp 131 (CP).

4. Where petitioner in a wrongful death action fails to get service on the defendant because the summons is quashed, such does not constitute commencement of an action or an attempt to commence an action and the extender provision of this section does not come into play: Bronikowski v. Bigham, 76 OLA 65, 145 NE(2d) 331 (App).

5. General Code § 10509-169 (RC § 2113.45), authorizing an extender of one year in addition to the two years within which the action may be brought under GC § 10509-167 (RC § 2125.02), for wrongful death, is in the alternative; the requisites to the right to extender are (1) that the action be commenced or (2) attempted to be commenced, in due time, or when

(1) or (2) has been observed, the petitioner has failed otherwise than upon the merits: Bronikowski v. Bigham, 76 OLA 65, 145 NE(2d) 331 (App).

6. The savings statute is without application where the first suit was filed in federal or state court in another state: Andrew v. Bendix Corp., 452 F(2d) 961 (6th Cir. 1971).

7. This saving statute was enacted when it was held that GC § 11233 (RC § 2305.19) did not apply to actions for wrongful death: Collins v. Baltimore & O. R. Co., 11 NP(NS) 251, 22 OD 245.

8. This section as enacted in 101 v 195 was not repealed by the workmen's compensation act (102 v 524 et seq). The two statutes must be construed together and force and effect given to each, if possible; and the later statute will supersede the earlier in cases in which such later act applies specifically: Zumkehr v. Diamond Portland Cement Co., 14 NP (NS) 166, 23 OD 224, 58 Bull 157 (Ed).

All proceedings for the sale of lands by executors, administrators, and guardians shall be in accordance with section[s] 2127.01 to 2127.43, inclusive, of the Revised Code, except where the executor has testamentary power of sale, and in that case the executor may proceed under such sections or under the will.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-1; 114 v 320 (451); 119 v 394 (418), § 1. EF 10-1-53.

Comment

General Code § 10510-1 et seq, effective January 1, 1932, grouped the following former land sale statutes, with a number of minor and important changes:

1. Executors and administrators, GC §§ 10774 to 10811, 10816 to 10819.
2. Guardians of minors, GC §§ 10945 to 10952, 10955, 10956.
3. Guardians of persons confined in state, benevolent, or penal institutions, GC § 10989-2.
4. Guardians of idiots, imbeciles, and lunatics, GC §§ 10994 to 10996.
5. Guardians of intemperate, improvident, and habitually drunken persons, GC §§ 11011, 11012.

It will be noted that this chapter does not include sales of land by trustees. Article IV, § 8, of the Ohio constitution expressly confers on the probate court "such jurisdiction . . . for the sale of land by executors, administrators and guardians . . . as may be provided by law." There is accordingly some question whether it is within the power of the general assembly to authorize the probate court to control the sale of land by trustees. Jurisdiction in the sale of land by trustees is now in the common pleas court under RC § 5303.21 et seq, and no effort was made in the new probate code to bring any of this jurisdiction into the probate court. It will be noticed, however, that RC § 2127.43 vests in the probate court jurisdiction in sales of lands by trustees of nonresident. The provisions of this chapter, prior to the 1941 amendment, were not available to an executor upon whom a power of sale was conferred by the will. After such amendment, GC § 10510-1 permitted an executor in such case to proceed under the statute or under the provisions of the will, at his option.

(3) No power of sale provided for in this section is effective if the surviving spouse, any legatee, devisee, or heir is a minor. No person may give the consent of the minor that is required by this section.

Generally

1. This section construed and applied in Campbell v. Lloyd, 162 OS 203, 55 OO 102, 122 NE(2d) 695.

Power of sale at common law

1.1 Independent of statute there is no power of sale: McCall v. Pixley, 48 OS 379, 27 NE 887; Ferguson v. Wentz, 20 NP(NS) 13, 27 OD 462.

2. The courts had no power to order a sale of a decedent's property before 1795, or between 1805 and 1808. There has been such power at all other times: Ludlow v. Johnston, 3 O 553, 17 AmDec 609; Paine v. Skinner, 8 O 159; Gray v. Askew, 3 O 466.

Descent pending sale

8. Real estate, unlike personal property, goes to the heirs and devisees immediately and directly upon death: Nimmons v. Westfall, 33 OS 213; Clyde v. Simpson, 4 OS 445.

9. Real estate descends directly to heirs or devisees, and is not "assets" of estate to be administered by executor or administrator, except when a sale is necessary to pay debts: Nolan v. Kroll, 37 App 350, 174 NE 750.

10. At the ancestor's death, lands descend to the heir, and are his, charged with the ancestor's debts, until the representative of the personal estate of the deceased proceeds to convert them into money to pay debts: Piatt v. St. Clair, 6 O 227.

11. The right to charge decedent's lands in the hands of heirs no longer exists. Such land must be converted into personalty by the administrator to pay debts. The heir holds the lands free from the ancestor's debts, if the creditor does not assert his claim within the statutory period: Piatt v. St. Clair, 6 O 227.

12. Lands thus descended, though subject to the rights of the creditors through the personal representative of the estate, can, however, be sold on execution, awarded against the heirs, but subject to such rights: Douglass v. Massie, 16 O 271.

13. Lands descend to the heir at once, upon intestate's death, and are his, charged, however, with the ancestor's debts. But until sold by the personal representative, the heir is entitled to the possession, rents, and profits thereof, and should pay all taxes levied thereon after the ancestor's death. Further, he cannot, by bidding in such lands at a tax sale, divest the ancestor's creditors of their lien thereon: Overturf v. Dugan, 29 OS 230.

14. The owners of the fee in land subject to sale by the executor to pay the debts of the estate have an interest in the subject of an action to recover damages for wrongful destruction of the market value of the premises, and in obtaining the relief demanded; and they may be joined with the executor as parties plaintiff under the provisions of GC § 11254 (RC § 2307.18). The amount recovered will be apportioned by the court among the different plaintiffs: Clark v. McClain Fire Brick Co., 100 OS 110, 125 NE 877.

15. Lands of an intestate descend not to the administrator, but to the heir, subject to the ancestor's debts: Bank of Hamilton v. Dudley, 27 US (2 Pet) 492, 1 OFD 233.

Debts for which land sold

20. In payment of intestate's debts, the personal estate must first be applied and then the realty; and even if a debt is secured by mortgage on realty, if it is the personal debt of the intestate, it is to be paid primarily out of the personalty: Foreman v. Medina County Nat. Bank, 119 OS 17, 162 NE 42.

21. One who advances money to pay intestate's debts does not thereby acquire a lien upon lands in possession of the heirs, of which the intestate was seized at the time of his death: Lieby v. Park, 4 O 469.

22. Where there is not enough personal property to pay taxes levied on property of decedent prior to his demise, his personal representative may apply for and obtain an order to sell lands for that purpose: Welsh v. Perkins, 8 O 52.

23. Debts of deceased are a lien on his land, whether the lands be devised or cast by descent, which can be removed only by payment of the debts or the lapse of time: Ramsdall v. Craighill, 9 O 197.

24. The allowance for support of widow and minor children for twelve months is a debt due from the estate, for the payment of which real estate may be sold: Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234.

25. Lands of intestate descend to heirs, subject to payment of debts, the year's allowance to the widow and minor children, and charges of administration incident to a sale of the land. They cannot be sold to pay the costs of administration alone: Carr v. Hull, 65 OS 394, 62 NE 439, 87 AmSt 623, 58 LRA 641.

25.1 Realty assets of an estate may be sold only when personal property is insufficient. Such debts may include not only actual debts of decedent, but expenses arising out of medical treatment, the funeral, and administration of the estate: Miller v. Bigelow, 67 App 371, 21 OO 324, 36 NE(2d) 860.

25.2 Allowances made to a widow out of her husband's estate, particularly for her support, have the same category and status as approved claims against the estate: Fox v. Holcomb, 71 OLA 334, 132 NE (2d) 130 (App).

25.3 Where there is one residuary clause applicable to personal property and another to real property, the personal property is primarily liable: Ginder & Smith v. Ginder, 72 OLA 277, 59 OO 320, 134 NE(2d) 603.

26. Expense incurred by a third person in the burial of the testator's wife, was not a "debt of the deceased" within this section, although testator's will provided that funeral expenses be paid at the death of his wife: Kingrey v. Oldfather, 10 OO 524 (PC).

27. Under GC § 5336 (RC § 5731.17), the administrator has power to file an action to sell so much of the estate as will enable him to pay inheritance taxes, which action is similar in character to one brought by virtue of this section, for the purpose of paying the debts of the decedent: Kingrey v. Oldfather, 10 OO 524 (PC).

28. The succession tax due and payable is a "debt" within the meaning of this section relative to the sale of realty to pay debts: In re Saviers, 23 OLA 166.

29. Under this section, as soon as an executor or administrator ascertains that the personal property in his hands is insufficient to pay all the debts of the deceased, together with the allowance of the widow and children for twelve months and the cost of administering the estate, he must commence a civil action in the probate court or court of common pleas for authority to sell the decedent's real estate: Yates v. Yates, 27 OLA 633.

30. When an executor or administrator ascertains that personal property is insufficient to pay the debts against the deceased, together with the allowance to the widow, it is his duty to bring an action to sell the real estate, under this section: Kincaid v. Dawson, 57 OLA 193, 93 NE(2d) 731 (App).

30.1 A specifically willed item of personalty must be reached before the proceeds of a real estate sale may be used: Guerra v. Guerra, 25 Misc 1, 54 OO(2d) 14, 265 NE(2d) 818.

31. Property may be sold by an administrator to pay debts not yet due, especially where it appears that the creditor is willing to accept the money: Hunter v. Yocum, 18 NP(NS) 14, 27 OD 31.

32. An administrator is barred from sale of land to pay concealed indebtedness to an heir, where said claim was not proved until after the heir had participated in the proceeds of partition proceedings: Riley v. Arnold, 19 NP(NS) 273.

33. General Code § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25) and this section were enacted at the same time and must be construed together with an intention to make both of them operative: McDonald v. McDonald, 5 OO 132 (PC).

34. Action cannot be maintained to pay a mortgagee's debt, etc., where personalty is sufficient to pay unsecured debts, and mortgagee and heirs do not desire a sale: In re Marhower, 22 NP(NS) 46.

Legacies for which land sold

39. Where the devisee of land, charged by the testator with the payment of legacies and the costs of administration, paid the legacies and tendered to the executors the amount of costs of administration, the executors were not entitled to an order for the sale of the land to pay a per cent on the legacies. In such case, the executors are not entitled to a per cent on the legacies: Williams v. Williams, 8 OS 300.

40. Power to sell land, given in a will, ceases to exist when an executor, after accepting his trust, resigns. But the power may be transferred to an administrator with the will annexed. In case the administrator then resigns, his power under such will wholly ceases, and a deed made by him afterwards, of land sold by him while in office, conveys no title: Elstner v. Fife, 32 OS 358.

41. Where a testator makes no disposition of his real estate, other than directing that it be sold, and the proceeds paid to a trustee for the benefit of certain legatees, the legal title descends to his heirs subject to the execution of the power conferred on the executors; but the right of possession passes with the will to the executors, to enable them to effect the objects of the testator: Elstner v. Fife, 32 OS 358.

42. Where a testator's personalty is not sufficient to pay his debts and cost of administration and the legacies provided for in his will are not made a charge on his real estate, proceeds from sale of realty do not fall into the residuum, but pass to the heirs, and the legacies fail for want of a fund out of which they may be paid: Ferguson v. Wentz, 20 NP(NS) 13, 27 OD 462.

Priority

47. A mortgage indebtedness on the land sold must be paid from the proceeds of the sale before the payment therefrom of funeral expenses: Nolan v. Kroll, 37 App 350, 174 NE 750.

48. Where administrator filed suit in probate court to sell real estate of decedent to pay debts of estate, and thereafter decedent's mortgagee brought foreclosure proceedings, and parties to both actions are the same, the action in probate court will prevail: Fairfield Federal Sav. &c. Co. v. Pickering, 23 OLA 591.

Land subject to sale

54. The executor cannot withdraw realty from the assets of the estate, by collusion with the heirs: Stiver v. Stiver, 6 O 217.

55. If an executor has sold the land at private sale and received the proceeds, he cannot claim that he did not receive them as executor: Stiver v. Stiver, 6 O 217.

56. Where a wife joins her husband in a mortgage containing a renunciation of dower, a sale of the land by the administrator of the husband to pay debts extinguishes the right of dower, and transfers an unencumbered title to the purchaser: St. Clair v. Morris, 9 O 16.

57. Power to sell real estate ceases when the estate is fully settled and all claims presumptively satisfied by lapse of time: Ward v. Barrows, 2 OS 241.

58. Where the administrator has used up all personal estate to pay debts, and afterward, an action is brought against him on a debt contracted by intestate, resulting, though properly contested, in a judgment against such administrator, the latter is entitled to an order for the sale of enough of the real estate as may be necessary to satisfy the judgment, even though it has already been partitioned among the heirs, and by them sold to other parties. The debts of decedent are a lien on his realty, and purchasers from his heirs take same cum onere: Faran v. Robinson, 17 OS 242.

59. It is an abuse of the provisions of this statute to institute such proceedings for the mere purpose of settling disputes regarding the title of lands. Must be actual necessity for selling the land for payment of bona fide debts: Wood v. Butler, 23 OS 520.

60. The fact that an heir has, without order of court, sold lands of decedent at private sale, and applied the proceeds in satisfaction of preferred claims, does not bar the administrator from selling the land to pay debts: Sidener v. Hawes, 37 OS 532.

61. Where, in an action by the heirs for the partition of real estate, the administrator is made a defendant, and he files an answer and cross-petition, asking for the sale of such property to pay debts, the administrator is entitled to such order of sale, and statutes of limitation have no application in favor of such heirs: Lafferty v. Shinn, 38 OS 46.

62. A homestead having been assigned by metes and bounds, an order of court in a proceeding to sell land to pay debts, directing and confirming a sale of the real estate so assigned, subject to the homestead, is not merely voidable, but void: Wehrle v. Wehrle, 39 OS 365.

63. Right of administrator to subject land to payment of debts is superior to the right of the heirs to have partition. As soon as the administrator finds that the personal estate will be insufficient to pay debts, it is his duty to apply to the probate or common pleas court for authority to sell the land, and the heirs can prevent a sale and have partition of the lands only by giving bond for the payment of debts, etc.: Stout v. Stout, 82 OS 358, 92 NE 465, 137 AmSt 785.

Limitations

68. The proceeding herein provided for is subject to the statute of limitations and must be brought within six years from the discovery by the administrator that the personalty is not sufficient to pay debts: Ling v. Strome, 12 CC(NS) 161, 21 CD 569.

69. The right to sell lands is barred in six years from the time the administrator ascertains that the personal estate in his hands is insufficient to pay all the debts, and such knowledge will be attributed to him not later than the filing of his account: Kemper v. Apollo Bldg. &c. Co., 5 NP(NS) 403, 18 OD 484.

Power and liability of executor

74. If administrator pay out all the personal estate to one creditor, where the estate is solvent by selling the realty, and does not apply for such sale, it is a devastavit: Abbott v. Cole, 5 O 86.

75. An administrator, in selling lands of his decedent, which he conveys without covenants of warranty, cannot render the estate of deceased liable in damages, by false representations as to the condition of the title, or the extent of existing encumbrances: Dunlap v. Robinson, 12 OS 530.

76. Where the administrator, instead of selling the real estate, collected the rents and applied them to the satisfaction of the ancestor's debts, his action was upheld: White v. Turpin, 16 OS 270.

77. Sale by an executor for a manifestly inadequate price will make the executor liable for the loss: Brown v. Reed, 56 OS 264, 46 NE 982.

78. Where lands are sold by an executor at private sale for their full value, such executor must account for the total amount of the purchase price received by him, if necessary for the payment of debts. If sold for less than the full value, he must nevertheless account for the full value thereof: Hocking Val. R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354, AnnCas 1914A, 190.

79. Where an order has issued out of the probate court, directing an executor to sell lands to pay debts of the estate, the executor may maintain an action to recover damages for the wrongful destruction of the market value of such premises, where it appears that rights of creditors will be prejudiced thereby: Clark v. McClain Fire Brick Co., 100 OS 110, 125 NE 877.

80. The administrator assumes the risk of the fund realized from the sale being insufficient to pay his own fees and those of his attorney and the court costs incident to the general administration. They cannot be paid from the fund to the prejudice of a mortgagee: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

81. An administrator who files a petition to sell realty to pay debts represents that the decedent died seized of the realty described in the petition, and he repeats such representations during the whole proceeding. Accordingly he is personally liable to one who has purchased such realty and paid therefor if the decedent had no title thereto: Fisher v. Fisher, 15 CC(NS) 273, 23 CD 525 [affirmed, without opinion, 86 OS 365].

82. Where an administrator is sued by the heirs of a decedent for rentals from real estate collected by him subsequent to the death of the decedent and it appears that the real estate in question has been sold by order of the court and the administrator directed to pay the taxes thereon accrued after decedent's death from the proceeds, he is entitled to set off the amount of such payment against the claim of the heirs for the rentals of the real estate collected by him:

Warner v. York, 16 CC(NS) 369, 31 CD 543 [affirmed, without opinion, York v. Warner, 75 OS 595].

Bond

88. Where an administrator gives his administration bond, and later, in a proceeding to sell real estate, gives another bond as required by statute, the sureties on both bonds are jointly liable for the proceeds of such sale; the last bond does not supersede the first: Kehnast v. Daum, 4 NP 366, 6 OD 401.

Jurisdiction

92. Where, in an action for the partition of the real property of a deceased person brought in the court of common pleas within one year from the decedent's death, it is disclosed that the personal property is insufficient to pay debts of the estate and that the administrator has instituted an action in the probate court to sell the real property to pay debts of the estate, the court of common pleas is without jurisdiction to grant partition of such lands: Burrier v. Kiefer, 90 App 571, 48 OO 210, 107 NE(2d) 565; Retterer v. Retterer, 4 OO 333 (App).

93. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, there is no general equity power in the probate court which will permit of a determination of the rights of judgment creditors of the estate in land claimed by the widow by virtue of a lost deed which she caused to be restored after her husband's death; but the proper forum for judgment creditors thus situated is in the common pleas court, where they may file an action in the nature of a creditors' bill asking to have the deed in question set aside and the land sold to satisfy their judgments: Fleming v. McGuffey, 12 NP(NS) 19, 21 OD 387.

94. If the land is encumbered by mortgage or other liens, the court must settle priorities and order a sale free from such liens. Probate court not authorized to make an order to sell land subject to mortgage or other liens: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53.

95. The probate court has jurisdiction to try any question of fact arising in the action herein provided for, or it may afford the parties a trial by jury when appropriate, and all persons claiming an interest in the land should be brought before the court, and all questions of title adjudicated: Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600 [affirming Bitely v. Doan, 4 CC 7, 2 CD 388]; see also Levy v. Ginn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133.

96. In proceedings to sell the real estate of a decedent to pay debts, the jurisdiction of the probate court is limited by statute, former GC § 10783 (see now RC § 2127.18), and it is not authorized, on distribution of the proceeds in such proceeding, to render a personal judgment against a legatee of the estate, who has been made a party thereto: State ex rel Voight v. Lueders, 101 OS 211, 128 NE 72.

97. A question arises as to jurisdiction where a foreclosure and a land sale are pending. The general rule of law is that where two courts have concurrent jurisdiction, the one first acquiring it will retain it: Keating v. Spenk, 30 OS 105; State v. Marietta, 35 OS 154.

98. It has been held that a foreclosure takes precedence over a previous assignment for the benefit of creditors, because the remedy in probate court was inadequate: Robinson v. Williams, 62 OS 401, 57 NE 55; Dwyer v. Carlough, 31 OS 158. However, see Havens v. Horton, 53 OS 342, 41 NE 253; also Vandenbark v. Mattingly, 62 OS 25, 56 NE 473.

99. Under the law of 1795 for settling intestates' estates, the orphans' court could not direct sales of land by administrators, except of lands lying in the county where the court sat: Ludlow v. McBride, 3

100. Administrator's power to sell real estate of intestate for payment of debts is strictly a legal power. If a sale be made, the question is triable at law, and when, at law, it has been decided that no authority existed, equity cannot set it up: Lieby v. Park, 4 O 469.

101. Decree of a foreign court is inoperative to transfer title to lands in Ohio: Salmond v. Price, 13 O 368; Blake v. Davis, 20 O 231; Price v. Johnson, 1 OS 390; Nowler v. Coit, 1 O 519.

102. Although a sale under order of a foreign court is void, it may be made valid by the assent of the parties in interest: Beall v. Price, 13 O 368.

103. The probate court and the common pleas court have concurrent jurisdiction of an action to foreclose a mortgage on the real estate of a deceased mortgagor of whose estate an administrator or executor has been appointed and qualified, when it is necessary to sell the real estate to pay decedent's debts, and the court which first acquires jurisdiction thereof retains it to the exclusion of the other: People's Sav. Assn. v. Sanford, 59 App 294, 13 OO 86, 18 NE(2d) 126.

104. Where the probate court has acquired jurisdiction of the subject matter of a proceeding brought by an administrator to sell the real estate of a decedent to pay the debts of the estate, the common pleas court is without jurisdiction in an action subsequently brought by a mortgagee to foreclose a mortgage on the same property: Home Bldg. &c. Co. v. Sanford, 59 App 302, 13 OO 90, 18 NE(2d) 127.

105. In a proper action brought for that purpose, the probate court of the county appointing a testamentary trustee has jurisdiction to order the sale of real estate belonging to the trust located in another county of the state: Boals v. Clingan, 6 NP(NS) 609, 16 OD 267.

106. The court of common pleas is without jurisdiction to grant an order upon petition of an administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, where it appears from the records of the probate court that the said administrator has filed a final account which disclosed no debts and the estate has been closed: Hunter v. Yocum, 18 NP(NS) 14, 27 OD 31.

Parties

111. This act must be strictly construed. And a judgment creditor of an heir or devisee is not a necessary party to a suit to pay debts of the deceased ancestor or deviser: Kummer v. Lake, 1 NP(NS) 209, 13 OD 491.

112. Sale of decedent's real estate on the joint petition of the administrator and guardian cannot be ordered: Newcomb v. Smith, 5 O 447.

113. Only the personal representative of the decedent may bring an action to sell the realty of the decedent to pay his debts. A creditor cannot maintain such action: Rheinfrank v. Hurr, 98 OS 439, 121 NE 645.

Waiver of Claims

114. A sole heir or devisee under a will, by accepting transfer of all the assets of the estate, necessarily waives payment of any claims he may have against the estate: Kaczinski v. Kaczinski, 118 App 225, 25 OO(2d) 68, 193 NE(2d) 731.

Insufficiency of funds to pay debts

115. In the payment of testator's debts specific devisees and legatees share equally in any loss resulting from the insufficiency of funds to pay the testator's debts: McArther v. McArther, 29 OO(2d) 137 (PC).

Procedure

118. Scire facias against heirs and terre-tenants to make lands liable for the payment of decedent's debts: Miami Exporting Co. v. Halley, 7 O (ptl) 11.

119. A debtor dies after judgment against him, subsisting as a lien upon his real estate. The administrator makes a sale that for irregularity passes no title. The judgment creditor may proceed, by scire facias, against the heirs and purchasers in possession, to revive the judgment, and to have execution awarded against the lands: Miami Exporting Co. v. Halley, 7 O (ptl) 11.

120. Where one of the heirs assents to a decree of a foreign court purporting to transfer title to lands in Ohio, acts as one of the commissioners to execute it, and assents to the sale, he thereby passes his own title in equity: Salmond v. Price, 13 O 368.

121. There was no right to appeal from a land sale proceeding in common pleas court under the statute of 1850: Steinbarger v. Steinbarger, 19 O 106.

122. The Code formerly did not make a land sale proceeding a civil action, and minor defendants, not served with process but for whom a guardian ad litem was appointed and answered, were bound by the decree: Robb v. Irwin, 15 OS 689; Sheldon v. Newton, 3 OS 494; Snively v. Lowe, 18 O 368; Benson v. Cilley, 8 OS 604; Biggs v. Bickel, 12 OS 49.

123. It is now settled that the action brought by an administrator or executor to sell real estate to pay debts is a civil action, adversary in its character: Holloway v. Stuart, 19 OS 472.

124. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay judgments entered upon awards of arbitrators, it is competent for the heir, upon a cross-petition in the same proceeding, to attack said judgments for fraud: Conway v. Duncan, 28 OS 102.

125. A testator devised his estate to his five children in equal shares, and authorized and empowered his executor to sell and convey all the real estate of which he died seized. A creditor of one of the devisees caused an attachment to be levied on an undivided fifth part of said real estate. Afterward, the executor, in execution of the power, sold and conveyed all said real estate. Held, that the purchaser acquired title to the land conveyed, unaffected by the levy of the attachment: Smith v. Anderson, 31 OS 144.

126. When the creditor's claim is in the nature of a judgment, it need not be presented to the administrator: Ambrose v. Byrne, 61 OS 146, 55 NE 408.

127. A partition suit which is brought seven years after the death of the ancestor, is not suspended by an action, brought five months later by the administrator of such ancestor, to sell such land for the payment of debts: Ferenbaugh v. Ferenbaugh, 104 OS 556, 136 NE 213.

128. In sale of realty to pay debts, sale will not be set aside for slight error in description of realty, when it can be corrected on purchaser's motion for confirmation: Watson v. Watson, 24 App 45, 156 NE 241.

129. An order of the probate court ordering the sale of real estate may not be stopped by way of collateral attack: Doughty v. Beard, 72 OLA 188, 59 OO 320, 132 NE(2d) 288.

130. When the sale of lands of an ancestor is necessary to pay debts, the filing of a suit in partition by an heir does not prevent the administrator from proceeding to sell the lands: Myers v. Myers, 9 CC(NS) 449, 19 CD 396 [for opinion disallowing attorney fees, see 5 NP(NS) 85, 17 OD 551].

131. It seems that under our statute the administrator or executor is to judge in the first instance whether or not the personal property is insufficient to pay the debts. But the court will not order the sale unless it is satisfactorily shown that such is a true state of facts. The insufficiency must be alleged in the petition: Baen v. Walker, 12 OD 128.

132. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, there is no general equity power in the probate court which will permit of a determination of the rights of judgment creditors of the estate in land claimed by the widow by virtue of a lost deed which she caused to be restored after her husband's death; but the proper form for judgment creditors thus situated is in the common pleas court, where they may file an action in the nature of a creditor's bill asking to have the deed in question set aside and the land sold to satisfy their judgment: Fleming v. McGuffey, 12 NP(NS) 19, 21 OD 387 [for former opinion, see 8 NP(NS) 430, 19 OD 521].

133. The proceeding to sell real estate as well as one to determine heirship are civil actions by statute: In re Murphy, 29 NP(NS) 183; Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600, affirming 4 CC 7, 2 CD 388; Levy v. Cinn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133; Cooper v. Cooper, 3 OO 431 (PC).

Decree

138. Unless authorized by the will, an executor can, in no case, sell real estate without first obtaining an order of court, and an administrator cannot convey title to real estate without first obtaining an order to sell same in the manner prescribed by law; for to divest the heirs of their title to real estate by sale through the personal representative, the sale must be made in substantial compliance with the law: Goforth v. Longworth, 4 O 129.

139. Whether administrator can release equity of redemption in lands, except under a decree of court, is so doubtful that it is sufficient ground for the decree: Bank of United States v. Piatt, 5 O 540.

140. An order of sale can only exist as a matter of record, and is provable only by its production. Parol evidence cannot be received for proving the same: Newcomb v. Smith, 5 O 447.

141. In absence of fraud, the buyer buys at his own risk as to title. Executor cannot bind estate by verbal warranty of title, unless authorized by will or order of court: Arnold v. Davidson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540.

142. Where there is an order to sell decedent's property to pay debts and title is not in the decedent, the action should be dismissed: Piatt v. Piatt, 65 OLA 284, 114 NE(2d) 441.

Sale

146. Where wrong lands have been included in the appraisal and in the administrator's deed by mistake, a court of general jurisdiction in equity may correct the mistake in the probate court as well as that in the deed: Gill v. Pelkey, 54 OS 348, 43 NE 991.

147. Where an executor, after resignation, bought in the property at his own sale, such sale will not be set aside when it does not appear that he did anything to stifle competition, and where he paid a fair value for the property: Woodward v. Curtis, 19 CC 15, 10 CD 400 [affirmed, without opinion, 63 OS 575].

148. One who goes into possession of premises, purchased at an administrator's sale of lands to pay a decedent's debts, is liable for the value of the use of the premises, if the sale is afterwards set aside: Christ v. Lay, 16 CC(NS) 38, 27 CD 312 [affirmed, without opinion, Lay v. Christ, 82 OS 417].

149. No interest passes under an executor's sale if the proceedings are not entered on the record: Longworth v. Goforth, W 192 [for opinion in action for judgment, see Goforth v. Longworth, 4 O 129].

150. A legal purchaser of a deed from an administrator or executor through probate procedure who makes application to the appropriate county auditor for transfer is entitled to that auditor making mandatory transfer: 1936 OAG No. 6120.

Appeal and error

154. Under the statute of 1850, no appeal lay from the court of common pleas on a petition to sell lands: Steinbarger v. Steinbarger, 19 O 106.

155. An action by an executor for the construction of a will, which prays also for an order to sell lands for the payment of legacies, is appealable: Swing v. Townsend, 24 OS 1.

157. The finding made on confirmation of appraisal, and confirmation of sale, is also a final order: See Evans v. Dunn, 26 OS 439; Kelley v. Standberry, 13 O 422.

158. If there is an order of distribution included in the order of confirmation, then it might be appealable: Spence v. Basey, 34 OS 42.

159. However, the supreme court held that an appeal lies from the court of probate to the court of common pleas, from an order, decree or judgment confirming a sale of real estate at private sale by an assignee, reversing the inferior court: Browne v. Wallace, 60 OS 177, 53 NE 957 [reversing 16 CC 124, 8 CD 754].

160. An action to sell realty is a civil action, and in either court in which the suit may be brought, or on appeal, the rights of the several parties in the subject matter may be determined. But the probate court having exclusive jurisdiction to settle the accounts of executors and administrators, it is incompetent, where such suit is brought in the common pleas court, for that court to attempt to fix the costs and expenses of administration: Tidd v. Bloch, 4 CC(NS) 216, 16 CD 113.

161. The appellate court, in reversing an order of distribution made by the probate court, should either make the order of distribution or, in remanding the case to the probate court, specifically indicate the items to which the fund for distribution should be applied: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

162. The raising for the first time on appeal an allegation that the personal property of a decedent is insufficient to pay his debts where evidence at trial shows it was necessary to sell decedent's real estate to pay his debts: Kohn v. Kohn, 67 App 404, 21 OO 348, 36 NE(2d) 1009.

§ 2127.03 Payment of legacies.

When by operation of law or the provisions of a will a legacy is effectual to charge real estate, and the personal property is insufficient to pay the legacy, together with all the debts, the allowance to the surviving spouse and children, and the costs of administering the estate, the executor or administrator with will annexed shall commence a civil action in the probate court for authority to sell the real estate so charged.

If the executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed fails to commence the action mentioned in this section or section 2127.02 of the Revised Code, the probate court in which letters testamentary have been granted, upon its own motion or upon motion by a creditor or legatee, shall order the executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed to commence such an action, and proceed in the manner prescribed by sections 2127.04 to 2127.43 of the Revised Code.

Legacies charged on land

1. Originally at common law, real estate was not liable for the debts of a decedent. From this followed the doctrine that real estate is not subject to the payment of a legacy, unless it appears to have been the intention of the testator to make such real estate liable therefor; and the doctrine still remains that, in the absence of anything in the will showing a contrary intention, legacies are never to be paid out of real estate: Page on Wills (2d Ed), 1268; Koontz v. Hub- ley, 111 OS 414, 145 NE 590; Ward v. Worthington, 28 App 325, 162 NE 714; Geiger v. Worth, 17 OS 564.

2. A claim for reimbursement for the payment of funeral expenses of testator's wife, even though it was in the nature of a legacy, was not chargeable on the real estate so as to authorize the administrator to file a land sale proceeding under GC § 10510-3 (RC § 2127.03): Kingrey v. Oldfather, 10 OO 524 (PC).

3. A devise to a son of a certain tract of land upon consideration that he pay to a daughter a certain sum devised, is a charge on the farm, and in such case the personal property is exonerated from its payment: Lacey v. Birdsill, 15 CC(NS) 60, 23 CO 460 [affirmed, no opinion, 88 OS 606, 105 NE 767].

4. To charge legacies on land, so that the devisee is required to pay them, the intention to make it such a charge may be implied, but the intention must be clear: Clyde v. Simpson, 4 OS 445.

5. A provision that certain property, part of which is realty, is to be used for the payment of debts, clearly charges the debt upon the realty: Knepper v. Knepper, 103 OS 529, 134 NE 476; Watts v. Watts, 38 OS 480.

6. And where a testator gives legacies in excess of the amount of his personal property, this will be held to be a manifestation of his intention, that his real estate may be used for the payment of such legacies: Townsend v. Townsend, 25 OS 477; Theobald v. Fugman, 64 OS 473, 60 NE 606.

Construction

11. The right of an executor to bring an action under this section to sell real estate to pay legacies is barred if not brought within six years after the executor learns that the personalty is insufficient to pay such legacies: Kemper v. Apollo Bldg. &c. Co., 5 NP(NS) 403, 18 OD 484.

12. If the will does not contain a specific charge of legacies upon realty and if there is no blending in the residuary clause of the realty and personalty, the will is said not to be effectual to charge real estate within the meaning of former GC § 10817 (see now RC § 2127.03): Ferguson v. Wentz, 20 NP(NS) 13, 27 OD 462.

13. The word "creditor" is probably used in the broad sense in this connection and is not confined to creditors who were such at the time of the death of the deceased. In this broad sense a "creditor" is the one to whom a debt is owed and the word should be construed liberally to give effect to the purpose of the statute: Favorite v. Booher, 17 OS 548, 553; Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234, 237; McCallip v. Sharp, 13 OD 650, 652.

14. The burial expenses and the allowance to widow and minor children for twelve months, although not debts that existed at the death of the deceased, are very likely debts in this connection: GC § 10509-121 (RC § 2117.25); Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234.

15. This section provides that where personal property is insufficient to pay a testamentary legacy, the personal representative of an estate may obtain authority to sell real property, when by the "provisions of a will a legacy is effectual to charge real estate": Snyder v. LaDue, 100 App 526, 60 OO 407, 137 NE(2d) 432.

§ 2127.04 Action commenced with consent or upon demand of beneficiaries.

With the consent of all persons entitled to share in an estate upon distribution, the executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed may, and upon the request of such persons shall, commence an action in the probate court for authority to sell any part or all of the decedent's real estate, even though not required to be sold to pay debts or legacies. In any such proceeding, a guardian may make such a request, or give consent in behalf of his ward.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-5; 114 v 320 (452); 136 v S 145. EF 1-1-76.

See provisions, § 3 of SB 145 (136 v —) following RC § 2101.01.

Comment

Under this section all persons entitled to share in the estate upon distribution, acting together, may compel the sale of all or any part of the decedent's real estate, even though not required to be sold to pay debts or legacies. If the administrator or executor desires to sell real estate not needed for the above purposes, he must obtain the consent of all the above persons.

The words of the statute "all persons entitled to share in an estate upon distribution" are all inclusive and undoubtedly include not only those who are entitled to share in the distribution of the personal estate but also those who, under the law or by will, have an interest in the real estate of the deceased. In many instances, and, perhaps usually, these words would be construed as referring to those entitled to share in the distribution of the personal estate only, but to so restrict them in this instance would be to permit those who have no interest in the real estate of the decedent to compel its sale against the wishes of those who have title to the same or an interest therein. The evident meaning and scope of the section must be given effect: 3 Words and Phrases Judicially Defined, 2134; Robins v. Payne, 58 Miss 690, 707.

The word "beneficiary" is more usually used as referring to those who receive property by will or have an interest in property as the beneficiaries of a trust. In its broadest sense, however, it includes all who in any way receive a benefit or advantage: Webster's New International Dictionary. In this broadest sense it is used in this section of the statute to include all persons who are entitled in any way to the benefit of the real or personal estate of the decedent. It would undoubtedly include, as well, assignees or creditors of heirs, devisees, next of kin or legatees, who, by assignments, or by proper proceedings, have become entitled to be included in the distribution of the personal property, or who have acquired liens upon or interest in the real estate of the decedent.

This section should be especially useful where it is desired to secure a clear record title to the real estate before it is possible to settle the estate of the deceased.

[WHEN GUARDIANS MAY SELL REAL ESTATE]

§ 2127.05 Guardian may sell.

Whenever necessary for the education, support, or the payment of the just debts of the ward, or for the discharge of liens on the real estate of the ward, or wherever the real estate of the ward is suffering unavoidable waste, or a better investment of its value can be made, or whenever it appears that a sale of the real estate will be for the benefit of the ward or his children, the guardian of the person and estate or of the estate only of a minor, person unable to manage his property because of mental illness or deficiency, habitual drunkard, confined person, or other person under disability may commence a civil action in the probate court for authority to sell all or any part of the real estate of the ward. If it appears to the advantage of the ward to lay out all or any part of the land in town lots, application for such authority may also be made in the action.

When the same person is guardian for two or more wards whose real estate is owned by them jointly or in common, the actions may be joined, and in one complaint the guardian may ask for the sale of the interest of all or any number of his wards in the real estate. If different persons are guardians of wards interested jointly or in common in the same real estate, they may join as parties plaintiff in the same action. On the hearing, in either case, the court may authorize the sale of the interest of one or more of the wards.

1. Where a guardian filed a petition for the sale of real estate of his ward and the court found that "it is for the best interests of said ward that said premises be sold" and ordered a new appraisal thereof and said order was, by proper parties, excepted to and notice of appeal filed, during the pendency of which appeal the ward died, the authority, duty and power of the guardian over the estate of the ward terminated except for the obligation to account for the property of the ward and the question before the court as to the necessity to sell such real estate became moot, and the appeal should be dismissed: Becker v. Becker, 69 OLA 414, 125 NE(2d) 563 (App).

1.1 The sale of real estate by a guardian, who holds office illegally because of the fact that he is also executor of an estate in which the minor ward is interested, is not a nullity, and the title to the property is good in innocent parties for value: Easton v. Wittekind, 27 NP(NS) 525.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10945

11. A guardian for minors, when all claim in one right, may institute proceedings for partition without process: Goudy v. Shank, 8 O 415.

12. The action to sell real estate must be brought during the existence of the guardianship. It cannot be brought after the ward arrives at the age of majority or the termination of the guardianship: Perry v. Brainard, 11 O 442; Dengenhart v. Cracraft, 36 OS 549.

13. The court that appointed a guardian may empower him to sell the minor's land situate in another county: Maxon v. Sawyer, 12 O 195.

14. The purchaser of the real estate is presumed to know that the statutes require a particular authority to be pursued in such transaction, and if he purchases where the authority has not been pursued, he does so at his peril. And where the guardian sold a military land warrant without authority to a person who knew the facts, the buyer held the land in trust for the minor: Mack v. Brammer, 28 OS 508; Stoddard v. Smith, 11 OS 581.

15. The only power to authorize a guardian to sell the real estate of his ward, prior to the creation of the probate court, was vested in the court of common pleas of the county in which the guardian was appointed. Now that power is vested in the probate court of the same county: Foresman v. Haag, 36 OS 102.

16. The power given the common pleas court under § 36 of the act of 1816 (2 Chase 935), to appoint guardians for minors and to sell their real estate, did not authorize the court to order the sale of the lands of an infant feme covert, upon the application of her husband: Dengenhart v. Cracraft, 36 OS 549; see also Ream v. Ramlow, 55 OS 680, 48 NE 1117.

17. In this state, a guardian cannot sell the land of his ward except by order of the probate court, in a proceeding properly instituted for that purpose; consequently, he has no power to give it away, even for a public use, and perfect the gift by the execution and delivery of a deed: State v. Commissioners, 39 OS 61.

18. Where one buys of a guardian notes bearing on their face the marks of a trust fund, he is put upon inquiry; and if he buys under circumstances fairly indicating that they were sold against the interests of the ward, he gets no title from the guardian who misappropriates the proceeds of the sale: Strong v. Strauss, 40 OS 87.

19. Property inherited by a minor, and which under order of the court suffers in the hands of the guardian several transmutations from realty to personalty and back to realty, and at the minor's death is in the form of realty, does not retain its original character of ancestral property, and must be treated as an acquisition of the minor: McCammon v. Cooper, 69 OS 366, 69 NE 658 [affirming the circuit court; for opinion below, see 1 NP(NS) 154, 12 OD 677].

20. An action by a guardian who claims a lien upon his ward's land for support, and who seeks to enforce it, to which the defendant seeks an answer seeking exoneration by compelling the application of another fund to the support of the ward, is a chancery case which may be appealed to the court of appeals: Best v. McClure, 108 OS 481, 143 NE 187.

21. By the terms of former GC § 10991 (see now RC §§ 2109.04, 2111.13, 2111.14, 2111.26 and 2111.48), this section is made applicable to proceedings by a guardian of an imbecile to sell the realty of his ward: McBride v. Bell, 3 App 5, 22 CC(NS) 596, 25 CD 403 [affirmed, without opinion, Case v. McBride, 92 OS 516].

22. An action lies to set aside a sale of real estate made by a guardian if no order of appraisal is taken, and no appraisal in fact is made, and such an action may be brought by the surety on the guardian's bond without waiting indefinitely for the filing of a final account: McBride v. Bell, 3 App 5, 22 CC(NS) 596, 25 CD 403 [affirmed, without opinion, Case v. McBride, 92 OS 516].

[PROVISIONS GOVERNING EXECUTORS, ADMINISTRATORS AND GUARDIANS]

§ 2127.06 [Successor fiduciary shall complete sale proceedings.] (GC § 10510-8)

If the fiduciary who brings an action under section[s] 2127.01 to 2127.43, inclusive, of the Revised Code, dies, resigns, or is removed, or his powers cease at any time before the real estate sold is conveyed, a successor fiduciary may be substituted as a party to the action and may convey land, whether sold before or after his appointment. He may also be required to give an additional bond.

§ 2127.07 Real estate subject to sale. (GC § 10510-9)

Any interest in real estate, whether legal or equitable, which the deceased had a right to sell or dispose of at the time of his decease, or of which the ward was seized at the time the action was brought, including coal, iron ore, limestone, fireclay, or other mineral upon or under such real estate, or the right to mine them, may be sold by an executor, administrator, or guardian under sections 2127.01 to 2127.43, inclusive, of the Revised Code. This section does not give an executor or administrator with the will annexed authority to sell real estate for the payment of legacies, other than as charged by the testator or by operation of law. This section does not give a guardian authority to sell an equitable estate in real estate placed by deed of trust, beyond the power of the ward to sell, convey, or assign.

1. When an administrator makes a beneficial arrangement to rescind an unexecuted contract of the intestate for the purchase of land a court of equity will not interfere to aid the heirs to revive and enforce the rescinded contract: Howard v. Babcock, 7 O (pt2) 73.

2. A perfect equity in lands held by an intestate passes to the heirs and may be sold by the personal representative for the payment of the debts of the estate: Avery v. Dufrees, 9 O 145.

3. As a general rule, the personal representative of the estate may in his own discretion perform or rescind any personal contract of his intestate imposing an obligation on him, as may be for the best interests of the estate, but subject to the approval of the court: Gray v. Hawkins, 8 OS 449.

§ 2127.08 Fractional interests; sale of entire interest. (GC § 10510-10)

When the interest of a decedent or ward in real estate is fractional and undivided, the action for authority to sell such real estate shall include only such undivided fractional interest, except that the executor, administrator, or guardian, or the owner of any other fractional interest, or any lien holder may, by pleading filed in the cause setting forth all interests in the property and liens thereon, require that the action include the entire interest in the property, and the owner of said interests and liens shall receive his respective share of the proceeds of sale after payment has been made of the expenses of sale including reasonable attorney fees for services in the case, which fees must be paid to the plaintiff's attorney unless the court awards some part thereof to other counsel for services in the case for the common benefit of all the parties, having regard to the interest of the parties, the benefit each may derive from the sale, and the equities of the case. The fees of the executor, administrator, or guardian shall be a charge only against such portion of the proceeds of sale as represents the interests of the decedent or ward.

Analysis of proposed amendments to the probate code. Address by Judge Rodney M. Love of Dayton. 22 OBar (No. 24) 366.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. This section, providing for the sale of the entire interest in real property by an executor or administrator of a deceased co-owner, where decedent owned an undivided interest therein, is constitutional and not in violation of Art. II, § 28, or Art. I, § 19, of the Ohio constitution, or Art. XIV, amendments of the United States constitution: Hatch v. Tipton, 131 OS 364, 6 OO 68, 2 NE(2d) 875.

2. Where an action in partition has been instituted, following the death of a co-owner, and subsequent thereto the executor or administrator of such deceased co-owner institutes land sale proceedings under this section, the latter supersedes and prevails over the former: Hatch v. Tipton, 131 OS 364, 6 OO 68, 2 NE(2d) 875.

2.1 Under this section any fractional interest of a decedent will support a land sale proceeding; and, under RC § 2127.07, an equitable interest is subject to sale in such proceeding: Weaver v. Crommes, 109 App 470, 12 OO(2d) 15, 167 NE(2d) 661.

3. The fees of an executor, administrator, or their attorney shall be charged against the interest of the decedent where a sale of fractional interests in connection with the sale of other interests has taken place: Fulton v. Griffith, 11 OLA 673, 29 NP(NS) 435.

4. This section does not deprive a cotenant of any existing rights, does not impair the right of partition, but provides an additional remedy to an executor or personal representative, where the decedent was a cotenant, and his interest is required to be sold for the payment of his debts; hence, the statute is not in violation of any provision of the Ohio or United States constitutions: Hatch v. Buckeye State Bldg. &c. Co., 32 NP(NS) 297.

An action by an executor, administrator, or guardian to obtain authority to sell real estate shall be brought in the county in which he was appointed or in which the real estate subject to sale or any part thereof is situated. If the action is brought in a county other than that in which the real estate or a part thereof is situated, a certified transcript of the record of all proceedings had therein shall be filed with and recorded by the probate court of each county in which such real estate or any part thereof is situated.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10775

Nature of action

1. Power of administrator to sell lands is strictly a legal one, and if sale is sought, the question is triable at law: Lieby v. Park, 4 O 469.

2. This is a civil action under the Code: Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600 [affirming Bitely v. Doan, 4 CC 7, 2 CD 388]; see also Levy v. Ginn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133.

3. Where one of the heirs assents to a decree of a foreign court purporting to transfer title to lands in Ohio, acts as one of the commissioners to execute it, and assents to the sale, he thereby passes his own title in equity: Salmond v. Price, 13 O 368.

4. In a proceeding by an administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, there is no general equity power in the probate court which will permit of a determination of the rights of judgment creditors of the estate in land claimed by the widow by virtue of a lost deed which she caused to be restored after her husband's death; but the proper forum for judgment creditors thus situated is in the common pleas court, where they may file an action in the nature of a creditors' bill asking to have the deed in question set aside and the land sold to satisfy their judgments: Fleming v. McGuffey, 12 NP(NS) 19, 21 OD 387.

5. This act must be strictly construed. And a judgment creditor of an heir or devisee is not a necessary party to a suit to pay debts of the deceased ancestor or devisor: Kummer v. Lake, 1 NP(NS) 209, 13 OD 491.

Jurisdiction

6. If the land is encumbered by mortgage or other liens, the court must settle priorities and order a sale free from such liens. Probate court not authorized to make an order to sell land subject to mortgage or other liens: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53.

7. The probate court has jurisdiction to try any question of fact arising in the action herein provided for, or it may afford the parties a trial by jury when appropriate, and all persons claiming an interest in the land should be brought before the court and all questions of title adjudicated: Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600 [affirming Bitely v. Doan, 4 CC 7, 2 CD 388]; see also Levy v. Ginn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133.

§ 2127.10 Action to sell real estate.

An action to obtain authority to sell real estate shall be commenced by the executor, administrator, or guardian by filing a complaint with the probate court.

The complaint shall contain a description of the real estate proposed to be sold and its value, as near as can be ascertained, a statement of the nature of the interest of the decedent or ward in the real estate, a recital of all mortgages and liens upon and adverse interests in the real estate, the facts showing the reason or necessity for the sale, and any additional facts necessary to constitute the cause of action under the section of the Revised Code on which the action is predicated.

§ 2127.11 Summary proceeding if value of land less than three thousand dollars.

When the actual market value of decedent's or ward's real estate to be sold is less than three thousand dollars, and the court so finds, it may by summary order authorize the sale and conveyance of the land at private sale, on such terms as it deems proper, and in such a proceeding, all requirements of sections 2127.01 to 2127.43 of the Revised Code, as to service of summons, appraisal, and additional bond, shall be waived.

Comment

Although service of summons may be waived, it is not definitely stated that all notice may be dispensed with. As a general rule it is axiomatic that no one can be deprived of, or affected as to his interest in, or lien upon, real estate, unless he is in court with an opportunity to be heard; so that unless those holding the different interests in, or liens upon, the real estate were able and willing to enter their appearance in the proceedings, some sort of notice would have to be provided for, though not necessarily notice by service of summons.

The statute does not dispense with the filing of a formal petition as in other cases for the sale of land, and for all that appears, this first step in the institution of the proceeding is not changed by this statute. After the petition is filed, the matter of the value of the land to be sold may be brought to the attention of the court for such summary orders as the statute permits, and the court is willing to make in the premises. This statute can be invoked only when "the actual market value" of the real estate to be sold is less than five hundred dollars. The phrase "market value" as applied to real estate has been defined "as the price which it will bring when it is offered for sale by one who desires, but is not obliged to sell, and is bought by one who is under no necessity of buying it": Cincinnati, I., St. L. & C. R. Co. v. Pfitzer, Goebel 248; Ohio Words and Phrases, p.339.

In an action by an executor or administrator to obtain authority to sell real estate the following persons shall be made parties defendant:

- (A) The surviving spouse;
- (B) The heirs, devisees, or persons entitled to the next estate of inheritance from the decedent in such real estate and having an interest therein, but their spouses need not be made parties defendant;
- (C) All mortgagees and other lienholders whose claims affect such real estate or any part thereof;
- (D) If the interest subject to sale is equitable, all persons holding legal title thereto or any part thereof and those who are entitled to the purchase money therefor, other than creditors;

1. The word "devisees" as used in former GC § 10780 (see now RC § 2127.12) is qualified by the words "having the next estate of inheritance from him": Ruff v. Baker, 146 OS 456, 32 OO 537, 66 NE(2d) 540.

2. Where a testator devised real property to G for life with remainder to his unborn issue or in default of such issue to the issue of W, and where an action was brought by decedent's executor to sell the devised real property to pay debts, G was a necessary party, but neither of the remaindermen was a necessary or proper party and there was no necessity for such contingent remaindermen to be represented in such action: Ruff v. Baker, 146 OS 456, 32 OO 537, 66 NE (2d) 540.

2.1 All lienholders are necessary parties in an action for partition whether acquired before or after the demise of the decedent: Keenan v. Wilson, 19 App 499, 3 OLA 702.

3. Legatees, if necessary parties to a proceeding to sell real estate to pay debts of a deceased person, are before the court for all purposes when summoned on a cross-petition of a mortgagee setting up his interest in the real estate to be sold: J. H. Day Co. v. Morris, 49 App 181, 2 OO 203, 195 NE 870.

4. The part of this section which provides that "all mortgagees and other lienholders whose claims affect such real estate or any part thereof" shall be made defendants in an action by an administrator to sell real estate to pay debts of the estate, is directory, and a failure to make a judgment lienholder a party defendant does not, in and of itself, deprive the court of jurisdiction to order a sale: Schmidt v. Weather-Seal, Inc., 71 App 387, 26 OO 322, 50 NE(2d) 362.

5. In a proceeding to set aside a judicial sale of real estate on the grounds of insufficiency of purchase price, the purchasers are not parties in interest before the court's confirmation of the sale, but after such confirmation their interests in the real estate vest and they become necessary parties: Ozias v. Renner, 78 App 166, 33 OO 504, 64 NE(2d) 325.

5.1 A person not given notice of or made a party to a proceeding to sell land to pay debts, who upon the death of the deceased is seized with an interest in real property, is entitled to assert his interest in a partition action: Shackelford v. Alford, 119 App 63, 26 OO(2d) 152, 169 NE(2d) 609.

6. An heir who is made a party defendant in a proceeding to sell real estate of a decedent to pay his debts may have his disallowed claim determined in such proceeding if the cross-petition is filed within two months after disallowance: Cooper v. Cooper, 3 OO 431 (PC).

6.1 Actions to determine validity or amount of particular claims against an estate seeking an order to sell are not actions as delineated in this section, but rather in the nature of an action to quiet title: Gauthier v. Land Co., 11 OLA 311.

6.2 The spouse of an heir need not be made a party to an action to sell real estate to pay debts: Carmack v. Carmack, 22 OLA 702, 7 OO 313, 3 OSU 111.

7. Although under the language of this section it appears that it is necessary to make the county treasurer a party to an action to sell real estate to pay debts, the failure to do so is not a fatal defect because the personal representative is charged with knowledge of this lien: In re Saviers, 23 OLA 166.

7.1 Spouses of cotenants are nonessential parties in a partition action between cotenants: Dunkle v. Dunkle, 73 OLA 477, 2 OO(2d) 399, 137 NE(2d) 170.

6. A mortgagor who has parted with his title to land mortgaged, and is not in possession thereof, is not a necessary party to a proceeding brought by the executor of the purchaser to obtain an order to sell the land for the payment of debts: Denison University v. Manning, 65 OS 138, 61 NE 706.

7. A party loaning money to an executor and taking the executor's note as evidence of such loan, is not a necessary or even a proper party: Smith v. Hayward, 5 NP 501, 5 OD 462.

8. In an action by an administrator to sell realty to pay debts (former GC § 10780 [see now RC § 2127.12]), all lienholders are necessary parties; and this includes a lien acquired upon the share of an heir at law after death of the ancestor and before filing of the petition: *Keenan v. 11. A judgment creditor of an heir who obtained a levy on real estate and a grantee of a devisee are necessary parties in a will contest case: Bloor v. Platt, 78 OS 46, 84 NE 604; Sears v. Stinehelper, 89 OS 163, 105 NE 1047.

12. It is not enough to make the guardian of a person under disability a party. The person under disability should be made a party, individually: Burns v. Burns, 20 NP(NS) 116, 27 OD 510.

13. It would be advisable to make the guardian a party also: Stuard v. Porter, 79 OS 1, 85 NE 1062.

14. A person who has a judgment lien at the time of the death of the owner of the property need not issue execution within five years in order to be a necessary party: Webster v. Dennis, 4 CC 313, 2 CD 567.

15. An action for the determination of the validity and amount of certain claims against the estate of a testator, and asking for an order to sell under the terms of a will, is not such an action as is referred to in former GC § 10780 (see now RC § 2127.12), but is more in the nature of an action to quiet title, and a judgment creditor of a devisee is not a necessary party to such an action: Bewaster v. Franck, 11 OLA 171.

Omission of necessary parties

16. An administrator's sale under order of court, since 1824, without showing that the heirs were parties to the proceeding, is void: Adams v. Jeffries, 12 O 253.

17. Where intestate left four children, only three of whom were named as defendants in the petition to sell land, but the guardian ad litem appeared and acknowledged an appearance as such guardian, the order of sale was not void: Snevely v. Lowe, 18 O 368.

18. The lien of a mortgagee who is not made a party to the petition remains unaffected by the order of sale and the proceedings thereunder: Holloway v. Stuart, 19 OS 472.

19. Under the amendment of 1858, the lien of a mortgagee who is not made a party thereto remains unaffected by the order of sale and the proceedings thereunder: Holloway v. Stuart, 19 OS 472.

20. To render the sale of lands by an administrator good, the heirs must have been made defendants: Sprague v. Litherberry, FedCas No.13251, 2 OFD 574.

§ 2127.13 Necessary parties in sale by guardian. (GC § 10510-16)

In an action by a guardian to obtain authority to sell the real estate of his ward the following persons shall be made parties defendant:

(A) The ward;

(B) The spouse of the ward;

(C) All persons entitled to the next estate of inheritance from the ward in such real estate who are known to reside in Ohio, but their spouses need not be made parties defendant;

(D) All lienholders whose claims affect such real estate or any part thereof;

(E) If the interest subject to such sale is equitable, all persons holding legal title thereto or any part thereof;

(F) All other persons having an interest in such real estate, other than creditors.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-16; 114 v 320 (454); 119 v 394 (418); 120 v 284, § 1. Eff 10-1-53.

Comment

Subsection (C) includes persons entitled to the next estate of inheritance who are known to reside in the state of Ohio. Subsection (C), previously subsection (3) of GC § 10510-16, prior to the 1941 amendment was limited to persons who resided in the county where the action was brought.

In preparing the petition, it is always advisable to check the application for letters of guardianship for the next of kin, if given, and for the spelling of the name of the ward and next of kin, if given. The name of the ward should appear in the petition exactly as he took title to the property in the deed. If he took title by inheritance, his name should appear exactly as it appears in the application for letters or in the will of the estate through which he acquired title. Any difference in the spelling of the name should be explained in the petition.

The 1943 amendment to GC § 10510-16 changed the section to the effect that the spouse of each of the parties defendant named in subdivision (C), formerly subdivision (3), thereof need not be made a party defendant.

Service of summons, actual or constructive, in an action to sell the real estate of a decedent or a ward shall be had as in other civil actions, but if any competent person in interest enters appearance or consents in writing to the sale, service on such person shall not be necessary. Comment

The principal change made by the 1931 amendment to GC § 10510-17 was the dropping of the provision of former GC § 10781 and also of former GC § 10947, that summons may be served by the plaintiff or other person by copy personally. Except as to persons under disability, all service of summons in probate court shall be in the same manner as in common pleas court. See RC § 2101.29.

Comment

All pleadings that may be filed in an action to sell real estate are governed entirely by the code of civil procedure. Matters of defense are set up by answer, or the petition is demurred to, or other defects taken advantage of by motion. If a mortgagee or judgment creditor or any lienholder wishes to be found to have a lien, he should file an answer which may be styled an answer and cross-petition. A person is not in default until the expiration of the third Saturday after the return day which is the second Monday after the summons is issued, or in the case of service by publication, until the expiration of the third Saturday after the date of the sixth publication.

Decree, 18

Jurisdiction, 1 et seq

Priorities, 10 et seq

Jurisdiction

1. Where the real estate is encumbered by mortgages and other liens, the court is to settle the priorities among lienholders, and order a sale free from such liens. It cannot sell same, subject to the mortgage or other liens: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53.

2. The probate court has power to decide all questions among lienholders and to decide whether the land belongs to the decedent: Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600; see also Levy v. Ginn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133.

3. In proceedings to sell the real estate of a decedent to pay debts, the jurisdiction of the probate court is limited by statute, former GC § 10783 (see now RC § 2127.18), and it is not authorized, on distribution of the proceeds in such proceeding, to render a personal judgment against a legatee of the estate, who has been made a party thereto: State ex rel Voight v. Lueders, 101 OS 211, 128 NE 70.

4. A deed executed by the deceased may be found by the probate court actually to be a mortgage; in such proceedings: Helmbold v. Helmbold, 25 App 32, 158 NE 499.

5. Probate courts have jurisdiction to ascertain and adjust the liens on real estate to be sold for payment of debts of deceased, to settle priorities among lienholders and to apply the proceeds of sale in satisfaction thereof, in the same manner and to the same extent as a court of equity: Farmers' Nat. Bank v. Green, 4 Fed 609, 4 OFD 674.

Priorities

10. A creditor having a lien on one fund only may call upon a creditor having a prior lien on the same fund, and also upon another, to exhaust that other first: Bank of Muskingum v. Carpenter, 7 O (pt1) 21.

11. A mortgage defectively executed is not entitled to priority over lien of general creditors: Straman v. Rechtime, 58 OS 443, 51 NE 44.

12. In a proceeding to sell property of a decedent to pay debts, the lien of a magistrate's judgment obtained against a party having an interest in the property as heir may be set up. Such proceeding is not one requiring the issuance of summons for the party against whom the lien was obtained, and an order claim cannot be collaterally attacked: In re Seitz, 11 CC(NS) 204, 24 CD 32.

13. Heirs giving new mortgages in substitution of the ancestor's mortgages, in order to prolong time of payment, may be subrogated to the priority of the original mortgages: Jacobs v. Jacobs, 7 OD 486.

Decree

18. Where the widow, as executrix, brings the action to sell lands, and the court placed her dower and allowance for a year's support after the payment of certain liens and decreed a sale, such order is final, and cannot be set aside and a different distribution ordered at a subsequent term, except by proceedings under GC §§ 11631 and 11643 (see now RC §§ 2325.01, 2325.13). Coming in of a new party after final order will not authorize vacation of the order on the motion of one of the original parties with whose consent such final order was entered: Potter v. Jennman, 4 NP 75, 5 OD 444.

§ 2127.19 Release of liens. (GC § 10510-22)

When an action to obtain authority to sell real estate is determined by the probate court, the probate judge shall make the necessary order for an entry of release and satisfaction of all mortgages and other liens upon the real estate except such mortgage as is assumed by the purchaser. The executor, administrator, or guardian shall thereupon enter such release and satisfaction, together with a memorandum of the title of the case, the character of the proceedings, and the volume and page of record where recorded, upon the record of such mortgage, judgment, or other lien in the office where it appears as matter of record. If the executor, administrator, or guardian fails to enter such release and satisfaction, the court may, on the application of an interested party, enter such release and satisfaction and tax in his cost bill the fee provided by law for entering such release and satisfaction, and a fee of twenty-five cents to the court.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-22; 114 v 320 (455). EFF 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 10784.

Comment

The change made by the 1931 amendment to GC § 10510-22 was to provide for the fiduciary releasing and satisfying the liens on the record instead of the court. The court, however, still has authority to do so on application of an interested party in the event of the failure of the fiduciary to do it. Since it is no longer the duty of the court to enter the release and satisfaction upon the record, it seems likely that it will be neglected in many instances. The statute contemplates, however, that it should be done as a part of the duties of an administrator or executor in administering an estate.

By the terms of former GC § 10991 (see now RC §§ 2109.04, 2111.13, 2111.14, 2111.26 and 2111.48), former GC § 10948 (see now RC §§ 2127.21, 2127.22) is made applicable to proceedings by a guardian of an imbecile to sell the realty of his ward: McBride v. Gleason, 129 US 86, 32 LEd 630, 9 Sct 237, 6 OFD 310.

§ 2127.22 Appraisalment may be dispensed with; new appraisalment; appraisers.

If an appraisalment of the real estate is contained in the inventory required of an executor or administrator by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, and of a guardian by section 2111.14 of the Revised Code, the probate court may order a sale in accordance with the appraisalment, or order a new appraisalment. If a new appraisalment is not ordered, the value set forth in the inventory shall be the appraised value of the real estate. If the court orders a new appraisalment, the value returned shall be the appraised value of the real estate.

If the interest of the deceased or ward in the real estate is fractional and undivided, and if a party requests and the court orders the entire interest in the real estate to be sold, a new appraisement of the entire interest in the real estate shall be ordered.

If the relief requested is granted and new appraisal is ordered, the court shall appoint one, or on request of the executor, administrator, or guardian, not exceeding three judicious and disinterested persons of the vicinity, not next of kin of the complainant, to appraise the real estate in whole and in parcels at its true value in money. Where the real estate lies in two or more counties the court may appoint appraisers in any or all of the counties in which the real estate or a part of it is situated.

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. Where appraiser of lands to be sold by an administrator becomes a purchaser, the rule may be set aside, on application of the heir, as injected with fraud: Armstrong v. Huston, 8 O 552.

2. Under former GC § 10793 (see now RC § 2127.-22), where a mortgagee is made a party, and the widow asks for assignment of dower in the premises petitioned to be sold, and the mortgagee stands by and permits dower to be assigned to the widow, without resisting her claim, he is estopped from afterwards bringing an action to foreclose his mortgage upon the part of the premises in which the widow's dower was assigned: Affleck v. Snodgrass, 8 OS 235.

3. The heirs of a decedent cannot, after a lapse of over thirty years, have a judicial sale set aside upon the ground that the purchaser at such sale was the son of one of the appraisers, and that he purchased the land with money furnished by the father under circumstances which would raise a secret trust: Brick- man v. Shale, 11 CC(NS) 41, 20 CD 372.

4. When one who was both administrator and heir has instructed the appraisers to return a low appraisal of the property of the estate in order to minimize taxes thereon, he cannot later, after the widow has elected to take a large portion of the property at its appraised value, ask for a reappraisal. The fact that the caption of the petition in error shows that one of the other heirs has since died and that the plaintiff is administrator of the estate of such heir is not sufficient to justify the setting aside of such appraisal in the absence of averments in the petition setting forth the death of such heir and the appointment of such administrator, especially if the record shows that no one filed exceptions to the appraisement within the period limited by law except such plaintiff: Sprinkle v. Odell, 22 CC(NS) 233, 33 CD 540 [for a former opinion in same case, see 22 CC(NS) 480, 33 CD 685, which was affirmed, without opinion, Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 78 OS 404].

5. By the terms of former GC § 10991 (see now RC §§ 2109.04, 2111.13, 2111.14, 2111.26 and 2111.48), former GC § 10948 (see now RC §§ 2127.21, 2127.22) is made applicable to proceedings by a guardian of an imbecile to sell the realty of his ward: McBride v. Bell, 3 App 5, 22 CC (NS) 596, 25 CD 403 [affirmed, without opinion, Case v. McBride, 92 OS 516].

7. An administrator has been held personally liable to the purchaser where it developed the deceased held no title: Fisher v. Fisher, 15 CC(NS) 273, 23 CD 525 [affirmed, without opinion, 86 OS 363, 99 NE 1126].

§ 2127.23 Oath of appraisers. (GC § 10510-27)

The appraisers appointed under section 2127.22 of the Revised Code shall take an oath truly and impartially to appraise the real estate at its fair cash value upon actual view and to perform the duties required of them by the order of the court. Such oath shall be administered by some officer authorized to administer oaths and a certificate thereof inserted in or annexed to their return. The executor, administrator, or guardian may administer the oath. The appraisement shall be signed by the appraisers, and the officer to whom issued shall make return thereof to the court for confirmation.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Appraisement must be made upon actual view: In re Slane, 42 Bull 89, 9 OD 830; Mills v. Life Assn. of America, 6 DecRep 827, 8 AmlRec 358, 7 DecRep 677, 4 Bull 935.

2. As a general rule, the market value of real estate is to be ascertained from sales either of property out of the same tract, or of property in the immediate vicinity having substantially the same surroundings and the same conditions: Ohio Southern R. Co. v. Snyder, 5 NP 461, 5 OD 480.

3. Where the real estate to be appraised is naked land, the appraisers should go within actual view of every part of the entire tract. If it is shown that an appraisement has been made without actual view, upon application made before the sale or confirmation of sale the court will set aside the appraisement and order a new one: Creditors v. Search, 2 DecRep 495, 3 WLM 319.

4. It might be advisable to have a tract appraised both as an entirety and separately in parcels or lots, and then offer it for sale in both ways, accepting that bid which will realize the most money for the estate: Mathers v. Kinney, 8 DecRep 516, 8 Bull 267.

5. It is proper to have land appraised as one parcel, but sold in two separate parcels, as long as the two sale prices, when added together, equal two-thirds of the appraised value of the entire tract: Stall v. Macal-ester, 9 O 19.

§ 2127.24 Vacancy in appraisers. (GC § 10510-28)

When a person appointed by the court under section 2127.22 of the Revised Code as an appraiser fails to discharge his duties, the probate judge on his own motion or on the motion of the executor, administrator, or guardian may appoint another appraiser.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. It has been held in a partition action that if three appraisers acted, a report signed by two would be sufficient, the action of the majority being binding, so that no substitute appraiser would have to be appointed merely because one disagreed: Nichols v. Balzer, 1 CC 47, 1 CD 29. It would be better practice, however, to substitute a new appraiser or new appraisers in case a unanimous appraisal could not be reached.

§ 2127.25 Compensation of appraisers. (GC § 10510-29)

Appraisers appointed under section 2127.22 of the Revised Code shall each be paid such compensation as the court thinks proper for services performed by them.

§ 2127.26 Assignment of homestead. (GC § 10510-30)

If a deceased left a family homestead and a surviving spouse or minor children, or both, entitled to have a homestead set off, in an action brought by an executor or administrator to sell real estate, the court shall order the appraisers appointed under section 2127.22 of the Revised Code to set off and assign such homestead and to appraise the premises in whole or in parcels subject to such homestead. In lieu of such homestead, the surviving spouse or minor children may elect to waive such assignment of homestead and to receive five hundred dollars in money out of the proceeds of the sale.

2. In the sale of lands by an administrator to pay debts of the estate, by virtue of this section, a widow is entitled to have set off to him a homestead or, in lieu thereof, to receive five hundred dollars from the proceeds of the sale: Barnheiser v. Barnheiser, 25 OO 388 (PC).

3. A widow cannot maintain a claim to a homestead in any property occupied by a tenant, or in which she has a fee simple title as joint owner: Stegeman v. Riede, 26 NP(NS) 221.

4. When husband and wife were joint owners, each seized in fee simple of an undivided one-half interest in realty improved by a double dwelling house, the wife, occupying one-half at the time of his death, the other half being rented, cannot claim homestead rights therein: Stegeman v. 7. If a homestead, not exceeding one thousand dollars in value, is to be set off by metes and bounds to the surviving spouse, minor child, or minor children, the premises are to be appraised subject to such homestead rights and may thus be sold: Taylor v. Thorn, 29 OS 569.

8. A former wife of decedent, divorced because of his aggressions, is dowerable of his lands: Arnold v. Donaldson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540.

§ 2127.27 Additional bond before sale. (GC § 10510-31)

Upon the return and approval of the appraisal provided for by section 2127.22 of the Revised Code, the court shall require the executor, administrator, or guardian to execute a bond with two or more personal sureties, or one or more corporate sureties, whose qualifications shall be those provided by section 2109.17 of the Revised Code. Such bond shall be payable to the state in an amount which the court deems sufficient, having regard to the amount of real estate to be sold, its appraised value, the amount of the original bond given by the executor, administrator, or guardian, and the distribution to be made of the proceeds arising from the sale, and such bond shall be conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duties and the payment of, and accounting for, all moneys arising from such sale according to law. Such bond shall be additional to that given by the executor, administrator, or guardian at the time of his appointment. If the court finds the amount of the original bond given by the executor, administrator, or guardian is sufficient, having regard for the amount of real estate to be sold, its appraised value, and the distribution to be made of the proceeds arising from the sale, the giving of additional bond may be dispensed with by order of the court. Such bond shall be given in the court from which the executor, administrator, or guardian received his appointment.

If the action to obtain authority to sell real estate is pending in another court, the latter shall proceed no further until there is filed therein a certificate from the court wherein the executor, administrator, or guardian received his appointment, under its seal, that such bond has been given or that the original bond is sufficient. This section does not prevent the court in an action to sell real estate from ordering the sale of such real estate without bond in cases where the testator had provided by his will that the executor need not give bond.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-31; 114 v 320 (457); 117 v 545, § 1; 123 v 460 (466), § 1. Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC §§ 10790, 10950.

Comment

This section formerly provided that the "qualifications" should be payable to the state. The amendment made the bond payable to the state.

The section apparently was intended to give the probate court discretion as to the amount of additional bond depending on (1) the amount of the real estate to be sold; (2) its appraised value; (3) the amount of the original bond and (4) the distribution to be made of the proceeds arising from the sale; however, an additional bond cannot be dispensed with unless the original bond is found by the court to cover double the total real and personal assets of the estate. Consequently, in order to satisfy certain title companies and title lawyers, the practice has been to give an additional bond in such an amount which, when added to the original bond, would result in the total of the two bonds being double the total of the real and personal assets of the estate. For example: Should there be in an estate real estate having a value of $50,000 and no personal property, and it is necessary to sell one parcel of real estate having a value of $5,000, bonds totaling $100,000 must be given. It is the committee's opinion that this created an unjust burden on the estate and served no useful purpose.

1. Prior to 90 v 293, the failure of the court to require an additional bond of the guardian before allowing the order of sale or to appoint appraisers who have proper qualifications, although it might be ground for error, did not render the proceeding void: Mauarr v. Parrish, 26 OS 636; Arrowsmith v. Harmoning, 42 OS 254; Arrowsmith v. Gleason, 129 US 86, 32 LED 630, 9 SCt 237, 6 OFD 310.

2. General payments by the guardian from the commingled fund are not to be presumed on account of the proceeds of the real estate to exonerate the sureties, nor are they to be prorated between this and the general bond: McWhinney v. Swisher, 58 OS 378, 50 NE 812.

3. Where a guardian has sold real estate and defaulted as to the proceeds and died, in an action against his bondsmen interest is to be calculated upon the amount realized on the sale with annual rests to his death, and thereafter with simple interest without such rests to the date of judgment: Swisher v. McWhinney, 64 OS 343, 60 NE 565.

4. Where wards own real estate in equal shares, the money realized in an action upon the special bond given on the sale of such real estate, should be equally divided among them, even though the amount due to the several wards by reason of other funds received and appropriated by the guardian may be unequal: Swisher v. McWhinney, 64 OS 343, 60 NE 565.

5. The sureties on the special bond are entitled to have any sum realized from an indemnity mortgage given by the guardian to the sureties of both bonds credited upon the liability in proportion to the liability upon the special bond for funds received on sale of real estate to the liability under the general bond for funds not so received: Swisher v. McWhinney, 64 OS 343, 60 NE 565.

6. The sureties in a general bond of a guardian under GC § 10922 (see now RC § 2109.04), and in a special bond for the sale of real estate under this section, where the funds have been commingled, are co-sureties only to the extent of the proceeds of the real estate: Swisher v. McWhinney, 64 OS 343, 60 NE 565.

7. Where a ward dies pending appeal of an action ordering sale of the real estate of that person, the guardianship terminates, thus mooted the action: Becker v. Becker, 69 OLA 414, 125 NE(2d) 563.

8. Where guardian gives an additional general bond in an action to sell realty under former GC § 10950 (see now RC § 2127.27), the amount recoverable is not limited to the sum realized from sale: Huntington v. Globe Indem. Co., 27 NP(NS) 12.

9. Under an earlier form of this section an order of the probate court for the sale by a guardian of real estate of his ward, where the bond provided for in the statute is not given, although it may be erroneous, was not void: Arrowsmith v. Gleason, 129 US 86, 32 LED 630, 9 SCt 237, 6 OFD 310.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10790

10. If the sureties upon a bond given under this section and under GC § 10606 (see now RC § 2109.04) are both liable for the default of the executor, it is assumed that they are liable as co-sureties and in proportion to the respective amount of their bond: State ex rel Hunt v. American Bonding Co., 16 NP (NS) 497, 23 OD 609, 58 Bull 249.

§ 2127.28 Expense of sale.

The probate court may, after notice to all parties in interest, allow a real estate commission in an action to sell real estate by an executor, administrator, or guardian, but an allowance shall be passed upon by the court prior to the sale.

The court may allow payment for certificate or abstract of title or policy of title insurance in connection with the sale of any land by an executor, administrator, or guardian.

§ 2127.29 Order of sale.

When the bond required by section 2127.27 of the Revised Code is filed and approved by the court, it shall order the sale of the real estate included in the complaint set forth in section 2127.10 of the Revised Code, or the part of the real estate it deems necessary for the interest of all parties concerned. If the complaint alleges that it is necessary to sell part of the real estate, and that by the partial sale the residue of the estate, or a specific part of it, would be greatly injured, the court, if it so finds, may order a sale of the whole estate.

2. An order of court, made after its jurisdiction is exhausted, cannot be cured by entering the order nunc pro tunc as of a prior date: Ludlow v. Johnston, 3 O 553.

3. Where all the land sale proceedings were regular except that they showed no order of the court confirming the sale which the court had ordered and the administrator had made and reported, such error in not confirming the sale may be corrected by a nunc pro tunc entry: Jacks v. Adamson, 56 OS 397, 47 NE 48, 60 AmSt 749.

4. An order of court authorizing administrators to sell the real estate of their intestate, made subsequent to the sale, cannot be given in evidence to sustain such sale: Ludlow v. Park, 4 O 5; Leiby v. Park, 4 O 469.

5. Where decedent's lands are sold by executors or administrators, the record must show an order of sale by the court, or the sale is void: Goforth v. Longworth, 4 O 129.

7. The order for sale cannot be made on the joint petition of the executor and guardian to maintain the children and improve the property: Newcomb v. Smith, 5 O 447.

8. Power of administrator to sell lands of intestate is entirely statutory. Though an order be made for the carrying of the law into effect, yet if the statute be repealed before the order is executed, its effect is at an end and no valid sale can be effected: Ludlow v. Wade, 5 O 494.

9. Administrator can sell real estate only upon order of the court, after it has ascertained the necessity of such sale: Avery v. Pugh, 9 O 67.

10. The power to order the real estate to be sold by necessary implication includes the power to decide whether the land was the property of the deceased: Doan v. Bitely, 49 OS 588, 32 NE 600; see, also, Levy v. Ginn, 61 OS 644, 57 NE 1133.

11. The court may refuse to order a sale on application of the administrator to pay a mortgage debt, if the mortgagee and heirs object and the heirs have a substantial equity of redemption: In re Marhoover, 22 NP(NS) 46, 30 OD 6 [affirmed by court of appeals].

12. An order of sale is essential to a title under an administrator's deed; it should be made by the court, and evidenced by record on the journals. A petition to sell, with "allowed" written upon it by an associate judge, is no such order of sale. If the minutes show no order, the court cannot presume one to have been made and lost: Newcomb v. Smith, W 208.

13. Where administrators were ordered by the court to sell real estate under the statute, and before the sale was made the law was repealed, the power of the administrators to sell terminated: Bank of Hamilton v. Dudley, 27 US(2 Pet) 492, 7 LEd 496, 1 OFD 233.

Effect of order

14. However, a sale will not be set aside for a slight error in description of realty, when it can be corrected on purchaser's motion for confirmation:

Watson v. Watson, 24 App 45, 156 NE 241.

15. An order of sale made upon the application of a fiduciary is in the nature of a judgment and cannot be collaterally impeached for mere errors or irregularities, if the court making the orders had jurisdiction of the subject matter and of the parties: In re Hess, 14 CC(NS) 463, 23 CD 449.

16. Whether an order for sale of decedent's real estate was made in a proper case and upon sufficient proof, cannot be collaterally examined where the court making it had jurisdiction: Ludlow v. Johnston, 3 O 553.

17. A bill in chancery will not lie to set aside a sale made by an administrator, claiming that the same is void because made without any order of sale of the court of common pleas, the sale in such case being void, and there being adequate remedy at law: Mawhorter v. Armstrong, 16 O 188.

18. The order of sale will not be reversed for want of a journal entry showing that the facts stated in the petition were found to be true. In such a case, the reviewing court will presume that the judgment was founded on proper proof: Sidener v. Hawes, 37 OS 532.

19. Where an order has issued out of the probate court, directing an executor to sell lands to pay debts of the estate, the executor may maintain an action to recover damages for the wrongful destruction of the market value of such premises, where it appears that rights of creditors will be prejudiced thereby: Clark v. McClain Fire Brick Co., 100 OS 110, 125 NE 877.

Error and appeal

20. Proceedings by administrators for the sale of real estate may be reviewed in the upper courts: Ewing v. Hollister, 7 O 138.

21. No appeal can be taken from an order for the sale of land to pay debts: Steinbarger v. Steinbarger, 19 O 106.

21.1 Where a ward dies pending appeal of an action ordering sale of the real estate of that person, the guardianship terminates, thus mooted the action: Becker v. Becker, 69 OLA 414, 125 NE(2d) 563.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10787

22. Purchase money paid to an administrator upon sale of intestate's lands cannot be recovered of the heir where the sale is operative and the heirs recover the land: Nowler v. Coit, 1 O 519.

23. A purchaser who loses a title which depends on an administrator's sale can set up no equity on the estate of the decedent by reason of appropriation of his purchase money to the debts of the decedent: Salmond v. Price, 13 O 368.

24. One who goes into possession of premises, purchased at an administrator's sale of lands to pay a decedent's debts, is liable for the value of the use of the premises, if the sale is afterwards set aside: Christ v. Lay, 16 CC(NS) 38, 27 CD 312 [affirmed, without opinion, Lay v. Christ, 82 OS 417].

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10788

25. If the mortgagee has not presented his claim to the executor, and is not asking for sale or foreclosure of the mortgaged premises and same is amply sufficient in value to secure the mortgaged indebtedness and the heirs have a considerable interest in said real estate over and above the mortgage debt, the court may find that it is not necessary for the sale by the administrator of the real estate to pay said mortgage indebtedness: In re Marhooover, 22 NP(NS) 46, 30 OD 6 [affirmed by court of appeals].

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10951

26. The other conditions of jurisdiction being satisfied, a circuit court of the United States has jurisdiction in equity to set aside a sale of an infant's lands, fraudulently made by his guardian, under authority derived from a probate court, and may give such relief therein as is consistent with equity: Arrowsmith v. Gleason, 129 US 86, 32 LEd 630, 9 S Ct 237, 6 OFD 310.

If the order of sale set forth in section 2127.29 of the Revised Code includes real estate in which the ward or the estate has an equitable interest only, the court may make an order for the appraisal and sale of such equitable estate free from dower, for the indemnity of the estate against any claim for purchase money, and for payment of the value of such dower in money, as the court deems equitable, having regard for the rights of all parties in interest.

§ 2127.31 Persons interested may give bond to prevent sale.

An order to sell the real estate of a deceased person shall not be granted in an action by an executor or administrator, if after the action is commenced and before the order of sale is granted, any person interested in the estate gives bond to the executor or administrator in a sum with sureties approved by the probate court, conditioned to pay all debts and legacies found due from the estate, the charges of administration, and the allowance in money to the surviving spouse, so far as the personal estate of the deceased is insufficient. If the bond is not given until after the order of sale is granted, and the executor or administrator in reliance on the bond abates the action, the bond shall be binding upon the obligors, and may be enforced as though given prior to the granting of the order of sale.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. The heirs at law can prevent a sale of real estate to pay debts, and have partition, only by giving bond for the payment of debts as provided in the above section: Stout v. Stout, 82 OS 358, 92 NE 465, 137 AmSt 785.

1.1 An item in a will stating "I give, devise and bequeath to," certain named persons "the monies realized from sale of 1159 Dennison Ave. and 1097 and 1099 16th Ave.," is a bequest of monies realized from the sale of the described real estate and not the real estate itself, and when executrix holds such real estate for several months and then, pursuant to the implied authority and direction of the will, sells the real estate and distributes the proceeds among the persons named, without interposition of any of such legatees to assert any other or different right than his proportionate share of the monies so realized, the rents received by executrix during the months she held the property does not pass to the named legatees, since such rents are no part of the monies realized from the sale of the described real estate: In re Anderson, 74 OLA 549 (App).

2. This section which provides for the giving of a bond conditioned to pay all debts and charges of administration, including compensation to counsel, applies only to land sale proceedings brought for the purpose of paying debts of the deceased under GC § 10510-2 (RC § 2127.02), or legacies under GC § 10510-3 (RC § 2127.03). It does not apply to an action brought under GC § 5336 (RC § 5731.17): Kingrey v. Oldfather, 10 OO 524 (PC).

3. If the heirs furnish the administrator with money sufficient to pay debts of deceased, in order to save the real estate from being sold, he must account for such money as assets: Campbell v. McCormick, 1 CC 504, 1 CD 281.

4. A widow is sufficiently interested in her deceased husband's estate, to entitle her, in connection with one or more of the heirs thereof, to give bond to obviate a sale of real estate to pay debts. In such case the widow is not a volunteer, but is subrogated to the rights of the administrator: Corey v. Hayes, 13 CC 185, 7 CD 272.

5. Partition of a deceased's real estate cannot be had within one year after his death unless it is averred and proved (1) that there is sufficient to pay deceased's debts, (2) that the debts are paid, or (3) that the debts are secured as provided in this section: Smith v. Montag, 32 Bull 153, 1 OD 224; Swihart v. Swihart, 7 CC 338, 4 CD 624.

The real estate included in the court's order of sale, as provided in section 2127.29 of the Revised Code, shall be sold either in whole or in parcels at public auction at the door of the courthouse in the county in which the order of sale was granted, or at another place, as the court directs, and the order shall fix the place, day, and hour of sale. If it appears to be more for the interest of the ward or the estate to sell the real estate at private sale, the court may authorize the complainant to sell it either in whole or in parcels. If an order for private sale is issued, it shall be returned by the complainant. Upon motion and showing of a person interested in the proceeds of the sale, filed after thirty days from the date of the order, the court may require the complainant to return the order, if the premises have not been sold. Thereupon, the court may order the real estate to be sold at public sale.

If upon showing of any person interested, the court finds that it will be to the interest of the ward or the estate, it may order a reappraisal and sale in parcels.

If the sale is to be public, the executor, administrator, or guardian must give notice of the time and place of the sale by advertisement at least three weeks successively in some newspaper printed in the county where the lands are situated.

Change of law

1. Where an order of sale was granted under the act of 1795, and the sale made after the repeal of that act by the act of 1805, such sale conferred no title upon the purchaser: Perry v. Clarkson, 16 O 571.

Jurisdiction

6. The other conditions of jurisdiction being satisfied, a circuit court of the United States has jurisdiction in equity to set aside a sale of an infant's lands, fraudulently made by his guardian, under authority derived from a probate court, and may give such relief therein as is consistent with equity: Arrowsmith v. Gleason, 129 US 86, 32 LEd 630, 9 SCt 237, 6 OFD 310.

Sale of part of land

11. It will not affect the title of the purchaser if the whole tract was ordered sold and sale made of only a part: Ewing v. Higby, 7 O (pt 1) 198.

12. An executor or administrator may, at his discretion, sell in parcels a tract that is ordered sold entire, but he is responsible for the exercise of this discretion: Stall v. Macalester, 9 O 19.

Place of sale

17. The provision as to where the sale shall be made is directory only, and not mandatory; and where the order of sale is silent as to the place where the sale shall be made, and the executor sells the property at auction on the premises, the purchaser takes good title: Smiley v. Cook, 8 NP(NS) 191, 52 Bull 156, 4 OLR 737 [affirmed, without report, Caito v. Smiley, 79 OS 452].

18. In conducting a judicial sale of land at auction, an administrator may employ an auctioneer and pay the fee from the assets provided the auctioneer is approved by the court and such auctioneer is licensed. 1957 OAG No. 969.

Purchaser

22. Purchase by an administrator or executor at his own sale may be set aside whether the property is held by him or any purchaser from him with notice: Sheldon v. Newton, 3 OS 494.

23. An administrator who buys land at his own sale will be held to have purchased in trust for the heirs. If he has sold the land to a third person, the vendor will be held to account to the heirs for its value at the time of its original purchase, or otherwise, as the case may be: Glass v. Greathouse, 20 O 503.

24. Every person to whose integrity and judgment is committed the execution of any step necessary in making the sale will be excluded from purchasing thereat. So, the purchase of an appraiser, though without fraud and at full price, will be set aside by the court after confirmation at the instance of the heirs: Armstrong v. Huston, 8 O 552.

25. Appraisers cannot purchase at administrator's sale: Bohart v. Atkinson, 14 O 228.

26. Where an infant purchases land at an administrator's sale for the administrator, and immediately conveys to the latter, he cannot disaffirm such sale on coming of age, as though the land belonged to him: Sheldon v. Newton, 3 OS 494.

27. The administrator's fiduciary relation to the land does not terminate when the land is struck off and sold at public auction, but continues until the title of the purchaser becomes perfect by the payment of the purchase money and the delivery of the deed of conveyance, whereby the title passes from the heirs of the estate, unencumbered by any charges in favor of the administrator or the estate arising out of the sale: Barrington v. Alexander, 6 OS 189.

28. Where an administrator has enjoyed the use and occupancy of real estate under color of title acquired through a sale to himself, and for that reason void as to the heirs of the estate which he represents, an account of rents received or chargeable to him, and of improvements made by such administrator, will be ordered to be taken when such sale is set aside; and out of the proceeds realized from a subsequent sale, he will be paid any balance due him, and the remainder will go to the representatives of the estate: Barrington v. Alexander, 6 OS 189.

29. To guard against the uncertainty and hazard involved in the attempt to prove unfairness in the personal representative of the estate, the rule will, in such case, permit the cestuis que trustent to come into court at their option, and without showing actual fraud or injury, insist, as a matter of course, upon having the property resold: Barrington v. Alexander, 6 OS 189.

30. If an appraiser buys the land at the sale, such transaction is voidable only, not void: Terrill v. Auchauer, 14 OS 80.

31. Where the administrator procured a party to buy the land at two-thirds its appraised value, there being no other person present at the sale, and this party, with the administrator's consent, immediately conveyed the land in trust for the use of the administrator's wife and children, the transaction is fraudulent and void on its face, in the absence of clear and satisfactory explanation: Riddle v. Roll, 24 OS 572.

32. Administrator cannot directly or indirectly be interested as a purchaser at his own sale of lands of the intestate, neither can he act as agent of others: Piatt v. Longworth, 27 OS 159.

33. Purchase of the land by the administrator from the purchaser at the sale upon consideration of the assumption of the latter's obligation to pay for the lands the sum bid, and release him from such payment, is void and the lands are still unadministered: Caldwell v. Caldwell, 45 OS 512, 15 NE 297.

34. A beneficiary of an estate may apply to the common pleas court for an order setting aside a sale to the administrator: Caldwell v. Caldwell, 45 OS 512, 15 NE 512.

35. Unless authorized by the will or by order of court, the executor cannot bind decedent's estate by a verbal promise to indemnify the purchaser against encumbrances or defects in title: Arnold v. Donaldson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540.

36. If the executor, in bad faith, sells the lands for a price that is manifestly less than their true value, he should be charged with the difference between that price and the true value: Brown v. Reed, 56 OS 264, 46 NE 982, 37 Bull 324.

37. Where lands are sold by an executor at private sale for less than the full value, he must nevertheless account for the full value: Hocking Val. R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354.

38. The statements and representations made by the administrator at the time of the sale bind the estate only as to such matters as are prescribed in the order, or concerning which he has discretionary power: Dunlap v. Robinson, 12 OS 530.

39. If the administrator misleads purchasers by false statements which he is not authorized to make, or in respect of matters lying beyond the scope of his discretion, he may make himself personally liable thereby, but not the estate: Westfall v. Dungan, 14 OS 276; Arnold v. Donaldson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540; Fisher v. Fisher, 15 CC(NS) 273, 23 CD 525 [affirmed, without opinion, 86 OS 365, 99 NE 1126].

40. General Code § 11696 (RC § 2329.39) forbids an appraiser or an officer making sale on execution from becoming a purchaser: Hurst v. Fisher, 46 Bull 19.

41. A long line of authorities establish the principle that a person acting as a trustee of any kind, cannot either directly or indirectly purchase the property he holds in trust, and that if he becomes interested in the purchase of such property the beneficiaries may have the purchase set aside. This principle has been applied, in the following cases, to purchasers by various trustees, in Ohio, such as executors, administrators, guardians, etc.: Welsh v. Perkins, 8 O 52, 56; Armstrong v. Huston, 8 O 552, 554; Dunlap v. Mitchell, 10 OO 117; Glass v. Greathouse, 20 O 503; Sheldon v. Newton, 3 OS 494; Barrington v. Alexander, 6 OS 189; Riddle v. Roll, 24 OS 572; Piatt v. Longworth, 27 OS 159; Rammelsberg v. Mitchell, 29 OS 22; Beard v. Westerman, 32 OS 29. Contra; does not apply to partition sales: Bohart v. Atkinson, 14 O 228.

42. If the sale is set aside when the executor purchases, he may credit himself for money paid out for taxes, repairs and improvements: In re Wilds, 50 Bull 384.

43. If an executor purchases it will be presumed fraudulent and the court will set sale aside on application of a party interested: Barrington v. Alexander, 6 OS 189. See Sheldon v. Newton, 3 OS 494; Glass v. Greathouse, 20 O 503; Riddle v. Roll, 24 OS 572; Piatt v. Longworth, 27 OS 159; Caldwell v. Caldwell, 45 OS 512, 15 NE 297.

44. By virtue of the provisions of GC § 11235 (RC § 2305.21), a cause of action for the fraudulent purchase by an executor of the property of the estate, survived the death of such executor: Carroll v. Kennison, 14 App 133 [motion to certify record overruled, Kennison v. Carroll, 19 OLR 83].

45. In an action against an administrator for fraud in purchasing realty of the estate at his own sale, the measure of damages is said to be the value of the property together with the income which he has misappropriated: Carroll v. Kennison, 14 App 133 [motion to certify record overruled, Kennison v. Carroll, 19 OLR 83].

Legal notice

51. The title of a purchaser at an administrator's sale will be sustained, although the legal notice may not have been given, and the same protection must be given to those who have purchased at a guardian's sale: Stall v. Macalester, 9 O 19.

52. If the court is satisfied that the notice was published in a paper not of general circulation in the county, it may refuse to confirm the sale: Craig v. Fox, 16 O 563.

53. Where, in a proceeding by an administrator to sell land for the payment of debts, a public sale was ordered by the court, held and confirmed, and the purchaser received his deed, such sale will not be set aside on exceptions thereafter filed on the ground that GC § 10510-38 (RC § 2127.32) was not complied with, in that twenty-eight days had not elapsed from the first publication of notice to the date of sale: Richcreek v. Clark, 64 App 305, 18 OO 118, 28 NE (2d) 670.

54. The notice might be made in a Sunday paper: Hastings v. Columbus, 42 OS 585; State v. Thomas, 61 OS 444, 56 NE 276.

55. Where there is only one publication to be made in a newspaper, the statute means an English newspaper: Cincinnati v. Bickett, 26 OS 49; In re Ringwald, 5 NP 496, 5 OD 452.

56. Where the order of sale directed the sale to be held according to law, but the notice of sale showed that the sale was held on the premises, instead of at the courthouse, the sale was held to be valid: Smiley v. Cook, 8 NP(NS) 191, 4 OLR 737, 52 Bull 156.

Where the sale authorized by a court as provided in section 2127.32 of the Revised Code, is private, the real estate shall not be sold for less than the appraised value. When the sale is at public auction the real estate if improved shall not be sold for less than two thirds of the appraised value, or if not improved, for less than one half of the appraised value. In private sales if no sale has been effected after one bona fide effort to sell under this section, or if in public sales the land remains unsold for want of bidders when offered pursuant to advertisement, the court may fix the price for which such real estate may be sold or may set aside the appraisement and order a new appraisement. If such new appraisement does not exceed five hundred dollars, and upon the first offer thereunder at public sale there are no bids, then upon the motion of any party interested the court may order the real estate to be readvertised and sold at public auction to the highest bidder.

See in case notes to RC § 2127.29, decisions under former GC § 10786; in case notes to RC § 2127.33, decisions under former GC § 10803.

1. The probate court, under this section, is without power to order or confirm a sale of real estate by an executor, where the terms of such sale were part cash and the balance other real and personal property: Binns v. Isabel, 72 App 222, 27 OO 87, 51 NE(2d) 501 [affirming 39 OLA 225 (CP)].

2. The word "sale" as employed in GC §§ 10510-2 and 10510-34 (RC §§ 2127.02 and 2127.29), by virtue of this section and GC § 10510-42 (RC § 2127.36), means a sale for cash in hand, or on deferred payments not exceeding two years, with interest, and the above sections apply equally well to the general statute, GC § 10501-53, par. 8 [RC § 2101.24, par. (H)], which gives the probate court jurisdiction to authorize the sale of lands: Binns v. Isabel, 39 OLA 225, 12 OSupp 113 (CP) [affirmed, 72 App 222].

An executor, administrator, or guardian shall make return of his proceedings under the order for the sale of real estate granted by the probate court. The court, after careful examination, if satisfied that the sale has in all respects been legally made, shall confirm the sale, and order the executor, administrator, or guardian to make a deed to the purchaser.

The deed shall be received in all courts as prima-facie evidence that the executor, administrator, or guardian in all respects observed the direction of the court, and complied with the requirements of the law, and shall convey the interest in the real estate directed to be sold by the court, and shall vest title to the interest in the purchaser as if conveyed by the deceased in his lifetime, or by the ward free from disability, and by the owners of the remaining interests in the real estate.

1. Mere inadequacy of price unaccompanied by any other reason or cause is not sufficient ground for setting aside a judicial sale of real estate regularly made in accordance with law, unless such inadequacy raises a conviction that the property was unnecessarily sacrificed: Ozias v. Renner, 78 App 168, 33 OO 505, 64 NE(2d) 325.

2. Under GC § 10510-44 (RC § 2127.35), the deed made in pursuance of the court order is prima facie evidence that the petitioner in all respects observed the directions of the court and complied with the requirements of the law and vested title to the real estate in the purchaser in like manner as if conveyed by the deceased in his lifetime free from disability: In re Saviers, 23 OLA 166.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC §§ 10804,
10952, 10807

Return of sale

6. Purchase money paid by an administrator upon sale of intestate's land cannot be recovered of the heirs where the sale is declared inoperative and the heirs recover the land: Nowler v. Coit, 1 O 519.

7. Conveyance made by executors under a defective order of court cannot be aided in equity: Tiernan v. Beam, 2 O 383.

8. Sale by an administrator to a trustee, to place the property beyond the reach of creditors, under an agreement or understanding with the trustee that he should hold it for the benefit of the heirs and such of the creditors as they saw fit to pay, is void: Piatt v. St. Clair, 6 O 227.

9. The deed may be made to the assignee of the purchaser: Ewing v. Higby, 7 O (pt1) 198.

10. Though an administrator's deed contains no words of perpetuity, yet if the sale was in fact made of the whole estate, chancery would so decree, and an administrator does not vitiate the conveyance by attaching trusts to it, fairly intended for the benefit of heirs and creditors: Piatt v. St. Clair 7 O (pt2) 165.

11. Where lands are sold by an executor at private sale for their full value such executor must account for the total amount of the purchase price received by him, if necessary for the payment of debts. If sold for less than the full value he must nevertheless account for the full value thereof: Hocking Val. R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354, Ann Cas 1914A, 190.

12. To be strictly construed: Kummer v. Lake, 1 NP(NS) 209, 13 OD 491.

Confirmation of sale

13. If the purchaser consents, the plaintiff may substitute some one else as purchaser in his report: Ewing v. Higby, 7 O (pt1) 198; Thompson v. McManama, 13 DecRep 131, 2 D 213.

14. The matter of confirming the sale rests largely in the discretion of the judge, and the higher court will not review the same on the weight of the evidence: Niles v. Parks, 49 OS 370, 34 NE 735.

15. Where a sale had been made for a fair price upon competitive bidding, the court cannot set it aside merely because the sale was on the premises, when the statute provides that when not otherwise directed the sale shall be held at the courthouse: Smiley v. Cook, 4 OLR 737, 52 Bull 156.

16. As a general rule it may be said that the court will refuse to confirm the sale if the statute has not been literally complied with: Craig v. Fox, 16 O 563.

17. A defect in the description where not material and not objected to by the purchaser is no ground to resist confirmation: Wilson v. Scott, 29 OS 636.

18. A confirmation does not of itself constitute a sale: Curtis v. Norton, 1 O 278.

19. Under the act of February, 1824, in a sale by a guardian under order of court, the guardian's deed conveyed title, without a return of the sale to the court, or an order confirming the sale, and for a deed: Stall v. Macalester, 9 O 19.

20. Title passes with the deed but dates back to the date of sale: In re Harper, 26 NP(NS) 431.

21. The title of the purchaser may not be divested by a subsequent reversal of the order of sale: Irwin v. Jeffers, 3 OS 339.

22. Where jurisdiction has been acquired in such a proceeding, subsequent errors in the course of its exercise, as in the order of sale and its confirmation, however grave and glaring, will not subject the judgment to successful collateral attack: Bohart v. Atkinson, 14 O 228.

23. Where a devisee of a share dies before distribution is made, the proceeds from a sale of the property go to his heirs as personalty, and should be paid to his administrator: Avery v. Howard, 7 NP(NS) 97, 19 OD 71.

24. Even though real estate has been sold by an administrator in land sale proceedings, as ordered and confirmed by the probate court, at a price less than the appraised value thereof, such irregularity does not constitute or create any defect in the title acquired by the purchaser: Pierson v. Merritt, 4 OO (2d) 425, 134 NE(2d) 591 (CP).

Reversal of order of sale

28. If the statute is repealed after the order of court is made, but before it is executed, the effect of the order is at an end, and no valid sale can then take place: Ludlow v. Wade, 5 O 494.

29. Purchaser's title not divested by a subsequent reversal of the order of sale, even though he had notice, at the time of the sale, that an effort would be made to reverse it: Irwin v. Jeffers, 3 OS 389.

Deed

34. Though the administrator's deed contain no words of perpetuity, yet if the sale was in fact made of the whole estate, chancery would so decree it: Piatt v. St. Clair, 7 O (pt2) 165.

Effect of deed

40. An administrator's deed, even if made under order of court with but one witness, conveys no legal title: Miami Exp. Co. v. Halley, 7 O (pt1) 11.

41. It was formerly held to be the law in Ohio that a sale made by an administrator conveyed the property free from encumbrance to the purchaser: Miller v. Greenham, 11 OS 486; Bank of Muskingum v. Carpenter, 7 O (pt1) 21.

42. Since the law of 1858, requiring mortgagees and other lienholders to be made parties in the petition for the sale of such land, a mortgagee who was not made such party retains his rights unaffected by the administrator's sale, and the purchaser is liable therefor: Holloway v. Stuart, 19 OS 472.

43. However, if lienholders are made parties, the purchaser acquires the land free from liens: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53; Bank of Muskingum v. Carpenter, 7 O (pt1) 21.

44. The purchaser of land of decedent at a judicial sale holds it discharged of liens for debts. But heirs hold it subject to debts, and a purchaser from them takes the encumbrance with the title: Stiver v. Stiver, 8 O 217.

45. Where a wife joins her husband in a mortgage containing a renunciation of dower, a sale of the land by the administrator of the husband for the payment of his debts extinguishes the right of dower, and transfers an unencumbered title to the purchaser: St. Clair v. Morris, 9 O 16; contra: Kling v. Baintline, 40 OS 391.

46. Where real estate is sold by an administrator under an order of the probate court in a proceeding to sell lands to pay debts of a decedent, and it is stated both in the administrator's report of the sale made to the court and in his deed to the purchaser, that the purchaser takes the land subject to a mortgage which she assumes and agrees to pay, the grantee of such purchaser will take the property subject to such mortgage, even though the mortgagee did not set up its mortgage upon these particular premises in the action to sell them and there was no finding of the probate court of the amount due him: Ohio Sav. &c. Co. v. Weber, 21 CC(NS) 130, 33 CD 279 [judgment modified; see journal entry, Leisy v. Ohio Sav. &c. Co., 79 OS 472].

47. The proceedings of the court to sell the lands of a deceased to pay debts are presumed to have been regular: Hamilton v. Stewart, 5 NP(NS) 553, 18 OD 130 [affirmed by circuit court, without report, May, 1907].

48. Under the act of February, 1824, in a sale by a guardian under order of court, the guardian's deed conveyed title, without a return of the sale to the court, or an order confirming the sale, and for a deed: Stall v. Macalester, 9 O 19.

49. A sale of land by judicial sale does not become complete until the deed is executed and delivered. However, upon execution, there will be relation back to the date of the sale's execution: In re Harper, 26 NP(NS) 431.

Liability of administrator

53. An agreement to protect the title or indemnify the purchaser against encumbrances, orally made by the executor, does not bind the estate without authority from the will or court: Arnold v. Donaldson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540.

54. A sale does not carry a sound title, but only the deceased's or ward's title, a title clear and free, but only as free and clear a title as the deceased or ward had: Vattier v. Lytle, 6 O 477.

55. Where a purchase was made by one who was advised by his counsel that the land was clear and unencumbered, and that the wife had no dower estate therein, and thereupon he bought the lands at their full value and paid over the money to the executor and entered into possession, and afterwards the court of common pleas found that the wife was entitled to dower, it was held that the purchaser could not recover sufficient of the purchase money to compensate him for the loss he sustained: Arnold v. Donaldson, 46 OS 73, 18 NE 540.

56. When an administrator signs a deed in his official capacity, but in the warranty clause in the body of the deed his name appears, but not as administrator, and no allusion is therein found to an order of sale or other proceedings on which it is founded, the presumption is that the covenant of seizin is made in his individual capacity, and he is liable to the vendee for a breach of seizin and warranty: Lockwood v. Gilson, 12 OS 526.

57. Fraudulent representations by the administrator as to the title, without warranty, do not render the estate liable in damages: Dunlap v. Robinson, 12 OS 530.

58. False representations by the executors in respect to the land, made at the time of sale, are no defense to an action for the purchase money. The purchaser's sole remedy is against the executor personally: Westfall v. Dungan, 14 OS 276; see, also, Parr v. Brown, 59 OS 630, 54 NE 1106.

59. Where the executor was given power in the will to sell lands to pay debts, and sold the lands and distributed the proceeds without paying off a mortgage creditor as he had agreed to do, the executor was individually liable: Western Reserve Bank v. McIntire, 40 OS 528.

Transfer by county auditor

64. When a holder of a deed for real estate, which has been legally purchased through the probate court under procedure set forth in GC § 10510-2 (RC § 2127.02) et seq. makes application to the county auditor for transfer of such real estate by said deed properly describing such real estate, and presents therewith the deed and order of court for the execution of such deed, it is the mandatory duty of the auditor to indorse on such deed "transferred," pursuant to GC §§ 2573 and 2768 (RC §§ 319.20 and 317.22, 317.99): 1936 OAG No.6120.

Purchaser

69. The sale being a judicial sale, the doctrine of caveat emptor applies in all its rigor: Mechanics Sav. &c. Assn. v. O'Connor, 29 OS 651; Riddle v. Bryan, 5 O 48; Vattier v. Lytle, 6 O 477; McLouth v. Rathbone, 19 O 21; Corwin v. Benham, 2 OS 36; Creps v. Baird, 3 OS 277; McKinzie v. Perrill, 15 OS 162; Dresbach v. Stein, 41 OS 70; Beal v. Price, 13 O 368.

70. But see, contra: Fisher v. Fisher, 15 CC(NS) 273, 23 CD 525 [affirmed, 86 OS 365, 99 NE 1126]. The facts in this case are not reported but it seems that it is going to be a good way to hold the administrator liable if he does nothing more than make representations in his petition that deceased was the owner.

71. The purchaser, after his bid is accepted, cannot refuse to take the property because there are liens, etc., upon it. He is bound to examine the records before bidding, or failing so to do, must bear the consequences: Mull v. Smith Premier Typewriter Co., 1 NP(NS) 509, 14 OD 455.

72. The rights of a purchaser at a judicial sale as to payment of taxes out of the proceeds are fixed by the date of sale: Scheid v. Scheid, 5 OD 559.

73. Consequently, the purchaser is entitled to all the rents that accrued after that date: Boyd v. Longworth, 11 O 235; Oviatt v. Brown, 14 O 285.

74. Emblements, however, do not pass to the purchaser: Mason v. Lemmon, 3 NP 116, 4 OD 322.

75. A purchaser who loses a title which depends on an administrator's sale, can set up no equity on the estate of the decedent by reason of appropriations of the purchase money to pay debts of decedent: Beal v. Price, 13 O 368.

76. The title of a purchaser to real estate sold by an administrator to pay debts, is not divested by a subsequent reversal of the order of sale, and notice to such purchaser, at the time of sale, that an effort would be made to reverse the order, does not affect the purchaser's title: Irwin v. Jeffers, 3 OS 389.

§ 2127.36 Security for deferred payments.

The order for the sale of real estate granted in an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian shall require that before the delivery of the deed the deferred installments of the purchase money be secured by mortgage on the real estate sold, and mortgage notes bearing interest at a rate approved by the probate court. If after the sale is made, and before delivery of deed, the purchaser offers to pay the full amount of the purchase money in cash, the court may order that it be accepted, if for the best interest of the estate or the ward, and direct its distribution.

The court in such an order may also direct the sale, without recourse, of any or all of the notes taken for deferred payments, if for the best interest of the estate or the ward, at not less than their face value with accrued interest, and direct the distribution of the proceeds.

§ 2127.37 Compensation of executor, administrator, or guardian. (GC § 10510-45)

When an action to sell estate is prosecuted by an executor or administrator he shall be allowed the compensation provided by law, by the probate court from which his letters issued. pensation generally for fiduciaries; under RC § 2113.35 as to compensation generally for executors and administrators; under RC § 2127.38 as to compensation of fiduciary and his attorney.

1. If the proceeds of real estate and personal property come into the hands of the administrator or executor, the calculation is first to be made on the personal property. That is, if the personal property amounted to one thousand dollars and the real estate to two thousand dollars, the commission would be six per cent on the one thousand dollars of personalty and four per cent on the two thousand dollars of realty: *Strong v. 3. When real estate is sold by the fiduciary through a court other than that from which letters issued, and a mortgagee purchases the property for less than the mortgage debt, before receiving his instrument of conveyance from the fiduciary the mortgagee must pay the costs and expenses of the sale, including such compensation for the fiduciary as the court through which the sale is had shall fix: West v. Child, 16 OO 31 (PC).

4. Under this section and GC § 15010-46 (RC § 2127.38) the probate court has authority to fix and determine the compensation to the fiduciary for services rendered in connection with a land sale proceeding: In re Ohmer, 22 OO 147 (PC).

§ 2127.38 Distribution of money received.

The sale price of real estate sold following an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian shall be applied and distributed as follows:

(A) To discharge the costs and expenses of the sale, including reasonable fees to be fixed by the probate court for services performed by attorneys for the fiduciary in connection with the sale, and compensation, if any, to the fiduciary for his services in connection with the sale as the court may fix, which costs, expenses, fees, and compensation shall be paid prior to any liens upon the real estate sold, and notwithstanding the purchase of the real estate by a lien holder;

(B) To the payment of taxes, penalties, and assessments then due against the real estate, and to the payment of mortgages and judgments against the ward or deceased person, according to their respective priorities of lien, so far as they operated as a lien on the real estate of the deceased at the time of the sale, or on the estate of the ward at the time of the sale, which shall be apportioned and determined by the court, or on reference to a master, or otherwise;

(C) In the case of an executor or administrator, the remaining proceeds of sale shall be applied as follows:

(1) To the payment of legacies with which the real estate of the deceased was charged, if the action is to sell real estate to pay legacies;

(2) To discharge the claims and debts of the estate in the order provided by law.

Whether the executor or administrator was appointed in this state or elsewhere, the surplus of the proceeds of sale must be considered for all purposes as real estate, and be disposed of accordingly.

Comment

General Code § 10510-46 follows to a large extent the general plan of former GC §§ 10809 and 10816, enlarged to include guardians.

General Code § 10510-46 was amended in 1935. The comment of the probate code committee of the Ohio state bar association with reference to the amendment to this section was as follows:

"The change of language here recommended arises out of the decision of the courts in the so-called 'Griffith case' (see case note 1 below). If an action has not already been commenced by a lienholder it is mandatory on an executor or administrator to commence an appropriate proceeding to sell real estate to pay debts as soon as the necessity is indicated. It is not fair that the lienholder should be permitted to force such action by the fiduciary, buy in the property for less than the amount of his lien, and then complain at the allowance of a reasonable attorney fee for services which have saved him the cost of employing independent counsel to bring an action in foreclosure."

1. The supreme court of Ohio held that this section, as effective January 1, 1932, did not authorize the payment of attorney fees for land sale proceedings where the mortgagee purchased the property at the land sale proceedings for the amount of his mortgage or less: State ex rel Fulton v. Griffith, 127 OS 161, 187 NE 121 [reversing 37 OLR 353, which reversed 29 NP(NS) 435; approved, Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53].

2. The supreme court held that this section, as amended effective September 2, 1935, does not deprive a person of his property without due process of law, does not deny equal protection of the law, and does not affect the inviolability of contracts, in providing reasonable compensation and fees to be fixed by the court for services performed by the fiduciary and by his attorneys in connection with the sale of real estate to pay debts as a part of the costs in the proceeding and to be paid prior to any liens upon the real estate sold, even though a lienholder was the purchaser thereof, and at a price less than his lien thereon: Flory v. Cripps, 132 OS 487, 8 OO 484, 9 NE(2d) 500 [affirming 6 OO 142].

3. By virtue of this section the probate court has exclusive jurisdiction to fix compensation due a fiduciary for his services, and to fix fees for services performed by attorneys for the fiduciary, in connection with the sale of lands ordered by the court to be made by such fiduciary: In re Murnan, 151 OS 529, 39 OO 333, 87 NE(2d) 84 [reversing 52 OLA 569 and 53 OLA 305].

4. This section, relative to the sale of lands by executors and administrators, providing that a commission to the executor or administrator for his administration and reasonable attorney fees "shall be paid prior to any liens upon the real estate sold and notwithstanding the purchase of such real estate by a lienholder," is constitutional although the lienholder receives less than the sum due on the sale on a mortgage executed prior to its effective date: Bruin v. Leveline, 55 App 339, 9 OO 80, 9 NE(2d) 895.

5. A transfer of a lien certificate to the Division of Aid for the Aged gives that division priority over the claim of the surviving spouse, where such spouse made the original lien transfer: Division of Aid for the Aged v. Huff, 110 App 483, 11 OO(2d) 397, 168 NE(2d) 316.

6. Where real estate is sold by a fiduciary through a court other than the one which issued the letters, and the purchase price is less than the mortgage debt, the mortgagee pays for the costs and expenses of the sale: West v. Child, 30 OLA 231, 16 OO 31, 5 OSU 85.

7. This section provides that the probate court shall include in the costs of a land sale reasonable attorney fees as part of the costs: In re Whinery, 11 OO 96 (CP).

8. For history of this section, see Lash v. Miller, 16 OO 204 (PC).

9. The provision in this section, which gives authority to the court to allow compensation to the fiduciary in the order of distribution for services in connection with the sale of lands, is not exclusive, and the failure to allow such compensation in the order of distribution does not deprive the court of exercising the authority conferred on it under GC § 10509-193 (RC § 2113.36): In re Ohmer, 22 OO 147 (PC).

10. Under GC § 10510-46 (RC § 2127.38), the surplus of the proceeds from the sale of real estate must be considered as real estate and distributed accordingly: Burroughs v. Raymond, 50 OO 169, 111 NE(2d) 82 (PC).

11. Where land subject to the lien of the division of aid for the aged is sold in the administration of the owner's estate, the words "and the proceeds applied as provided by law" in RC § 5105.24 can mean only that the provisions of this section must be observed so far as they are applicable: Fultz v. Singer, 5 OO(2d) 433 (PC).

12. Under RC § 2127.38 the proceeds of a land sale proceeding of a guardian must be held and finally distributed in the same manner as would have been done had there been no sale. Such proceeds are, however, subject to bear a proportionate part of the expenses of supporting the ward: Guerra v. Guerra, 54 OO(2d) 14, 25 OMisc 1, 265 NE(2d) 818 (CP).

13. Reasonable attorney's fees are included in costs and expenses in a proceeding for sale of land to pay debts and such fees are to be taxed as part of court costs: Griffith v. Ohio, 13 OLA 211, 37 OLR 353.

14. In an administrator's suit to sell realty to pay debts of decedent, in which the property is purchased by one other than the mortgagee and the purchase price is insufficient to pay the mortgage obligation, the administrator and his attorney are entitled to their fees out of the proceeds of the sale, prior to the claim of the mortgagee, under authority of this section: Federal Land Bank v. McClain, 20 OLA 550.

15. In Lakes v. Lakes, 39 OLR 25, decided by the court of appeals of Butler county May 8, 1933, the court held that the proceeds from the sale of mortgaged real estate sold by an administrator in the proceeding to settle an estate, cannot be charged with the commission for making the sale, and the lien of the mortgages reduced by that amount, where the sale was for less than the face of the mortgage with interest and necessary expenses, and there is personality from which the commission can be paid.

Costs and expenses

1. Proceeds of a sale of realty by an administrator to pay debts of decedent may properly be charged with court costs and expenses of the sale, the per centum and charges of the administrator in connection with the sale, allowance to administrator for attorney fees in connection with the sale, payment of sale bond, compensation of auctioneer and for special advertising. The above payments have priority over a mortgage claim on the land so sold, when proceedings to sell are in good faith and mortgagee joins in the proceedings and the property is purchased by other than the mortgagee: Klimper v. Klimper, 12 App 332, 31 OCA 267.

2. "The costs and expenses of the sale" do not include fees of the administrator's attorney, nor the general costs of administration, nor premiums due the surety company upon the administrator's bond, and these claims are therefore subsequent to the claim of a first mortgagee: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

Compensation of administrator

3. In graduating the per centum compensation, the higher rate prescribed by GC § 10837 (see now RC §§ 2113.35 and 2127.37) should be first applied to the personality: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53.

4. The executor or administrator is entitled to compensation and charges for making the sale, to be first paid before applying the proceeds to mortgages or other liens. His compensation is computed by the per centum authorized by GC § 10837 (see now RC §§ 2113.35 and 2127.37), on the money arising from such sale to be administered: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53.

5. Where a mortgagee, whose lien is fixed by the court, becomes a purchaser, the executor or administrator is not entitled to a per centum compensation on that part of the purchase money applicable to the satisfaction of his mortgage: Stone v. Strong, 42 OS 53 [approved, Andrews v. Johns, 59 OS 65].

Taxes

6. When land is sold at a judicial sale, all taxes that are on the tax duplicate October 1 must be paid out of the proceeds of the sale: Hoglen v. Cohen, 30 OS 436; Ketcham v. Fitch, 13 OS 201; Creps v. Baird, 3 OS 278; In re Harper, 26 NP(NS) 431.

Mortgages and judgments

7. The proceeds of the sale of the lands are subject to all mortgage, judgment and other liens in the priority in which they attached to the land: Bank of Muskingum v. Carpenter, 7 O (pt1) 21.

8. Liens on the land are transferred to the proceeds arising from the sale thereof only when the sale is regular, and when the lienholders have been made parties to the action: Holloway v. Stuart, 19 OS 472.

9. Where a judgment is a lien on the debtor's lands at the time of his death, its payment is provided for in this section. But where it is no such lien, plaintiff's only method of obtaining satisfaction of his judgment is through the administrator in the regular course of administration: Miller v. Taylor, 29 OS 257.

10. Since this section requires a judgment lien to be paid it need not be presented for allowance to entitle the creditor to share in the proceeds of a sale of real estate to pay debts: Ambrose v. Byrne, 61 OS 146, 55 NE 408.

11. In case of a judgment lien on a debtor's land at his death, it is not necessary thereafter to issue execution thereon in order to preserve the lien. It is entitled to share in the proceeds of land sold by the personal representative although more than five years have elapsed since its rendition or since the last execution: Ambrose v. Byrne, 61 OS 146, 55 NE 408; Webster v. Dennis, 4 CC 313, 2 CD 567.

12. A mortgagee is paid ahead of funeral expenses: Nolan v. Kroll, 33 OLR 222.

13. Installments of street assessments, if they stand unsatisfied upon the tax duplicate, should be paid out of the proceeds of the sale, but if not due and payable, they remain a lien upon the real estate in the hands of the purchaser, who has no right to have them paid out of the proceeds of the sale: Makley v. Whitmore, 61 OS 587, 56 NE 461.

14. Where a first mortgagee sets up his lien, it must be preserved in the fund realized from the sale of the property; but where he fails to set up his claim, his lien is cut off and he becomes a general creditor: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

15. Where there is a judgment lien on real estate, but subsequently the owner asserts a homestead claim on the property and occupies same as a homestead until death, during such occupancy giving a mortgage thereon, then in case of suit brought by the administrator to sell the land, the judgment lien has priority over the mortgage lien: Smith v. Phillips, 5 NP(NS) 502, 18 OD 429.

16. All who may have a lien upon all or any part of the real estate sought to be sold by an administrator to pay debts are necessary parties to the action, whether the liens existed upon the real estate at the time of the death of the decedent or are acquired upon the share of an heir at law therein, after the death of the ancestor from whom the estate came, and before the petition is filed by the administrator: Keenan v. Wilson, 19 App 499.

Claims and debts

17. Where the sole devisee of lands is appointed executor of the will of the testator and sells such lands in his individual capacity as devisee, the proceeds of such sale come into his hands as executor, and where the personal estate is insufficient to pay the debts of the testator he must apply the proceeds of the sale of such lands to the payment thereof: Hocking Val. R. Co. v. White, 87 OS 413, 101 NE 354, AnnCas 1914A, 190.

18. Where a widow executed a mortgage upon the real estate of her husband, after his death, and this land is then sold to pay debts, the distribution of the fund arising therefrom must be, as to the widow, in accordance with the provisions of GC § 10714 (see now RC § 2117.25), providing in what order administrators shall pay debts, and not under the provisions of GC § 10809 (see now RC § 2127.38): Neely v. Neely, 1 NP(NS) 97, 48 Bull 929 [reversed on other grounds, 49 Bull 85].

Surplus

19. The balance of the money left after paying debts and costs, is, under our statute, real property: Kling v. Bordner, 65 OS 86, 61 NE 148.

Reversal

20. Where an appellate court reverses the order of distribution made in the probate court, it should either make the order of distribution or specifically indicate to the probate court how the fund should be applied: Sherman v. Millard, 6 CC(NS) 338, 17 CD 175.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10816

21. Lands directed by will to be sold and converted into money are treated as personal estate: Ferguson v. Stuart, 14 O 140; Collier v. Collier, 3 OS 369.

22. Where the real estate of an intestate, who had no issue at his decease, is sold to pay debts, and before final distribution of a balance remaining, after payment of same, and the satisfaction of the widow's dower, his posthumous child dies, the surplus money belonging to such child is subject to the law of distribution as personal property: Pence v. Pence, 11 OS 290.

23. The surplus of the proceeds of a sale of real estate by an administrator, remaining in his hands on final settlement of his account, is to be considered and disposed of as real estate, and intestate's widow is not entitled to any part thereof in her capacity as one of the distributees of the personal estate: Griswold v. Frink, 22 OS 79.

24. Although the surplus goes to the heirs in the line that real estate would go, such proceeds are personality and are held as personality by the heir and as such pass from such heir: Tuttle v. Northrop, 44 OS 178, 5 NE 659.

25. Surplus remaining after settlement of administrator's accounts to be treated as realty: McCall v. Pixley, 48 OS 379, 27 NE 887.

26. The balance of the proceeds of real estate sold to pay debts is real and not personal property, and goes by descent to the heirs: Kling v. Bordner, 65 OS 86, 61 NE 148.

27. Proceeds from sale of realty directed to be sold is not to be blended with personality unless the will so provides: Gilson v. Gilson, 11 CC(NS) 49, 20 CD 322.

28. Where a testator's personality is not sufficient to pay his debts and costs of administration and the legacies provided for in his will are not made a charge on his real estate, proceeds from sale of realty do not fall into the residuum but pass to the heirs, and the legacies fail for want of a fund out of which they may be paid: Ferguson v. Wentz, 20 NP(NS) 13, 27 OD 462.

§ 2127.39 When proceeds of sale marshaled in conformity with will.

When an action to sell real estate is brought by an executor or administrator with the will annexed, if in the last will of the deceased there is a disposition of his estate for the payment of debts, or a provision that may require or induce the probate court to marshal the assets differently from the way the law otherwise would prescribe, such devises, or parts of the will, shall be set forth in the complaint, and a copy of the will exhibited to the court, whereupon the court shall marshal the proceeds of the sale accordingly, so far as it can be done consistently with the rights of creditors.

[REAL ESTATE FRAUDULENTLY CONVEYED]

§ 2127.40 Sale by executor or administrator of real estate fraudulently conveyed by decedent.

When an action is brought by an executor or administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, the real estate subject to sale shall include all rights and interests in lands, tenements, and hereditaments conveyed by the deceased in his lifetime with intent to defraud his creditors, except that lands fraudulently conveyed cannot be taken from any who purchased them for a valuable consideration, in good faith, and without knowledge of the fraud. No claim to such lands shall be made unless within four years next after the decease of the grantor.

If real estate fraudulently conveyed is to be included in such an action, the executor or administrator, either before or at the same time, may commence a civil action in the court of common pleas in the county in which the real estate is situated to recover possession of it, or in his action for its sale, he may allege the fraud and have the fraudulent conveyance avoided. But when the real estate is included in the complaint before the recovery of possession by the executor or administrator, the action shall be brought in the court of common pleas in the county in which the real estate is situated.

Purpose, 1

Purpose

1. This section is intended to enable the administrator to obtain in one action authority to convert into money all realty which in equity ought to be applied to the payment of the debts of the decedent, and not to make it necessary that the creditor should bring the action: Beebe v. Canda, 18 CC(NS) 104, 28 CD 582.

Conveyance with intent to defraud

7. A release of the wife's inchoate right of dower is a valid consideration for a conveyance of property to her. Such conveyance is not void as to creditors of the husband, unless the amount of consideration is grossly disproportionate. Transaction is not fraudulent unless mala fides be shown: Singree v. Welch, 32 OS 320.

8. A fraudulent conveyance of land by a debtor cannot be impeached by his personal representative unless the property so conveyed is actually required for payment of debts, and when the personal property is sufficient to pay costs of administration and all debts except such as are secured by mortgage on lands of which the debtor died seized, the administrator cannot maintain an action to subject to sale, for the payment of the mortgage indebtedness, other lands which decedent had conveyed away with intent to hinder, delay and defraud his creditors: McCall v. Pixley, 48 OS 379, 27 NE 887.

9. Where lands have been conveyed by decedent in fraud of his creditors, the administrator may maintain an action against the fraudulent grantee to recover the value of the lands, if the latter has conveyed them to an innocent purchaser: Doney v. Clark, 55 OS 294, 45 NE 316 [reversing Doney v. Dunnick, 8 CC 163, 4 CD 380]; see also Thompson v. Tallman, 82 OS 391.

10. Realty which has been conveyed in fraud of the creditors of one who paid for such realty but had the legal title conveyed to another may be subjected to the payment of grantor's debts in the hands of the original grantee, or his devisee, or one to whom he has conveyed the legal title as security for a debt, which debt has subsequently been paid: Beebe v. Canda, 18 CC(NS) 104, 28 CD 582.

11. An administrator of the deceased grantor of a deed absolute with contract for reconveyance, may maintain an action to have it construed as a mortgage, but the relief granted will be a conveyance of the property to the heir or devisee, upon payment of the mortgage debt, such conveyance to be subject to the debts of the decedent: Johnson v. Kendeigh, 18 CC(NS) 553, 33 CD 207.

Creditors

16. After sale of real estate has been set aside as fraudulent, it may be sold to pay the widow's yearly allowance: Allen v. Allen, 18 OS 234.

17. Mere indebtedness of grantor is not sufficient to set aside a deed as in fraud of creditors, and a debt barred by the statute of limitations will not support an action to set aside a deed as fraudulent against creditors: Jones v. Lehman, 15 OD 541.

18. Where a chattel mortgage is declared void by statute, "as against creditors of the mortgagor," and the mortgagor dies in possession of the mortgaged property, leaving an insolvent estate, such property becomes assets in the hands of the administrator or executor: Keller v. Shaeffer, 29 OS 264.

Interest of heirs

23. The case herein provided for forms no exception to the general rule that interest in real estate goes to the heirs, and not to the administrator. The intestate having transferred his land to defraud his creditors, the title could not descend to his heirs: Overturf v. Dugan, 29 OS 230.

24. Administrator can impeach a fraudulent conveyance only when needed to pay debts and not for benefit of heirs: McCall v. Pixley, 48 OS 379, 27 NE 887; Jones v. Lehman, 15 OD 541.

Jurisdiction

29. An administrator cannot maintain an action of trover to recover goods transferred by his intestate to defraud his creditors. The remedy, if there be any, is in chancery: Benjamin v. La Baron, 15 O 517.

30. Lands conveyed to defraud creditors cannot be ordered sold until the conveyance has been set aside in a proceeding commenced for that purpose in the court of common pleas. An order of the probate court for the sale of such lands upon a judgment of its own, setting aside the conveyance as null and void, is of no validity whatever, and may be impeached in a collateral proceeding to recover the land: Spoors v. Coen, 44 OS 497, 9 NE 132.

31. The only inhibition against the probate court to order the sale of a decedent's real estate to pay his debts is that found in GC § 10510-50 (RC § 2127-40), wherein it is provided that if the petition includes real estate fraudulently conveyed before recovery, the action must be brought in the common pleas court: Rice v. James, 21 OO 60, 6 OSupp 244 (PC).

32. Once a conveyance by intestate is voided by common pleas court, the probate court can execute a sale in order to pay debts: Lowman v. Sewall, 16 CC 466, 9 CD 177.

33. An administrator may bring his action in the common pleas court for the sale of lands to pay his decedent's debts and include in such action lands to which the decedent never held title, but for which he paid and fraudulently caused to be conveyed to another with intent to defraud his creditors: Beebe v. Canda, 18 CC(NS) 104, 28 CD 582.

34. The probate court has no equity power to set aside a deed: Fleming v. McGuffey, 12 NP(NS) 19, 21 OD 387 [for former opinion, see 8 NP(NS) 431, 19 OD 521].

Parties

38. Former GC § 10777 (see now RC § 2127.40) does not give exclusive power to administrators to bring an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance of decedent, and a creditor may bring the action: Hause v. Coblenz, 22 App 17, 153 NE 255.

39. Where a debtor conveys land to his creditor in trust to sell and from the proceeds to satisfy the debt and pay the balance to the debtor; and the debtor dies without having paid the debt, and without having elected to take the land instead of its proceeds, his personal representative is the proper party to compel the execution of the trust by a sale of the lands: Craig v. Jennings, 31 OS 84.

40. If the sale is insolvent, the administrator is a trustee for creditors as to lands conveyed by decedent in fraud of creditors, and he may maintain a suit to subject them to the payment of demands of such creditors, unless the rights of a purchaser in good faith intervene. And the administrator may sue the fraudulent grantee for the value of the lands if the latter has conveyed them to an innocent purchaser: Doney v. Clark, 55 OS 294, 45 NE 316 [reversing Doney v. Dunnick, 8 CC 163, 4 CD 380]; see also Thompson v. Tallman, 82 OS 391, 92 NE 1125.

Limitation

45. The action must be brought within four years: Doney v. Clark, 55 OS 294, 45 NE 316.

[REACHING PROCEEDS OF PARTITION]

§ 2127.41 Proceeds arising from partition of real estate may be reached by the executor or administrator.

If after the institution of proceedings for the partition of the real estate of a deceased person, it is found that the assets in the hands of his executor or administrator are probably insufficient to pay the debts of the estate, together with the allowance for the support of the surviving spouse and children, the expenses of administration, and the legacies that are a charge upon the real estate, the executor or administrator shall make a written statement to the probate court of the assets, indebtedness, expenses, and legacies, and the court forthwith shall ascertain the amount necessary to pay the debts, expenses, and legacies and give a certificate of the amount to the executor or administrator.

The executor or administrator thereupon shall present the certificate to the court in which the proceedings for partition are or have been pending, and on his motion the court shall order the amount named in the certificate to be paid over to the executor or administrator out of the proceeds of the sale of the premises, if thereafter they are sold or have already been sold. This section does not prohibit an executor or administrator from proceeding to sell real estate belonging to the estate for the payment of debts or legacies, although it has been sold on partition or otherwise, or the proceeds of the sale have been fully distributed.

HISTORY: GC §§ 10510-51, 10510-52; 114 v 320 (462); 136 v S 145. Eff 1-1-76.

Analogous to former GC §§ 10818, 10819.

The effective date of S 145 is set by section 3 of the act.

See provisions, § 3 of SB 145 (136 v —) following RC § 2101.01.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

[DECISIONS UNDER LAW PRIOR TO SB 145 AMENDMENT]

1. The administrator is entitled to an order of sale for so much of the real estate of which the intestate died seized as may be necessary to satisfy the indebtedness of the estate, although such real estate may have been partitioned among his heirs, and by them either wholly or in part conveyed to purchasers; for decedent's debts are a lien upon his lands, and purchasers from his heirs take them cum onere, and subject to the maxim caveat emptor: Faran v. Robinson, 17 OS 243.

2. Right of administrator to sell lands to pay debts is superior to right of heirs to have partition. When the administrator has applied for authority to sell lands, the heirs can prevent a sale and have partition only by giving bond for the payment of debts. Former GC §§ 10818 and 10819 (see now RC § 2127.41) do not mean that a suit by the heirs in partition deprives the administrator of his right to an order to sell: Stout v. Stout, 82 OS 358, 92 NE 465, 137 Am St 785.

3. General Code §§ 10510-51 and 10510-52 (RC § 2127.41), providing for the appropriation of proceeds from a partition sale to pay debts where a deficiency of assets exists, do not supplant GC § 10510-2 (RC § 2127.02) et seq, requiring an administrator to commence an action to sell real estate to pay debts when he determines that personal property is insufficient; a sale for that purpose is a superior right and supplants a partition suit in the common pleas court: Retterer v. Retterer, 4 OO 333 (App).

4. Where the personal property of a deceased person is insufficient to pay debts of the estate, and partition proceedings are instituted in the court of common pleas for the partition of decedent's real property, the executor or administrator of the estate of such decedent may elect either to bring an action in the probate court, under GC § 10510-2 (RC § 2127.02) to sell the real property to pay debts, or to secure and file a certificate in the court in which the partition proceedings are pending, as provided for in GC §§ 10510-51 and 10510-52 (RC § 2127.41): Burrier v. Kiefer, 90 App 571, 48 OO 210, 107 NE(2d) 565.

5. When the sale of lands is necessary to pay debts, the filing of a suit in partition does not prevent the administrator from selling the lands. On filing his certificate from the probate court in the court where the partition suit is pending, he is entitled to an immediate order of sale; and, without filing such certificate, he may appear in the partition suit and, on cross-petition, obtain an order of sale without waiting a year after the ancestor's death: Myers v. Myers, 9 CC(NS) 449, 19 CD 396 [for opinion disallowing attorney fees, see 5 NP(NS) 85, 17 OD 551].

6. Probate court may not force the dismissal of a partition action once common pleas court acquires complete jurisdiction and issues a valid order of sale: Child v. Snyder, 88 OLA 401, 20 OO(2d) 432, 181 NE(2d) 315.

[FOREIGN OR NONRESIDENT WARDS]

§ 2127.42 Sale of the lands of foreign wards.

Wards living out of this state and owning lands within it are entitled to the benefit of sections 2127.01 to 2127.43 of the Revised Code. Complaints for the sale of real estate by guardians of such wards shall be filed in the county in which the land is situated, or if situated in two or more counties, then in one of the counties in which a part of it is situated. Additional security shall be required from such guardians, when deemed necessary by the probate court of the county in which the complaints are filed.

HISTORY: GC § 10510-48; 114 v 320 (461); 136 v S 145. Eff 1-1-76.

Analogous to former GC §§ 10955, 10956.

Comment

The first sentence of GC § 10510-48 was taken from former GC § 10955 and the balance from former GC § 10956.

The above section, taken with RC §§ 2111.43 and 2111.44, confer an absolute right on foreign guardians to sue the same as local guardians, except that they must give security for costs the same as other nonresidents. When a foreign guardian brings an action for the sale of real estate, the petition must set forth, in addition to the matters required by a local guardian (RC § 2127.10), the fact of such foreign appointment. It would be good practice to file as an exhibit an authenticated copy of the records of the court making the foreign appointment, as required by RC § 2111.41, as proof that such foreign guardian is acting in the capacity he represents himself to be, and that the bond he has given is ample and sufficient to secure whatever might be received. This authenticated copy is required of a foreign guardian before he may receive money or other property. See RC § 2111.42.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Administration of ancillary estate is concerned solely with decedent's realty and personalty located within territorial limits of the state in which ancillary administration is granted. Unless otherwise expressly provided by statute, ancillary administration is subservient only to rights of creditors and legatees of nonresident decedent who are resident of state wherein granted, and residuum is transmissible to court of foreign state granting ancillary administration only when final account has been settled in proper tribunal where ancillary administration is granted upon equitable principles adopted by its own law in distribution of assets found therein. Such residuum, when transmitted to state of domiciliary administration, is to be there disposed of in accordance with laws of such state: In re Kelley, 68 App 51, 22 OO 158, 34 NE (2d) 34.

§ 2129.02 Proceedings by nonresident executor or administrator to bar creditor's claims. (GC § 10511-2)

When letters of administration or letters testamentary have been granted in any other state, territory, or possession of the United States, or in any foreign country, as to the estate of a deceased resident thereof, and when no ancillary administration proceedings have been had or are being had in Ohio, the person to whom such letters were granted may file in the probate court in any county of this state in which is located real estate of the decedent an authenticated copy of the letters of appointment, and such court shall cause notice thereof to be published for three consecutive weeks in some newspaper of general circulation in the county in which such copy was filed. The claim of any creditor of such decedent shall be presented to such court within six months after the date of such filing or be forever barred as a possible lien upon the Ohio real estate of such decedent. If, at the expiration of such period of six months, any such claims have been filed and remain unpaid after reasonable notice thereof to the nonresident executor or administrator, ancillary administration proceedings as to such estate may be had forthwith.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Where an authenticated copy of letters of appointment of the executor of the estate of a deceased nonresident is filed in a probate court of this state in accordance with this section, the filing in such court of a claim against such estate within six months from the filing of the copy of the letters, is within time and is not governed by GC § 10509-133 (RC § 2117.12), which provides that suit on a claim must be brought within two months after such claim is disallowed: Foulks v. Talbott, 74 App 281, 29 OO 434, 58 NE (2d) 790.

2. Where, following an automobile accident upon an Ohio highway, a nonresident defendant dies after an action has been commenced against him pursuant to the provisions of RC § 2703.20, if there has been no administration in Ohio, the time limitation of RC §§ 2311.31 and 2117.06, has not commenced to run, and under the provisions of RC §§ 2311.25 and 2703.20, the pending action may be revived, any time before judgment, against the nonresident decedent's executor or administrator appointed in another state: Kibbey v. Mercer, 11 OApp(2d) 51, 40 OO(2d) 223, 228 NE(2d) 337.

3. This new statute supersedes, apparently, the holding that creditors must present their claims to a foreign executor or administrator within the time specified by the law of such executor's or administrator's domicile: Wilson v. Insurance Co., 164 Fed 117, 19 LRA(NS) 553.

§ 2129.03 Delivery of personal property and payment of debts to nonresident executor or administrator. (GC § 10511-3)

The money, debts, and other personal property located in Ohio, belonging to a nonresident decedent may be delivered to the nonresident executor or administrator without further liability to the estate provided the person delivering such money, debts, or other personal property has no knowledge of ancillary proceedings being had or having been had in Ohio.

1. Unless expressly otherwise provided by statute, ancillary administration is subservient only to the rights of creditors, legatees and distributees of a nonresident decedent, who are resident within the state where it is granted; and the residuum is transmissible to the court of the foreign state granting ancillary administration only when a final account has been settled in a proper tribunal where the ancillary administration is granted, upon the equitable principles adopted by its own law in the application and distribution of assets found therein. In the application of such equitable principles it is essential that the status of the whole estate, wherever situate, as to assets and liabilities be considered: In re Estate of Crawford, 68 OS 58, 67 NE 156; Williams' Adms. v. Welton's Adms., 28 OS 451; Swearingen, Admr. v. Morris, 14 OS 424; In re Estate of Kelley, 68 App 51, 22 OO 158, 34 NE(2d) 34.

2. The rights of creditors who are nonresidents of the state of ancillary administration are not the subject of adjudication in ancillary administration: In re Estate of Kelley, 68 App 51, 22 OO 158, 34 NE(2d) 34.

3. An automobile insurance policy is not property located in Ohio within the meaning of this section, providing for ancillary administration. In re Wilcox, 60 OO 232, 137 NE(2d) 301 (App).

4. No ancillary administration of a nonresident decedent's estate can be had in Ohio where the application is made by one who is not an interested person, as required by this section: In re Wilcox, 60 OO 232, 137 NE(2d) 301 (App).

5. Alleged tortfeasor is an interested party and can question the validity of the appointment of an ancillary administrator: In re Walker, 21 OO 220, 6 OSupp 324 (PC), affirmed 34 OLA 248, 36 NE(2d) 800 (App).

6. Ancillary administration may be had only in cases where the nonresident decedent leaves property in Ohio: In re Walker, 21 OO 220, 6 OSupp 324 (PC), affirmed, 34 OLA 248, 36 NE(2d) 800 (App).

7. The situs of a wrecked automobile, the personal effects, and clothing of the decedent, are the domicile of the owner: In re Walker, 21 OO 220, 6 OSupp 324 (PC), affirmed, 34 OLA 248, 36 NE(2d) 800 (App).

8. The right of action for the wrongful death of a decedent is not property of a decedent: In re Walker, 21 OO 220, 6 OSupp 324 (PC), affirmed, 34 OLA 248, 36 NE(2d) 800 (App).

9. The protection afforded to a decedent under a policy of insurance for indemnity or against liability dependent upon the establishment of a liability against him or his estate constitutes property to support ancillary administration proceedings under the provisions of this section even though the decedent leaves no other estate to be administered in Ohio: In re McQueen, 4 OMisc 65, 32 OO(2d) 210, 210 NE(2d) 157 (PC).

10. When an injured party has brought an action in Ohio against an insured non-resident tortfeasor for damages arising out of an automobile collision and service has been made upon said tortfeasor who dies during the pendency of said action, the injured party is an interested party who can apply for ancillary administration of said non-resident's estate under the provisions of this section: In re McQueen, 4 OMisc 65, 32 OO(2d) 210, 210 NE(2d) 157 (PC).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 10625

11. The duties of an ancillary administrator under the Ohio Code are, to collect the proceeds and property of the estate, make application of them to the payment of the debts proved against the estate, and this having been done to pay the surplus into the court granting administration for the benefit of the estate of the decedent in the state where he resided at the time of his death: In re Estate of Wood, 27 NP(NS) 323 (CP).

12. It may be regarded as settled that the succession in personal estates of every description, wherever situated, is regulated by the law of the domicile: In re Estate of Wood, 27 NP(NS) 323 (CP).

13. Former GC §§ 10604 and 10625 (see now RC §§ 2113.01, 2129.04) provide for administration in this state on the estate of a nonresident leaving an estate in Ohio: Williams v. Welton, 28 OS 451.

14. The probate court has constitutional jurisdiction to issue letters of administration upon the estates of all those having a legal domicile in the state, and statutory jurisdiction, under GC § 10604, to issue such letters on the estates of inhabitants not domiciled in Ohio, and additional statutory jurisdiction under GC § 10625, over those having no residence of any kind in Ohio, but possessed of property therein. The first mentioned jurisdiction is exercised in the county of which the decedent was a resident; the second in the county in which he inhabited at his death; and the last in any county in which the decedent had property: Hill v. Blumenberg, 19 App 404.

15. Bill in equity to subject real estate of a decedent in Ohio, where the heirs and representatives reside in another state, and where no letters of administration have been taken in Ohio, cannot be sustained. The creditor may himself take letters of administration, and thus have a complete remedy at law: Bustard v. Dabney, 4 O 68.

16. That the petitioner is unsuitable to administer is of no consequence; while the court may refuse to appoint the petitioner, it cannot refuse to appoint anyone else, unless conditions warranting an administrator do not exist: In re Worthington, 4 OD(NP) 381.

§ 2129.05 Foreign wills. (GC §§ 10511-5, 10511-6)

Authenticated copies of wills, executed and proved according to the laws of any state or territory of the United States, relative to property in this state, may be admitted to record in the probate court of a county where a part of such property is situated. Such authenticated copies, so recorded, shall be as valid as wills made in this state.

When such a will, or authenticated copy, is admitted to record, a copy thereof, with the copy of the order to record it annexed thereto, certified by the probate judge under the seal of his court, may be filed and recorded in the office of the probate judge of any other county where a part of such property is situated, and it shall be as effectual as the authenticated copy of such will would be if approved and admitted to record by the court.

Widow's election, 14.1

1. The will of a person whose domicile, at the time of his death, is in this state, is a domestic will, and properly admitted to original probate at the place of such domicile, without regard to where the will was made or where such person died: Converse v. Starr, 23 OS 498.

2. A will made in a sister state must be recorded in Ohio before title to land vests in the devisee: Wilson v. Tappan, 6 O 172.

3. Will devising lands in Ohio, if executed in a sister state according to her laws, and probate there made, is a sufficient devise of lands in Ohio upon its being duly recorded with the authentication of its probate in the county where the lands lie: Bailey v. Bailey, 8 O 239.

4. A will made in another state takes effect from the death of the testator, and not from the date of its registry in Ohio: Hall v. Ashby, 9 O 96.

5. Will made in another state, valid where made but not in the form required in Ohio, passes no property in Ohio, under the act of 1831. Aliter, it seems, under the acts of 1805 and 1840: Meese v. Keefe, 10 O 362.

6. This section applies only to wills proved in a court to which the jurisdiction to make original probate in the case properly belongs, under the established rules of law: Manuel v. Manuel, 13 OS 458; see also McNeal v. Ross, 58 OS 707, 51 NE 1099, 39 Bull 353.

7. By the act of 1840, foreign wills executed and proved according to the foreign law, could be admitted to record in this state: Jones v. Robinson, 17 OS 180.

8. The act of 1824 (2 Chase, 1305), and the act of 1831 (3 Chase, 1785), like the act of 1840, required the will to be attested by two subscribing witnesses, but as to foreign wills the act of 1831 required them to be executed according to the law of this state, or they could not be admitted to record here: Jones v. Robinson, 17 OS 171.

9. The validity of wills is governed by the lex rei sitae. And the validity of a foreign will, a copy of which is recorded here, under this section, is derived from the provisions of this section, and not from the foreign law to which its execution and probate conform: Jennings v. Jennings, 21 OS 56.

10. Where a question arose as to the distribution of property under a clause in a will made in Connecticut the court held that to a very considerable extent, the construction of the will must depend upon the law of Connecticut. But when it is considered that the devisees and legatees are all in Ohio, that the trustee is in Ohio, that the property itself, so far as it can be done, is to be and actually has been transmitted to Ohio; when a question arises as to the distribution of that property thus transmitted, and where it is not controlled by the will, that question must be settled according to the laws of Ohio: Brewster v. Brewster, 14 OS 368, 382.

11. In proceedings under this section, it is not necessary to continue the motion to the next term, or to publish notice in a newspaper, as in the case of wills made out of the United States: Carpenter v. Denoon, 29 OS 379.

12. The statute in force when the record was made, and not that in force when the will was executed, controls the effect to be given to the record of an authenticated copy of a foreign will: Carpenter v. Denoon, 29 OS 379.

13. The act of 1824 (2 Chase, 1305) required that wills disposing of property in this state, but executed and proved in a sister state, should be executed in conformity with the statute of this state: Carpenter v. Denoon, 29 OS 379.

14. A domestic will, when duly probated in any county, vested in the devisee the land therein devised, although situated in another county. And an authenticated copy of a foreign will duly admitted to record in any county of this state is as valid to vest title as a domestic will: Carpenter v. Denoon, 29 OS 379.

14.1 Where an authenticated copy of a will, executed and proved according to the laws of the state of the decedent's domicile, has been admitted to record pursuant to this section and where it is not established that the widow who was domiciled in that state had claimed anything under that will or otherwise elected to take thereunder and where the testator owned real estate in Ohio at his death, such widow has the right, with respect to that Ohio real estate, to elect not to take under the testator's will but to take under the Ohio statute of descent and distribution even though no such election is permitted by the law of the state of the testator's domicile at death: Pfau v. Moseley, 9 OS(2d) 13, 38 OO(2d) 8, 222 NE(2d) 639.

15. The record of a foreign will is necessary to effectually pass title to property in this state. When this is done, the doctrine of relation applies, and validates acts previously done which after such record may be performed: Union Sav. Bank & Co. v. Baltimore & C. R. Co., 7 NP(NS) 497.

16. A person claiming property in Ohio under a will proved in another state cannot sue for same unless the will be proved in Ohio, or it is permitted by some law of Ohio. Under the Ohio statute permitting this, it must appear that the requisitions of the statute have been pursued, in order to give the will the same validity and effect as if made within the state: Kerr v. Moon, 22 US (9 Wheat) 565.

§ 2129.06 Will made outside the United States. (GC § 10511-7)

A will executed, proved, and allowed in a country other than the United States and territories thereof, according to the laws of such foreign state or country, may be allowed and admitted to record in this state in the manner and for the purpose mentioned in sections 2129.07 to 2129.30, inclusive, of the Revised Code.

§ 2129.07 Proceedings to admit foreign will to record. (GC §§ 10511-8, 10511-9)

An authenticated copy of a will executed, proved, and allowed in a country other than the United States and territories thereof and the probate of such will must be produced by the executor, or by a person interested therein, to the probate judge of the county in which there is any estate upon which the will may operate, whereupon such judge shall continue the motion to admit it to probate for two months. Notice of the filing of such application must be given to all persons interested, in some public newspaper printed or in general circulation in the county where the motion is made, at least three weeks consecutively. The first publication shall be at least forty days before the time set for the final hearing of the motion.

If, on such hearing, it appears to the probate court that the instrument ought to be allowed in this state, it shall order the copy to be filed and recorded. The will, and the probate and record thereof, then shall have the same effect as if the will originally had been proved and allowed in that court. This section does not give effect to the will of an alien different from that which it would have had if originally proved and allowed in this state. When such copy has been filed and recorded, and when no ancillary administration proceedings have been had or are being had in Ohio, sections 2107.39 to 2107.45, inclusive, of the Revised Code, relating to election shall be the same as in the case of resident decedents, except that such election shall be made not later than six months after the record of such copy.

After an authenticated copy of the last will and testament of a nonresident decedent has been allowed and admitted to record as provided by sections 2129.01 to 2129.30 of the Revised Code, and after there has been filed in the probate court a complete exemplification of the record of the grant of the domiciliary letters of appointment and of such other records of the court of domiciliary administration as the court requires, the court shall appoint as the ancillary administrator the person named in such will as general executor or as executor of the Ohio estate of the decedent, provided that such person is a resident of Ohio, makes application, and qualifies in all other respects as required by law, except that if the testator in the will naming such executor orders or requests that bond be not given by him, bond shall not be required unless for sufficient reason the court requires it. If such decedent died intestate or failed to designate in his will any person qualified to act as ancillary administrator, the court shall appoint in such capacity some suitable person resident of the county, who may be a creditor of the estate. 4. General Code § 10511-25 (RC § 2129.23), requires the funds of the ancillary administrator of a nonresident decedent's insolvent estate, after payment of expenses of ancillary administration including attorney fees, public charges and taxes, to be applied to the payment of all creditors' claims, duly presented and proven to the ancillary administrator, in accordance with the Ohio priority statute, before remission of any part thereof to the domiciliary administrator or

5. Revised Code § 2129.23(B) places no restriction or limitation on persons entitled to the residue in ancillary administration. After payments of expenses, taxes and debts, the probate court may, in its discretion, order the residue of the personal estate and the proceeds of any real estate sold for the payment of debts, distributed to heirs or legatees, whether resident in Ohio or not, and without limitation to bequests of specific property: In re Radu, 35 OApp(2d) 187, 64 OO(2d) 293, 301 NE(2d) 263 (1973).

8. Where it appears that no domiciliary executor or administrator has been appointed, the probate court which appointed the ancillary administrator should order distribution under this section to be made to the persons entitled thereto: Mastics v. Kiraly, 26 OO(2d) 266, 196 NE(2d) 172 (PC).

Bill in equity to subject the real estate of a decedent in Ohio to payment of debts, where the heirs and representatives reside in another state, and where no letters of administration have been taken in Ohio, cannot be sustained. The creditor himself may take letters of administration, and thus have complete remedy at law: Bustard v. Dabney, 4 O 68.
4. Where a void decree is made by a Virginia court, for the sale of Ohio lands, one of the heirs who assents to the decree, and aids in executing it, passes his own title in equity: Beall v. Price, 13 O 368.

§ 2129.26 Bond. (GC §§ 10511-28, 10511-29)

When it appears to the probate court granting the order of sale set forth in section 2129.25 of the Revised Code that the foreign executor or administrator is bound with sufficient surety in the state or country in which he was appointed to account for the proceeds of such sale, for the payment of debts or legacies, and for charges of administration, and an authenticated copy of such bond is filed in court, no further bond for that purpose shall be required of him. When the court finds that such bond is insufficient, before making such sale, such foreign executor or administrator must give bond to this state with two or more sufficient sureties, conditioned to account for and dispose of such proceeds for the payment of the debts or legacies of the deceased and the charges of administration according to the laws of the state or country in which he was appointed.

When such foreign executor or administrator is authorized by order of the court to sell more than is necessary for the payment of debts, legacies, and charges of administration, before making the sale, he shall give bond with two or more sufficient sureties to this state, conditioned to account before the court for all the proceeds of the sale that remain and to dispose of such proceeds after payment of such debts, legacies, and charges.

§ 2129.28 Trustee's bond. (GC § 10511-31)

If a trustee is named in a foreign will which creates a trust relating to lands situated in this state, such trustee may execute the trust upon giving bond to the state in such sum and with such sureties as the probate court of the county in which such lands or a part thereof are situated approves, conditioned to discharge with fidelity the trust reposed in him. If the testator in the will naming the trustee orders or requests that bond be not given by him, bond shall not be required, unless for sufficient cause the court requires it.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Since this and the following section appear to contemplate the appointment of a nonresident as a testamentary trustee, if the testator is a nonresident, it will not be presumed, in the absence of specific statutory provision, that the legislature intended to deny to resident testators the right to appoint non-residents as testamentary trustees: *Seasongood v. § 2129.29 Trustee appointed by a foreign court. (GC § 10511-32)

If a trustee has been appointed under a foreign will which creates a trust relating to lands situated in this state by a foreign court according to the laws of the foreign jurisdiction, he may execute the trust upon giving bond as provided in section 2129.28 of the Revised Code, and after satisfying the probate court of the county in which such lands or a part of them are situated, by an authenticated record of his appointment, that he has been appointed trustee to execute the trust.

§ 2129.30 Probate court may appoint a trustee under a foreign will. (GC § 10511-33)

When necessary, the probate court of the county where the property affected by the trust is situated, on application by petition of the parties interested, may appoint a trustee to carry into effect a trust created by a foreign will. The American experience table of mortality is the basis of determining present values in probate matters.

Comment

Prior to the enactment of GC § 10512-1 (RC § 2131.01), both the American and Carlisle tables had been used. See Davies' Revision of Addams and Hosford's Ohio Probate Practice, for tables and methods of calculation.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. It has long been a settled practice in this state, in ascertaining the present value of consummate or inchoate dower in real estate or of an annuity, payable either at a stated annual period or at some future date, to use tables based upon the expectation of life: Black v. Kuhlman, 30 OS 199.

2. These tables have also been used for fixing a measure of damages in an action brought for the wrongful death of an individual: Wasner v. Rawlins, 64 OS 585, 61 NE 1150, 46 Bull 147.

3. The supreme court of Ohio has, before the passage of the above section, on two different occasions, approved calculations made upon the basis of the Carlisle table: Black v. Kuhlman, 30 OS 199; Wasner v. Rawlins, 64 OS 585, 61 NE 1150, 46 Bull 147.

4. The contingent right of a wife during her husband's life to be endowed of his real estate at his death is property having a substantial value that may be ascertained with reasonable certainty from established tables of mortality, aided by evidence respecting the state of health and constitutional vigor of the husband and wife respectively: Mandel v. McCave, 46 OS 407, 22 NE 290; Unger v. Liter, 32 OS 210; Moerlein Brewing Co. v. Westmeier, 4 CC 296, 2 CD 668. (For question of whether to figure dower on entire sale price, or equity after mortgage, see GC § 10510-19 [RC § 2127.16].)

5. The Bowditch table has been referred to with approval by our supreme court: Black v. Kuhlman, 30 OS 199.

6. In actions for damages for wrongful death, etc., courts to do not permit life annuity tables to be given in evidence to determine the probable present value of decedent's earnings, but tables of expectancy of life may be introduced in evidence and considered in estimating the amount of damages recoverable in such suits: Wasner v. Rawlin, 64 OS 585, 61 NE 1150, 46 Bull 147.

7. The American experience tables of mortality, this section, were used in calculating the amount to be awarded to the surviving spouse out of the proceeds of a partition sale, in lieu of dower: Huffman v. Huffman, 57 App 33, 10 OO 24, 11 NE(2d) 271.

8. Where lands are sold pursuant to RC § 5303.21, and both life tenants are shown to enjoy excellent health, the value of their shares should be determined by application of the statutory six percent formula and the factor determined by reference to the mortality table prescribed by RC § 2131.01 for the age of the younger life tenant, with the resulting percentage of the net sales proceeds to be distributed equally between such life tenants. The balance should be placed in trust to be accumulated until the death of the surviving life tenant and then distributed among the remaindermen as provided by the court under the will and applicable statutes: Henderson v. Henderson, 44 OO(2d) 463, 15 OMisc 276, 237 NE(2d) 336 (CP).

9. Where, for inheritance tax purposes, the probate court fixes the value of a life estate and remainder based on the actuarial value on the date of death, it may not subsequently adjust the values based on the actual duration of the life estate and order a refund of inheritance taxes thereby overpaid to the executors of the deceased's estate: In re Hough's Estate, 78 OLA 238, 152 NE(2d) 561.

2117., 2119., 2121., 2123., 2125., 2127., 2129., and 2131. of the Revised Code includes the following:

- (A) Persons under the age of eighteen years;
- (B) Persons of unsound mind;
- (C) Persons in captivity;
- (D) Persons under guardianship of the person and estate, or either.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. A person confined in the county jail under indictment for murder in the first degree is "a person in captivity" as defined in GC § 10512-2 (RC § 2131.02), and consequently under a "legal disability" within the meaning of GC §§ 10509-134 and 10512-2 (RC §§ 2117.07 and 2131.02): In re Gogan, 63 OLA 69, 108 NE(2d) 170 (App).

2. A probate court is guilty of an abuse of discretion in refusing a claimant the right to file a claim with an executor after the expiration of the four-month time limit fixed by RC § 2117.06, when such refusal to allow the claim to be filed prevents the revivor of an action pending against the executor's decedent in the court of common pleas, where the uncontradicted evidence establishes that the claimant was under a legal disability as defined by RC § 2131.02: In re Estate of Fuller, 112 App 25, 15 OO(2d) 378, 174 NE(2d) 613.

3. The term "legal disability," as used in RC § 2117.07, is defined in GC § 10512-2 (RC § 2131.02) and applies to "persons of unsound mind." The words, "of unsound mind," under the provisions of GC § 10213 (RC § 1.02, 1.10), include every species of mental deficiency or derangement: In re Price, 87 App 23, 42 OO 272, 93 NE(2d) 769.

4. Physical aches and pains, headaches, dizziness and inability to walk around or drive an automobile are not legal excuses for failure to comply with the statutory provisions for the presentation of claims against an estate. Where such claimant, for the four-month period following the appointment of the administrator, was able to and did go about and look into his business and affairs, he was not under legal disability so as to come within the provisions of RC § 2117.07: In re Estate of Christman, 100 App 133, 60 OO 129, 136 NE(2d) 80.

5. A person committed to a mental hospital for mental incompetency is of unsound mind within the definition of legal disability contained in subdivision (C) of RC § 2117.07 and subdivision (B) of RC § 2131.02, and for which belated claim may be filed: In re Estate of Wyckoff, 105 App 212, 6 OO(2d) 42, 152 NE(2d) 141.

6. A creditor, in order to be entitled to reinstate a barred claim, must plead one of the following allegations: (1) that the claimant was under "legal disability" as provided by GC § 10512-2 (RC § 2131.02); (2) that the creditor was absent from the state for the greater portion of the four months' period immediately following the appointment of the executor or administrator, and had no notice of the death of the debtor or the appointment of a fiduciary; (3) that the claimant's rights had been prejudiced by fraud or misrepresentation occasioned by the conduct of the executor or administrator: In re Dudley, 8 OO 404 (PC).

7. The failure of the guardian to present the claim during the four-month period does not deprive the minor of the benefits of RC § 2117.07: In re Gress, 28 OO 268, 13 OSupp 70 (PC).

§ 2131.03 Action to set aside antenuptial or separation agreement. (GC § 10512-3)

Any antenuptial or separation agreement to which a decedent was a party is valid unless action to set it aside is begun within six months after the appointment of the executor or administrator of the estate of such decedent, or unless within such period the validity of such agreement is otherwise attacked.

HISTORY: GC § 10512-3; 114 v 320 (469). Eff 10-1-53.

1. Unless the antenuptial contract relinquishing all share in the husband's estate has been fairly performed in favor of the wife, it will not bar her: Phillips v. Phillips, 14 OS 308.

2. By the terms of GC § 8000 (RC § 3103.06), a husband and wife may agree to an immediate separation and make provisions for the support of either of them and their children during the separation. Also it has been held that a reasonable antenuptial contract in bar of dower, if between parties of mature age, without imposition and in good faith, given full effect during life by the husband, will be enforced: Mintier v. Mintier, 28 OS 307.

3. Under this section an antenuptial agreement is deemed valid unless an action to set it aside is brought within six months after the appointment of the executor or administrator or unless the validity of the agreement is otherwise attacked within that period, and neither the filing of a written election to take under the law, in which is incorporated a statement that the widow repudiates "the prenuptial agreement, which was procured by fraud," nor the filing of exceptions to the inventory and appraisal on the ground that the appraisers failed to allow the statutory set-off and a year's support to the widow, constitutes an attack within the purview of the statute: Juhasz v. Juhasz, 134 OS 257, 12 OO 57, 16 NE(2d) 328.

3.1 By the provisions of this section, a separation agreement to which a decedent was a party shall be deemed valid unless action to set it aside is begun within six months after the appointment of the executor or administrator of the estate of the decedent or unless within such period the validity of such agreement is otherwise attacked: Burlovic v. Farmer, 162 OS 46, 54 OO 5, 120 NE(2d) 705.

3.2 The six-month limitation of this section, within which the validity of a separation agreement must be attacked by a surviving spouse after the appointment of the executor or administrator of the estate of his deceased spouse, applies to a surviving spouse notwithstanding he was an infant at the time of his marriage, at the time the separation agreement was executed, and during the entire period of limitation: Burlovic v. Farmer, 162 OS 46, 54 OO 5, 120 NE(2d) 705.

4. An antenuptial contract cannot be avoided by the surviving husband, by proof of concealment of a fact that did not affect the interest of such survivor: Keever v. Brown, 36 App 1, 172 NE 626.

5. The probate court has jurisdiction to render a declaratory judgment determining the validity of an antenuptial contract entered into between a decedent and his widow, where the estate is in process of being settled and the widow is contending that the antenuptial contract is of no effect, while the heirs of decedent claim that it is a binding contract, and the executor cannot safely distribute assets of the estate until the question is determined: Pearson v. Pearson, 58 App 503, 12 OO 300, 16 NE(2d) 837.

6. The filing of exceptions to an inventory and appraisal, on the ground that the appraisers failed to allow the statutory set-off and a year's support to the widow, did not constitute an attack upon an antenuptial agreement, under the provisions of this section: In re Thrush, 76 App 411, 32 OO 147, 64 NE(2d) 839.

7. Where exceptions to an inventory of a decedent husband's estate states that, by a separation agreement between such decedent and his wife, the latter is barred from certain allowances set-off to her in the inventory, and the wife by reply to the exceptions pleads that she is entitled to such allowances because such agreement is null and void, such reply is an attack on the agreement, within the purview of this section, which provides that such an agreement is deemed valid unless its validity is attacked within the time stated in such section. In such a case, upon the filing of such reply to the exceptions it becomes incumbent upon the exceptor to prove that the agreement was fair, reasonable and just to the wife under the circumstances at the time of its execution: In re Shafer, 77 App 105, 32 OO 380, 65 NE(2d) 902.

7.1. Where an antenuptial agreement places restraints upon a testator and where such testator neglects to comply properly with such provisions in his will, and the widow, within nine months following the appointment of the executor, brings an action in a declaratory judgment proceeding to determine the validity of such antenuptial agreement and seeks the advice of the court, such declaratory judgment action is a "proceedings for advice" as is contemplated in RC § 2107.39: Barlup v. Holloway, 25 OApp(2d) 44, 54 OO(2d) 77, 266 NE(2d) 241.

8. Where a postnuptial contract is more than a mere separation and maintenance agreement, but includes a division of property or a property settlement between the husband and wife, it is ordinarily an executed agreement, and the mere fact of reconciliation, recohabitation and resumption of marital relation between the parties thereto, does not, of itself, revoke the postnuptial agreement: In re Price, 1 OO 459 (PC).

9. This section, which provides that any antenuptial agreement to which the decedent was a party shall be deemed valid unless action to set aside is commenced within six months after appointment of an executor or administrator, does not apply to an agreement that is void: Petrich v. Petrich, 44 OO 457 (App).

10. Where a man had twenty thousand dollars of real estate and thirty-five thousand dollars of personal property, an antenuptial agreement of two thousand five hundred dollars was set aside, where it was shown that the wife had no knowledge of the husband's wealth: Duttenhoffer v. Duttenhoffer, 12 OD (NP) 736.

11. There must be the utmost good faith in the making of such agreements. Where the husband has misrepresented the value of his estate, the wife has the right to set the agreement aside after his death when the fraud is discovered. Such contracts are to be tested by the rules which determine the validity of contracts between persons standing in a confidential relation to each other: Duttenhoffer v. Duttenhoffer, 12 OD(NP) 736.

12. There is no indication in the wording of this section that the legislature intended to change the law of contracts by making enforceable an antenuptial agreement which has not been performed by the parties thereto: Cantor v. Cantor, 15 OO(2d) 148, 174 NE(2d) 304 (PC).

13. Where no attack is made on an antenuptial agreement within six months from the appointment of the decedent's administrator, no evidence is admissible in support of the defenses that the agreement was void for failure of the decedent to disclose all pertinent facts in fraud of his wife's rights and was disproportionate to his property: Cantor v. Cantor, 15 OO(2d) 148, 174 NE(2d) 304 (PC).

14. This section does not permit the parties to an antenuptial contract to change the effect of the statutes of descent and distribution: Cantor v. Cantor, 15 OO(2d) 148, 174 NE(2d) 304 (PC).

15. The legislature intended this section to limit the time in which questions of validity arising out of the right of the surviving spouse to avoid an antenuptial agreement may be litigated: Cantor v. Cantor, 15 OO(2d) 148, 174 NE(2d) 304 (PC).

16. A collateral attack upon judgment of domestic relations division of court of common pleas under this section may not be entertained by the probate division of court of common pleas whether or not facts before rendering court warranted such attack. The latter court is bound by the divorce decree incorporating the terms of a separation agreement, which compelled conclusion that provisions for divorced wife in decedent's will had been revoked by implication: Davis v. Davis, 51 OO(2d) 388, 258 NE(2d) 277 (CP).

17. An antenuptial contract must be voluntarily entered into and the provisions for the wife must be fair and reasonable under all the surrounding facts and circumstances and an adult man and woman, each owning a substantial amount of property and each having grown children by prior marriages, may lawfully enter into a prenuptial agreement whereby each relinquishes every and all rights in the property of the other: Osborn v. Osborn, 10 Misc 171, 39 OO(2d) 275, 226 NE(2d) 814.

18. In an action to declare an antenuptial agreement invalid, unless there is evidence to establish that the provision for the prospective wife is, in the light of surrounding circumstances, wholly disproportionate to the means of her future husband and to what she would receive under the law, the burden rests on her to show that she did not at the time of execution of the agreement possess full knowledge of the nature, extent and value of his property or that she did not voluntarily enter into the agreement: Rocker v. Rocker, 13 Misc 199, 42 OO(2d) 184, 232 NE(2d) 445.

19. In an action by a wife seeking to share in her deceased husband's estate, contrary to the provisions of an antenuptial agreement, relief will be denied where there is a lack of proof of actual intent to impose or of a gross disproportion of her share under the agreement as compared to her share under the law, and where the parties were both of advanced age, the wife was an experienced businesswoman and knew of her prospective husband's desire that their marriage interfere as little as possible with the inheritance which his children would otherwise have received: Rocker v. Rocker, 13 Misc 199, 42 OO(2d) 184, 232 NE(2d) 445.

[CONTINGENT INTERESTS]

The following sections will make contingent interests freely alienable and wholly indestructible. For a comprehensive discussion of the subject see the article entitled "Some Ohio Problems as to Future Interests in Land," by Charles C. White, 1 CinLRev 36. These sections are patterned after the New York law.

§ 2131.04 Expectant estates descendible, devisable, and alienable. (GC § 10512-4)

Remainders, whether vested or contingent, executory interests, and other expectant estates are descendible, devisable and alienable in the same manner as estates in possession.

HISTORY: GC § 10512-4; 114 v 320 (470). Eff 10-1-53.

Comment

Vested remainders and reversions were by the common law descendible, devisable and alienable. The foregoing section gives a contingent remainder and an executory devise the same characteristics in said particulars. The reason for the inalienability of contingent remainders is historical, rather than logical. These interests were first allowed at a time when the feoffment with livery of seisin was the normal method of transferring land, and primarily livery of seisin was the delivery of the present possession. Also the common law was very insistent in its purpose to prevent anything savoring of champerty and maintenance. And to permit the transfer of interests which were not estates, but were only possibilities of acquiring estates in the future, was not in accordance with common law ideas. See 1 CinLRev 36.

The Ohio cases follow the common law as to the nonalienability of a contingent right of re-entry after condition broken, and a possibility of reverter after a determinable fee. If in Ohio, A conveys land to charity X in fee, upon condition that the land be used for certain charitable purposes, or so long as it be used for such purposes, A in each case has a contingent future interest which will descend to his heirs, and is neither alienable nor devisable. 1. Where trust agreement vested defeasible interest in beneficiary who predeceased trustor, and power of revocation was not exercised by the trustor, the defeasible interest of the beneficiary passed, under the terms of her will, to named devisee in whom such interest became indefeasible upon the death of the trustor. First National Bank v. Tenney, 165 OS 513, 60 OO 481, 138 NE(2d) 15.

2. A future interest, whether contingent or executory, is alienable: Moore v. Foresman, 172 OS 559, 18 OO(2d) 123, 179 NE(2d) 349.

3. Future interests are expressly made transmissible by GC § 10512-4 (RC § 2131.04): Joseph Schonthal Co. v. Sylvania, 60 App 407, 14 OO 471, 21 NE(2d) 1008.

4. Where a life estate is devised to testator's wife "so long as she remains my widow," and the remainder is left equally to testator's two children, the children take vested remainders in fee, subject to the interest of the widow, which remainders may be alienated or mortgaged: Eastman v. Sohl, 66 App 383, 20 OO 305, 34 NE(2d) 291.

5. In such a case where there is a distribution of stock in kind to one of the two remaindermen, prior to the termination of the widow's life estate, consented to by the probate court and all interested parties, and, subsequently, at the end of the life estate there is not sufficient personalty remaining to give a like amount to the other remainderman under the will, such other remainderman, in an action to partition the real estate, is entitled to a lien on the proceeds of the sale in partition up to the amount advanced to the first remainderman, before the fund so obtained shall be divided equally between them; but, where the transfer of the real estate to the persons named in the will has been ordered by the court to be made on the tax duplicate and where the certificate of transfer has been issued and recorded, the lien of such other remainderman is inferior to the liens of creditors against the interest of such first remainderman: Eastman v. Sohl, 66 App 383, 20 OO 305, 34 NE(2d) 291.

6. This section permits a contract to convey, or the actual conveyance, of a possibility of reverter before a right of re-entry is exercised or before an estate is automatically terminated through breach of condition which delimits the duration of the estate. The words of the statute, "other expectant estates," include estates on condition subsequent and determinable fees: P C K Properties, Inc. v. Cuyahoga Falls, 112 App 492, 16 OO(2d) 378, 176 NE(2d) 441.

7. The provisions of this section declaring all expectant estates descendible, devisable and alienable, is a codification of the common law of Ohio existing in 1932, when a statute in this form was first enacted: Schneider v. Dorr, 32 OO(2d) 391, 3 OMisc 103, 210 NE(2d) 311 (PC).

8. This section includes under the term "expectant estates" a possibility of reverter: Willis v. Hannah, 38 OO(2d) 396, 9 OMisc 221, 224 NE(2d) 769 (CP).

9. The general rule, unless it has been changed by this section, which was enacted subsequent to the execution of this deed, is that the right of re-entry cannot be alienated to a stranger to the title: Murray v. Trustees of Lane Seminary, 1 OO(2d) 236, 140 NE(2d) 557 (CP).

10. In an action to quiet title brought by a life tenant in which were joined as proper and necessary parties the children of such life tenant who had an interest in the property by deed and will, and the pleadings and evidence put in issue the right, title and interest of said children, the judgment of the court holding that the children held the remainder estate in fee simple determined the rights of such children; is res judicata and cannot be collaterally attacked and their expectant estate became descendible, devisable and alienable: Scott v. Wilson, 73 OLA 85, 136 NE(2d) 282 (App).

§ 2131.05 Validity of remainders. (GC § 10512-5)

A remainder valid in its creation shall not be defeated by the determination of the precedent estate before the happening of the contingency on which the remainder was limited to take effect. Should such contingency afterwards happen, the remainder shall take effect in the same manner and to the same extent as if the precedent estate had continued to the same period.

§ 2131.06 When expectant estates defeated. (GC § 10512-6)

An expectant estate cannot be defeated or barred by any transfer or other act of the owner of the intermediate or precedent estate, nor by any destruction of such precedent estate by disseizin, forfeiture, surrender, merger, or otherwise; but an expectant estate may be defeated in any manner which the party creating such estate, in the creation thereof, has provided for or authorized. An expectant estate thus liable to be defeated shall not, on that ground, be adjudged void in its creation.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Where testamentary language gives the property "absolutely and in fee simple," complete ownership is bestowed, and subsequent language designating a trustee and attempting a gift over is of no effect: In re Estate of Koval, 8 OMisc 206, 37 OO(2d) 265, 221 NE(2d) 490.

2. By GC § 10504-72 (RC § 2107.51), a limitation over is void whether rights of the devisees are determined by the law in effect at testator's death prior to this section, or by the law at the time of the life tenant's death subsequent thereto: Rapking v. Rapking, 3 OO 328 (CP).

3. A fee simple estate cannot be made defeasible, even under this section, unless the words of the instrument devising such estate indicate the specific real property upon which the limitation is intended: Sweigert v. Sweigert, 55 OLA 442 (App), discussed in 19 CinLRev 300.

4. Where the provisions of a will vest in the husband of the testatrix an estate in fee simple in all her real and personal property, and later provide that after his decease "... all his real and personal property that is in his possession at the time of his death" shall vest in fee simple in her son, the limitation imposed on the property of the husband is inconsistent with and repugnant to the provision of the will which vests an estate in fee simple in the husband and is an attempt to dispose of the husband's property in the testatrix' will; and this section and sections of the Code prior thereto have no application: Sweigert v. Sweigert, 55 OLA 442 (App), discussed in 19 CinLRev 300.

5. This section, providing that a fee simple estate may be made defeasible upon the death of the holder without conveying or devising the same, is restricted by implication to realty: In re Knickel, 89 OLA 135, 185 NE(2d) 93 (PC).

6. Where the clause in question reads as follows: "My land in Texas I give to Spray and Glee McWilliams. The balance of my estate, including the farm, I give to Blanche Willits. After she is through with the farm it is to go to the Masonic Home at Springfield," Blanche Willits takes a life estate with the vested remainder in fee to the Ohio Masonic Home: In re Knickel, 89 OLA 135, 185 NE(2d) 93 (PC).

[STATUTE OF PERPETUITIES]

§ 2131.08 Statute against perpetuities.

(A) No interest in real or personal property shall be good unless it must vest, if at all, not later than twenty-one years after a life or lives in being at the creation of the interest. All estates given in tail, by deed or will, in lands or tenements lying within this state, shall be and remain an absolute estate in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail. It is the intention by the adoption of this section to make effective in Ohio what is generally known as the common law rule against perpetuities, except as set forth in paragraphs (B) and (C) of this section.

(B) For the purposes of this section, the time of the creation of an interest in real or personal property subject to a power reserved by the grantor to revoke or terminate such interest shall be the time at which such reserved power expires, either by reason of the death of the grantor or by release of the power or otherwise.

(C) Any interest in real or personal property which would violate the rule against perpetuities, under paragraph (A) hereof, shall be reformed, within the limits of the rule, to approximate most closely the intention of the creator of the interest. In determining whether an interest would violate the rule and in reforming an interest the period of perpetuities shall be measured by actual rather than possible events.

(D) Paragraphs (B) and (C) of this section shall be effective with respect to interests in real or personal property created by wills of decedents dying after December 31, 1967, and with respect to interests in real or personal property created by inter vivos instruments executed after December 31, 1967, and with respect to interests in real or personal property created by inter vivos instruments executed on or before December 31, 1967 which by reason of paragraph (B) of this section will be treated as interests created after December 31, 1967. An interest in real or personal property which comes into effect through the exercise of a power of appointment shall be regarded as having been created by the instrument exercising the power rather than the instrument which created the power.

1. A land purchase option which is appurtenant to a mineral estate and is limited to the necessary and reasonable use of the overlying surface estate for the exercise of mining rights, is a vested part of the mineral estate and is not void as a restraint upon alienation, although unlimited in time: Quarto Mining Co. v. Litman, 42 OS(2d) 73, 71 OO(2d) 58, 326 NE(2d) 676 (1975).

1.1. Where a testator bequeaths money in trust for a charitable corporation to be organized after his death for the purpose of accomplishing certain charitable purposes, the gift is valid although it is possible that the corporation might not be organized within the period of the rule against perpetuities. In such a case there is an immediate gift for charitable purposes, and the court will direct that the property be conveyed to the corporation if it is organized within a reasonable time, and if not so organized, will frame a scheme for the application of the property to the designated charitable purposes and direct that it be administered under the doctrine of cy pres: Rice v. Stanley, 42 OS(2d) 209, 71 OO(2d) 205, 327 NE(2d) 774 (1975).

1.2. There remains in the grantor of a fee tail estate a reversion in fee simple expectant upon the failure of a stated condition, which reversion is a descendible, devisable and alienable estate, which, if otherwise undisposed of, passes upon the death of the grantor by descent to his heirs then living: Long v. Long, 45 OS(2d) 165, 74 OO(2d) 287, 343 NE(2d) 100 (1976).

1.3. Common law fee tail estate exists in Ohio; RC § 2131.08 converting fee tail estate into fee simple absolute in issue of first donee in tail does not change nature of estate in donee in tail from inheritable estate to life estate but merely restricts entailment to immediate issue of such donee: Long v. Long, 45 OS(2d) 165, 74 OO(2d) 287, 343 NE(2d) 100 (1976).

2. Where conveyances were made in 1900 and 1901, the validity of the limitations over to a municipal corporation is governed by GC § 8622 (see now RC § 2131.08), in effect at that time, and not by the law in effect when the purpose is abandoned, or by the common law rule against perpetuities: Joseph Schonthal Co. v. Sylvania, 60 App 407, 14 OO 471, 21 NE(2d) 1008.

2.1 The common law rule against perpetuities was abrogated in Ohio in 1812 (10 v 7; RS § 4200; GC § 8622; repealed 114 v 745), and was not effective from that time until the enactment of this section in 1932, which readopted the rule. General Code § 8622 (see now RC § 2131.08) applied to municipal corporations as well as to persons: Joseph Schonthal Co. v. Sylvania, 60 App 407, 14 OO 471, 21 NE(2d) 1008.

3. Where a will creates a trust for the benefit of one person for life, then for the use of others until their marriage or death, and then "the trust to be continued and one-half of the annual income of said trust fund" to be paid to a charity, the gift to the charity does not violate the rule against perpetuities as the equitable estate vests in the charity immediately upon the transfer of the legal title to the trustee: Schreiner v. Cincinnati Altenheim, 61 App 344, 15 OO 228, 22 NE(2d) 587.

4. This section has supplanted the common law rule that a bequest for the permanent care of the settlor's cemetery grave or family lot violated the rule against perpetuities, and under the statute such trusts are valid: Heinlein v. Elyria Sav. &c. Co., 75 App 353, 31 OO 123, 62 NE(2d) 284.

5. A bequest of money for the care of a dog does not, by the terms of the creating instrument, violate the rule against perpetuities: In re Searight, 87 App 417, 43 OO 169, 95 NE(2d) 779, discussed in 20 CinLRev 434.

6. A vested interest is not subject to the rule against perpetuities: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

6.1. "A vested interest is one in which there is a present fixed right, either of present enjoyment or of future enjoyment. Where, under the terms of the gift of a remainder, there is an ascertained person in existence who could take the remainder in possession immediately upon the determination of the particular estate whenever and however it might determine, the remainder is vested.

 Where the right is to present enjoyment, the interest is always vested." 3 Page on Wills (Lifetime Ed.), Sec. 1257, quoted in: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

6.2. "A contingent interest is one in which there is no present fixed right of either present or future employment; but in which a fixed right will arise in the future under certain specified contingencies. Where, under the terms of the gift of remainder, there is no ascertained person in being who could take if the particular estate were at once to determine, or where the remainderman is ascertained by the terms of the gift but he cannot take upon the determination of the particular estate, unless some other or further event occurs before such determination, the remainder is contingent." 3 Page on Wills (Lifetime Ed.) Sec. 1257, quoted in: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

6.3. "A future interest is invalid unless it is absolutely certain that it must vest within the period of perpetuities. Probability of vesting, however great, is not sufficient. Moreover, the certainty of vesting must have existed at the time when the instrument took effect . It is immaterial that the contingencies actually do occur within the permissible period or actually have occurred when the validity of the instrument is first litigated." Perpetuities in a Nutshell, 51 Harv. L. Rev. 638, at 642, quoted in: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

6.4. In applying the rule against perpetuities to litigation involving the validity of appointments made under a general power to appoint by will lodged in a donee of the power by virtue of an inter vivos indenture of trust, the period of time permitted for the vesting of interests given by the donee of the power in his will must be computed from the time of the creation of the power and not from the exercise thereof: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

7. The legislature of Ohio specifically adopted the common law rule against perpetuities in the year 1932 (now codified at RC § 2131.08), although the rule had existed as a part of the common law of the state of Ohio for generations prior thereto: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 106 App 237, 6 OO(2d) 493, 142 NE(2d) 249.

8. A will by which a testatrix left her estate to a designated person in trust with almost unlimited power to manage, control and dispose of both income and principal, and to pay or expend from time to time such sums as she deems necessary for the benefit of certain named beneficiaries, "until my grandson, M., shall, or would if he lived so long, attain the age of thirty years"; and upon disposition of the principal the trust to that extent to terminate; and in case the trust shall not be wholly disposed of under the foregoing provisions, such part not disposed of shall vest in equal shares in such of certain named beneficiaries "as shall be living when my grandson, M., shall, or would if he lived so long, attain the age of thirty years and the trust shall cease and determine," does not violate the rule against perpetuities as codified in this section: Finkbeiner v. Finkbeiner, 111 App 64, 13 OO(2d) 424, 165 NE(2d) 825.

9. When part of an attempted disposition fails as a direct consequence of the rule against perpetuities the effect, if any, of this partial invalidity upon the balance of the attempted disposition is determined by judicially ascertaining whether the conveyor, if he had known of this partial invalidity, would have preferred that (a) all the balance of the attempted disposition take effect, in accordance with its terms; or that (b) certain parts of the balance of the attempted disposition fail, but the rest thereof take effect in accordance with its terms; or that (c) all the balance of the attempted disposition fail: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

10. The intent clearly expressed by the language of this section is that it is the vesting of the title that is the concern of the legislature: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

11. Where the testator created a testamentary trust and directed his trustee to pay each month the sum of two hundred dollars to each of his five sons during each son's lifetime and after the son's death to continue to pay such sum to the deceased son's issue per stirpes, until the trust fund had been exhausted, each son had a vested life estate which became vested immediately upon the testator's death: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

12. In such case, each of the testator's living and after-born grandchildren had a life estate in the undivided interest of his father, which must vest upon the instant of his father's death, and therefore vests within a life in being and twenty-one years thereafter as required by the rule: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

13. In such case, each great-grandchild in actual or potential existence at the time of testator's death also had a vested life estate which will come into enjoyment after both his parent and grandparent of the testator's blood have died: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

14. Where identical bequests to each of the testator's sons are payable out of the same testamentary trust fund the legal title to which is in the same trustee, but the gifts to the sons are not a gift to a class, the gifts must be considered separate and distinct from one another in applying the rule against perpetuities: Gwinner v. Schoeny, 111 App 177, 13 OO(2d) 389, 171 NE(2d) 728.

15. The state of Ohio, by virtue of this section, limits all estates given in tail by deed or will in lands or tenements lying within the state to be an absolute state in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail: In re Jones, 44 OLA 339, 64 NE(2d) 609 (App).

16. Where property is deeded by a mother to her son for life, and then to the heirs of his body, and if he dies without heirs of his body, the remainder to revert to the grantor, if living, and if not living, then the remainder to the grantor's heirs at law, it is incumbent upon the widow of the grantee-son, in an action to have quieted her title to such premises, to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that upon the death of the grantee-son without having had issue he had an absolute estate in fee simple in such premises which could pass to her as his heir or which could pass to her under the provisions of his will, i.e., that the grantor-mother had not successfully conveyed or devised away the reversion: Kohler v. Ichler, 116 App 16, 21 OO(2d) 221, 186 NE(2d) 202.

17. Where a charitable gift vests, a direction for accumulation, being for the management of the fund and not of the essence of the gift, will not, even if invalid, affect the validity of the gift: Third National Bank v. Eaton, 33 OApp(2d) 264, 62 OO(2d) 379, 294 NE(2d) 247 (1972).

18. In applying the rule against perpetuities, the test of vesting is not whether the beneficial enjoyment of the proceeds of the estate will arise within the period of the lives in being plus twenty-one years, but, whether, within such period it becomes certain that the interest is unconditional and will reach fruition in the future: Third National Bank v. Eaton, 33 OApp(2d) 264, 62 OO(2d) 379, 294 NE(2d) 247 (1972).

19. This statute abrogated the common law rule under the statute de bonis, although generally speaking many of the common law attributes were retained through interpretation: Guida v. Thompson, 80 OLA 148, 160 NE(2d) 153.

20. While the possibility of reversion on failure of issue remaining in the donor is not an estate, there is authority to the effect that the donor can release it to the person holding the intermediate estate, the first donee in tail. But this does not have the effect of converting the estate tail into an estate in fee simple in the hands of the first donee in tail so as to enable him to alien it in fee simple to a third person and thereby defeat the heirs of his body from acquiring it by descent upon his death. The only probable effect of an original donor's release of his reversion expectancy to the donee in tail would be to defeat donor's possibility of reversion in event the donee should die without issue and thereby vest the estate in the donee's general heirs in fee simple: Guida v. Thompson, 80 OLA 148, 160 NE(2d) 153.

21. Forty-five-year-old restrictions in a deed to a church congregation forbidding the use of musical instruments and any practice unauthorized in the New Testament on the premises and providing that in the event of a breach the property is to revert to those in the congregation who object to the breach will not be enforced to prevent the sale of the premises by the corporate successor of the congregation: Church of Christ v. Ezzell, 31 OO(2d) 224, 202 NE(2d) 212.

22. A testamentary disposition is not affected by the provision that possession by the grandchildren is postponed until they reach the age of thirty years, and then only on condition that they qualify as distributees to a designated standard of character and habits of life. The interest of grandchildren, then in being and who might be thereafter born, vested at the death of the testator, subject to divestment in the case of any who might fail to qualify as distributees: Sager v. Byrer, 24 NP(NS) 129.

23. The requirement that a future interest must vest within the period of the rule against perpetuities does not mean that the interest must certainly vest; the requirement is that it must vest, if at all, within lives in being and twenty-one years: Green v. Green, 9 OMisc 15, 37 OO(2d) 394, 221 NE(2d) 388.

24. A future interest must vest, if at all, within the period of the rule against perpetuities; where the testamentary trust shall terminate the day the youngest living child of the son of the testator, in being on the date of the testator's death, attains twenty-five years of age, the rule is not violated: Green v. Green, 9 OMisc 15, 37 OO(2d) 394, 221 NE(2d) 388.

25. There is no constitutional prohibition against applying the 1967 statute against perpetuities, RC § 2131.08, to a power of appointment granted before that date. This statute is not regarded as operating retroactively merely because it relates to antecedent events, since it does not take away or impair vested rights: Dollar Sav. & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 61 OO(2d) 134, 32 OMisc 81, 285 NE(2d) 768 (CP 1972).

26. The last sentence of paragraph (D) of RC § 2131.08 applies only to the effective date of the 1967 amendment and its purpose was not to establish a general starting time for all powers of appointment; it does not change the Ohio common law rule that the perpetuities period of an interest derived from the exercise of a general testamentary power of appointment is measured from the time of the creation of the power and not from its exercise: Dollar Sav. & Trust Co. v. First Nat. Bank, 61 OO(2d) 134, 32 OMisc 81, 285 NE(2d) 768 (CP 1972).

27. Will providing for distribution after deaths of life tenants to their bodily heirs in fee simple held not to create an estate tail in that words in fee simple are inconsistent with usual form of limitation in estate tail to bodily heirs: Pollock v. Brayton, 28 App 172, 6 OLA 616, 162 NE 463.

30. A will provided that after all debts, funeral and administration expenses, and the year's allowance for the support of the widow were paid, the executor should select one-half of the inventory value of the property without deducting any taxes, and that only such assets should be selected as qualified to marital deduction under the federal estate tax law, and on making such selection the assets so selected should be delivered to a named trustee in trust for the testator's widow for life, with power in the trustee to pay to her the income and such of the principal as his widow might deem necessary for her comfortable support and welfare, and upon her death to dispose of the remaining assets as she might direct by will, and in the absence of such direction to the testator's daughters. The residue of the estate was placed in trust to pay the income to the widow and upon her death the principal and any accumulated income was payable to the daughters. Held: The estate vested within the period required by the rule against perpetuities: Braun v. Central Trust Co., 92 App 110, 49 OO 249, 109 NE(2d) 476.

31. The rule against perpetuities as set forth in this section, is not a rule of construction, but of law, and it is to be applied even if the accomplishment of the expressed intention of the testator is made impossible: Rudolph v. Schmalstig, 9 OO 452 (CP).

32. A bequest in the nature of a public charitable trust does not violate this section, the statute against perpetuities: Emrick v. Trustees, 9 OO 468 (CP).

33. The operation of former GC § 8622 (repealed

114 v 320) (see now RC § 2131.08), is effective only upon the death of the first donee in tail, at which time it prohibits the future entailment of the lands by statute and places the absolute fee simple in the issue of the first donee in tail: Mays v. Mays, 24 OO 201, 8 OSupp 115 (CP).

34. The common law rule against perpetuities applies only to indestructible contingent interests, which the rule renders invalid at the time of their creation if at that time it is possible that they may remain contingent longer than lives then in being and twenty-one years thereafter: Braun v. Central Trust Co., 46 OO 198, 104 NE(2d) 480 (CP).

35. Where a testator in his will gives, devises and bequeaths to a trustee property to be selected by the executor in order to qualify for the marital deduction of the federal estate tax, the title of the trustee to the property vests immediately upon the death of the testator and the rule against perpetuities does not apply: Braun v. Central Trust Co., 46 OO 198, 104 NE(2d) 480 (CP).

36. A provision in a trust instrument which gives a corporation an option to purchase shares of stock and specifically requires each beneficiary to sign an agreement to give the corporation such option before delivery of the stock certificates by the trustee to the beneficiary, does not violate the rule against perpetuities: Warner & Co. v. Rusterholz, 41 FSupp 498, 22 OO 114.

37. The purpose of the rule against perpetuities is to prevent the tying up of land and its removal from commerce for long periods of time by the creation of future estates which would prevent the alienation of lands; the application of the rule has been extended by the common law and statute to personal property: Warner & Co. v. Rusterholz, 41 FSupp 498, 22 OO 114.

38. The period provided for by the rule against perpetuities begins to run from the time of the exercise of a general testamentary power of appointment and not from the time of its creation: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 72 OLA 120, 133 NE(2d) 664 (PC).

39. One of the objects of the rule against perpetuities is to preclude the suspension of the marketability or transferability of property or interest: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 72 OLA 120, 133 NE(2d) 664 (PC).

40. Under a provision in a trust instrument providing that after the death of the donee his share of the estate should "vest in and be distributed to his nominees and appointees by his last will and testament" the donee had power to appoint a trust company to hold such property in trust for certain designated beneficiaries, where such trust terminated within lives in being at the effective date of the appointment: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 72 OLA 120, 133 NE(2d) 664 (PC).

41. From the standpoint of the rule against perpetuities there is no difference between a general power to appoint by deed or will and a general power to appoint by will only and in the latter case, as in the former, the period of the rule is to be computed from the date the power is exercised: Cleveland Trust Co. v. McQuade, 72 OLA 120, 133 NE(2d) 664 (PC).

42. The provisions of a will in which the testator directs his testamentary trustee to pay the net income derived from the trust estate to each of his four children if alive and so long as each shall live, and to the issue of a deceased child so long as alive, such payment to such issue to be made as a class, and to terminate the trust upon the death of all of testator's children and all of the issue of his children, fail because of the application of the statute against perpetuities: Large v. National City Bank, 14 OO (2d) 100, 170 NE(2d) 309 (PC).

43. The question of remoteness is to be determined from the time of testator's death, and not of his will: Large v. National City Bank, 14 OO(2d) 100, 170 NE(2d) 309 (PC).

44. The remoteness of interests appointed under a special power of appointment is measured from the time of the creation of the power, not from the time of its exercise: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

45. If a power of appointment can be exercised at a time beyond the limits of the rule against perpetuities, the estate or interest to be appointed is too remote: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

46. If there is any possibility that the interests will not vest within lives in being plus twenty-one years, then the interests are void ab initio: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

47. Under this section, the twenty-one year period must follow, not precede, the lives in being by which the period of the rule is measured, and the measuring lives must be lives in being at the creation of the interest, i. e. in the case of a testamentary trust, at the death of the testator: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

48. An interest is not vested if, in order for it to come into possession, the fulfillment of some condition precedent other than the determination of the preceding estate is necessary: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

49. The rule against perpetuities applies only to the vesting of interests, and it applies to equitable as well as legal interests: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

50. The immediate purpose of the rule against perpetuities is to prevent the creation of interests which may vest too remotely: Thomas v. Harrison, 24 OO(2d) 148, 191 NE(2d) 862 (PC).

51. If there is any possibility that the gift to a class will not vest in every possible member of the class within the rule, the gift must fail: Abram v. Wilson, 37 OO(2d) 288, 8 OMisc 420, 220 NE(2d) 739 (PC).

52. A provision in a will that the testamentary trust should terminate on the day the youngest living child of testator's son, in being on the date of the testator's death, attains the age of twenty-five, does not violate the rule against perpetuities: Green v. Green, 37 OO(2d) 394, 9 OMisc 15, 221 NE(2d) 389 (PC).

53. The rule against perpetuities applies to property interests, not to contractual obligations: Doyle v. Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co., 41 OO(2d) 348, 377 F(2d) 19.

Perpetuities—scope and purpose

1. This section forbids gifts to any persons except those who are in being or the immediate issue or descendants thereof at the time of testator's death: Phillips v. Herron, 55 OS 478, 45 NE 720.

2. This section is said to be a notable limitation on the power of devising property by will: German Mutual Ins. Co. v. Lushey, 66 OS 233, 64 NE 120.

2.1 The rule against perpetuities applies to trust estates as well as to legal estates: Hoopert v. Gugel, 25 NP(NS) 516.

3. The provisions of former GC § 8622 (see now RC § 2131.08) do not apply to a bequest of the income from lands and tenements devised in trust, nor the payment of such income to the child of a grandson born after testator's death: Dahlgren v. Pierce, 270 Fed 507.

4. Within the meaning of this section, the expression "time of making will" means the time at which the will took effect by reason of the death of the testator: Phillips v. Herron, 55 OS 478, 45 NE 720; McArthur v. Scott, 113 US 340, 28 LEd 1015, 5 SCt 652, 5 OFD 357.

—Immediate issue or descendants

5. The term "immediate issue" refers to the children, that is to the first generation, of persons in being: Turley v. Turley, 11 OS 173.

6. The term "immediate descendants" includes issue or lineal descendants no matter how remote, if in being at the death of the designated person who was in being when the deed was delivered or the will took effect: Turley v. Turley, 11 OS 173.

7. The word "immediate" in former GC § 8622 (see now RC § 2131.08), relating to perpetuities, designates the nearest living lineals, no matter how many generations removed; and time for determining immediacy of issue is at the date of vesting: Von Overbeck v. Dahlgren, 28 F(2d) 936.

8. Under devise to issue of daughter (a life tenant) and their heirs, grandchildren and two children jointly of deceased grandchild of daughter take per capita as daughter's immediate descendants, within former GC § 8622 (see now RC § 2131.08): Von Overbeck v. Dahlgren, 28 F(2d) 936.

—Construction of words creating perpetuity

9. The presumption is against the creation of an unlawful perpetuity: King v. Beck, 15 O 559.

10. Where a testator gives property to two daughters and two grandsons for life, and then provides that the portion in which each of them enjoyed a life estate shall "descend and pass absolutely, unconditionally, and in fee simple, respectively, to the children of each, lawfully begotten of the body of each, or to the children or child lawfully begotten of the body of such child or children"; it was held, first, that the words "or to the children or child lawfully begotten of the body of such child or children" were intended to designate persons who might be living at the death of the tenants for life, and not as words of limitation, requiring a succession first to children, and then to children of the children. Second, that the words did not render the devise over, after the determination of the life estate, void for uncertainty, or repugnancy, but that the meaning of the testator was, that upon the death of the tenant for life the children then living were to take, and if any child of the tenant for life had predeceased, leaving a child or children, such child or children should be substituted to the place of the deceased parent: Stevenson v. Evans, 10 OS 307; see also McArthur v. Scott, 113 US 340, 28 LEd 1015, 5 SCt 652, 5 OFD 357.

—Effect of perpetuity

11. The invalidity of a gift in a will under this section is not a ground for contesting the will; but the effect of such gift, if invalid, upon the remaining provisions of the will, is a matter for subsequent determination after the validity of the will as a whole is established by proceedings in contest: Mears v. Mears, 15 OS 90.

12. The invalidity of a part of a will by reason of this section does not necessarily make other gifts invalid, if the will does not show the intention of testator that the gifts must stand or fall as a whole: Hatch v. Hatch, 1 OD(NP) 270, 31 Bul 57.

Entailments—constitutional

13. This section was enacted December 17, 1811 (2 Curwen, 2293). It was held that this statute applied to estates in fee tail, which were created before that time as well as to those which might be created thereafter; and that such change of estate in fee tail into estates in fee simple in the issue of the first donee in tail was not an unauthorized exercise of legislative power; and was not unconstitutional as interfering with the vested rights: Pollock v. Speidel, 27 OS 86.

14. If an estate in fee tail was created in 1807 and the statute changing a fee tail to a fee simple in the first donee in tail was enacted in 1811, the immediate issue of the first donee in tail acquired a fee simple; and if he conveyed such premises in 1836 by a deed containing covenants of general warranty, the title to such realty passed in fee simple, and neither such grantor nor his heirs could thereafter claim title thereto as against such grantee, his heirs or assigns: Pollock v. Speidel, 27 OS 86.

15. General Code § 11925 (RC § 5303.21) et seq, which provides for the sale of entailed estates, cannot apply to estates tail which were created before the enactment of such statute: Gilpin v. Williams, 25 OS 283; Ream v. Wolls, 61 OS 131, 55 NE 176.

16. Such statute is valid and constitutional as applying to estates tail created after the enactment of such statute: Oyler v. Scanlan, 33 OS 308.

—Interest of first donee

For the effect and application of the rule in Shelley's case, see case notes under RC § 2107.49.

17. If A devises an estate tail to B, and B dies without issue surviving, such realty reverts to the heirs of A: Evangelical Lutheran Confession v. Sheffield, 90 OS 467, 108 NE 1119.

18. The first donee takes merely fee tail; and he cannot convey a fee simple so as to defeat the right of his issue: Pollock v. Speidel, 17 OS 439.

19. This section does not reduce the interest of the first donee from an estate tail to a life estate; and accordingly the surviving spouse of the first donee in tail is entitled to dower or curtesy in accordance with the statutes then in force: Harkness v. Corning, 24 OS 416.

20. The rule in Shelley's case did not convert the fee tail into a fee simple: Pollock v. Speidel, 27 OS 86.

21. The first donee in tail cannot by conveying such realty to his issue and the heirs of their bodies restrict their interest to a fee tail: Pollock v. Speidel, 27 OS 86.

—Interest of issue during life of first donee

22. During the life of the first donee in tail, the issue of such donee has no estate or interest in the lands entailed which he can alienate; and a deed given by such issue during the life of the first donee in tail passes no interest where such issue die before the death of the first donee in tail, themselves leaving issue surviving: Dungan v. Kline, 81 OS 371, 90 NE 938; In re Youtsey, 260 Fed 423.

23. The recital of the consideration of one dollar is sufficient to support a deed, but it is insufficient to make such deed enforceable in equity as a contract if it is inoperative at law, because given by the child of a donee in tail during the lifetime of such donee; when the grantor had no interest in such realty, but had merely the hope of inheriting it: Carter v. Grossnickle, 11 NP(NS) 465, 22 OD 680 [affirmed without opinion, Grossnickle v. Carter, 88 OS 577].

24. Where by the terms of a will, lands are entailed to a son and the heirs of his body, and the son brings suit to contest such will, his children then in being are "interested persons" within the meaning of GC § 12080 (RC § 2741.02), and such children as survive their father will not be bound by a judgment setting such will aside in a proceeding to which they were not parties: Harris v. Maholm, 20 NP(NS) 439, 28 OD 228.

—Interest of issue on death of first donee

25. The effect of this provision is to pass to the issue of the first donee in tail an estate in fee simple upon his death: Pollock v. Speidel, 17 OS 439; Harkness v. Corning, 24 OS 416; Broadstone v. Brown, 24 OS 430; Richardson v. Cincinnati Union Stockyard Co., 8 NP 213, 11 OD 367; In re Youtsey, 260 Fed. 423.

26. A devise of realty by a testator to his granddaughter A and her issue, with an habendum "to A and her issue and their heirs" gives to A an estate in fee tail, the word "heirs" being used as a word of limitation and not of purchase: Harkness v. Corning, 24 OS 416.

27. The fact that the first donee in tail has himself conveyed the entailed realty to his issue and to the heirs of their bodies forever, does not reduce their interest on his death from a fee simple to a fee tail: Pollock v. Speidel, 27 OS 86.

28. § 2131.09 Exemption of certain trusts. (GC § 10512-8a)

A trust of real or personal property created by an employer as part of a stock bonus plan, pension plan, disability or death benefit plan, or profit-sharing plan, for the benefit of some or all of the employees, to which contributions are made by such employer or employees, or both, for the purpose of distributing to such employees or their beneficiaries the earnings or the principal, or both earnings and principal, of the fund so held in trust, is not invalid as violating the rule against perpetuities, any other existing law against perpetuities, or any law restricting or limiting the duration of trusts; but such trust may continue for such time as is necessary to accomplish the purposes for which it was created.

The income arising from any trust within the classifications mentioned in this section may be accumulated in accordance with the terms of such trust for as long a time as is necessary to accomplish the purposes for which the same was created, notwithstanding any law limiting the period during which trust income may be accumulated.

No rule of law against perpetuities or the suspension of the power of alienation of the title to property invalidates any such trust unless such trust is terminated by decree of a court in a suit instituted within two years after June 25, 1951.

§ 2131.10 Deposit payable on death.

A natural person, adult or minor, referred to in sections 2131.10 and 2131.11 of the Revised Code as the owner, may enter into a written contract with any bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings, authorized to receive money on an investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit, and transacting business in this state, whereby the proceeds of the owner's investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit may be made payable on the death of the owner to another person, referred to in such sections as the beneficiary, notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary in Chapter 2107. of the Revised Code. In creating such accounts, "payable on death" or "payable on the death of" may be abbreviated to "P.O.D."

Every contract of an investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit authorized by this section shall be deemed to contain a right on the part of the owner during his lifetime both to withdraw the proceeds of such investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit, in whole or in part, as though no beneficiary has been named, and to designate a change in beneficiary. The interest of the beneficiary shall be deemed not to vest until the death of the owner.

No change in the designation of the beneficiary shall be valid unless executed in the form and manner prescribed by the bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. A lease agreement executed by two parties as co-lessees for a safe deposit box, which agreement provides that such co-lessees are joint tenants with right of survivorship, is a contract vesting inter vivos a present and equal joint interest in such co-lessees, and where the evidence of decedent's intention confirms the written provisions of the contract, then upon the death of one of the co-lessees the survivor becomes the absolute owner of the entire contents of the box by operative provisions of that contract: Steinhauser v. Repko, 30 OS(2d) 262, 59 OO(2d) 334, 285 NE(2d) 55 (1972).

2. A lease agreement executed by two parties as co-lessees for a safe deposit box, which agreement provides that such co-lessees are joint tenants with right of survivorship, raises a rebuttable presumption that the parties to the agreement have a present, equal joint interest in the res, and, in the absence of any evidence, that presumption is sufficient, as a matter of law, to sustain a judgment declaring the survivor the absolute owner of the entire contents of the box: Steinhauser v. Repko, 30 OS(2d) 262, 59 OO(2d) 334, 285 NE(2d) 55 (1972).

3. Where a natural adult person enters into a contract with his bank, as provided for by this section, depositing therein various sums of money in savings accounts, payable on death to certain named individuals, such savings accounts, upon the death of the depositor, are, by such statute, expressly exempt from the statute of wills: Tonsic v. Holub, 13 OApp(2d) 195, 42 OO(2d) 341, 235 NE(2d) 239.

4. A payable on death (P. O. D.) account created under RC § 2131.10 is one where funds are made payable upon the death of the owner to another without the documents having complied with the formalities of the statute of wills. The funds involved do not become part of the decedent's estate. In a P. O. D. account the owner retains sole ownership of the account and only he may withdraw the proceeds or change the beneficiary during his lifetime. The beneficiary's interest does not vest until the death of the owner: Eger v. Eger, 39 OApp(2d) 14, 68 OO(2d) 150, 314 NE(2d) 394 (1974).

5. Where the decedent merely signed blank signature cards which were returned to several banks for the purpose of establishing joint and survivorship accounts, such act does not sufficiently show an intention to create a present existing interest in the survivors: In re Kapatch, 73 OO(2d) 422 (CP 1975).

§ 2131.11 Release and discharge upon payment.

When an investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit is made, in any bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings, payable to the owner during his lifetime, and to another on his death, such investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit or any part thereof or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid to the owner during his lifetime, and on his death such investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit or any part thereof or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid to the designated beneficiary, and the receipt of acquittance of the person paid is a sufficient release and discharge of the bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings for any payment so made.

[SECURITIES HELD BY FIDUCIARY]

§ 2131.21 [Deposit of securities held in fiduciary capacity.]

Any person holding securities in a fiduciary capacity, or any state bank, trust company, or national bank, any of which is holding securities as a custodian, managing agent, or custodian for a fiduciary, is authorized to deposit or arrange for the deposit of the securities in a federal reserve bank, a clearing corporation, or a securities depository. When the securities are so deposited, certificates representing securities of the same class of the same issuer may be merged and held in bulk in the name of the nominee of the federal reserve bank, clearing corporation, or securities depository with any other such securities deposited in the federal reserve bank, clearing corporation, or securities depository by any person, regardless of the ownership of the securities, and certificates of small denomination may be merged into one or more certificates of larger denomination. The records of the fiduciary and the records of a state bank, trust company, or national bank acting as custodian, managing agent, or custodian for a fiduciary shall at all times show the name of the party for whose account the securities are so deposited. Title to the securities may be transferred by bookkeeping entry on the books of the federal reserve bank, clearing corporation, or securities depository without physical delivery of certificates representing the securities. A state bank, trust company, or national bank depositing securities pursuant to this section shall be subject to the rules as, in the case of state chartered institutions, the superintendent of banks or state bank commissioner of another state, and in the case of national banking associations, the comptroller of the currency, may issue. A state bank, trust company, or national bank, acting as custodian for a fiduciary, shall, on demand by the fiduciary, certify in writing to the fiduciary the securities so deposited by the state bank, trust company, or national bank in the federal reserve bank, clearing corporation, or securities depository for the account of the fiduciary. A fiduciary shall, on demand by any party to a judicial proceeding for the settlement of the fiduciary's account, or on demand by the attorney for such a party, certify in writing to the party the securities deposited by the fiduciary in the federal reserve bank, clearing corporation, or securities depository.

This section shall apply to any fiduciary holding securities in its fiduciary capacity, and to any state bank, trust company, or national bank holding securities as a custodian, managing agent, or custodian for a fiduciary, or who thereafter may act, regardless of the date of the agreement, instrument, or court order by which it is appointed, and regardless of whether or not the fiduciary, custodian, managing agent, or custodian for a fiduciary owns capital stock of the clearing corporation or securities depository.

The sections in Chapter 2151. of the Revised Code, with the exception of those sections providing for the criminal prosecution of adults, shall be liberally interpreted and construed so as to effectuate the following purposes:

(B) To protect the public interest in removing the consequences of criminal behavior and the taint of criminality from children committing delinquent acts and to substitute therefor a program of supervision, care, and rehabilitation;

(C) To achieve the foregoing purposes, whenever possible, in a family environment, separating the child from its parents only when necessary for his welfare or in the interests of public safety;

(D) To provide judicial procedures through which Chapter 2151. of the Revised Code is executed and enforced, and in which the parties are assured of a fair hearing, and their constitutional and other legal rights are recognized and enforced.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Extracurricular activities are an integral part of the total school program and cannot be denied to a high school student because he is married: Davis v. Bd. of Education, 32 OMisc 43, 344 FSupp 298, 61 OO(2d) 65 (ND Ohio 1972).

2. A complaint alleging a child to be a juvenile traffic offender is neither a criminal nor a civil proceeding: In re C., 43 OMisc 98, 73 OO(2d) 77, 335 NE(2d) 758 (CP 1975).

3. When and how to act in determining the necessity of advancing the child's welfare, and at once protecting the public safety, falls within the discretion of the Ohio youth commission and its employees, so as not to subject the state to liability under the state's waiver of sovereign immunity as set out in RC § 2743.02, where the exercise of such discretion results in damage: Adamov v. State, 46 OMisc 1, 75 OO(2d) 41 (1975).

4. Delinquency has not been declared a crime in Ohio and the Ohio juvenile act is neither criminal nor penal in its nature, but is an administrative police regulation of a corrective character. Proceedings instituted in a juvenile court are not criminal in nature nor are they conducted with the objective of convicting a minor of a crime and punishing him, therefore; they are informal hearings through a medium of the juvenile court to determine whether the child needs intervention of the state as guardian and protector of his person: In re L., Jr., 92 OLA 475.

5. Under the juvenile court act of Ohio, the juvenile offender is surrounded with every protection to avoid publicity in newspapers, to avoid public hearings and to prevent him from being charged with a criminal record: Allstate Ins. Co. v. Cook, 26 OO(2d) 192, 324 F(2d) 752.

Violation of law, jurisdiction of juvenile court, 1

1. [I]n the sense that violation of law by a minor constitutes delinquency, as defined in GC § 1644, the juvenile court has jurisdiction of any crime committed by an infant: State v. Klingenberg, 113 OS 425, 149 NE 395.

2. Ordinarily, a minor child does not commit any act of delinquency so long as he or she acts under and in accordance with instructions of duly constituted law enforcement officers who are acting within the course of their duties as such: State v. Miclau, 167 OS 38, 4 OO(2d) 6, 146 NE(2d) 293.

3. Where the parents of a female person under 16 years of age actively participate in enabling such person to enter into a marriage relationship, such participation constitutes acts tending to cause the child to become a "delinquent child" as defined by RC § 2151.02, and the parents "act in a way tending to cause delinquency in such child," in violation of RC § 2151.41: State v. Gans, 168 OS 174, 5 OO(2d) 472, 151 NE(2d) 709.

4. Marriage of girl of nearly 15 to man of 41 years of age without parent's consent did not constitute her a "delinquent," nor render man guilty of contribution to her delinquency: Peefer v. State, 42 App 276, 182 NE 117.

5. No violation of law is involved in the purchase of beer, and a minor by making such a purchase, does not by reason of such purchase become a delinquent child within the meaning of the provisions of subdivision 1 of Section 1639-2, General Code: State v. Zaras, 81 App 152, 36 OO 460, 78 NE(2d) 74.

6. [A] mere preponderance of the evidence is sufficient to warrant a determination that a minor is a delinquent, even though such determination involves a finding that a criminal statute has been violated by such minor: State v. Shardell, 107 App 338, 8 OO(2d) 262, 153 NE(2d) 510.

7. Under existing Ohio law, proceedings in juvenile court are civil in nature and not criminal. A juvenile court judge acts within his authority when, in a hearing to determine the delinquency status of a child under RC § 2151.02, he denies a request for a jury trial and decides the case on the preponderance of the evidence: In re Benn, 18 OApp(2d) 97, 47 OO(2d) 170, 247 NE(2d) 335.

8. Proof of possession, use, or control by a juvenile of an hallucinogen is sufficient evidence upon which a Juvenile Court can find such juvenile a delinquent under Chapter 2151 of the Revised Code: In re Baker, 18 OApp(2d) 276, 47 OO(2d) 411, 248 NE(2d) 620 (1969).

9. A sixteen year old boy having carnal knowledge of a female under sixteen years of age cannot be held delinquent for violating RC § 2905.03, since the statute specifically identifies the class of persons who are criminally liable for statutory rape as being eighteen years of age or over: In re J. P., 61 OO(2d) 24, 32 OMisc 5, 287 NE(2d) 926 (CP 1972).

10. Causing minor to be in possession of intoxicating liquor constitutes contributing to delinquency under GC §§ 1644 and 1654 (see now RC §§ 2151.02 and 2151.41): Summers v. State, 6 OLA 475.

11. A child who is guilty of immoral conduct is delinquent under former GC § 1644 (see now RC § 2151.02): State v. Hannawalt, 26 OLA 641.

12. The gravamen of the offense of contributing to the delinquency of a child is that the child so deported itself as to injure or endanger the morals or health of itself or others and that the accused contributed to such deportment on the part of the child: State ex rel Farrell v. Hornavius, 31 OLA 460.

13. A charge that the defendant "did have indecent and immoral relations with the" child is sufficiently specific because so characterized by this section, defining the acts which constitute a delinquent child, to constitute acting in a manner tending to cause the delinquency of such child: State v. Van Horn, 32 OLA 406.

14. A minor, by "improperly" associating with defendant, a married man, "until late hours at night", so deported herself "as to injure or endanger" her "morals or health" and by such acts she became a delinquent child as defined in subdivision 4 of Section 1639-2, General Code: State v. Mahoney, 54 OLA 218, 87 NE(2d) 496 (App).

15. The selling or handling of intoxicating liquors by a minor under eighteen years of age constitutes an act of delinquency under this section: State v. Butler, 25 OO 567, 11 OSupp 18 (JC).

16. "Delinquent child" was defined with sufficient accuracy under a former statute (98 v 314): Travis v. State, 12 CC(NS) 374, 21 CD 492.

17. In prosecution of a minor under seventeen, as prescribed by this section, evidence of complainant's bad reputation or immoral conduct is not admissible: State v. Hawkins, 56 Bull 166.

18. Delinquency has not been declared a crime in Ohio, and the Ohio juvenile act is neither criminal or penal in its nature, but is an administrative police regulation of a corrective character; and while the commission of a crime may set the machinery of the juvenile court in motion, the accused was not tried in that court for his crime, but for incorrigibility: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

19. While GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28 et seq) provides for an affidavit, and not for an indictment, it is not invalid under Art. I, § 10 of the constitution of Ohio, which provides that the accused can be held to answer for an infamous crime only upon presentation by the grand jury; since delinquency is not made a crime by this section: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

[§ 2151.02.1] § 2151.021 "Juvenile traffic offender" defined.

A child who violates any traffic law, traffic ordinance, or traffic regulation of this state, the United States, or of any political subdivision of this state, shall be designated as a "juvenile traffic offender."

§ 2151.03 "Neglected child" defined.

As used in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code, "neglected child" includes any child:

(A) Who is abandoned by his parents, guardian, or custodian;

(B) Who lacks proper parental care because of the faults or habits of his parents, guardian, or custodian;

(C) Whose parents, guardian, or custodian neglects or refuses to provide him with proper or necessary subsistence, education, medical or surgical care, or other care necessary for his health, morals, or well being;

(D) Whose parents, guardian, or custodian neglects or refuses to provide the special care made necessary by his mental condition;

(E) Whose parents, legal guardian, or custodian have placed or attempted to place such child in violation of sections 5103.16 and 5103.17 of the Revised Code.

A child who, in lieu of medical or surgical care or treatment for a wound, injury, disability, or physical or mental condition, is under spiritual treatment through prayer in accordance with the tenets and practices of a well-recognized religion, is not a neglected child for this reason alone.

HISTORY: GC § 1639-3; 117 v 520; 133 v H 320. Eff 11-19-69.

Comment

The definition is taken almost entirely from the standard juvenile court law. These subdivisions are clear and unambiguous. In determining whether a child is neglected or dependent, the following distinction may be kept in mind:

The word "neglect" indicates a wilful disregard of a duty on the part of a parent, guardian or custodian, toward a child;

"Dependency" indicates the inability of a parent, guardian, or custodian to discharge his legal responsibility, or the nonexistence of such persons.

1. Where the father of a minor child endeavors to send such child to a proper public school but, pursuant to a valid regulation of the board of education, such child is excluded from the public school because he has not been vaccinated, and where there is no showing that the father had done anything to prevent the vaccination of such child, such child is not a neglected child within the meaning of this section: State v. Dunham, 154 OS 63, 42 OO 133, 93 NE(2d) 286.

1.1 An order of the juvenile court made pursuant to a finding that children are "neglected" children within the meaning of this section, and committing said children to the permanent custody of a child welfare board for the purpose of placing them for adoption is a final appealable order under Const., art. IV, § 6: In re Masters, 165 OS 503, 60 OO 474, 137 NE(2d) 752.

1.2 Evidence of the confinement of a mother of minor children in a state hospital by reason of mental illness, during which confinement she had no funds with which to support the children and during which she was unaware of their whereabouts, is not sufficient evidence to support a finding by the juvenile court that such children are "neglected" within the meaning of this section: In re Masters, 165 OS 503, 60 OO 474, 137 NE(2d) 752.

1.3 To constitute "abandonment" of a child, under subdivision (A) of this section, there must be a willful leaving of a child by his parent, with an intention of causing perpetual separation; and to constitute "neglect," under subdivision (C) of said section, there must be a willful or indifferent disregard of the duty owed by a parent to his child: In re Kronjaeger, 166 OS 172, 1 OO(2d) 459, 140 NE(2d) 773.

1.4 The determination of the lack of proper parental care because of the faults or habits of a parent as a basis for a finding that a child is neglected under subdivision (B) of this section, must be made as of the time of the hearing on the charge of neglect: In re Kronjaeger, 166 OS 172, 1 OO(2d) 459, 140 NE(2d) 773.

2. In a proceeding under GC § 1639-1 (RC § 2151-01), on a complaint charging that a child is neglected, evidence of immoral conduct of the father may be introduced in order to show that the child lacked proper parental care "by reason of the faults or habits of its parents" as defined by this section, although such acts occurred prior to the effective date of such sections: In re Hayes, 62 App 289, 16 OO 10, 23 NE(2d) 956.

3. Under the provisions of GC § 1639-3 (RC § 2151.03), a "neglected child" is a child "who lacks proper parental care by reason of the faults or habits of its parents," and, under the provisions of GC § 1639-4 (RC § 2151.04), a "dependent child" is a child "whose condition or environment is such as to warrant the state, in the interests of the child, in assuming its guardianship: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

4. The court of appeals has jurisdiction to review upon appeal on questions of law a final judgment of the division of domestic relations of the court of common pleas, entered in a proceeding brought to determine the status of a minor alleged to be a "neglected child" as defined in this section: In re Hock, 55 OLA 73 (App).

5. In order to sustain a judgment of the division of domestic relations of the court of common pleas finding the natural child of legally married parents, living together in an established home, in a respectable community, to be a neglected child as defined by this section [par. (B)], upon a charge in the petition that it lacks proper parental care by reason of the faults or habits of such parents, it is necessary that the evidence produced shows that any fault of the parents occurring in the past is at the time of the hearing of such charge effective to render such parents unfit and unsuitable to have the custody and care of such child, and that they are then at such time, by reason of such fault, incapable of extending to such child proper parental care: In re Hock, 55 OLA 73 (App).

6. In a prosecution for contributing to the neglect or dependency of a minor child, the record of a separate proceeding adjudicating the child to be a neglected and dependent child, and the testimony of the child's mother that she and the defendant engaged in acts of illicit sexual relations in the presence of the child, is sufficient competent evidence to prove the child to be a neglected or dependent child within the meaning of GC § 1639-45 (now RC §§ 2951.03 and 2951.04): State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

7. In a proceeding in the juvenile court, instituted by the filing of a complaint under the provisions of RC § 2151.27, a finding by the court that a child is "neglected," in that it "lacked proper parental care because of the faults and habits of his parents" (RC § 2151.03[B]), and "dependent," in that its "condition and environment... is such as to warrant the court... in assuming his guardianship" (RC § 2151.04[C]), must be based on evidence with respect to whether the child was receiving proper parental care in a proper environment in its home at the time of the hearing: In re Minton, 112

App 361, 16 OO(2d) 283, 176 NE(2d) 252.

8. Where a neglected-child proceeding is instituted in the juvenile court, pursuant to this section by a parent of such child, and a divorce action is later instituted by such parent, the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine whether the child is neglected, the power to determine his custody and the authority to place the child with a relative: In re Small, 114 App 248, 19 OO(2d) 128, 181 NE(2d) 503.

9. The mere placing of minor children in a children's home by a parent does not, of itself, constitute evidence of relinquishment of the right to custody or abandonment of such minor children: Gallagher v. Gallagher, 115 App 453, 21 OO(2d) 74, 185 NE(2d) 571.

10. An allegation in a motion filed in juvenile court seeking to have that court "determine and award the future care and custody" of a child, that "neither parent is a suitable person to have the care and custody of said child," does not constitute a charge that such child is "neglected" (RC § 2151.03) or "dependent" (RC § 2151.04) and is not sufficiently definite to constitute the "complaint" necessitated by RC § 2151.27: Welfare Board v. Parker, 7 OApp(2d) 79, 36 OO(2d) 162, 218 NE(2d) 757.

11. A juvenile court cannot deprive the mother of an adulterine bastard of the custody of such child, in the absence of evidence to warrant a finding that such mother is unfit or that such child is dependent or neglected within the purview of law or that the best interests of the child require such action: In re Gutman, 22 OApp(2d) 125, 51 OO(2d) 252, 259 NE(2d) 128 (1969).

12. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court over a neglected child is sole and exclusive: In re Gail L., 12 OMisc 251, 41 OO(2d) 341, 231 NE(2d) 253.

13. Before the court may consider what disposition should be made of children for their best interest and welfare, there must first be an adjudication that said children are neglected or dependent: In re Burkhardt, 15 OMisc 170, 44 OO(2d) 329, 239 NE(2d) 772.

14. Where neglect and dependency existed at the time of the filing of the complaint, but said cause was not prosecuted further until more than four years afterwards and the conditions of the parents had changed sufficiently that evidence was lacking to establish neglect or dependency at the time of the hearing, said complaint must be dismissed: In re Burkhardt, 15 OMisc 170, 44 OO(2d) 329, 239 NE(2d) 772.

15. The crux of a neglect action is the commission of culpable acts by the parents of the child: In re Infanz East, 61 OO(2d) 38, 32 OMisc 65, 288 NE(2d) 343 (CP 1972).

16. The interracial marriage of the mother of an illegitimate child to a black man in no way affects her right to custody of the child and does not support the putative father's neglect complaint brought under RC § 2151.03: In re Brenda H., 37 OMisc 123, 66 OO(2d) 178, 305 NE(2d) 815 (1973).

17. Every child is entitled, as a minimum, to have two parents living together in reasonable harmony with the child and with each other, and parents who are selfish and childish far beyond any reasonable limits, and whose ideas of proper upbringing are to tell their children how vile the other parent has been, are "neglecting" or refusing to provide the children with the care necessary for their morals or well-being: In re Douglas, 11 OO(2d) 340, 164 NE(2d) 475 (JC).

18. In determining whether the condition or environment of a child is such as to warrant the state, in the interests of the child, in assuming his guardianship, the primary consideration should be the welfare of the child: In re Douglas, 11 OO(2d) 340, 164 NE(2d) 475 (JC).

18.1 The children mentioned in GC § 3089 (see now RC § 335.16) fall within the classifications of dependent, neglected or crippled children as defined by the juvenile court act (now RC §§ 2151.01 to 2151.54): In re Howell, 21 OO 379 (JC).

19. The fact that the mother initially gave up her child for the purpose of adoption does not constitute such rejection of the child as to warrant a finding that the child is a neglected child: In re Robert O——, 28 OO(2d) 165, 199 NE(2d) 765 (JC).

20. Where the evidence shows that the mother gave her illegitimate child good care while he was with her prior to his placement in the prospective adoptive home, and that the placement was prompted by considerations other than the mother's desire to be relieved of the child's care, the child is not a neglected child: In re Robert O——, 28 OO(2d) 165, 199 NE(2d) 765 (JC).

As used in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code, an "abused child" includes any child who:

(A) Is the victim of "sexual activity" as defined under Chapter 2907. of the Revised Code, where such activity would constitute an offense under that chapter, except that the court need not find that any person has been convicted of the offense in order to find that the child is an abused child;

(B) Is endangered as defined in section 2919.22 of the Revised Code, except that the court need not find that any person has been convicted under that section in order to find that the child is an abused child;

(C) Exhibits evidence of any injury or death, inflicted other than by accidental means, or an injury or death which is at variance with the history given of it, except that a child exhibiting evidence of corporal punishment or other physical disciplinary measure by a parent, guardian, custodian, person having custody or control, or person in loco parentis of a child is not an abused child under this division if the measure is not prohibited under section 2919.22 of the Revised Code.

§ 2151.04 Dependent child defined.

As used in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code, "dependent child" includes any child:

(A) Who is homeless or destitute or without proper care or support, through no fault of his parents, guardian, or custodian;

(B) Who lacks proper care or support by reason of the mental or physical condition of his parents, guardian, or custodian;

(C) Whose condition or environment is such as to warrant the state, in the interests of the child, in assuming his guardianship.

HISTORY: GC § 1639-4; 117 v 520; 129 v 1778 (Ef 10-27-61); 133 v H 320. Ef 11-19-69.

Analogous to former GC § 1645.

Comment

The definition is brief but comprehensive. Subdivision (C) contains language similar to the last sentence of the former definition of dependency in former GC § 1645.

1. An affidavit charging that the accused contributed to the dependency of a minor child and acted in a way tending to cause such dependency, without charging that the minor was a dependent child as defined in this section, does not charge an offense under the laws of Ohio: State v. Krauss, 81 App 453, 37 OO 282, 80 NE(2d) 164.

2. Where an adopting parent demands the child and is able to provide a good home, such child is not destitute or homeless so as to constitute it a dependent child within the purview of GC § 1639-4 (RC § 2151.04): In re Duncan, 62 OLA 173, 107 NE(2d) 256 (App).

3. In an action in the juvenile court to determine that a child is a dependent child under GC § 1639-4 (RC § 2151.04), the complaint is sufficiently definite if there is an allegation of dependency (GC § 1639-23 [RC § 2151.27]): In re Duncan, 62 OLA 173, 107 NE(2d) 256 (App).

4. The state's interest under this section arises only if there is no one meeting the obligations of care, support and custody which are owed to a child by a parent. The fact that relatives other than a parent are providing such care and support is immaterial to the determination of whether a child is a "dependent child" within the purview of such section: In re Darst, 117 App 374, 24 OO(2d) 144, 192 NE(2d) 287.

5. A judicial determination that a child is "dependent" pursuant to this section, must be based on evidence as to conditions at the time of the hearing held therefor: In re Darst, 117 App 374, 24 OO(2d) 144, 192 NE(2d) 287.

6. The provisions of this section, which define the grounds upon which a child can be found to be "dependent," limit the extent of the juvenile court's authority to remove children from a parent, guardian or custodian, and place them under control of the state: In re Darst, 117 App 374, 24 OO(2d) 144, 192 NE(2d) 287.

7. Upon a showing that a fifteen-year-old mother has a substantial record of delinquency, that her family situation is financially and emotionally unstable, and that a report of a psychologist suggests a poor prognosis for her success in the role of a mother, the court may grant a permanent change of custody of the three day old infant under this section on the grounds of dependency, although the mother has not had physical custody of the child: In re Turner, 41 OO(2d) 264, 12 OMisc 171, 229 NE(2d) 764, 231 NE(2d) 502 (CP).

8. The crux of a dependency action is the condition or environment of the child, not the culpable acts of the parents: In re Infant East, 61 OO(2d) 38, 32 OMisc 65, 288 NE(2d) 343 (CP 1972).

8.1 In a dependency action, where the child's condition or environment warrant it, the child may be removed from the custody of the mother and it is not necessary that she first be given the opportunity to prove that she can properly care for said child: In re Infant East, 61 OO(2d) 38, 32 OMisc 65, 288 NE(2d) 343 (CP 1972).

8.2 Finding a mother unfit to have custody of her child is not a necessary condition precedent to an adjudication that the child is dependent: In re Infant East, 61 OO(2d) 38, 32 OMisc 65, 288 NE(2d) 343 (CP 1972).

8.3 The unfitness of the mother may be a factor in adjudging that the child's condition or environment is such as to warrant the state in the interests of the child in assuming his guardianship: In re Infant East, 61 OO(2d) 38, 32 OMisc 65, 288 NE(2d) 343 (CP 1972).

8.4 The issue of whether a child is dependent is to be determined as of about the date specified in the complaint and does not have to include the time of the hearing: In re Baby Girl S., 61 OO(2d) 439, 32 OMisc 217, 290 NE(2d) 925 (CP 1972).

8.5 As to the mother who was physically, emotionally and financially unable to care and provide for her infant child, the court held the child to be a dependent child, and the fact that the mother has not had the child in her physical custody and control does not preclude the court from a finding of dependency: In re Baby Girl S., 32 OMisc 217, 61 OO(2d) 439, 290 NE(2d) 925 (CP 1972).

9. Children whose parents are adulterous, childish, selfish, who speak vilely of each other to the children, and who allow a close association between the children and vicious, criminal and immoral persons, are dependent children: In re Douglas, 82 OLA 170, 164 NE(2d) 475 (JC).

10. A woman who is so devoid of morals and intelligence as to bring forth a series of illegitimate children who must be supported by public funds is a woman who is incapable of ordering her own life in accordance with the prevailing legal and moral codes and incapable of raising children without a father and she is therefore not entitled to retain the custody of such children, and such children may be declared dependent children under this section: In re Dake, 87 OLA 483, 180 NE(2d) 646 (JC).

11. Before a juvenile court can find that children are dependent in that they lack proper care because of the mental condition of their mother, it is necessary for the petitioner to produce not only evidence of the mother's mental incapacity, but also evidence showing that the children lacked proper care because of the mental incapacity: In re Larry and Scott H., 24 OO(2d) 334, 192 NE(2d) 683 (JC).

12. The mere fact that a mother desires to place her baby for adoption is not enough to constitute dependency: In re Hobson, 44 OLA 86, 62 NE(2d) 510.

13. No person or parent can give their consent to a finding of "dependency" for a child, but the requirements of GC § 1639-4, which defines a dependent child, must be found to exist: In re Hobson, 44 OLA 86, 62 NE(2d) 510.

14. Unless a dependent child is committed to an institution designated by GC § 1639-34 (RC § 2151-36), or a family home, and in conformity with the juvenile court code, no payment for the care and board of such child is authorized, as there is no commitment under the law: 1937 OAG No.983.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1645

15. A child of father who had served a term for felony, but not failing to support and not cruelly treating child, held not "dependent," so as to deprive father of custody: In re Konneker, 30 App 502, 165 NE 850.

15.1 The legislature having defined a dependent child and provided a special court proceeding for determining such dependency, the power thus conferred must be exercised by the court within the jurisdiction granted, and not otherwise: In re Konneker, 30 App 502, 165 NE 850.

16. Minor is not "dependent," within juvenile act, merely because she is daughter of divorced parents: Sonnenberg v. State, 40 App 475, 178 NE 855.

17. "Dependent child" defined with sufficient accuracy under the former statute: Travis v. State, 12 CC (NS) 374, 21 CD 492 [affirmed, without opinion, 82 OS 439].

17.1 Appeal does not lie from an order of commitment in a juvenile proceeding to have a child adjudged to be "dependent": State v. Hoffman, Judge, 32 OCA 193.

18. A parent must provide his child with a proper education, substantially equivalent to the education provided by the common schools: In re Hargy, 23 NP (NS) 129, 32 OD 8.

19. A child which is lawfully excluded from school because its parents refuse to comply with a valid rule with reference to vaccination, may be declared a "dependent child": In re Hargy, 23 NP(NS) 129, 32 OD 8.

19.1 Under GC § 1645, a child may be dependent in a number of ways but, . . . a child may be dependent in two particulars: 1. If its home, by the neglect of the parents, is an unfit place for it to be, 2. If its environment is such as to warrant the state, in the interest of the child, to assume its guardianship: In re William Decker, 28 NP(NS) 433 (JC).

19.2 The court has jurisdiction under the juvenile code to place a dependent child with either parent or, in the interests of the child, may commit its custody to strangers over the objection of the parents: In re William Decker, 28 NP(NS) 433 (JC).

20. The fact that a child is an illegitimate child does not constitute a dependent child under GC § 1645 (see now RC § 2151.04): Smith v. Privette, 13 OLA 291.

21. As to when an illegitimate child is a "dependent child," see: 1916 OAG vol.1, p.777.

22. Where a mother is a ward of one county, and gives birth to a child in another, the child becomes a ward of the latter county: 1919 OAG vol.1, p.271.

23. The board of education may make and enforce rules and regulations to secure the vaccination of, and prevent the spread of smallpox among pupils attending, or eligible to attend public schools. They may exclude children from the schools who have not been vaccinated, and such exclusion cannot be pleaded by the parents for not providing such children with the education provided by statute: 1925 OAG p.173.

24. Parents who deprive their children of education required by statute because they refuse to comply with the regulations regarding vaccination, may become liable to prosecution therefor as contributing to the dependency of such children: 1925 OAG p.173.

25. Where the mother of an infant child is placed in jail, and there are no relatives or friends to care for such infant, it should be placed in the custody of the juvenile court: 1931 OAG No.3759.

§ 2151.05 Child without proper parental care.

Under sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code, a child whose home is filthy and unsanitary; whose parents, stepparents, guardian, or custodian permit him to become dependent, neglected, abused, or delinquent; whose parents, stepparents, guardian, or custodian, when able, refuse or neglect to provide him with necessary care, support, medical attention, and educational facilities; or whose parents, stepparents, guardian, or custodian fail to subject such child to necessary discipline is without proper parental care or guardianship.

HISTORY: GC § 1639-5; 117 v 520; 136 v H 85. EF 11-28-75.

Analogous to former GC § 1646.

Comment

This definition is much broader than former GC § 1646. Any child permitted to become dependent, neglected or delinquent, whose parent, stepparent, guardian or custodian refuses or neglects to provide it with proper care, support, medical attention or education, or to properly discipline it, lacks proper parental care.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

See also case note 11 under 2151.03 and case note 11 under 2151.04.

1. Parents have a right to the custody of their children, the same as they have a right to the possession of property which they may acquire; and the fact that some one may think that the children can be reared better by some one else is no justification for judicial interference, because, if this were the rule, there are thousands of children in this community, and in every other, whose parents upon this pretense would be deprived of their custody: In re Konneker, 30 App 502, 165 NE 850.

2. A complaint filed in common pleas court by nonrelatives of a minor child of tender years, who never adopted said child, claiming the right of custody of said child as against the claim for right of custody of the father, where the evidence does not show unfitness and unsuitableness of said parent or his home to have its custody, does not under GC § 8005-4, analogous to the former section of GC § 8033, give the court the authority to grant the custody of said child to a third person or persons and to modify the divorce decree granted the father on December 12, 1950, against the mother, . . . wherein he was granted the exclusive custody of said child: Garabrandt v. Garabrandt, 51 OO 319, 114 NE(2d) 919 (CP).

3. The welfare of the child only becomes an issue to be considered to modify the divorce decree granting custody of the child to the father, when said parent is found to be unfit, and then under GC § 8005-4, the court can only commit the custody of the child to a relative of the child or certify its record and information of said parent's unfitness to the juvenile court. The lack of showing general unfitness of the parent and there then being no certification to the juvenile court of such record, [the court of common pleas] retains continuing jurisdiction [therein]: Garabrandt v. Garabrandt, 51 OO 319, 114 NE(2d) 919 (CP).

4. A stepparent is generally not liable for the support, care, maintenance and education of a minor stepchild as if it were his own. The provisions of the juvenile court chapter generally apply to a stepparent in the same manner as a real parent, where the application is consistent with the intent of the chapter: 1925 OAG p.281.

§ 2151.06 Residence or legal settlement. (GC § 1639-6)

§ 2151.07 Creation and powers of juvenile court.

The juvenile court is a court of record and within the division of domestic relations or probate of the court of common pleas, except that the juvenile courts of Cuyahoga county and Hamilton county shall be separate divisions of the court of common pleas. The juvenile court has and shall exercise the powers and jurisdiction conferred in sections 2151.01 to 2151.99 of the Revised Code.

Whenever the juvenile judge of the juvenile court is absent from the county, or is unable to attend court, or the volume of cases pending in court necessitates it, upon the request of said judge, the presiding judge of the court of common pleas shall assign a judge of the court of common pleas of the county to act in his place or in conjunction with him. If no such judge is available for said purpose, the chief justice of the supreme court shall assign a judge of the court of common pleas, a juvenile judge, or a probate judge from some other county to act in the place of such judge or in conjunction with him, who shall receive such compensation and expenses for his services as is provided by law for judges assigned to hold court in courts of common pleas.

5. The juvenile court is a court of record and exercises the power and jurisdiction of such a court: State v. Hershberger, 77 OLA 487, 150 NE(2d) 671 (JC).

6. The power to punish for contempt is an inherent power of the juvenile court: State v. Hershberger, 77 OLA 487, 150 NE(2d) 671 (JC).

7. After the effective date of the new juvenile court code, in all counties of Ohio not having a juvenile court or a court of common pleas, division of domestic relations, separately and independently created, established and functioning as such by law, all juvenile jurisdiction is reposed in a juvenile court within the probate court of such county to be presided over by the probate judge: 1937 OAG No.871.

8. A juvenile court created within a probate court by virtue of this section is subject to the provisions of GC § 3056-2 (RC § 3375.52), which requires the payment to the trustees of a county law library association of certain moneys therein specified collected by a probate court: 1939 OAG No.1478.

9. Under the provisions of SubSB No.223 (122 v 444), and AmSB No.50 (122 v 390), the probate judge of Columbiana county, who is also performing the functions of the judge of the juvenile court, can receive no additional salary or compensation during his present term of office: 1947 OAG No.2159.

10. A county auditor may legally pay to the probate judge presiding over the juvenile court of such county as provided by this section, such of the compensation provided for in SB No.50 (122 v 390), which became effective during the judge's term, as will bring the probate judge's salary up to but not to exceed the salary of the common pleas judge of such county: 1949 OAG No.304.

11. A judge of the court of common pleas may not proceed to hear and pronounce sentence on an adult guilty of acting in a way tending to cause the delinquency of a minor, except under such circumstances as are provided in paragraph two of this section: 1950 OAG No.1901.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1639Jurisdiction of probate courts

16. The probate courts of this state acting as juvenile courts under the provisions of GC § 1639 (see now RC § 2151.01) et seq, are courts of record; and their judgments, where jurisdiction of the person and subject-matter has been acquired and no fraud has intervened, are conclusive and can be assailed in no other court in an independent proceeding: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

Jurisdiction in criminal matters

16.1 The fact that under the juvenile court act (GC § 1639 et seq) the commission of a felony by a minor constitutes him a delinquent and authorizes such court to take charge of him as such delinquent, does not relieve him of the consequences of his crime, or abridge the right of the grand jury to indict him for such crime, or the right of the common pleas court to try him for such crime, where the juvenile court does not acquire jurisdiction of him for such delinquency before the common pleas court acquires jurisdiction of him for such felony: Gerak v. State, 22 App 357, 153 NE 902.

Constitutionality

17. This act is constitutional; and the probate judge may be designated to act as judge of the juvenile court: Travis v. State, 12 CC(NS) 374, 21 CD 492 [affirmed, without opinion, 82 OS 439].

18. The provisions of Art. I, § 9 of the Ohio constitution to the effect that all persons would be bailable by sufficient surety except for capital offenses where the proof is evident or the presumption great, do not render invalid this and the following sections which create a juvenile court and confer jurisdiction upon it although a juvenile offender under the age of eighteen cannot be admitted to bail unless the juvenile court judge in his discretion thinks it best to bind him over to the court of common pleas to be tried as an offender over eighteen years of age: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

Nature of juvenile court

19. For history of juvenile court legislation, see State ex rel Fortini v. Hoffman, 12 App 341, 32 OCA 193.

20. For the nature of the juvenile court law, see Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453.

21. The legislature has established the juvenile court in the exercise of its police power, to protect children and to remove them from evil influences: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 110, 106 NE 761; State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

22. The probate courts of this state acting as juvenile courts under the provisions of GC § 1639 [see now RC § 2151.01] et seq, are courts of record, and their judgments, where jurisdiction of the person and subject-matter has been acquired and no fraud has intervened, are conclusive and can be assailed in no other court in an independent proceeding: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

23. The juvenile court act, which provides for the care of delinquent children, does not declare delinquency a crime; and such statutes are corrective and not criminal: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151; State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

24. Power of court to deprive parents of custody of children and assume custody of same on behalf of state, is derived from juvenile court act, and can be exercised only within limits provided by such law. State cannot interfere with right of parents to custody of children merely to better moral and temporal welfare of children: Garcia v. Cardarelli, 7 OLA 262.

26. General Code § 13562 (see now RC § 2941.63) was intended to apply to criminal cases originating in the court of common pleas upon indictment and said section does not authorize the common pleas court, when acting as the juvenile court, to appoint an attorney to assist the prosecuting attorney in the trial of a case brought in said juvenile court under the provisions of the juvenile act: 1921 OAG vol.1, p.121.

27. Jurisdiction to administer the mothers' pension law is vested exclusively in the juvenile court: 1923 OAG p.23.

28. A probate court, exercising the powers and jurisdiction of a juvenile court, may in accordance with such powers exercise jurisdiction over prosecutions for nonsupport and contributing to the delinquency of a minor, without the filing of an information by the prosecuting attorney: 1932 OAG No.4154.

Procedure

29. Where a delinquent child has become a ward of the juvenile court and it has been committed to an institution, under the provisions of the General Code relating to the juvenile court, a proceeding in habeas corpus by a parent against the institution or its officers for the custody of the child will not lie: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

30. The discretion of the juvenile court in relation to the care, custody and control of a delinquent or neglected child is a judicial discretion that must be exercised in good faith, and in the interest of the child, upon evidence introduced in the usual and ordinary course of the administration of justice: State ex rel Tailford v. Bristline, 96 OS 581, 119 NE 138.

31. Prosecution in probate court upon affidavit of wife for nonsupport of minor child is erroneous, information being indispensable under statute: Wilson v. Lasure, 36 App 107, 172 NE 694.

32. It is said to be error for the court of common pleas to refuse to send to the judge presiding in the court of domestic relations, a case which involves divorce or alimony; but whether such error would be reversible error in case the court of common pleas made the proper order, was not decided in Dillingham v. Dillingham, 28 OCA 49, 30 CD 6.

33. If a juvenile offender under the age of eighteen is dealt with by the juvenile court as a delinquent, he is not punished for the felony out of which such delinquency arose, unless under GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26) the judge of the juvenile court in his discretion elects not to deal with such offender but to bind him over to the court of common pleas: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

34. A common pleas court is without power to commit a child to the children's home, but may order a person who is a party in the case to comply with the statutory procedure for the placing of children in such home: 1918 OAG vol.2, p.1515.

§ 2151.08 Juvenile court in Hamilton county.

In Hamilton county the powers and jurisdiction of the juvenile court as conferred by Chapter 2151. of the Revised Code shall be exercised by that judge of the court of common pleas whose term begins on January 1, 1957, and his successors and that judge of the court of common pleas whose term begins on February 14, 1967, and his successors as provided by section 2301.03 of the Revised Code. This conferral of powers and jurisdiction on such judges shall be deemed a creation of a separately and independently created and established juvenile court in Hamilton county, Ohio. Such judges shall serve in each and every position where the statutes permit or require a juvenile judge to serve.

1. Under this section it is the duty of county commissioners to appropriate annually a sum of money sufficient to meet all the administrative expenses of the juvenile court in their county, inclusive of the salary and traveling expenses of a regularly appointed probation officer, and an action in mandamus will lie to compel the performance of such duty: State ex rel Clarke v. Commissioners, 141 OS 16, 25 OO 134, 46 NE(2d) 410.

2. The provisions of this section are mandatory and it is the duty of the county commissioners to make appropriations for such purposes accordingly: State ex rel Motter v. Atkinson, 146 OS 11, 31 OO 472, 63 NE(2d) 440.

3. By this section 2151.10, the board of county commissioners is obligated to appropriate annually a sum of money sufficient to meet all the administrative expenses of the juvenile court of its county, including reasonable expenses of the judge and such officers and employees as he may designate in attending conferences: State ex rel Ray v. South, 176 OS 241, 27 OO(2d) 133, 198 NE(2d) 919.

4. As used in RC §§ 2101.11 and 2151.10, "administrative expenses" of the juvenile and probate courts, respectively, include expenses of office equipment, stationery and supplies: State ex rel Ray v. South, 176 OS 241, 27 OO(2d) 133, 198 NE(2d) 919.

5. The amount necessary for administrative expenses of the juvenile court lies in the sound discretion of the judge and not that of the board of county commissioners, and under the provisions of this section there is a mandatory duty on the board of county commissioners to appropriate the funds requested by a juvenile court judge for the operation of his court unless such request is for an amount which is so unreasonable as to constitute the request an abuse of discretion: State ex rel. Moorehead v. Reed, 177 OS 4, 28 OO(2d) 409, 201 NE(2d) 594.

6. Under the provisions of RC § 2151.10 determination of the necessary annual administrative expenses of the juvenile court lies solely within the sound discretion of the juvenile judge, and the board of county commissioners has no authority to substitute its judgment for that of the juvenile judge by appropriating an amount less than that requested: State ex rel. Foster v. Wittenberg, 16 OS(2d) 89, 45 OO(2d) 442, 242 NE(2d) 884; State ex rel. Milligan v. Freeman, 31 OS(2d) 13, 60 OO(2d) 7, 285 NE(2d) 352.

7. Under RC § 2151.10, it is the mandatory duty of the board of county commissioners to appropriate annually a sum of money sufficient to meet all the administrative expenses of the juvenile court of its county regardless of competing demands made upon such board by other branches of the county government: State ex rel. Milligan v. Freeman, 31 OS(2d) 13, 60 OO(2d) 7, 285 NE(2d) 352.

8. Under the provisions of RC § 2151.10, determination of the necessary annual administrative expenses of the juvenile court lies solely within the sound discretion of the juvenile court judge, and the board of county commissioners has no authority to substitute its judgment for that of the juvenile court judge by appropriating an amount less than that requested: State ex rel. Milligan v. Freeman, 31 OS(2d) 13, 60 OO(2d) 7, 285 NE(2d) 352.

9. Under this section the juvenile court is the only "person or tribunal" empowered to incur obligations on behalf of the county for care and treatment of delinquent children: Cleveland v. Gorman, 87 App 36, 42 OO 278, 89 NE(2d) 605.

10. By the enactment of this section and GC § 1639-34 (RC § 2151.36) the legislature has granted to the juvenile court authority commensurate with its enlarged responsibility for the welfare of neglected, dependent or delinquent children. The court may obligate the county for the payment of expenses necessary to the proper discharge of its responsibility but it is not contemplated that such action will be taken where the welfare of such children is subserved adequately by their commitment to private or municipal institutions that voluntarily assume the expenses resulting therefrom: Cleveland v. Gorman, 87 App 36, 42 OO 278, 89 NE(2d) 605.

11. The provisions of this section and GC § 1639-19 (RC § 2151.13) are mandatory insofar as they refer to appropriations for compensation of a chief probation officer and the administrative expenses of the court; the county commissioners, therefore, must appropriate money for expenses authorized under this act from the date it becomes effective: 1937 OAG No. 1246.

11.1 The authority of the juvenile court to expend public funds to publish and distribute pamphlets discussed: 1944 OAG No. 6877.

12. Before moneys may be expended for administrative expenses, the county commissioners must find the necessity for such attendance and approve the expenditure of moneys so appropriated for such purpose: 1944 OAG 7006.

13. When a child charged with juvenile delinquency in this state is apprehended and detained by the officers of another state and such child is returned to this state without the issuance of a requisition by the governor, the fees charged by the officers of such other state for apprehending and detaining such child may be paid from the funds appropriated under this section for the care of delinquent children: 1956 OAG No. 7308.

14. Where, under division (B) of RC § 2151.35, a juvenile court commits a child to a specialized school in another state, the court, under RC § 2151.36, must itself pay expenses occasioned by the commitment and authorized by the court at the time of commitment, which expenses are paid out of funds appropriated to the court by the board of county commissioners under RC § 2151.10; and pursuant to RC § 2151.36, the court may order the parents, guardian, or person charged with the child's support to reimburse the court for such payments: 1962 OAG No. 2938.

15. Under RC § 2151.35 a juvenile court may, upon finding that a child is neglected, dependent, or delinquent, commit the child to any person or institution meeting the requirements of RC §§ 5103.02 and 5103.03, even though a county child welfare board exists and could provide care and support for the child; and under this section, the board of county commissioners has a duty to appropriate each year such sum as will provide the court with necessary funds for the care, maintenance, education, and support of neglected, dependent and delinquent children: 1962 OAG No. 3489.

16. When a board of county commissioners fails to appropriate funds under this section for the use of juvenile court in the maintenance and support of a dependent child, the juvenile court may not order the county auditor to issue a warrant for such purpose, as under RC § 5705.41, no expenditure of county funds may be made unless funds have been appropriated for that purpose; but the court may proceed against the board of county commissioners to compel it to appropriate the necessary funds: 1962 OAG No. 3489.

17. A registration prepayment, approved by a board of county commissioners, which is made by a county officer, deputy or employee for a meeting of an association of county officers is an expense which may be reimbursed by the board of county commissioners under RC § 325.20, whether or not such authorized meeting is actually attended: 1964 OAG No. 760.

18. A board of county commissioners may make an allowance under RC § 325.20, for the expenses of a juvenile judge in attending the Ohio state and American bar association meetings and conventions, provided, there is some portion of these meetings devoted to discussion of juvenile or welfare problems: 1964 OAG No. 760.

19. A board of county commissioners can only pass upon the reasonableness of expenses of a juvenile judge, or such officers or employees as he may designate, in attending conferences at which juvenile or welfare problems are discussed, provided that specifically itemized vouchers certified by the judge as stipulated in this section are submitted to the board of county commissioners: 1964 OAG No. 1296.

20. Payment of the expenses of a juvenile judge, or such officers or employees as he designates, for attending conferences at which juvenile or welfare problems are discussed shall be upon the warrant of the county auditor pursuant to RC § 319.16, upon presentation of specifically itemized vouchers certified by the juvenile judge, as provided in this section, and allowed by the board of county commissioners: 1964 OAG No. 1296.

21. Under this section, a juvenile judge and such officers and employees as he may designate may attend conferences at which juvenile or welfare problems are discussed without securing the approval of the board of county commissioners under RC § 325.20: 1964 OAG No. 1296.

22. Revised Code § 2151.10 imposes an absolute duty upon the board of county commissioners to appropriate an amount equal to that which is reasonably requested by a juvenile court judge, and that duty is unaffected by the availability or unavailability of unanticipated or unappropriated funds: 1968 OAG No.68-094.

23. The board of county commissioners is not authorized to dictate to the juvenile court the monthly or daily amount that will be expended for the support, care and maintenance of any child under the juvenile court's control: 1968 OAG No.68-094.

§ 2151.11 Assignment of court employees to combat juvenile delinquency.

A juvenile court may participate with other public or private agencies of the county served by the court in programs which have as their objective the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. The juvenile judge may assign employees of the court, as part of their regular duties, to work with organizations concerned with combatting conditions known to contribute to delinquency, providing adult sponsors for children who have been found delinquent, and developing wholesome youth programs.

The juvenile judge may accept and administer on behalf of the court gifts, grants, bequests, and devises made to the court for the purpose of preventing delinquency.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The provisions of this section, that "the reports and records of the [probation] department [of the juvenile court] shall be considered confidential information and shall not be made public," apply only to the probation department of the juvenile court and have no application to cases where juvenile delinquents have been sentenced and committed to a state institution: State v. Sherow, 101 App 169, 1 OO(2d) 100, 138 NE(2d) 444.

2. Under the provisions of RC §§ 2151.14 and 2151.31, it is the manifest duty of enforcement officers to co-operate with and assist the juvenile authorities in the performance of their duties when such officers are specifically requested to do so by the juvenile authorities; and such officers may avoid liability in an action for false imprisonment by showing that they were justified in the detention or restraint of the juvenile made under the specific direction and order of the juvenile authorities: Garland v. Dustman, 19 OApp(2d) 292, 48 OO(2d) 408, 251 NE(2d) 153.

3. Although Ohio law generally protects a minor from the exposure of his acts in another judicial forum, paragraph (G) of this section, does not prohibit the cross-examination, in a criminal trial, of a defendant, or defendant's witnesses, concerning a prior juvenile record, where the defendant's evidence attempts to establish his good character: State v. Hale, 21 OApp(2d) 207, 50 OO(2d) 340, 256 NE(2d) 239.

4. An informal procedure is distinguished from the formal procedure by the fact that no written pleadings are filed, and the case is not docketed or recorded, but memoranda are made and kept in the social files of the court which, under the provisions of this section, are confidential: In re Douglas, 11 OO(2d) 340, 164 NE(2d) 475 (JC).

5. The offices of township trustee and juvenile probation officer are compatible: 1973 OAG No. 73-035.

§ 2151.15 Powers and duties vested in county department of probation. (GC § 1639-20)

When a county department of probation has been established in the county and the juvenile judge does not establish a probation department within the juvenile court as provided in section 2151.14 of the Revised Code, all powers and duties of the probation department provided for in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code, shall vest in and be imposed upon such county department of probation.

In counties in which a county department of probation has been or is hereafter established the judge may transfer to such department all or any part of the powers and duties of his own probation department; provided that all juvenile cases shall be handled within a county department of probation exclusively by an officer or division separate and distinct from the officers or division handling adult cases.

The court, after notice to the parties in the case of the presentation of such findings and recommendation, may make the order recommended by the referee, or any other order in the judg-

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. An evidentiary hearing before the juvenile court judge is discretionary under RC § 2151.16 after a hearing before a juvenile court referee: In re Stall, 36 OS2d 139, 65 OO2d 338 (1973).

2. A referee of the juvenile court appointed pursuant to this section has functions and duties similar to those of a master commissioner appointed pursuant to GC §§ 11487 to 11492 (RC §§ 2315.38 to 2315.43), inclusive: DeVillie v. DeVillie, 87 App 220, 42 OO 423, 94 NE(2d) 474.

3. While the juvenile court has authority by this section to appoint a referee with power of masters in chancery to hear a case and report his findings and recommendations to the judge, there is no such statutory provision with reference to an investigating counselor, and the action and report of such counselor is ex parte and does not constitute the hearing of "additional testimony" by the judge under such statute: Dolgin v. Dolgin, 1 OApp(2d) 430, 30 OO (2d) 435, 205 NE(2d) 106.

4. The action of a juvenile court in postponing a hearing on a matter submitted to a referee who failed to file findings and recommendations and in rectifying such deficiency by taking additional testimony and, thereafter, rendering a decision constitutes a substantial compliance with this section, which sets forth the duties of juvenile court referees: In re Cutman, 22 OApp(2d) 125, 51 OO(2d) 252, 259 NE(2d) 128.

5. The findings and recommendations by the referee are required by statute to be in writing; and since the findings and recommendations so certified to the trial judge must be in writing, the findings and recommendations, of which the parties shall have notice, shall likewise be in writing: In re Hobson, 44 OLA 86, 62 NE(2d) 510.

6. The practice of hearings before referees is recognized procedure in the juvenile court: Allstate Ins. Co. v. Cook, 26 OO(2d) 192, 324 F(2d) 752.

§ 2151.17 Rules governing practice and procedure.

Except as otherwise provided by rules promulgated by the supreme court, the juvenile court may prescribe rules regulating the docketing and hearing of causes, motions, and demurrers, and such other matters as are necessary for the orderly conduct of its business and the prevention of delay, and for the government of its officers and employees, including their conduct, duties, hours, expenses, leaves of absence, and vacations.

§ 2151.18 Records; annual report; copies for distribution.

The juvenile court shall maintain records of all official cases brought before it, including an appearance docket, a journal, and a cashbook. The court shall maintain a separate docket for traffic offenses, in which case, all traffic cases shall be recorded thereon instead of on the general appearance docket. The parents of any child affected, if living, or if deceased, the nearest of kin, may inspect such records, either in person or by counsel during the hours in which such court is open.

Not later than June of each year, the court shall prepare an annual report covering the preceding calendar year showing the number and kinds of cases that have come before it, the disposition thereof, and such other data pertaining to the work of the court as the juvenile judge directs or as the department of public welfare requests. Copies of such report shall be filed with such department and with the board of county commissioners. With the approval of such board copies may be printed for distribution to persons and agencies interested in the court or community program for dependent, neglected, abused, or delinquent children and juvenile traffic offenders. The number of copies ordered printed and the estimated cost of each printed copy shall appear on each copy of such report printed for distribution.

1. In the part relating to adults, found in subdiv. 3b of this section, the word "exclusive" is not used; it will be observed therefore that exclusive jurisdiction is only conferred by the juvenile court code with respect to offenses from the standpoint of the child: In re Cooper, 134 OS 40, 11 OO 416, 15 NE(2d) 634 [affirming 58 App 519].

2. The juvenile court has jurisdiction of a child only if such child is found to be delinquent, neglected or dependent: Paddock v. Ripley, 149 OS 539, 37 OO 262, 80 NE(2d) 129.

3. Under the provisions of this section, the juvenile court is invested with original jurisdiction to determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court: In re Torok, 61 OS 585, 53 OO 433, 120 NE(2d) 307.

4. In order to determine such right of custody, it is not necessary for the court to find first that such child is delinquent, neglected, dependent, crippled, or otherwise physically handicapped: In re Torok, 161 OS 585, 53 OO 433, 120 NE(2d) 307.

5. This section has been construed and applied: In re Ramsey, 164 OS 567, 58 OO 431, 132 NE(2d) 469.

6. By the language of this section, the juvenile court is without authority to accept or exercise jurisdiction where the matter has not been referred to it by a court vested with authority to do so: Haynie v. Haynie, 169 OS 467, 8 OO(2d) 476, 159 NE(2d) 765; affirming 108 App 342, 9 OO(2d) 301, 161 NE(2d) 549.

7. Under RC §§ 3105.21 and 2151.23, where the court of common pleas in a divorce action dismisses the action for insufficient evidence and without making a determination on the merits, it lacks the power and authority to certify the question of the custody of the minor child of the parties to the juvenile court, and the juvenile court is without power to accept such question:

Haynie v. Haynie, 169 OS 467, 8 OO(2d) 476, 159 NE(2d) 765; affirming 108 App 342, 9 OO(2d) 301, 161 NE(2d) 549.

8. The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction of delinquent minors: State ex rel Schwartz v. Haines, 172 OS 572, 18 OO(2d) 130, 179 NE(2d) 46.

9. The statutes of Ohio confer jurisdiction on the juvenile court with respect to custody of a neglected or dependent child: Byington v. Byington, 175 OS 513, 26 OO(2d) 176, 196 NE(2d) 588.

10. The grant of original jurisdiction, by RC § 2151.23(A)(3), to juvenile courts in habeas corpus actions involving the custody of minors is exclusive only as between juvenile courts and those courts given general habeas corpus jurisdiction by RC § 2725.02: In re Black, 36 OS(2d) 124, 65 OO(2d) 308, 304 NE(2d) 394 (1973).

11. While this section of the new juvenile code gives the juvenile court original jurisdiction to punish persons having the custody of a child or who owes the duty of support, that jurisdiction is not exclusive: In re Cooper, 58 App 519, 11 OO 442, 16 NE(2d) 954 [affirmed, 134 OS 40].

12. The juvenile court code, GC § 1639-1 (RC § 2151-01) et seq, does not make the jurisdiction of the juvenile court exclusive throughout. It vests jurisdiction over the infant, not the crime: In re Evans, 67 App 66, 21 OO 93, 35 NE(2d) 887.

13. A writ of habeas corpus will not be granted to release from the state reformatory a minor who, upon being arrested and taken before the municipal court, stated his age to be 19 years, when in fact he was but 17 years of age, and thereafter was indicted, pleaded guilty and was convicted in the common pleas court on a criminal charge: In re Evans, 67 App 66, 21 OO 93, 35 NE(2d) 887.

14. This section, subdiv. 2, relative to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court to determine custody of minors, is a grant, and not a limitation, of jurisdiction: McFadden v. Kendall, 81 App 107, 36 OO 414, 77 NE(2d) 625.

15. Where a child is properly charged with being a delinquent, neglected, or dependent child, and is proven to be such, the juvenile court, by this section, is the special and exclusive tribunal for determining the issue of such child's care, custody and control: McFadden v. Kendall, 81 App 107, 36 OO 414, 77 NE(2d) 625.

16. The jurisdiction over minors acquired by the common pleas court in a divorce action is continuing and, as between the parties to a divorce action, no other court has authority to make any order affecting the custody of such minors: McFadden v. Kendall, 81 App 107, 36 OO 414, 77 NE(2d) 625.

17. Jurisdiction is conferred by this section, subdiv. A(3), on the juvenile court to determine the paternity of a child born out of wedlock and to provide for its support: Knox v. Covrett, 85 App 524, 40 OO 437, 89 NE(2d) 610.

18. There was no proper basis for certification from the probate court to the juvenile court, and, no complaint having been filed charging the child to be a dependent child or any other form of complaint originating in the juvenile court, that court was without jurisdiction to determine that the child was a dependent child or to make an order depriving the mother of custody and committing the child to the custody of a detention home: State ex rel Clark v. Allaman, 87 App 101, 42 OO 330, 90 NE(2d) 394.

19. This section confers exclusive original jurisdiction upon the juvenile court to determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court: Withorow- ski v. Withorowski, 89 App 424, 46 OO 259, 102 NE (2d) 896.

20. Under the provisions of this section, the juvenile court is given original jurisdiction in a proper proceeding to determine the right of custody of any child where such child is not a ward of another court, and it is not necessary in the exercise of such jurisdiction that the juvenile court first determine that such child is a dependent, neglected or delinquent child as defined by GC §§ 1639-2, 1639-3, and 1639-4 (RC §§ 2151.02, 2151.03, and 2151.04): In re Lorok, 93 App 251, 51 OO 10, 114 NE(2d) 65.

21. By the provisions of this section, jurisdiction is conferred on the juvenile court to "determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court" and "to hear and determine the case of any child duly certified to the court according to law by any court of competent jurisdiction, and to make disposition of said child in accordance with the provisions of this chapter": State ex rel Sparto v. Williams, 86 App 377, 41 OO 474, 86 NE(2d) 501 [affirmed, 153 OS 64].

22. The right to custody of a minor child, the duty to support and the right of a parent to reasonable visitation may, where the interest of the child requires it, be determined or altered by a court of this state in whose jurisdiction the child may be, even though a court of another state has determined the right to custody: Bain v. Rose, 103 App 297, 3 OO(2d) 326, 145 NE(2d) 319.

23. When the question of custody only comes before a court, under the authority granted in this section, paragraph (A)(2), that court has jurisdiction to include in the award of custody an order for the support of such child: Kolody v. Kolody, 110 App 260, 13 OO(2d) 25, 169 NE(2d) 34.

24. The word "custody" as used in this section, paragraph (A)(2) connotes the sum total of all parental rights, among which is the right to support for such child: Kolody v. Kolody, 110 App 260, 13 OO(2d) 25, 169 NE(2d) 34.

25. Where a neglected child proceeding is instituted in the juvenile court, pursuant to RC § 2151.27, by a parent of such child, and a divorce action is later instituted by such parent, the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine whether the child is neglected, the power to determine his custody and the authority to place the child with a relative: In re Small, 114 App 248, 19 OO(2d) 128, 181 NE(2d) 503.

26. A juvenile court which acquires jurisdiction of a minor child of persons who are subsequently divorced has, by virtue of this section exclusive jurisdiction of such minor, and the common pleas court wherein such divorce is granted has no jurisdiction to make any order respecting the custody of such child: Patton v. Patton, 1 OApp(2d) 1, 30 OO(2d) 49, 203 NE(2d) 662.

27. Where the jurisdiction of the juvenile court has been invoked by the arrest of a father of minor children on a charge of nonsupport filed by the mother, and upon trial the father pleads guilty and is sentenced, which sentence is suspended and the defendant put on probation, the condition of the probation being that the defendant will pay a specified sum weekly for support, the minor children thereby become wards of the Juvenile Court and the subject of their support and the power to enforce the condition of probation is exclusively in that court until each child has reached the age of eighteen years (RC §§ 2151.49 and 2151.99): Anderson v. Anderson, 4 OApp(2d) 90, 33 OO(2d) 145, 212 NE(2d) 643.

28. The manner of enforcing such order of the juvenile court upon the defendant's default is to seek, by motion filed in the juvenile court, a revocation of the order of probation and to enforce against him the penalty of the judgment: Anderson v. Anderson, 4 OApp(2d) 90, 33 OO(2d) 145, 212 NE(2d) 643.

29. In such case, where the mother files a petition for divorce in the common pleas court subsequent to the action in juvenile court and upon trial a divorce is granted to the mother, the common pleas court in its decree is without jurisdiction to deal with the custody and support of the minor children, jurisdiction of custody and support then being exclusively in the juvenile court: Anderson v. Anderson, 4 OApp(2d) 90, 33 OO(2d) 145, 212 NE(2d) 643.

30. The common pleas court is, therefore, without jurisdiction to entertain an action filed by the mother against the father for alleged delinquencies in the weekly payments ordered as a condition of probation by the juvenile court: Anderson v. Anderson, 4 OApp(2d) 90, 33 OO(2d) 145, 212 NE(2d) 643.

31. Subsections (A)(1) and (A)(2) of this section are independent grants of jurisdiction to the juvenile court. Subsection (A)(2) does not modify the power granted by subsection (A)(1): James v. Child Welfare Board, 9 OApp(2d) 299, 38 OO(2d) 347, 224 NE(2d) 358.

32. An Ohio juvenile court, in a dependency proceeding pursuant to RC § 2151.27 et seq, has no jurisdiction to interfere with mother's legal custody of her children, in the absence of proof, and a finding, of unfitness of such parent, merely for the purpose of releasing such children to the officers of the court of a foreign state; the Ohio juvenile court need not give full faith and credit to a Michigan decree where that decree was obtained by the husband in an ex parte custody determination, subsequent to a divorce decree, in which the Michigan court had no personal jurisdiction over the nonresident wife: In re Messner, 19 OApp(2d) 33, 48 OO(2d) 31, 249 NE(2d) 532.

33. Habeas corpus in a court of competent jurisdiction as prescribed in RC Chapter 2725, is the proper proceeding to raise the question of rightful custody of minor children, where it is alleged that the restraint is illegal, or where a parent or other person claims that he or she has been unlawfully deprived of custody of a minor child; and, as part of such proceedings, the best interests and welfare of the child is a primary question and determining factor, and all other matters must yield accordingly, including the comity existing between states: In re Messner, 19 OApp(2d) 33, 48 OO(2d) 31, 249 NE(2d) 532.

34. The state of Ohio has the burden of proof in the prosecution of a delinquency complaint to establish the jurisdiction of the juvenile court over the person of the "child": State v. Mendenhall, 21 OApp(2d) 135, 50 OO(2d) 227, 255 NE(2d) 307.

35. The amendment of this section, adopted by the Legislature effective November 19, 1969, deprives a municipal court of any jurisdiction to hear and determine any criminal case charging an adult with the violation of any section of RC chapter 2151: State v. Sanchez, 22 OApp(2d) 145, 51 OO(2d) 292, 259 NE(2d) 139.

36. A juvenile who submits without challenge to the jurisdiction of a municipal court cannot thereafter secure release in a habeas corpus action on the ground that the judgment and sentence of the municipal court is void for want of jurisdiction: Hemphill v. Johnson, 31 OApp(2d) 241, 60 OO(2d) 404, 287 NE(2d) 828 (1972).

37. Prosecution for violation of GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42), based upon an affidavit, is within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, under the provisions of GC § 1683-1 (see now RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.43), giving such court jurisdiction in all offenses against minors: Snyder v. State ex rel McCoy, 53 App 370, 4 OO 537.

38. Under division (A) of this section the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction of any child who is neglected and this excludes action by any other court not explicitly given jurisdiction: Hartshorne v. Hartshorne, 89 OLA 243, 185 NE(2d) 329 (App.).

39. A hearing in juvenile court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor which resulted in binding the prisoner over to the grand jury upon concluding that a felony over which the juvenile court lacked jurisdiction had been committed, in no way offended the prisoner's federal granted right to be free from double jeopardy: Grear v. Maxwell, 35 OO(2d) 333, 8 OMisc 210, 355 F(2d) 991 (6th Cir.).

40. Under the authority derived from RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.27 and 2151.35, the juvenile court has the authority to hear and determine the case of a neglected child notwithstanding the fact that the child is at the time within the continuing jurisdiction of the common pleas court by virtue of a divorce decree: In re Gail, 12 OMisc 251, 41 OO(2d) 341, 231 NE(2d) 253 (J.C.).

41. The word "custody" as used in RC § 3109.04 has the same meaning as the word used in RC § 2151.23(A)(2) and in § 3105.21, so that the former section is equally applicable to the other two: In re Smelser, 51 OO(2d) 31, 22 OMisc 41, 257 NE(2d) 769 (CP).

42. Since under RC § 2151.23(A) the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction "to hear and determine any application for a writ of habeas corpus involving the custody of a child," the court is empowered to adjudicate fully as to the needs of the child involved: Baker v. Rose, 57 OO(2d) 57, 270 NE(2d) 678 (CP).

43. The mother of an illegitimate child cannot be deprived of her superior right of custody simply by the exercise of the juvenile court's discretion upon an application for custody by the putative father under RC § 2151.23(A)(2): In re Brenda H., 66 OO(2d) 178, 37 OMisc 123, 305 NE(2d) 815 (CP 1973).

44. When the common pleas court, under authority of GC § 8034-1 (RC § 3109.06), certified to the juvenile court the matter of arrearages which had arisen on support orders, the common pleas court surrendered all jurisdiction as to that question and thereafter the juvenile court had continuing and exclusive jurisdiction as to any modification of the orders: Baumgarten v. Baumgarten, 14 OO 490 (CP).

45. The juvenile court does not have jurisdiction to render a money judgment: Snyder v. Snyder, 18 OO 69 (JC).

46. Since August 19, 1937, the juvenile court, subject to the jurisdiction of the common pleas court in divorce cases, has exclusive original jurisdiction over dependent, neglected and crippled children: In re Howell, 21 OO 379 (JC).

47. Under this section the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction over delinquent, neglected, dependent, crippled or otherwise physically handicapped children, and if a complaint is filed in the juvenile court alleging that a child is delinquent, neglected, dependent, crippled, or otherwise physically handicapped, the juvenile court may exercise such jurisdiction if the complaint is proven and may make such order as provided by the juvenile court code even though the child is a ward of the common pleas court in a divorce proceeding, except that it may not change the custody of said child as between the parties to the divorce action unless the question of custody is certified to the juvenile court by the court granting the divorce decree: In re Jones, 33 OO 331, 68 NE(2d) 97 (JC).

48. The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction under this section to determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court: Crum v.

Howard, 1 OO(2d) 399, 137 NE(2d) 654 (CP).

48.1 Where separate complaints, alleging each of petitioner's children to be a neglected child, were filed in the juvenile court before the petitioner filed a habeas corpus proceeding in the common pleas court alleging that he was unlawfully deprived of their custody, the juvenile court acquired jurisdiction over the matter of custody: In re Ruth, 16 OO(2d) 408, 176 NE(2d) 187.

49. The words in subsection (A)(2) of this section "ward of another court" cannot be construed as meaning "ward of another court in this state": In re Wolfe, 26 OO(2d) 274, 187 NE(2d) 658 (JC).

50. The three subsections of paragraph (A) of this section, relating to the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, are independent of each other, each being a grant of jurisdiction, not limitation thereof; and it is not necessary that the juvenile court first determine that children are delinquent or neglected before making an award of their custody, if the court has the power under the facts to make such an award: In re Wolfe, 26 OO(2d) 274, 187 NE(2d) 658 (JC).

51. The physical presence of the child within the geography of the court empowers the juvenile court to determine its custody, provided it is "not a ward of another court": In re Wolfe, 26 OO(2d) 274, 187 NE(2d) 658 (JC).

52. When a probate court dismisses an adoption petition and, pursuant to RC § 3107.12, certifies the case to the juvenile court for appropriate action and disposition, the certification of itself does not give the juvenile court jurisdiction to determine custody of an illegitimate child: In the Matter of Robert O., 28 OO(2d) 165, 199 NE(2d) 765 (JC).

53. Where the juvenile court has entertained jurisdiction over a minor, and has by decree, placed the permanent custody of said minor, with the county welfare department, the juvenile court has original and continuing jurisdiction and the probate court is without jurisdiction and authority to grant letters of guardianship in such a case: In re Brinegar's Guardianship, 81 OLA 158, 160 NE(2d) 589 (PC).

54. Wherever a probate court designates the board of state charities to care for a child which has been committed to the institution for the feeble-minded and which cannot be received by reason of the incapacity of such institution, such court may properly, in its order of designation, provide that the expense of maintaining the child, until its reception in the institution, shall be charged against the county: 1931 OAG No.3212.

55. The jurisdiction of a juvenile court to commit a crippled child to the division of charities is limited by GC § 1642 (see now RC § 2151.23) to children under the age of eighteen (18) years: 1933 OAG No. 1047.

56. Cases may not be certified to a juvenile court by a common pleas court unless the judge of the juvenile court consents to the certification: 1938 OAG No.2410.

57. When a girl commits an act of delinquency before arriving at the age of eighteen years, and the complaint is not filed until after she becomes eighteen, the juvenile court has jurisdiction to hear such complaint: 1945 OAG No.247.

58. Where an agreement has been entered into pursuant to the provisions of GC § 3070-17 (RC § 335.16), such fact does not divest the courts of jurisdiction over offenses described in GC §§ 1639-46, 13008 and 13012 (RC §§ 2151.42, 3113.01, 3113.06), and the parent may be held criminally liable for failure to support a minor child as provided in said sections: 1946 OAG No.1100.

59. Juvenile courts have no jurisdiction of felonies or offenses described in GC §§ 13008 and 13012 (RC §§ 3113.01 and 3113.06): 1946 OAG No.1100.

60. When a juvenile court exercising jurisdiction over a child under GC § 1639-16 (RC § 2151.23) terminates such jurisdiction, said child by virtue of GC §§ 1639-6 and 3391-16 (RC §§ 2151.06 and 5113.-05) immediately acquires a legal settlement in the county of residence of the parents, surviving parent, sole parent, parent having custody awarded by a court having jurisdiction, or guardian of the person of such minor: 1953 OAG No. 2656.

61. The court of common pleas and municipal courts have jurisdiction in offenses involving adults, concurrent with that of the juvenile court, arising under RC §§ 2151.41 or 2151.42, 1950 OAG No. 1901, overruled: 1958 OAG No. 2016.

62. Under RC §§ 2151.38, 5141.01, and 5141.02, where a juvenile court commits a child to the boys' industrial school, the jurisdiction of the court over the child ceases; and the fact that the court may have attempted to put a condition upon the release of the child, such as making restitution for damages, does not affect the exclusive power of the school and the department of mental hygiene and correction to release the child for satisfactory behavior and progress in training; and the department may so release the child regardless of whether or not such condition has been fulfilled: 1962 OAG No. 3461.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1642

63. When a warrant has been issued by a juvenile court, and a minor has been arrested under such warrant, upon a complaint charging him or her with being a delinquent child, the juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over such minor: State ex rel Heth v. Moloney, 126 OS 526, 186 NE 362.

63.1 The jurisdiction of the juvenile court is continuing: In re Crist, 89 OS 33, 105 NE 71; Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453; State v. Mezgar, 59 Bull 45 (Ed).

64. For the sufficiency of a petition or motion to modify an order of commitment, see State ex rel Tailford v. Bristline, 96 OS 581, 119 NE 138.

65. It is not necessary that the negative averments of this section, relating to jurisdiction over and with respect to delinquent and dependent and neglected minors, shall be incorporated in the affidavits under which arrests are made: Walton v. State, 3 App 97, 19 CC(NS) 452, 27 CD 12.

66. For a discussion of the jurisdiction of chancery over minors, see State ex rel Fortini v. Hoffman, 12 App 341, 32 OCA 193.

67. The proceeding in a juvenile court to have a child adjudged to be a dependent is not a chancery case within the meaning of Art. IV, § 6, and therefore appeal does not lie to the court of appeals from an order committing a child to custody: State ex rel Fortini v. Hoffman, 12 App 341, 32 OCA 193.

68. Commission of a felony by a minor makes him a delinquent; but this does not prevent his indictment, or his trial by the common pleas, unless the juvenile court acquires jurisdiction first: Gerak v. State, 22 App 357, 153 NE 902.

69. Juvenile court to which divorce case is certified by common pleas court is charged with knowledge of existing orders affecting minor's custody: Sonnenberg v. State, 40 App 475, 178 NE 855.

70. Order of common pleas court in divorce case affecting custody of minor is effective until reversed or modified, although case relating to minor is transferred to juvenile court: Sonnenberg v. State, 40 App 475, 178 NE 855.

71. Where divorce case affecting minor's custody is certified to juvenile court, one desiring modification of order of common pleas court affecting child's custody may file motion in juvenile court: Sonnenberg v. State, 40 App 475, 178 NE 855.

72. Modification of order of common pleas court in divorce case, affecting custody of minor, cannot be accomplished by dependency proceeding in juvenile court to which divorce case is certified, unless dependency be charged and proven: Sonnenberg v. State, 40 App 475, 178 NE 855.

73. The court of common pleas has no jurisdiction over offenders under eighteen years of age: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

74. A juvenile offender under the age of eighteen, who is charged with a felony and who fails to interpose such objection at his preliminary examination before the justice of the peace, does not waive such objection. It may be interposed for the first time in the court of common pleas after indictment by a plea in abatement: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

75. General Code § 1642-1 (see now RC § 2151.23) has reference to cases involving custody and support of minor children growing out of divorce actions, and has no application to former GC § 1642 (see now RC § 2151.23), which pertains particularly to dependency and delinquency actions: Metz v. Metz, 17 OLA 531.

76. Where the probate court, after acquiring jurisdiction over a minor child, orders it to be committed to the children's home of the county and there kept in custody until the further order of the court, without making an express finding that the child is dependent, and later awards the custody of the child to its mother, in a subsequent habeas corpus proceeding brought by the father against the mother, the common pleas court will not award the custody of the child to the father on the ground that the action of the probate court was illegal, since the jurisdiction of the probate court over the child continues during its minority: State v. Mezgar, 59 Bull 45 (Ed).

77. If the probate court, after acquiring jurisdiction over a minor, finds that its best interests require that it should be committed to the children's home and orders it to be so committed and there received, cared for, educated and kept in custody until further orders of the court, and the child is so committed, without making an express finding that the child is dependent, in a later proceeding in habeas corpus, the common pleas court will not inquire whether the action of the probate court was sustained by the evidence taken before it: State v. Mezgar, 59 Bull 45 (Ed).

78. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court to prosecute an adult must be predicated on delinquency, dependency or neglect of minor under eighteen years of age: 1915 OAG vol.1, p.143.

79. The juvenile court has no jurisdiction in a bastardy proceeding, even where the defendant and the mother are both under sixteen years of age: 1917 OAG vol.3, p.2228.

80. The juvenile court has jurisdiction over all delinquent, neglected or dependent minors within the county. The fact that acts of delinquency upon which the charge is based were committed outside the county does not rob the court of its jurisdiction to determine the status of the child and proceed accordingly: 1918 OAG vol.1, p.840.

81. Where an affidavit charging delinquency is filed in juvenile court against a minor, and service is duly had on said minor while he or she is yet under age, the fact that said minor becomes of age does not take away jurisdiction of said court to proceed against said minor as a juvenile delinquent person: 1920 OAG vol.1, p.296.

81.1 The juvenile court may not take jurisdiction of the minor children where the jurisdiction of the common pleas court has attached in a divorce proceeding, unless the minor child is charged with being delinquent: 1924 OAG p. 639.

82. When orders made in common pleas or probate courts as to the care and custody of minor children are certified to the juvenile court under GC § 8034-1 (RC § 3109.06) for further proceedings, the juvenile court may then exercise jurisdiction over said minors under the provisions of GC § 1642-1 (see now RC § 2151.23), in the same manner as in cases originally brought in said juvenile court: 1925 OAG p.159.

83. The juvenile court has jurisdiction to declare any child dependent which is found within the county under facts and circumstances constituting dependency. The legal residence of the child or its parents, or those standing in loco parentis, does not determine the jurisdiction of the court: 1935 OAG No.4172.

84. The county in which a juvenile court assumes jurisdiction of a child and declares such child to be dependent, will be responsible for the support of the child: 1935 OAG No.4172.

§ 2151.24 Separate room for hearings.

The board of county commissioners shall provide a special room not used for the trial of criminal or adult cases, when available, for the hearing of the cases of dependent, neglected, abused, and delinquent children.

HISTORY: GC § 1639-14; 117 v 520; 136 v H 85. Eff 11-28-75.

[PROCEDURE IN CHILDREN'S CASES]

§ 2151.25 Transfer to juvenile court.

When a child is arrested under any charge, complaint, affidavit, or indictment, whether for a felony or a misdemeanor, proceedings regarding such child shall be initially in the juvenile court in accordance with this chapter. If the child is taken before a judge of a county court, mayor, judge of the municipal court, or judge of the court of common pleas other than a juvenile court, such judge of a county court, mayor, judge of the municipal court, or judge of the court of common pleas shall transfer the case to the juvenile court, whereupon proceedings shall be in accordance with this chapter. Upon such transfer all further proceedings under the charge, complaint, information, or indictment shall be discontinued in the court of said judge of a county court, mayor, municipal judge, or judge of the court of common pleas other than a juvenile court, and the case relating to such child shall thenceforth be within the exclusive jurisdiction of the juvenile court.

1. The provisions of RC § 5141.16 have been repealed by the subsequently enacted provisions of this section and RC § 2151.26: State v. Worden, 162 OS 593, 55 OO 483, 124 NE(2d) 817.

2. A minor who went to California to avoid arrest, after committing a murder in Ohio, was arrested in California, brought back to Ohio by Ohio officers pursuant to instructions from the juvenile court judge of Los Angeles county, and taken to the juvenile detention home, cannot complain that he was not taken directly before the juvenile court upon arrest, as required by RC § 2151.25 and not taken immediately to the place of detention upon being taken into custody, as required by RC § 2151.31: State v. Stewart, 176 OS 156, 158, 27 OO(2d) 42, 198 NE(2d) 439.

3. The provisions of this section contemplate only a situation where a juvenile is actually charged with a crime. It does not apply nor would it be practicable to apply it to every juvenile picked up for interrogation by the authorities: State v. Carder, 9 OS(2d) 1, 38 OO(2d) 1, 222 NE(2d) 620.

4. This section, providing for certification of certain criminal cases to the juvenile court, provides analogy to and requires differentiation from GC § 10512-21(b) (RC § 3107.12): State ex rel Clark v. Allaman, 87 App 101, 42 OO 330, 90 NE(2d) 394.

5. Revised Code §§ 2151.25 and 2151.26 provide the procedure to be followed where a juvenile is charged with an act which could be a felony if committed by an adult: Mellott v. Alvis, 109 App 486, 12 OO(2d) 23, 162 NE(2d) 623.

6. A juvenile like other individuals can waive his rights and where the minor charged with a felony does not object to the jurisdiction of the court of common pleas on the ground of his minority by raising that question before the trial court, he has lost his right to object after sentence by that court: Mellett v. Alvis, 109 App 486, 12 OO(2d) 23, 162 NE (2d) 623.

7. There is no prohibition in this section against the interrogation of a minor by police officers following his arrest, and before he is taken before a juvenile court: State v. Stewart, 120 App 199, 205, 29 OO(2d) 4, 201 NE(2d) 793.

8. A voluntary confession to the perpetration of murder, obtained from a seventeen-year-old high school senior, which confession was made before indictment on said charge and while the accused was under arrest for a misdemeanor, is admissible in evidence (1) where the accused was first advised that "he would not be compelled to give a statement. . . if he wanted to give a statement it would be by his own free will and that statement would be used for or against him in court"; (2) where the accused was further advised that "he could secure the services of an attorney"; and (3) where there is no showing that the confession was obtained by inquisitorial processes, without the procedural safeguards of due process, and by such compulsion that the confession is irreconcilable with the possession of mental freedom: State v. Stewart, 120 App 199, 29 OO(2d) 4, 201 NE(2d) 793.

9. A voluntary confession to the perpetration of murder obtained from a 16-¾ year old high school junior, which confession was made before indictment, and while the accused was detained for investigation, is admissible in evidence (1) where the accused had been allowed to consult with an attorney prior to being questioned; (2) where the accused first was advised that he did not have to talk; (3) where the accused when told that his parents and another attorney were there and waiting to see him stated that he did not want to see them; and (4) where there is no showing that the confession was obtained by inquisitorial processes: State v. Gardner, 3 OApp(2d) 381, 32 OO(2d) 524, 210 NE(2d) 714.

10. A juvenile who submits without challenge to the jurisdiction of a municipal court cannot thereafter secure release in a habeas corpus action on the ground that the judgment and sentence of the municipal court is void for want of jurisdiction: Hemphill v. Johnson, 31 OApp(2d) 241, 60 OO(2d) 404, 287 NE(2d) 828 (1972).

10.1 The juvenile and general divisions of a court of common pleas possess concurrent jurisdiction over a juvenile accused of a crime, and the juvenile division has not been divested of personal jurisdiction over one whose disposition is returned to it after the accused initially waived his right to be judged in that tribunal: State ex rel. Leis v. Black, 45 OApp(2d) 191, 74 OO(2d) 270 (1975).

11. The juvenile court does not have exclusive jurisdiction over a criminal matter involving a minor until the case is transferred to such court: Harris v. Alvis, 61 OLA 311, 104 NE(2d) 182 (App).

12. The procedure required by this section applies to fact situations in which the minority is discovered or disclosed prior to the hearing or trial: State v. Peterson, 38 OO(2d) 220, 9 OMisc 154, 223 NE(2d) 838 (MC).

13. The superintendent of the Ohio state reformatory has no right to refuse to receive a person committed to that institution by a court having general jurisdiction to try felonies, even though he has reason to believe that the person committed was under eighteen years of age at the time of his arraignment and conviction: 1944 OAG No.6813.

14. A person, who may be a child under eighteen years of age, charged with a crime in this state and who fled to another state, may be returned to this state upon requisition of the governor, as provided in

GC §§ 109-1 to 109-31 (RC §§ 2963.01 to 2963-27). Upon the return of such person, if he was a child at the time the crime was committed, he should be taken before the juvenile judge or, if taken before any other court, such other court is required to transfer the case to the juvenile judge: 1945 OAG No.395.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1659

15. Habeas corpus will not lie to secure the discharge of a minor who was indicted for a felony and convicted in the court of common pleas, but did not challenge the jurisdiction of the court until motion for new trial, or prosecute error, on the ground that he was under eighteen years of age and should have been first taken before the juvenile court, in accordance with the provisions of GC § 1659 (see now RC § 2151.25): In re Pharr, 10 App 395, 31 OCA 465.

15.1 Commission of a felony by a minor makes him a delinquent; but this does not prevent his indictment, or his trial by the common pleas, unless the juvenile court acquires jurisdiction first: Gerak v. State, 22 App 357, 153 NE 902.

16. One over eighteen years old when tried for crime committed when under such age held not entitled to have trial transferred to juvenile court: Scopillitti v. State, 41 App 221, 180 NE 740.

17. This section applies only to arrests in criminal cases: Durst v. Griffith, 43 App 44, 182 NE 519, 37 OLR 183.

18. Bastardy proceeding is "civil proceeding," and therefore one arrested therein need not be taken before juvenile judge: Durst v. Griffith, 43 App 44, 182 NE 519, 37 OLR 183.

18.1 If a minor under the age of eighteen is indicted for an offense such as murder in the first degree such minor may interpose as a plea in abatement the fact that he is under the age of eighteen and that he is accordingly within the exclusive jurisdiction of the juvenile court: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

19. A juvenile offender under the age of eighteen who is charged with a felony and who fails to interpose such objection at his preliminary examination before the justice of the peace, does not waive such objection, since neither the justice of the peace nor the court of common pleas had jurisdiction over him unless he was first brought before the juvenile court and bound over in the discretion of the juvenile court to the court of common pleas under GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26). Such defense may therefore be interposed for the first time in the court of common pleas, after indictment, by a plea in abatement: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

20. A minor child under the age of eighteen years is arrested and taken before a justice of the peace and the latter transfers the case to the judge of the juvenile court as provided in GC § 1659 (see now RC § 2151.25); costs are chargeable in favor of the justice of the peace and the constable and should be paid as provided in GC § 1682 (see now RC § 2151.54): 1919 OAG vol.1, p.260.

21. When a justice of the peace has transferred the case of a minor to the juvenile court, fees and costs of the justice of the peace and his constable, originally made, are to follow the case for allowance and payment under GC § 1682 (see now RC § 2151.54): 1935 OAG No.4109.

§ 2151.26 Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purpose of criminal prosecution.

(A) After a complaint has been filed alleging that a child is delinquent by reason of having committed an act which would constitute a felony if committed by an adult, the court at a hearing may transfer the case for criminal prosecution to the appropriate court having jurisdiction of the offense, after making the following determinations:

(1) The child was fifteen or more years of age at the time of the conduct charged;

(2) There is probable cause to believe that the child committed the act alleged;

(3) After an investigation including a mental and physical examination of such child made by the Ohio youth commission, a public or private agency, or a person qualified to make such examination, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that:

(a) He is not amenable to care or rehabilitation in any facility designed for the care, supervision, and rehabilitation of delinquent children;

(b) The safety of the community may require that he be placed under legal restraint, including, if necessary, for the period extending beyond his majority.

(B) The child may waive such examination if the court finds such waiver competently and intelligently made. Refusal to submit to a mental and physical examination by the child constitutes waiver thereof.

(C) Notice in writing of the time, place and purpose of such hearing shall be given to his parents, guardian, or other custodian and his counsel at least three days prior to the hearing.

(D) No child, either before or after reaching eighteen years of age, shall be prosecuted as an adult for an offense committed prior to becoming eighteen unless the child has been transferred as provided in this section. Any prosecution that is had in a criminal court on the mistaken belief that the child was over eighteen years of age at the time of the commission of the offense shall be deemed a nullity and the child shall not be considered to have been in jeopardy on the offense.

(E) Upon such transfer the juvenile court shall state the reasons therefor and order such child to enter into a recognizance with good and sufficient surety for his appearance before the appropriate court for such disposition as such court is authorized to make for a like act committed by an adult. Such transfer abates the jurisdiction of the juvenile court with respect to the delinquent acts alleged in the complaint.

HISTORY: 133 v H 320 (E# 11-19-69); 134 v S 325. E# 1-14-72.

Analogous in part to former RC § 2151.26, repealed, 133 v H 320.

1. Where the judge of the juvenile court after a hearing and examination, as required by this section, binds a minor under eighteen years of age accused of murder in the first degree over to the court of common pleas for such disposition as the latter court is authorized to make for a like act committed by an adult, and such minor after indictment by a grand jury and a plea of not guilty upon arraignment, appears before the judge of the common pleas court presiding at the time in the trial of criminal cases in open court with counsel of his own choosing, elects to be tried by the court without a jury by signing in open court a waiver (GC § 13442-4 [RC § 2945.05]), and who later appears with his counsel before a three-judge court (GC § 13442-5 [RC § 2945.06]), makes application to such judges for permission to withdraw his former plea of not guilty and to enter a plea of guilty and such judges are satisfied that defendant has an intelligent understanding of the effect of his plea of guilty and waiver of trial by jury, no error may be predicated on the refusal of a trial by jury after such court has determined the degree of crime and pronounced sentence accordingly: State v. Frohner, 150 OS 53, 37 OO 406, 80 NE(2d) 868.

2. Pursuant to this section, as it existed immediately prior to November 19, 1969, where the evidence before a juvenile court was sufficient to support a finding that there was probable cause to believe a delinquent child had committed an act which could be a felony if committed by an adult, that court could properly bind the child over to the court of common pleas: In re Jackson, 21 OS(2d) 215, 50 OO(2d) 447, 257 NE(2d) 74.

3. Pursuant to this section, as it existed immediately prior to November 19, 1969, where a juvenile was charged with being a delinquent child, and where the juvenile court sought to bind that child over to the court of common pleas, the child must first have been found to be a delinquent child; and, if so found, the juvenile court must also have found that the child could not be rehabilitated within the exercise of the exclusive jurisdiction of the juvenile court: In re Jackson, 21 OS(2d) 215, 50 OO(2d) 447, 257 NE(2d) 74.

4. Revised Code § 2151.26 does not require specific language to be used by a juvenile court in journalizing its finding that a child is delinquent. It can do so without ever using the word "delinquent" as long as a reading of its entry reasonably apprises the reader that such a finding was made: State v. Carter, 27 OS(2d) 135, 56 OO(2d) 75, 272 NE(2d) 119.

5. The juvenile code vests jurisdiction of the juvenile court over the infant, not the crime: In re Evans, 67 App 66, 21 OO 93, 35 NE(2d) 887.

6. Revised Code §§ 2151.25 and 2151.26 provide the procedure to be followed where a juvenile is charged with an act which could be a felony if committed by an adult: Mellott v. Alvis, 109 App 486, 12 OO(2d) 23, 162 NE(2d) 623.

7. The order of a juvenile court pursuant to this section for a child charged with a felony to appear before the common pleas court, is a final order under RC § 2505.02: State v. Yoss, 10 OApp(2d) 47, 39 OO(2d) 81, 225 NE(2d) 275.

8. Under the provision of this section a child who is charged with committing a felony is entitled to a hearing at which he may present evidence as to his mental condition: State v. Yoss, 10 OApp(2d) 47, 39 OO(2d) 81, 225 NE(2d) 275.

9. A proceeding against a juvenile charged with being a delinquent is civil in nature and not criminal, and a preponderance of the evidence is sufficient to warrant a determination that such juvenile is a delinquent, notwithstanding that acts are charged which, if committed by an adult and proved beyond a reasonable doubt, would constitute a felony: In re Whittington, 13 OApp(2d) 11, 42 OO(2d) 39, 233 NE(2d) 333.

10. An order made under the provisions of RC § 2151.26 recognizing a juvenile to appear before the common pleas court is a final appealable order: In re Whittington, 17 OApp(2d) 164, 46 OO(2d) 237, 245 NE(2d) 364. [overruling 13 OApp(2d) 11, 42 OO(2d) 39, 233 NE(2d) 333 cited in Case Note 1.3 under this section in the bound volume.]

11. It is an abuse of discretion for the juvenile court under the provisions of RC § 2151.26 to recognize a fourteen-year-old youth to appear before the common pleas court when the evidence is insufficient to support a finding that he is other than a fit subject for rehabilitation under the provisions of the juvenile code, and insufficient to support a finding that recognizing him to common pleas court is necessary as a protection to the public: In re Whittington, 17 OApp(2d) 164, 46 OO(2d) 237, 245 NE(2d) 364.

12. By virtue of the provisions of this section, a juvenile court must, as a condition of an order for a juvenile to appear before the common pleas court, find such juvenile to be a delinquent under RC §§ 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive: In re Mack, 22 OApp(2d) 201, 51 OO(2d) 400, 260 NE(2d) 619.

13. It is an abuse of discretion for a juvenile court to recognize a juvenile to the common pleas court, in the absence of a finding that such juvenile was a delinquent and where the evidence fails to disclose that such juvenile would not be a proper subject for rehabilitation under the provisions of the juvenile code, or that such recognizance was necessary as a protection to the public: In re Mack, 22 OApp(2d) 201, 51 OO(2d) 400, 260 NE(2d) 619 (1970).

14. An indigent juvenile offender is entitled to a record in a hearing conducted for the purpose of determining whether the juvenile court may waive jurisdiction and bind the offender over to the court of common pleas for criminal prosecution: State v. Ross, 23 OApp(2d) 215, 52 OO(2d) 332, 262 NE(2d) 427 (1970).

15. The commitment of a fifteen year old to a state institution pursuant to RC § 2151.26 for the purpose of examination is not an act for which a writ of prohibition will issue: State ex rel. Harris v. Common Pleas Court, 25 OApp(2d) 78, 54 OO(2d) 115, 266 NE(2d) 589.

16. The transfer of a case by the juvenile court to the common pleas court, pursuant to RC § 2151.26, permitting a child to be tried as an adult, does not violate any constitutional rights of such child: State v. Anderson, 28 OApp (2d) 234, 57 OO(2d) 345, 277 NE(2d) 64.

17. What constitutes "reasonable grounds" for relinquishing jurisdiction under RC § 2151.26(A)(3) is within the sound discretion of the court, after an "investigation" is made: State v. Carmichael, 35 OS(2d) 1, 64 OO(2d) 1, 298 NE(2d) 568 (1973).

18. A hearing under RC § 2151.26 is a preliminary stage of the juvenile judicial process and contemplates that the court should have considerable latitude within which to determine whether it should retain jurisdiction: State v. Carmichael, 35 OS(2d) 1, 64 OO(2d) 1, 298 NE(2d) 568 (1973).

19. An order by a juvenile court, pursuant to RC § 2151.26, transferring a child to the court of common pleas for criminal prosecution, is not a final appealable order: In re Becker, 39 OS(2d) 84, 68 OO(2d) 50, 314 NE(2d) 158 (1974).

20. When a minor is held by the juvenile court for acts which would be a felony, and the juvenile court relinquishes jurisdiction over the minor, the 90-day time limit of RC § 2945.71 for bringing him to trial as an adult felon starts to run at the time the juvenile court relinquishes jurisdiction: State ex rel. Williams v. Court of Common Pleas of Lucas County, 42 OS(2d) 433, 71 OO(2d) 410, 329 NE(2d) 680 (1975).

21. In no case, however serious, is the juvenile court justified in transferring a case to the criminal courts unless the child's own good and the best interests of the state cannot be attained by the juvenile court's retaining jurisdiction: In re Heist, 11 OO 537 (JC).

22. The juvenile court having once waived jurisdiction to handle a case under the juvenile code must order further proceedings under the regular procedural provisions of the criminal law: In re Davis, 22 OO(2d) 108, 179 NE(2d) 198 (JC).

23. The determination of the juvenile court whether to waive its exclusive jurisdiction over a juvenile charged with what will be serious criminal offenses if he permits the minor to be tried as though an adult is a critically important action determining vitally important statutory rights of the juvenile: Kent v. United States, 383 US 541, 40 OO(2d) 270, 16 LEd(2d) 84, 86 Sct 1045.

24. The juvenile court's discretion to waive its exclusive jurisdiction over a child and remit him for trial as though an adult assumes procedural regularity sufficient in the particular circumstances to satisfy the basic requirements of due process and fairness: Kent v. United States, 383 US 541, 40 OO(2d) 270, 16 LEd(2d) 84, 86 Sct 1045.

25. The provision of the juvenile court act of the District of Columbia, that in order to waive its exclusive jurisdiction over a juvenile, the court must make a "full investigation" and that its records be available to persons having a legitimate interest in the protection of the child, when read in the context of the constitutional principles relating to due process and the assistance of counsel, entitle the juvenile to a hearing on the question of such waiver, to access by his counsel to records which presumably are considered by the court, and to a statement of the reasons for the court's decision sufficient to enable meaningful appellate review thereof: Kent v. United States, 383 US 541, 40 OO(2d) 270, 16 LEd(2d) 84, 86 Sct 1045.

26. Where an Ohio court has not had the opportunity to assess the impact of the Gault decision on petitioner's claim, it is appropriate for the Supreme Court of the United States to vacate the judgment of the Ohio court and remand the case for reconsideration: In re Whittington, 391 US 341, 45 OO(2d) 31, 20 LEd(2d) 625, 88 Sct 1507.

27. The case of a boy between the ages of sixteen and twenty-one who has committed an act which, if committed by an adult, would be a felony, may be transferred to the common pleas court. If the said boy is found guilty of the felony charged, it is then the duty of the court to commit the boy to the Ohio state reformatory: 1938 OAG No.3439.

28. If the juvenile court decides not to transfer the case but determines that the case should be disposed of by the juvenile court, the judge may commit the delinquent boy to any of the places and institutions, penal or otherwise, mentioned in GC § 1639-30 (RC § 2151.35): 1938 OAG No.3439.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1681

29. Where a felony charge against a minor is transferred from the juvenile court to the common pleas court under GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26), the grand jury is empowered to return any indictment proper under the facts: State v. Klingenger, 113 OS 418, 149 NE 395.

30. This section is discretionary and not mandatory, and a delinquent child, charged with a felony, may be committed as provided in GC § 1652 (see now RC § 2151.35) or recognized to the court of common pleas, subject to the requirements of the general criminal laws of the state, at the discretion of the juvenile judge: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184].

31. General Code § 1652 (see now RC § 2151.35) is not in conflict with this section. General Code § 1652 (see now RC § 2151.35) provides a different place for the confinement of delinquent children over sixteen years of age from the place of confinement to which other delinquent children may be committed, namely, to the Ohio state reformatory; while this section provides that delinquent children of any age charged with a felony may be indicted and subjected to the provisions of the general criminal statutes: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184].

32. The fact that, under the juvenile court act (GC § 1639 et seq), the commission of a felony by a minor constitutes him a delinquent and authorizes such court to take charge of him as such delinquent, does not relieve him of the consequences of his crime, or abridge the right of the grand jury to indict him for such crime, or the right of the common pleas court to try him for such crime, where the juvenile court does not acquire jurisdiction of him for such delinquency before the common pleas court acquires jurisdiction of him for such felony: Gerak v. State, 22 App 357, 5 OLA 761, 153 NE 902.

33. Refusal by a court of domestic relations to hear the case of an infant charged with felony, leaves it in common pleas, and is the equivalent of transferring the case to the common pleas court under GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26): State ex rel Brown v. Hoffman, 23 App 348, 155 NE 499.

34. This section, which authorizes the judge of the juvenile court to bind over to the court of common pleas a delinquent child which is charged with a felony, is discretionary and not mandatory; and the judge of the juvenile court may commit a child which is charged with a felony to the custody of a probation officer, to a suitable home or to a proper industrial school in his discretion: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199 [citing Leonard v. Licker, 23 CC(NS) 442].

35. A juvenile offender under the age of eighteen who is charged with a felony and who fails to interpose such objection at his preliminary examination before the justice of the peace, does not waive such objection, since neither the justice of the peace nor the court of common pleas had jurisdiction over him unless he was first brought before the juvenile court and bound over in the discretion of the juvenile court to the court of common pleas under this section. Such defense may therefore be interposed for the first time in the court of common pleas after indictment by a plea in abatement: State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

36. This section is discretionary and not mandatory. The division of domestic relations may either try the juvenile for delinquency or bind him over to the court of common pleas for "indictment" etc: State v. Wessel, 28 OLR 104 (CP).

§ 2151.27 Complaint.

Any person having knowledge of a child who appears to be a juvenile traffic offender or to be delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent may, with respect to such child, file a sworn complaint in the juvenile court of the county in which such child has a residence or legal settlement, or in which such traffic offense, delinquency, unruliness, abuse, neglect, or dependency occurred. Such sworn complaint may be upon information and belief, and in addition to the allegation that the child is delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, dependent, or a juvenile traffic offender, the complaint must allege the particular facts upon which the allegation of delinquency, unruliness, abuse, neglect, dependency, or juvenile traffic offender is based.

Whenever a child, before arriving at the age of eighteen years, allegedly commits an act for which he may be adjudged delinquent, unruly, or a juvenile traffic offender, and the specific complaint thereon is not filed or a hearing held until after said child arrives at the age of eighteen years, the court has jurisdiction to hear and dispose of such complaint, as if the complaint were filed and hearing held before such child arrived at the age of eighteen years.

If the complainant in an abuse, neglect, or dependency case is requesting permanent custody of the child or children, the complaint shall contain a prayer specifically requesting such custody.

1. The certification of a cause from the probate court to the juvenile court under the provisions of GC § 10512-21 (RC § 3107.12), does not constitute a complaint against the parents that the child which was the subject of the adoption proceedings is a dependent, delinquent or neglected child, and a judgment by the juvenile court finding that such child is a dependent child, made without the filing of a complaint against the parents, is void ab initio for lack of jurisdiction: State ex rel Clark v. Allaman, 154 OS 296, 43 OO 190, 95 NE(2d) 753.

1.1 A complaint under Juv.R. 10 and RC § 2151.27 alleging that a child is dependent must state the essential facts which bring the proceeding within the jurisdiction of the court: In re Hunt, 46 OS(2d) 378, 75 OO(2d) 450, 348 NE(2d) 727 (1976).

2. A complaint filed under this section which alleges that a child under twenty months of age is dependent is sufficiently definite: In re Anteau, 67 App 117, 21 OO 129, 36 NE(2d) 47.

3. Under a complaint filed in the common pleas court, division of domestic relations, under this section, that a child of separated parents is dependent, a judgment of the court that the child is dependent and awarding its custody to its father "until further order of the court," is a final order from which appeal to the court of appeals may be taken: In re Anteau, 67 App 117, 21 OO 129, 36 NE(2d) 47.

4. Where an affidavit is filed in support of a motion for a new trial, alleging that the child was a neglected child within the meaning of the provisions of this section, on which charges a hearing was had, the juvenile court has jurisdiction in such matter and may grant a motion for new trial: State ex rel Sparto v. Williams, 86 App 377, 41 OO 474, 86 NE(2d) 501 [affirmed, 153 OS 64].

5. Where a petition for the adoption of an illegitimate child was filed in the probate court and the child's mother gave her consent in writing to such adoption, but the petitioners withdrew their petition before any action thereon was taken, the court, upon issuing an order that the petition be withdrawn and the cause dismissed, is without authority to certify the cause to the juvenile court for disposition under GC § 10512-21; in such case, there was no proper basis for certification from the probate court to the juvenile court, and, no complaint having been filed charging the child to be a dependent child or any other form of complaint originating in the juvenile court, that court was without jurisdiction to determine that the child was a dependent child or to make an order depriving the mother of custody and committing the child to the custody of a detention home: State ex rel Clark v. Allaman, 87 App 101, 42 OO 330, 90 NE(2d) 394.

6. Under this section, the juvenile court of the county in which acts constituting neglect or dependency of a minor child occur, has jurisdiction over complaints concerning such child, and it is immaterial whether the parent or minor child was a non-resident of the county in which the complaint is filed: In re Belk, 97 App 114, 55 OO 330, 123 NE(2d) 757.

7. In a proceeding in the juvenile court, instituted by the filing of a complaint under the provisions of RC § 2151.27, a finding by the court that a child is "neglected" in that it "lacked proper parental care because of the faults and habits of his parents" (RC § 2151.03(B)), and "dependent," in that its "condition and environment . . . is such as to warrant the court . . . in assuming his guardianship" (RC § 2151.04(C)), must be based on evidence with respect to whether the child was receiving proper parental care in a proper environment in its home at the time of the hearing: In re Minton, 112 App 361, 16 OO(2d) 283, 76 NE(2d) 252.

8. A proceeding, instituted in the juvenile court under the provisions of RC § 2151.27, the so-called "neglected child" statute, may not be used by the complainant either to force an adoption or as a substitute for an adoption proceeding: In re Minton, 112 App 361, 16 OO(2d) 283, 76 NE(2d) 252.

9. Where a neglected-child proceeding is instituted in the juvenile court, pursuant to this section by a parent of such child, and a divorce action is later instituted by such parent, the juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction to determine whether the child is neglected, the power to determine his custody and the authority to place the child with a relative: In re Small, 114 App 248, 19 OO(2d) 128, 181 NE(2d) 503.

10. Revised Code § 3109.04, relating to the custody of children of separated or divorced parents, is not applicable to a neglected-child proceeding under this section: In re Small, 114 App 248, 19 OO(2d) 128, 181 NE(2d) 503.

11. An allegation in a motion filed in juvenile court seeking to have that court "determine and award the future care and custody" of a child, that "neither parent is a suitable person to have the care and custody of said child," does not constitute a charge that such child is "neglected" (RC § 2151.03) or "dependent" (RC § 2151.04) and is not sufficiently definite to constitute the "complaint" necessitated by RC § 2151.27: Union County Child Welfare Board v. Parker, 7 OApp(2d) 79, 36 OO(2d) 162, 218 NE(2d) 757.

12. Proceedings, wherein the juvenile court determines, in response to a motion, that a child is a neglected and dependent child and orders such child placed in the temporary custody of the county welfare board, are void ab initio for want of a complaint filed as prescribed by this section. Such proceedings cannot be the foundation for a determination of dependency or neglect necessary to support an order awarding custody of such child: Union County Child Welfare Board v. Parker, 7 OApp(2d) 79, 36 OO(2d) 162, 218 NE(2d) 757.

13. An application for a writ of habeas corpus will be denied, where a complaint is duly filed in the county of legal residence, pursuant to this section, charging a child with being a dependent or neglected child, notwithstanding the court of common pleas of another county in this state, as a result of a divorce action there heard, gave custody of the child to the mother, who subsequently moved with the child to the county where the affidavit of dependency and neglect was filed: James v. Child Welfare Board, 9 OApp(2d) 299, 38 OO(2d) 347, 224 NE(2d) 358.

14. An Ohio juvenile court, in a dependency proceeding pursuant to RC § 2151.27 et seq., has no jurisdiction to interfere with a mother's legal custody of her children, in the absence of proof, and a finding, of unfitness of such parent, merely for the purpose of releasing such children to the officers of the court of a foreign state. The Ohio juvenile court need not give full faith and credit to a Michigan decree where that decree was obtained by the husband in an ex parte custody determination, subsequent to a divorce decree, in which the Michigan court had no personal jurisdiction over the non-resident wife: In re Messner, 19 OApp(2d) 33, 48 OO(2d) 31, 249 NE(2d) 532.

15. A minor seventeen years of age, who is being detained in a county detention home as the result of the filing of a delinquency affidavit under GC § 1639-23 (RC § 2151.27) et seq., is being lawfully detained; and since he is not charged with an "offense" he is not entitled to release on bail under the provisions of Art. I, § 9 of the Ohio constitution: State ex rel Peaks v. Allaman, 51 OO 321, 115 NE(2d) 849 (App).

16. Jurisdiction and procedure in complaints involving a child are defined and controlled by RC § 2151.27 et seq.: State ex rel Burchett v. Juvenile Court, 28 OO(2d) 116, 194 NE(2d) 912 (App).

17. Under the provisions of this section jurisdiction of the juvenile court rests on either the residence of the child in the county where the complaint has been filed, or a showing that the acts constituting neglect or dependency of the minor child have occurred in that county: State ex rel Burchett v. Juvenile Court, 28 OO(2d) 116, 194 NE(2d) 912 (App).

18. The certification of the record of the court of common pleas to the juvenile court in which it is shown that the children of one of the parties to a divorce action is being neglected amounts to the filing of a complaint under this section: Hartshorne v. Hartshorne, 89 OLA 243, 185 NE(2d) 329 (App).

19. In a dependency proceeding, GC §§ 1639-4, 1639-21, 1639-35 (RC §§ 2151.04, 2151.16, 2151.38) and this section, there must be legal service upon a minor parent and there must be a guardian ad litem to represent her as prerequisites to any order of dependency against her child in order to satisfy the requirements of due process: In re Hobson, 62 NE(2d) 510 (App).

20. In a proceeding to establish the dependency of a child, GC § 1639-23 makes the complaint sufficiently definite by the simple use of the word "dependent": In re Duncan, 62 OLA 173, 107 NE(2d) 256 (App).

21. Under the authority derived from RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.27 and 2151.35, the juvenile court has the authority to hear and determine the case of a neglected child notwithstanding the fact that the child is at the time within the continuing jurisdiction of the common pleas court by virtue of a divorce decree: In re Gail, 12 OMisc 251, 41 OO(2d) 341, 231 NE(2d) 253 (JC).

22. The fact that the juvenile reached the age of eighteen on the day after the complaint was filed in juvenile court did not alone deprive that court of jurisdiction: In re Davis, 22 OO(2d) 108, 179 NE(2d) 198 (JC).

23. The juvenile court having once waived jurisdiction to handle a case under the juvenile code must order further proceedings under the regular procedural provisions of the criminal law: In re Davis, 22 OO(2d) 108, 179 NE(2d) 198 (JC).

24. A minor may be brought to the attention of the juvenile court on a petition that merely alleges that he is a delinquent child: In re L——, 25 OO(2d) 369, 194 NE(2d) 797 (JC).

25. Where a petition is filed in which specific allegations are stated and in which it is alleged that the minor did assault a police officer about the face and body by striking him with fists, it is necessary to establish by a preponderance of the evidence that the allegations of the petition are true: In re L——, 25 OO(2d) 369, 194 NE(2d) 797 (JC).

26. There is no language in RC § 3107.12 which indicates that a certification of a case by the probate court to the juvenile court is to be considered a complaint: In re Robert O., 28 OO(2d) 165, 199 NE(2d) 765 (JC).

27. The fact that the mother initially gave up her child for the purpose of adoption does not constitute such rejection of the child as to warrant a finding that the child is a neglected child: In re Robert O., 28 OO(2d)

165, 199 NE(2d) 765 (JC).

28. Under this section, service on the parents is not needed to give jurisdiction to the juvenile court if the neglect or delinquency of the minor children took place in the county assuming jurisdiction: In re Goshorn, 82 OLA 599, 167 NE(2d) 146 (JC).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1647

29. A court of common pleas, having made an order concerning the disposition of a minor child of parents involved in divorce proceedings, has continuing jurisdiction of such child, precluding a juvenile court from taking independent jurisdiction thereof. If the best interests of the child demand a change of custody, the proper procedure is by application to the common pleas court to modify its former order: Cleveland Prot. Orphan Asylum v. Soule, 3 App 67, 24 CC(NS) 151, 26 CD 135, 60 Bull 449 (Ed), 60 Bull 473 (Ed) [citing In re Crist, 89 OS 33; Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110].

30. In a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, the affidavit, in order to charge a crime, must allege that the minor is under eighteen years of age, and is a delinquent within the meaning of the statute, and that the defendant is guilty of contributing to such delinquency: Willison v. State, 3 App 244, 21 CC(NS) 526, 25 CD 558.

31. Service of citation upon the parent of a child in a proceeding under GC § 1647 (see now RC § 2151.27) is not a condition precedent to jurisdiction over the child: Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453.

32. It is true that the statute, GC § 1647, provides that it shall be sufficient in an affidavit to set out that a child is a dependent or delinquent child. But where the affiant elects to set out the particular wherein it is claimed that the child is dependent, and it is entirely insufficient to constitute dependency, [the court does not acquire] jurisdiction: Smith v. Privette, 13 OLA 291 (App).

33. Under authority of this section, it is sufficient if the complainant defines the child's condition by the words of the statute without setting out the details: In re Hayes, 28 OLA 154, 23 NE(2d) 956.

34. Whenever a child is alleged to be dependent, a juvenile court is authorized to receive evidence on all matters pertaining to that question, even though all facts of dependency are not alleged in complaint: In re Decker, 28 NP(NS) 433.

[§ 2151.27.1] § 2151.271 Transfer to juvenile court of another county.

If the child resides in a county of the state and the proceeding is commenced in a juvenile court of another county, that court, on its own motion or a motion of a party, may transfer the proceeding to the county of the child's residence upon the filing of the complaint or after the adjudicatory, or dispositional hearing, for such further proceeding as required. The court of the child's residence shall then proceed as if the original complaint had been filed in that court. Transfer may also be made if the residence of the child changes. The proceeding shall be so transferred if other proceedings involving the child are pending in the juvenile court of the county of his residence.

Whenever a case is transferred to the county of the child's residence and it appears to the court of that county that the interests of justice and the convenience of the parties requires that the adjudicatory hearing be had in the county wherein the complaint was filed, the court may return the proceeding to the county wherein the complaint was filed for the purpose of such adjudicatory hearing. The court may thereafter proceed as to the transfer to the county of the child's legal residence as provided in this section.

Certified copies of all legal and social records pertaining to the case shall accompany the transfer.

Ohio Rules

§ 2151.28 Summons.

(A) After the complaint has been filed, the court shall fix a time for hearing, which, if the child is in detention, shall not be later than ten days after the filing of the complaint. It shall direct the issuance of a summons directed to the child except as provided by this section, the parents, guardian, custodian, or other person with whom the child may be and such other persons as appear to the court to be proper or necessary parties to the proceedings, requiring them to appear before the court at the time fixed to answer the allegations of the complaint. A child alleged to be abused, neglected, or dependent shall not be summoned unless the court so directs. A summons issued for a child who is under fourteen years of age and who is alleged to be a delinquent or unruly child or a juvenile traffic offender shall be served on his parent, guardian, or custodian in his behalf.

If the person who has physical custody of the child, or with whom the child resides, is other than the parent or guardian, then the parents and guardian shall also be summoned. A copy of the complaint shall accompany the summons.

If the complaint contains a prayer for permanent custody in a neglect or dependency case, the summons served on the parents shall contain an explanation that the granting of such custody permanently divests the parents of their parental rights and privileges.

(B) The court may endorse upon the summons an order directing the parents, or guardian of the child, or other person with whom the child may be to appear personally at the hearing and directing the person having the physical custody or control of the child to bring the child to the hearing.

(C) The summons shall contain a statement advising that any party is entitled to counsel in the proceedings and that the court will appoint counsel or designate a county public defender or joint county public defender to provide legal representation if the party is indigent.

(D) If it appears from affidavit filed or from sworn testimony before the court that the conduct, condition, or surroundings of the child are endangering his health or welfare or those of others, or that he may abscond or be removed from the jurisdiction of the court or will not be brought to the court, notwithstanding the service of the summons, the court may endorse upon the summons an order that a law enforcement officer shall serve the summons and shall take the child into immediate custody and bring him forthwith to the court.

(E) A party, other than the child, may waive service of summons by written stipulation.

(F) Before any temporary commitment is made permanent, the court shall fix a time for hearing and shall cause notice by summons to be served upon the parent or guardian of the child, or published, as provided in section 2151.29 of the Revised Code. Such summons shall contain an explanation that the granting of permanent custody permanently divests the parents of their parental rights and privileges.

(G) Any person whose presence is considered necessary and who is not summoned may be subpoenaed to appear and testify at the hearing. Any one summoned or subpoenaed to appear who fails to do so may be punished, as in other cases in the court of common pleas, for contempt of court. Persons subpoenaed shall be paid the same witness fees as are allowed in the court of common pleas.

1. By virtue of the provisions of this section, the parents of a minor child or children are entitled to notice, actual or constructive, in a proceeding instituted in the juvenile court upon a complaint of dependency of such children. Unless such notice is given to the parents, the jurisdiction of the court does not attach, and a judgment of commitment rendered in such proceeding is void: In re Corey, 145 OS 413, 31 OO 35, 61 NE(2d) 892.

2. The mother of an illegitimate child is entitled to notice of a guardianship proceeding concerning the child, and where the sheriff's return of a citation for the mother shows that no service was made upon her and the record of the juvenile court fails to show a voluntary appearance by her or that service was made upon her by publication, the juvenile court is without jurisdiction over the child and its judgment of permanent commitment rendered in such proceeding is void ab initio, even though the entry of commitment recites "that the citation heretofore issued has been duly served, and all persons interested are now before the court": In re McLean, 65 App 106, 18 OO 327, 29 NE(2d) 425.

2.1 Revised Code §§ 2151.28 and 2151.31, a part of the juvenile court act, do not require a hearing as a condition precedent to the taking of a child into custody, pursuant to order of a juvenile court, during pendency of an action in such court: In re Jones, 114 App 319, 19 OO(2d) 286, 182 NE(2d) 631.

3. A father is a party to proceedings in a juvenile court in which his children are found to be neglected and in which temporary custody is given to the mother; and he is also a party to a subsequent proceeding in the same court modifying such temporary custody order and is entitled to appear in an appeal from such order and move to dismiss such appeal: In re Rule, 1 OApp(2d) 57, 30 OO(2d) 76, 203 NE(2d) 501.

4. Where a hearing is held under the provisions of this section, the juvenile court may deal with the child as provided therein even to the point of making an order for permanent custody, notwithstanding that the child is a ward of another court of this state by virtue of custody order arising out of a divorce action: James v. Child Welfare Board, 9 OApp(2d) 299, 38 OO(2d) 347, 224 NE(2d) 358.

5. Where only the father and mother were cited to appear, the court acquired jurisdiction only of the parents and not of the children: Pesta v. Pesta, 45 OLA 631, 68 NE(2d) 234 (App).

6. When [a parent] was made defendant in the divorce action in the domestic relations court and was duly served with summons in that action, he was bound with knowledge that the divorce court had jurisdiction to make disposition of the child of the parties to that action. . . . [a]nd by his failure to appear in that action he is estopped from . . . claiming that the court was without jurisdiction to make the order here complained of: In re McCoy, 72 OLA 519, 135 NE(2d) 638 (App).

7. Regular legal notice by service of process on the parent is an indispensable prerequisite to jurisdiction of the juvenile court to make commitment of a minor child charged with being delinquent: In re Flickinger, 20 OO 224 (CP).

8. The parents of a minor child, in court by citation or notice, are parties to a proceeding before the juvenile court to determine whether such child is a neglected child and where the child is determined to be a neglected child and made a ward of the court and committed to the temporary custody of the county child welfare board, any resistance by the parents to the execution of such order, either active or passive, constitutes a contempt for which such parents may be punished by the court: State v. Hershberger, 77 OLA 487, 150 NE(2d) 671 (JC).

9. In a proceeding to determine whether a child is a neglected child, the parents, in court by citation or notice, are parties even though such proceeding is designated as an ex parte proceeding and they are parties to any order made therein: State v. Hershberger, 77 OLA 487, 150 NE(2d) 671 (JC).

10. The notice provision of the code of the juvenile court must be complied with before the court acquires jurisdiction of any child before it, and since parents are necessary parties to any proceedings concerning a child in the juvenile court they must either be served with the required citations or notices, or must enter their appearance in some other manner: Mobley v. Allaman, 89 OLA 473, 184 NE(2d) 707 (PC).

11. A court acquires jurisdiction over the person of a defendant either by service of process upon him, whereby he is brought into court against his will, or by his voluntary appearance and submission; an appearance for any purpose, except to object to the jurisdiction over the person, constitutes a submission to the jurisdiction of the court; appearance in court or participation in the trial subjects the defendant to the court's jurisdiction: Mobley v. Allaman, 89 OLA 473, 184 NE(2d) 707 (PC).

11.1 The sheriff is required to serve summons, notices, and subpoenas which are directed to him by the juvenile court: 1970 OAG No. 70-130.

11.2 In the event the juvenile court requests the summons, notices, or subpoenas to be served personally or whether the same is to be delivered by registered or certified mail, the sheriff's office is legally required to serve the same in accordance with the directions of the juvenile court: 1970 OAG No. 70-130.

11.3 If the person to be served summons, notices, and subpoenas of the juvenile court is out of the state and his address is known, service of summons may be made by the sheriff by delivering a copy to him personally or mailing a copy to him by registered or certified mail: 1970 OAG No. 70-130.

11.4 Both the existing juvenile code and the Juvenile Rules require a hearing before a temporary commitment to the Ohio youth commission can be made permanent, which hearing requires the presence of the youth involved: 1972 OAG No. 72-071.

12. All fact-finding hearings in juvenile court must measure up to the essentials of due process, including adequate and timely notice so that the child and his parents have opportunity to respond. In hearings which may result in commitment, the child is entitled to counsel and must be informed of his legal rights, including privilege against self-incrimination, prior to a confession: In re Gault, 387 US 1, 40 OO(2d) 378, 18 LE(2d) 527, 87 SCt 1428.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1648

13. On grounds of public policy, an administrative or executive officer, whether he be constable, policeman, game warden, sheriff, or any other authorized officer of the state, whose duty it is under the law to serve the process of a court having jurisdiction of an offense sought to be charged in a complaint by affidavit, information or indictment, but which complaint is insufficient in law, is exempt from any liability arising from an imprisonment by virtue of such process, which is prima facie regular: Brinkman v. Drolesbaugh, 97 OS 171, 119 NE 451, LRA 1918F, 1132.

14. The words "other person having custody of such child," as used in GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28), mean a person having the custody created by operation of law or awarded to such person by judicial order: Rarey v. Schmidt, 115 OS 518, 154 NE 914.

15. An order of a juvenile court declaring a minor to be dependent and awarding its custody to a stranger, obtained without service upon the parent, the guardian or a person having the legal custody of such child, confers upon such stranger no power to consent to its adoption: Rarey v. Schmidt, 115 OS 518, 154 NE 914.

16. Under GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28), the mother of an illegitimate child must be notified of proceedings as to dependency; if notice is not given, jurisdiction does not attach, and the judgment is void. The prerequisites to notice by publication are jurisdictional: Lewis v. Reed, 117 OS 152, 157 NE 897.

18. In case of arrest of a minor, upon a warrant issued by a juvenile court, arising out of a complaint charging such minor with delinquency, the juvenile court has jurisdiction of the proceedings even though a citation has not been issued to the parents, guardian or other person having custody and control of such child, or with whom it may be: State ex rel Heth v. Moloney, 126 OS 526, 186 NE 362.

19. Under this section the mother of a child is entitled to notice, actual or constructive, of proceedings upon a complaint of dependency instituted in the juvenile court with reference to such child; and when a mother appears at and participates in a hearing in which the dependency of the child is considered, she waives all prior notice of proceedings upon such complaint of dependency to which she was entitled under the statute: Ex parte Province, 127 OS 333, 188 NE 550.

20. A parent, who has not been cited, under GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28), must seek remedy in the first instance in the juvenile court, of which the child is a ward: Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453.

21. Service of citation upon the parent of a child in a proceeding under GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28), is not a condition precedent to jurisdiction over the child: Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453.

22. Where mother and reputed father of dependent child were beyond the state, and custody was in an orphan asylum, publication of citation (GC § 1648 [see now RC § 2151.28]) was held sufficient, without an affidavit that service could not be made: In re Veselich, 22 App 528, 154 NE 55.

23. Where warrant was issued for infant daughter and subpoena was issued for mother, and mother appeared at hearing, the mother, under GC § 1648 (see now RC § 2151.28), received due notice in dependency proceeding against daughter: In re Cunningham, 27 App 306, 160 NE 733.

24. Where an affidavit charging delinquency is filed in juvenile court against a minor, and service is duly had on said minor while he or she is yet under age, the fact that said minor becomes of age does not take away jurisdiction of said court to proceed against said minor as a juvenile delinquent person: 1920 OAG vol.1, p.296.

25. Construction of GC §§ 1643 and 1648 (see now RC §§ 2151.38 and 2151.28) concerning the authority of the juvenile court for recommitment or adoption of children under age; citation to parents or guardian is not necessary where a judge changes a temporary order to a permanent one: 1925 OAG p.283.

26. While this section provides for an affidavit, and not for an indictment, it is not invalid under Art. I, § 10 of the constitution of Ohio which provides that the accused can be held to answer for an infamous crime only upon presentation by the grand jury; since delinquency is not made a crime by GC § 1644 (see now RC § 2151.02): In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

[§ 2151.28.1] § 2151.281 Guardian ad litem.

The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of a child in any proceeding concerning an alleged or adjudicated delinquent, unruly, or dependent child when:

(A) The child has no parent, guardian, or legal custodian;

(B) The court finds that there is a conflict of interest between the child and his parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of a child in any proceeding concerning an alleged abused or neglected child.

In any proceeding concerning an alleged or adjudicated delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent child where the parent appears to be mentally incompetent or is under eighteen years of age, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of such parent.

The court shall require such guardian ad litem to faithfully discharge his duties, and upon his failure to do so shall discharge him and appoint another. The court may fix compensation for the service of the guardian ad litem which shall be paid from the treasury of the county.

A parent who is eighteen years of age or older and not mentally incompetent shall be deemed sui juris for the purpose of any proceeding relative to his child alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child.

In any case wherein a parent of a child alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child is under eighteen years of age, the parents of said parent shall be summoned to appear at any hearing respecting the alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child.

§ 2151.29 Service of summons.

Service of summons, notices, and subpoenas, prescribed by section 2151.28 of the Revised Code, shall be made by delivering a copy to the person summoned, notified, or subpoenaed, or by leaving a copy at his usual place of residence. If the juvenile judge is satisfied that such service is impracticable, he may order service by registered or certified mail. If the person to be served is without the state but he can be found or his address is known, or his whereabouts or address can with reasonable diligence be ascertained, service of the summons may be made by delivering a copy to him personally or mailing a copy to him by registered or certified mail.

Whenever it appears by affidavit that after reasonable effort the person to be served with summons cannot be found or his post-office address ascertained, whether he is within or without a state, the clerk shall publish such summons once in a newspaper of general circulation throughout the county. The summons shall state the substance and the time and place of the hearing, which shall be held at least one week later than the date of the publication. A copy of the summons and the complaint shall be sent by registered or certified mail to the last known address of the person summoned unless it is shown by affidavit that a reasonable effort has been made, without success, to obtain such address.

A copy of the advertisement, summons, and complaint, accompanied by the certificate of the clerk that such publication has been made and that such summons and complaint have been mailed as required by this section, is sufficient evidence of publication and mailing. When a period of one week from the time of publication has elapsed, the juvenile court shall have full jurisdiction to deal with such child as provided by sections 2151.01 to 2151.99, inclusive, of the Revised Code.

1. Where a minor child has neither legal guardian nor a custodian created by operation of law or by judicial order, judgment, or decree, other than a parent, and the residence of such parent is known, service, actual or constructive, must be had upon such parent before a juvenile court has jurisdiction to declare such child a dependent child: Rarey v. Schmidt, 115 OS 518, 154 NE 914.

2. An order of a juvenile court declaring a minor child to be a dependent child and awarding its custody to a stranger, obtained without service upon the parent, the guardian, or a person having the custody of such child by operation of law or awarded by a judicial order, judgment, or decree, confers upon such stranger no power to consent to the adoption of such child by any one: Rarey v. Schmidt, 115 OS 518, 154 NE 914.

3. Under GC § 1648, the mother of an illegitimate child is entitled to notice, actual or constructive, of proceedings upon a complaint of dependency instituted in the juvenile court in reference to such child. Until notice of such proceedings has been given to the mother, the jurisdiction of the juvenile court does not attach and a judgment of permanent commitment rendered in such dependency proceeding is void: Lewis v. Reed, 117 OS 152, 157 NE 897.

4. A juvenile court is without jurisdiction to make permanent a temporary commitment of a dependent or delinquent child unless notice of the time and place of the hearing upon such matter is served on the parent or guardian of such child either by delivering a copy to the person to be notified, by leaving a copy at his usual place of residence, by service by registered mail, or by publication, as provided and directed by this section: In re Frinzl, 152 OS 164, 39 OO 456, 87 NE(2d) 583.

5. In order to be valid, such notice must be served sufficiently in advance of the hearing to give the person to be notified a reasonable time to obtain counsel and prepare for participation in such hearing: In re Frinzl, 152 OS 164, 39 OO 456, 87 NE(2d) 583.

6. Where the only notice given to the mother of an adjudged dependent child, of a hearing to change such child's temporary commitment to a permanent one, was served on the mother within an hour before such hearing and she had no opportunity between the time of being served with the notice and the time of the hearing, to either prepare for such hearing or to engage counsel to represent her, such notice is insufficient in law and an order for permanent custody made at such hearing is void for want of jurisdiction of the court in making it, and an attack made upon it by an application for a writ of habeas corpus is direct and not collateral and is proper even though the judgment appears to be regular and valid upon its face [Paragraph four of the syllabus in Lewis v. Reed, 117 OS 152, approved and followed]: In re Frinzl, 152 OS 164, 39 OO 456, 87 NE(2d) 583.

7. Knowledge by a mother that her daughter was being held and that a complaint probably would be made is not sufficient notice, because this section specifically requires that service of citations, notices and subpoenas shall be made personally by delivery of the attested copies thereof to the persons cited: In re Flickinger, 20 OO 224 (CP).

§ 2151.30 Issuance of warrant. (GC § 1639-26)

In any case when it is made to appear to the juvenile judge that the service of a citation under section 2151.29 of the Revised Code will be ineffectual or the welfare of the child requires that he be brought forthwith into the custody of the juvenile court, a warrant may be issued against the parent, custodian, or guardian, or against the child himself.

(C) By a law enforcement officer or duly authorized officer of the court when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child is suffering from illness or injury and is not receiving proper care, as defined in section 2151.03 of the Revised Code, or is in immediate danger from his surroundings, and that his removal is necessary;

(D) By a law enforcement officer or duly authorized officer of the court when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child has run away from his parents, guardian, or other custodian.

Taking a child into custody shall not be deemed an arrest except for the purpose of determining its validity under the constitution of this state or of the United States.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. In an action for damages for false imprisonment, the plaintiff has the burden to prove that the detention or restraint caused by the defendant was an unreasonable detention or restraint and was not accidental or incidental to the welfare of the plaintiff: Garland v. Dustman, 19 OApp(2d) 292, 48 OO(2d) 408, 251 NE(2d) 153.

2. Under the provisions of RC §§ 2151.14 and 2151.31, it is the manifest duty of enforcement officers to co-operate with and assist the juvenile authorities in the performance of their duties when such officers are specifically requested to do so by the juvenile authorities; and such officers may avoid liability in an action for false imprisonment by showing that they were justified in the detention or restraint of the juvenile made under the specific direction and order of the juvenile authorities: Garland v. Dustman, 19 OApp(2d) 292, 48 OO(2d) 408, 251 NE(2d) 153.

3. A juvenile judge and the quasi-judicial officers of a juvenile court are immune from liability for causing the detention of juveniles when they are acting within the scope of their jurisdiction, and public policy will not justify or sanction liability in damages for false imprisonment against enforcement officers acting in good faith under the direct orders of such juvenile authorities: *Garland v. 5. A police officer may take a child into protective custody without process where he has reasonable grounds to believe said child to be a delinquent, neglected or dependent child, and it is not necessary that the child be committing a misdemeanor in the officer's presence or that probable cause exist for the officer to believe that the child has been involved in the commission of a felony: In re L—, 25 OO(2d) 369, 194 NE(2d) 797 (JC).

[§ 2151.31.1] § 2151.311 Procedure upon apprehension.

(A) A person taking a child into custody shall, with all reasonable speed, either:

(1) Release the child to his parents, guardian, or other custodian upon their written promise to bring the child before the court when requested by the court, unless his detention or shelter care appears to be warranted or required as provided in section 2151.31 of the Revised Code;

(2) Bring the child to the court or deliver him to a place of detention or shelter care designated by the court and promptly give notice thereof, together with a statement of the reason for taking the child into custody, to a parent, guardian, or other custodian and to the court. Any temporary detention or inquiry of the child necessary to comply with division (A) (1) of this section shall conform to the procedures and conditions prescribed by this chapter and rules of court.

(B) If a parent, guardian, or other custodian fails, when requested, to bring the child before the court as provided by this section, the court may issue its warrant directing that the child be taken into custody and brought before the court.

(A) A child alleged to be delinquent, unruly, or a juvenile traffic offender may be detained only in the following places:

(1) A certified foster home or a home approved by the court;

(2) A facility operated by a certified child welfare agency;

(3) A detention home or center for delinquent children which is under the direction or supervision of the court or other public authority or of a private agency and approved by the court;

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The nature of the card upon which fingerprints or photograph is placed has nothing to do with their authenticity. The purpose of this section is not to determine their admissibility into evidence but rather to conform to the theory that juvenile proceedings are not criminal in nature: State v. Carder, 9 OS(2d) 1, 38 OO(2d) 1, 222 NE(2d) 620.

2. There is not statutory authority, in cases where juveniles are fingerprinted with the consent of the juvenile court under this section, which would permit or require local police officers to forward the fingerprint impressions so made to the state bureau of criminal identification for inclusion in the bureau's permanent files; nor is the bureau authorized, under GC § 1841-15 (RC § 5149.03), to procure and file for record the fingerprints of juveniles who are in any place of confinement under a commitment by a juvenile court on a charge of delinquency. 1952 OAG No. 1771.

[§ 2151.31.4] § 2151.314 De-tention hearing.

When a child is brought before the court or delivered to a place of detention or shelter care designated by the court, the intake or other authorized officer of the court shall immediately make an investigation and shall release the child unless it appears that his detention or shelter care is warranted or required under section 2151.31 of the Revised Code.

If he is not so released, a complaint under section 2151.27 of the Revised Code shall be filed and an informal detention hearing held promptly, not later than seventy-two hours after he is placed in detention, to determine whether detention or shelter care is required. Reasonable oral or written notice of the time, place, and purpose of the detention hearing shall be given to the child and, if they can be found, to his parents, guardian, or other custodian. Prior to the hearing, the court shall inform the parties of their right to counsel and to appointed counsel or to the services of the county public defender or joint county public defender, if they are indigent, and of the child's right to remain silent with respect to any allegation of delinquency. Unless it appears from the hearing that the child's detention or shelter care is required under the provisions of section 2151.31 of the Revised Code, the court shall order his release as provided by section 2151.311 [2151.31.1] of the Revised Code. If a parent, guardian, or custodian has not been so notified and did not appear or waive appearance at the hearing, upon filing of his affidavit stating these facts, the court shall rehear the matter without unnecessary delay.

§ 2151.33 Temporary care; emergency medical treatment; reimbursement. (GC § 1639-28)

Pending hearing of a complaint filed under section 2151.27 of the Revised Code and service of citations, the juvenile court may make such temporary disposition of any child as it deems best. Upon the certificate of one or more reputable practicing physicians, the court may summarily provide for emergency medical and surgical treatment which appears to be immediately necessary for any child concerning whom a complaint or an application for care has been filed, pending the service of a citation upon its parents, guardian, or custodian. The court may order the parents, guardian, or custodian, if found able to do so, to reimburse the court for the expense involved in providing such emergency medical and surgical treatment, and any such person who disobeys such order may be adjudged in contempt of court and punished accordingly.

When such emergency medical and surgical treatment is furnished a child who is found at the hearing to be a nonresident of the county, and if the expense of such medical and surgical treatment cannot be recovered from the parents, legal guardian, or custodian of such child, the board of county commissioners of the county in which such child has a legal settlement shall reimburse the court for the reasonable cost of such emergency medical or surgical treatment out of its general fund.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. This section is not unconstitutional: In re Clark, 21 OO(2d) 86, 185 NE(2d) 128 (CP).

2. Where a child's life is concerned, the juvenile court has not only the right but the duty to act in the child's behalf first, and give the parents their day in court later: In re Clark, 21 OO(2d) 86, 185 NE(2d) 128 (CP).

3. A juvenile court may summarily give the medical staff of a hospital authority to administer blood transfusions to a child suffering serious burns, whose blood condition is deteriorating, although the child's parents refused to give permission because of religious beliefs: In re Clark, 21 OO(2d) 86, 185 NE(2d) 128 (CP).

4. When a child's right to live and his parents' religious belief collide, the former is paramount, and the religious doctrine must give way: In re Clark, 21 OO(2d) 86, 185 NE(2d) 128 (CP).

5. When a complaint or application for care concerning a child has been filed with the juvenile court, such court may, pending service of a citation on the child's parents, guardian or custodian, order the provision of emergency medical or surgical treatment upon the certificate of one or more reputable practicing physicians, as provided in this section: 1951 OAG No.898.

6. Where a child is being cared for by a county welfare department or board of child welfare, by agreement with the parents or guardian of such child, only such parents or guardian may properly consent, upon competent medical advice, to medical or surgical treatment of such child: 1951 OAG No.898.

7. Where a physician or surgeon seeks to avoid potential liability in tort for the administration, without the patient's consent, of medical or surgical treatment to a minor child receiving care from a child welfare board, the question, in particular cases, of what person, organization or authority is competent to give such consent on behalf of such child, so as effectively to protect him from incurring such liability, is ultimately one for decision by the physician or surgeon concerned, upon advice of private counsel: 1951 OAG No.898.

[DISTRICT DETENTION HOMES]

No child under eighteen years of age shall be placed in or committed to any prison, jail, or lockup, nor shall such child be brought into any police station, vehicle, or other place where the child can come in contact or communication with any adult convicted of crime or under arrest and charged with crime. A child may be confined in a place of juvenile detention for a period not to exceed ninety days, during which time a social history may be prepared to include court record, family history, personal history, school and attendance records, and such other pertinent studies and material as will be of assistance to the juvenile court in its disposition of the charges against such juvenile offenders.

Upon the advice and recommendation of the judge, the board of county commissioners shall provide, by purchase, lease, construction, or otherwise, a place to be known as a detention home, which shall be within a convenient distance of the juvenile court, and not used for the confinement of adult persons charged with criminal offenses, where delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused children, or juvenile traffic offenders may be detained until final disposition. Upon the joint advice and recommendation of the juvenile judges of two or more adjoining or neighboring counties, the boards of county commissioners of such counties shall form themselves into a joint board, and proceed to organize a district for the establishment and support of a detention home for the use of the juvenile courts of such counties, where delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused children, or juvenile traffic offenders may be detained until final disposition, by using a site or buildings already established in one such county, or by providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of the necessary buildings thereon.

The county or district detention home shall be maintained as provided in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code. In any county in which there is no detention home, or which is not served by a district detention home, the board of county commissioners shall provide funds for the boarding of such children temporarily in private homes. Children who are alleged to be or have been adjudged delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused, or juvenile traffic offenders, may, after complaint is filed, be detained in such detention home or certified foster homes until final disposition of their case. The court may arrange for the boarding of such children in certified foster homes or in uncertified foster homes for a period not exceeding sixty days, subject to the supervision of the court, or may arrange with any county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, or certified organization to receive for temporary care children within the jurisdiction of the court. A district detention home approved for such purpose by the youth commission under section 5139.281 [5139.28.1] of the Revised Code may receive children committed to its temporary custody under section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code and provide the care, treatment, and training required.

In case a detention home is established as an agency of the court, or a district detention home is established by the courts of several counties as hereinbefore provided, it shall be furnished and carried on, as far as possible, as a family home in charge of a superintendent or matron in a non-punitive neutral atmosphere. The judge, or the directing board of a district detention home, may appoint a superintendent, a matron, and other necessary employees for such home and fix their salaries. During the school year, when possible, a comparable educational program with competent and trained staff shall be provided for those children of school age. A sufficient number of trained recreational personnel shall be included among the staff to assure wholesome and profitable leisure-time activities. Medical and mental health services shall be made available to insure the courts all possible treatment facilities shall be given to those children placed under their care. In the case of a county detention home, such salaries shall be paid in the same manner as is provided by section 2151.13 of the Revised Code for other employees of the court, and the necessary expenses incurred in maintaining such detention home shall be paid by the county. In the case of a district detention home, such salaries and the necessary expenses incurred in maintaining such detention home shall be paid as provided in sections 2151.341 [2151.34.1] to 2151.3415 [2151.34.15] of the Revised Code.

In case the court arranges for the board of children temporarily detained in such foster homes, or arranges for such board through any private certified organization, a reasonable sum to be fixed by the court for the board of such children shall be paid by the county. In order to have such foster homes available for service an agreed monthly subsidy may be paid and a fixed rate per day for care of children actually residing therein.

1. This section, which requires that, "upon the advice and recommendation of the judge, the board of county commissioners shall provide, by purchase, lease, construction, or otherwise, a place to be known as a detention home," is mandatory, and a writ of mandamus will issue to compel the board to exercise its discretion in making provision for such home: State ex rel Ray v. South, 178 OS 241, 27 OO(2d) 133, 198 NE(2d) 919.

2. Impossibility of performance is a viable defense to a complaint for mandamus seeking to compel county commissioners to provide a juvenile detention facility: State ex rel. Johns v. County Commrs., 29 OS(2d) 6, 58 OO(2d) 65, 278 NE(2d) 19.

3. Where a county has no separate juvenile detention home as provided in this section, and the only facility for the detention of juveniles, as ordered and authorized by the juvenile judge, is a juvenile ward which is separated and secluded from the adult sections but is located in the county jail; and where, pursuant to verbal directions by the chief probation officer of the juvenile court, an eight-year-old boy, in the company of his father who was arrested by deputy sheriffs at 1:30 a.m., is placed by the deputy sheriffs, together with his father, in the juvenile ward in the county jail until the mother of the boy could come to take the boy home; and where the boy and his father are in the juvenile ward in the county jail for approximately one-and-one half hours when the mother arrived and took the boy home; the sheriff of the county is not liable in damages in an action for false imprisonment, brought by the mother on behalf of the boy, for the detention of the boy placed in the juvenile ward by his deputy sheriffs under the specific directions of the chief probation officer of the juvenile court: Garland v. Dustman, 19 OApp(2d) 292, 48 OO(2d) 408, 251 NE(2d) 153.

4. This section provides that no child under eighteen shall be placed in or committed to any prison, jail, or lockup; and such section provides further that it is the mandatory duty of the county commissioners of each county, upon the advice and recommendation of the juvenile judge, to provide a separate juvenile detention home for the detention of juveniles under the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts: Garland v. Dustman, 19 OApp(2d) 292, 48 OO(2d) 408, 251 NE(2d) 153.

5. A final order of disposition of a child found to be delinquent, as prescribed by RC § 2151.35.5, may not include, as punishment or otherwise, confinement (or detention) in a juvenile detention home: In re Bolden, 37 OApp(2d) 7, 66 OO(2d) 26, 306 NE(2d) 166 (1973).

6. This section, providing that no child under eighteen years of age shall be placed in any prison, jail or lock-up is mandatory and the county jail being a prison, within the meaning and inhibition of such section, the imprisonment of a child under eighteen years of age in such county jail is contrary to law: In re Karnes, 67 OLA 449, 121 NE(2d) 156 (App).

10. It is necessary that the trial of the accused, under the juvenile court laws, who has been committed pending the final disposition of the case, be commenced within four days of such commitment, unless otherwise requested by the defendant: 1918 OAG vol.1, p.160.

11. A juvenile under fourteen years of age may not, pending final disposition of his case, be confined in a cell in the upper part of the county jail even though such cell is separate from the county jail proper: 1918 OAG vol.2, p.1592.

12. Board of education has authority to forbid attendance of inmates of a county detention home at the public schools of the district: 1921 OAG vol.2, p.942.

13. Unless a dependent child is committed to an institution designated by GC § 1639-34 (RC § 2151.36), or a family home, and in conformity with the juvenile court code, no payment for the care and board of such child is authorized, as there is no commitment under the law: 1937 OAG No.983.

14. If the judge of the juvenile court advises and recommends the establishment of a detention home, it is mandatory upon the county commissioners to purchase or lease such detention home within a convenient distance of the court, and the court is authorized to commit a delinquent child to such detention home in the same manner as it is in the case of commitment to any other suitable public institution: 1938 OAG Nos.2803, 2804.

15. County commissioners are not empowered by this section to acquire a detention home upon a request by the judge of the court exercising the power and jurisdiction conferred by GC §1639-1 (RC §2151.01) et seq: 1949 OAG No.1231.

16. A judge of the court exercising such powers and jurisdiction is limited to advising and recommending the need of a detention home and the extent of the facilities required to fulfill that need: 1949 OAG No.1231.

17. In case a juvenile detention home is established, it is under the supervision of the juvenile judge who also has the sole authority to appoint necessary employees for such home. The county, through the board of county commissioners, has a duty to provide sufficient funds for the operation of the home: 1961 OAG No.2034.

18. Where, under this section a juvenile judge of a county, on January 6, 1959, advised and recommended that a detention home be provided at a certain location and the board of county commissioners has taken no action in this regard for two years, the advice and recommendation for the establishment of a detention home are still in effect. The board, while not being required to follow the specific recommendations as to location, has a mandatory duty to provide a detention home within a convenient distance of the juvenile court: 1961 OAG No.2034.

19. Pursuant to this section a juvenile detention home is a place not used for the confinement of adult persons. Such a home should be separate and apart from buildings in which adult persons are confined. Accordingly, such a juvenile detention home may not properly be established in a county jail, even though one complete floor of the jail would be used for such purpose and the intention would be to keep the one floor separate and apart from the rest of the jail: 1962 OAG No.2814.

20. Under this section, the governing authority of the juvenile detention home shall when possible provide "a comparable educational program" for those children of school age in the home; and the expense thereof shall be treated in the same manner as any other expense of operation of a juvenile detention home: 1963 OAG No.261.

21. When it is not possible for the governing authority of a juvenile detention home to provide "a comparable educational program," an educational program shall be provided by the school district in which the home is located by force of RC §3313.55; and the expense thereof shall be assumed by the county: 1963 OAG No.261.

22. A detention home provided by authority of this section is for the detention of "delinquent, dependent, neglected children, or juvenile traffic offenders . . . until final disposition": 1963 OAG No.553.

23. If a district detention home is established pursuant to this section, the board of county commissioners of each participating county shall provide for its proportionate share of the costs of establishing, maintaining, and supporting the detention home: 1966 OAG No.66-173.

24. Until the juvenile judge or juvenile judges advise and recommend the establishment of a county or a district detention home, pursuant to this section, there is no legal authority to levy a tax for that purpose. There is no statutory authority for a tax levy in the alternative. Revised Code §§5705.19, 5705.25: 1966 OAG No.66-173.

25. There is no statutory authority to submit a proposed district levy to the voters of such district for the purpose of building a district detention home pursuant to RC §2151.34 et seq, either before or after the formation of a district board of trustees: 1966 OAG No.66-173.

26. If the county adult detention facility is designed with a space which is enclosed on all sides, that is distinct, set apart and disconnected so that no child over the age of fifteen placed in that space will come in contact or communication with any adult convicted of or arrested for a crime and the public interest and safety require the detention of such child when a delinquent detention facility is not available, the use of such adult facility is authorized by the Revised Code: 1970 OAG No. 70-015.

27. A judge of a juvenile court may not commit a child who has been found to be a delinquent child, or a juvenile traffic offender, to the county jail upon the failure, refusal, or inability of such child to pay a fine and court costs: 1970 OAG No. 70-143.

[§ 2151.34.1] § 2151.341 [Application for financial assistance; tax assessment for operation of district detention home.]

The board of trustees of a district detention home may make application to the youth commission under section 5139.281 [5139.28.1] of the Revised Code for financial assistance in defraying the cost of operating and maintaining the home. Such application shall be made on forms prescribed and furnished by the youth commission. The joint boards of county commissioners of district detention homes shall make annual assessments of taxes sufficient to support and defray all necessary expenses of such home not paid from funds made available under section 5139.281 [5139.28.1] of the Revised Code.

1. This section has been construed and applied: In re Ramsey, 164 OS 567, 58 OO 431, 132 NE(2d) 469.

2. The provisions of this section relating to the hearing and commitment of a delinquent child without an indictment or a jury trial are not violative of Const., Art. I, § 5 or § 10: In re Darnell, 173 OS 335, 19 OO(2d) 269, 182 NE(2d) 321.

3. Proceedings in the juvenile court are civil in nature and not criminal. This section implies protection for the minor and not punishment: Cope v. Campbell, 175 OS 475, 26 OO(2d) 88, 196 NE(2d) 457.

4. Any adjudication of delinquency must be supported by clear and convincing evidence: In re Agler, 19 OS(2d) 70, 48 OO(2d) 85, 249 NE(2d) 808.

5. Delinquency proceedings in juvenile court do not require indictment or trial by jury under the Fifth, Sixth and Fourteenth Amendments to the Constitution of the United States or under Sections 5 and 10 of Article I of the Constitution of Ohio: In re Agler, 19 OS(2d) 70, 48 OO(2d) 85, 249 NE(2d) 808.

6. Proceedings in a juvenile court are civil in nature, the customary rules of evidence governing civil actions must be followed, and hearsay evidence is not admissible; and a mere preponderance of the evidence is sufficient to warrant a determination that a minor is a delinquent, even though such determination involves a finding that a criminal statute has been violated by such minor: State v. Shardell, 107 App 338, 8 OO(2d) 262, 153 NE(2d) 510.

7. Proceedings instituted in a juvenile court are not criminal in nature nor are they conducted with the object of convicting a minor of a crime and punishing him therefor; they are informal hearings through the medium of the juvenile court to determine whether the child needs intervention of the state as guardian and protector of his person: State v. Shardell, 107 App 338, 8 OO(2d) 262, 153 NE(2d) 510.

9. The authority granted the court by this section to "conduct its hearings in an informal manner" does not abrogate the right of a minor defendant to a separate trial: In re Allen, 10 OApp(2d) 120, 39 OO(2d) 200, 226 NE(2d) 135.

10. The provisions of the juvenile code of Ohio relating to delinquency of juveniles are not designed as punishment for crime, but to place minors of the description and for the causes specified in the statute, under the guardianship of the public authorities named, for proper care, discipline, education and training, until they are rehabilitated or arrive at the age of majority: In re Whittington, 13 OApp(2d) 11, 42 OO(2d) 39, 233

NE(2d) 333 [overruled, In re Whittington, 17 OApp(2d) 164, 46 OO(2d) 237, 245 NE(2d) 364.]

11. Federal constitutional guarantees accompanying ordinary criminal proceedings are applicable to state juvenile court proceedings where possible commitment to a state institution is involved: In re Whittington, 391 US 341, 45 OO(2d) 31, 20 LEd(2d) 625, 88 SCt 1507. [In re Whittington, 13 OApp(2d) 11, 42 OO(2d) 39, 233 NE(2d) 333, cited n 10, supra, overruled in 17 OApp(2d) 164, 46 OO(2d) 237, 245 NE(2d) 364.]

12. Where a juvenile has received the following essentials of due process and fair treatment, (1) written notice of the specific charge or factual allegations, given to the juvenile and his parents or guardian sufficiently in advance of the hearing to permit preparation; (2) notification to the juvenile and his parents of the juvenile's right to be represented by counsel retained by them, or, if they are unable to afford counsel, that counsel will be appointed to represent the juvenile; (3) application of the constitutional privileges against self-incrimination; and (4), absent a valid confession, a determination of delinquency and an order of commitment based only on sworn testimony subjected to the opportunity for cross-examination in accordance with constitutional requirements, such juvenile has not been deprived of due process under either the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of the state of Ohio: In re Baker, 18 OApp(2d) 276, 47 OO(2d) 411, 248 NE(2d) 620.

13. RC § 3109.04, which permits the court to allow the choice of a child of fourteen years of age or more to determine with which parent he will live, is applicable to a proceeding for change of custody under the juvenile court act: In re Smelser, 22 OMisc 41, 51 OO(2d) 31, 257 NE(2d) 769 (JC).

14. The fact that the juvenile reached the age of eighteen on the day after the complaint was filed in juvenile court did not alone deprive that court of jurisdiction: In re Davis, 22 OO(2d) 108, 179 NE(2d) 198 (JC).

15. Proceedings instituted in a juvenile court are not criminal in nature nor are they conducted with the objective of convicting a minor of a crime and punishing him therefor; they are informal hearings through a medium of the juvenile court to determine whether the child needs intervention of the state as guardian and protector of his person: In re L——, 25 OO(2d) 369, 194 NE(2d) 797 (JC).

16. In the absence of a valid confession, a juvenile can be committed only upon sworn testimony subject to cross-examination: In re Gault, 387 US 1, 40 OO(2d) 378, 18 LEd(2d) 527, 87 SCt 1428.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER GC § 1652

17. This section, which authorizes the judge to determine the question of delinquency without a jury, is not rendered invalid by Art. I, § 5 of the constitution of Ohio, which provides that the right of trial by jury shall be inviolate; nor is it rendered invalid by the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, which provides that no one shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

18. Inasmuch as the privileges and immunities of a citizen of the United States do not include the right to trial by jury in a state court, even for a state offense, or the right to be exempt from trial for an infamous crime, except upon presentment by a grand jury, it follows that a jury trial is not essential in all cases of due process of law; and the commitment of the petitioner to the boys' industrial school for incorrigibility by the juvenile court of Cuyahoga county was not rendered invalid by reason of the fact that it was without the intervention of a jury, notwithstanding the charge in the affidavit upon which he was arrested was that he was a delinquent in that he maliciously and purposely shot M with intent to kill: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER RC § 2151.35.1

1. In order to sustain commitment of a juvenile offender to a state institution in a delinquency proceeding, where such commitment will deprive the child of his liberty, the alleged delinquent must have been afforded representation by counsel, appointed at state expense in case of indigency: In re Agler, 19 OS(2d) 70, 48 OO(2d) 85, 249 NE(2d) 808.

2. When the court deems it necessary to appoint counsel for a juvenile, pursuant to RC § 2151.35.1, such counsel's services shall be paid for by the county as is stated therein: 1969 OAG No.69-110.

[§ 2151.35.2] § 2151.352 Right to counsel.

A child, his parents, custodian, or other person in loco parentis of such child is entitled to representation by legal counsel at all stages of the proceedings and if, as an indigent person, he is unable to employ counsel, to have counsel provided for him pursuant to Chapter 120. of the Revised Code. If a party appears without counsel, the court shall ascertain whether he knows of his right to counsel and of his right to be provided with counsel if he is an indigent person. The court may continue the case to enable a party to obtain counsel or to be represented by the county public defender or the joint county public defender and shall provide counsel upon request pursuant to Chapter 120. of the Revised Code. Counsel must be provided for a child not represented by his parent, guardian, or custodian. If the interests of two or more such parties conflict, separate counsel shall be provided for each of them.

Section 2935.14 of the Revised Code applies to any child taken into custody. The parents, custodian, or guardian of such child, and any attorney at law representing them or the child, shall be entitled to visit such child at any reasonable time, be present at any hearing involving the child, and be given reasonable notice of such hearing.

Any report or part thereof concerning such child, which is used in the hearing and is pertinent thereto, shall for good cause shown be made available to any attorney at law representing such child and to any attorney at law representing the parents, custodians, or guardian of such child, upon written request prior to any hearing involving such child.

If the child is adjudged an abused, neglected, or dependent child, the court may make any of the following orders of disposition:

(A) Permit the child to remain with his parents, guardian, or other custodian, subject to such conditions and limitations as the court prescribes, including supervision as directed by the court for the protection of the child;

(B) Commit the child to the temporary custody of the department of public welfare, a county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, any other certified organization, the Ohio youth commission for the purpose of diagnostic study and report as provided by division (B) of section 5139.05 of the Revised Code, either parent or a relative residing within or outside the state or a probation officer for placement in a certified foster home;

(C) Commit the child to the temporary custody of any institution or agency in this state or another state authorized and qualified to provide the care, treatment, or placement that the child requires;

(D) Commit the child permanently to the county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, or to any other certified agency. Upon such commitment the natural or adoptive parents are divested of all legal rights and obligations due from them to the child or from the child to them.

No order for permanent custody shall be made at the hearing wherein the child is adjudicated abused, neglected, or dependent except and unless the complaint alleging the abuse, neglect, or dependency contains a prayer requesting such permanent custody and the summons served on the parents contains a full explanation that the granting of such an order permanently divests them of their parental rights.

1. Under RC § 2151.35.3, the filing of a complaint containing a prayer requesting permanent custody of minor children, sufficiently apprising the parents of the grounds upon which the order is to be based, and the service of summons upon the parents, explaining that the granting of such an order permanently divests them of their parental rights, are prerequisite to a valid adjudication that a child is neglected or dependent for the purpose of obtaining an order for permanent custody divesting parental rights: In re Fassinger, 42 OS(2d) 505, 71 OO(2d) 503, 330 NE (2d) 431 (1975).

2. The mere allegation in a motion filed by the county welfare department that "it would appear to be in the best interests of said minors that they be placed permanently for adoption" does not state grounds under which a Juvenile Court may lawfully take permanent custody of children from their natural parents. In a hearing conducted pursuant to RC § 2151.35, in which the welfare department seeks to take permanent custody of children from their natural parents, the welfare department has the burden to plead and prove by clear and convincing evidence that the children are presently neglected or dependent. An adjudication of dependency made in a temporary custody hearing does not constitute legal grounds for granting permanent custody of minor children to the welfare department where over 22 months have elapsed between the temporary and permanent custody hearings, and where custody had been returned to the natural parents in the interim period between the temporary and permanent custody hearings. The granting of permanent custody under such circumstances requires a contemporaneous finding of dependency: In re Fassinger, 43 OApp(2d) 89, 72 OO(2d) 292, 334 NE(2d) 5 (1974).

3. Permanent custody of a dependent child will be granted to the county welfare department if it is for the best interest of a child, despite the well-intentioned concern of the maternal grandparents who wished to adopt the child: In re Baby Girl, 32 OMisc 217, 61 OO(2d) 439, 290 NE(2d) 925.

4. Both the existing juvenile code and the Juvenile Rules require a hearing before a temporary commitment to the Ohio youth commission can be made permanent, which hearing requires the presence of the youth involved: 1972 OAG No. 72-071.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER RC § 2151.35

5. The authority granted a juvenile court in this section to make certain specified dispositions and commitments of children in matters before it can be exercised by such only if the child before it is found to be a juvenile traffic offender or is delinquent, neglected or dependent: In re Darst, 117 App 374, 24 OO(2d) 144, 192 NE(2d) 287.

6. Where the juvenile court finds that children are both neglected and dependent, the welfare of the children requires that they be permanently committed to the county welfare department: In re Douglas, 11 OO(2d) 340, 164 NE(2d) 475 (JC).

7. An order modifying a previously-entered temporary custody order which was made in disposition of a finding that a child is neglected constitutes a final appealable order pursuant to the provisions of RC § 2501.02: In re Rule, 1 OApp(2d) 57, 30 OO(2d) 76, 203 NE(2d) 501.

8. Under the authority derived from RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.27 and 2151.35, the juvenile court has the authority to hear and determine the case of a neglected child notwithstanding the fact that the child is at the time within the continuing jurisdiction of the common pleas court by virtue of a divorce decree: In re Gail, 41 OO(2d) 341, 12 OMisc 251, 231 NE(2d) 253.

9. The juvenile court, pursuant to this section, may commit children directly to a district children's home: 1950 OAG No. 2529.

10. Under RC § 2151.35, a juvenile court may upon finding that a child is neglected, dependent, or delinquent, commit the child to any person or institution meeting the requirements of RC §§ 5103.02 and 5103.03, even though a county child welfare board exists and could provide care and support for the child: 1962 OAG No. 3489.

11. The placement or detention of delinquent, dependent, neglected children, or juvenile traffic offenders, under this section, is upon final disposition of the juvenile court and does not include placement in a detention home provided under RC § 2151.34: 1963 OAG No. 553.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER GC § 1652

15. [U]nder the provisions of GC § 1652, the court is authorized to make temporary provision for a child subject to be returned to the judge for further proceedings whenever such action might appear necessary: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

16. The discretion of the juvenile court in relation to the care, custody and control of a delinquent or neglected child is a judicial discretion that must be exercised in good faith, and in the interest of the child, upon evidence introduced in the usual and ordinary course of the administration of justice: State ex rel Tailford v. Bristline, 96 OS 581, 119 NE 138.

17. A proceeding to have a child adjudged dependent is not a chancery case and is not appealable: State ex rel Fortini v. Hoffman, 12 App 341, 32 OCA 193.

18. An action in habeas corpus in the court of common pleas cannot be maintained to secure the custody of a child committed by the juvenile court as a dependent: Bleier v. Crouse, 13 App 69, 31 OCA 453.

19. No person or parent can give their consent to a finding of "dependency" for a child, but the requirements of GC § 1639-4 (RC § 2151.04), which define a dependent child, must be found to exist: In re Hobson, 42 OLA 216, 62 NE(2d) 510 (App).

20. Where a court declares a child to be a ward of the court and awards custody to a stranger without first finding that the child is a dependent, such action of the court is null and void and the child should be restored to the person from whom it was taken: In re Hayes, 28 OLA 154.

21. The power of the court to determine questions of the custody of children is inherently equitable in its nature and it is cognizable in the court of chancery. Accordingly, a case involving the custody of children falls within the class of "chancery cases" within the meaning of Art. IV, § 6 of the constitution of Ohio and the provisions of GC § 8035 (RC § 3109.07), for an appeal in such cases is not rendered invalid by Art. IV, § 6. The fact that the legislature has codified the rules of equity (GC §§ 8032 to 8035 [RC §§ 3109.03 to 3109.07]) does not prevent such cases from being included in the class of "chancery cases": Varsey v. Varsey, 25 CC(NS) 229, 26 CD 385 [following Rogers v. Rogers, 51 OS 1; Bower v. Bower, 90 OS 172].

23. In case of the separation of parents, the custody of an epileptic son, who is twenty years of age and an inmate of an epileptic hospital, will be granted to the father, the evidence showing that he is a suitable and proper person to look after the interest of such child: Patterson v. Patterson, 12 NP(NS) 601, 57 Bull 273 (Ed).

24. If husband and wife have separated, the custody of the children is to be granted so as to secure the best interests of such children: Patterson v. Patterson, 12 NP(NS) 601, 57 Bull 273 (Ed).

25. A discussion of temporary and permanent care and custody of dependent girls committed by juvenile courts to the board of state charities: 1920 OAG vol. 2, p. 1009.

26. A juvenile court does not have jurisdiction to make commitments of children unless service, either actual or constructive, is first had on the father or person having custody of such child, such custody created by operation of law, judicial order, judgment or decree: 1929 OAG p. 420.

27. Where a temporary commitment is made of a dependent child to the division of charities, such child should be kept in readiness for the return to the parent or guardian upon order of the court: 1932 OAG No. 4883.

28. A juvenile court has no authority to make a permanent order of separation of a child from its parents, or in the case of an illegitimate child, from its mother, and follow the same with a temporary commitment to the division of charities: 1932 OAG No. 4883.

[§ 2151.35.4] § 2151.354 Disposition of unruly child.

If the child is adjudged unruly the court may:

(A) Make any of the dispositions authorized under section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code;

(B) Place the child on probation under such conditions as the court prescribes;

(C) Suspend or revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license issued to such child; suspend or revoke the registration of all motor vehicles registered in the name of such child.

If after making such disposition the court finds, upon further hearing, that the child is not amenable to treatment or rehabilitation under such disposition, the court may make a disposition otherwise authorized under section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code.

1. Any construction of RC § 2151.35.4 that would allow commitment of an "unruly" child to the legal custody of the Ohio youth commission would be a violation of due process of law, and therefore an improper construction. Both the existing juvenile code and the juvenile rules require a hearing before a temporary commitment to the Ohio youth commission can be made permanent, which hearing requires the presence of the youth involved: 1972 OAG No. 72-071.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER GC § 1652

2. Under this section a court may make an order permitting an incorrigible child to make his home with his father on certain days of the week, and with his mother on the remaining days of the week, subject to certain conditions and provided that final judgment of commitment to any other person, place or institution should be suspended as long as such child should comply with such conditions, in the opinion of the judge, without losing jurisdiction of such case; and the court may thereafter remove such child from the custody of its parents and commit it to a county children's home: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

[§ 2151.35.5] § 2151.355 Disposition of delinquent child.

If the child is found to be a delinquent child, the court may make any of the following orders of disposition:

(A) Any order which is authorized by section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code;

(B) Place the child on probation under such conditions as the court prescribes;

(C) Commit the child to the temporary custody of any school, camp, institution or other facility for delinquent children operated for the care of such children by the county, by a district organized under section 2151.34 or 2151.65 of the Revised Code, or by a private agency or organization, within or without the state, which is authorized and qualified to provide the care, treatment, or placement required;

(D) Commit the child to the legal custody of the Ohio youth commission;

(E) Commit a male child sixteen years of age or over who has committed an act which if committed by an adult would be a felony to a maximum security institution operated by the Ohio youth commission for the training and rehabilitation of such delinquent children;

(F) Impose a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs;

(G) Suspend or revoke the operator's or chauffeur's license issued to such child, or suspend or revoke the registration of all motor vehicles registered in the name of such child;

(H) Make such disposition as authorized by section 2947.25 of the Revised Code, if the child would come within the purview of such section if he were an adult;

(I) Make such further disposition as the court finds proper.

1. Where a child, as defined in RC § 2151.01.1 (B)(1), who has been adjudicated a delinquent beyond a reasonable doubt, leaves the jurisdiction of the juvenile court so that such court can not dispose of his case, the juvenile court has authority under RC § 2151.35.5(I) to treat such person as an adult and to impose upon such person the penalty prescribed in the statute he violated and which constituted the basis for the adjudication of delinquency: In re Cox, 36 OApp(2d) 65, 65 OO(2d) 51, 301 NE(2d) 907 (1973).

2. The authority of the juvenile court under RC § 2151.35.5(I) is limited to dispositions provided by other statutes: In re Cox, 36 OApp(2d) 65, 65 OO(2d) 51, 301 NE(2d) 907 (1973).

3. A final order of disposition of a child found to be delinquent, as prescribed by RC § 2151.35.5, may not include, as punishment or otherwise, confinement (or detention) in a juvenile detention home: In re Bolden, 37 OApp(2d) 7, 66 OO(2d) 26, 306 NE(2d) 166 (1973).

4. Where it is apparent on appeal that a youth who was adjudicated delinquent knew of his right of appeal and of his right to expungement and the statutory time for expungement had not been met, a claim of error on the part of the lower court in not advising the youth of these rights will be regarded as frivolous and not prejudicial: In re Haas, 45 OApp(2d) 187, 74 OO(2d) 231 (1975).

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER RC § 2151.35

5. The commitment of a juvenile to the Ohio state reformatory by a juvenile court under the provisions of former RC § 2151.35(E), is prejudicially erroneous where the evidence fails to establish that the acts committed by the juvenile were such that they would constitute a felony if committed by an adult: In re Baker, 20 OS(2d) 142, 49 OO(2d) 473, 254 NE(2d) 363.

6. Paragraph (E) of RC § 2151.35 which authorizes the juvenile court to commit a male child over sixteen years of age, who has committed an act which if committed by an adult would be a felony, to the Ohio state reformatory (the same institution to which adults convicted of a felony are committed), without providing to such juvenile equal rights of due process of law, is an unconstitutional denial of rights secured by the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution: State v. Fisher, 17 OApp(2d) 183, 46 OO(2d) 247, 245 NE(2d) 358.

7. Paragraph (E) of RC § 2151.35 is separable from the other parts of RC § 2151.35, and the unconstitutionality of paragraph (E) does not affect the remainder of RC § 2151.35: State v. Fisher, 17 OApp(2d) 183, 46 OO(2d) 247, 245 NE(2d) 358.

8. If the custody of such juveniles is, in fact, not for training and rehabilitation or is a commingling with adult convicts, such defalcation is an administrative matter and should not invalidate nor affect an otherwise valid commitment or power to commit: In re Tsessmilles, 24 OApp(2d) 153, 53 OO(2d) 363, 265 NE(2d) 308.

9. The custody of such juveniles must be completely separate and apart from and free of any contact with adult convicts: In re Tsessmilles, 24 OApp(2d) 153, 53

OO(2d) 363, 265 NE(2d) 308.

10. Juveniles adjudicated as delinquent for the commission of an act which if committed by an adult would be a felony may be committed by the court to the custody of the department of mental hygiene and correction for the purpose of training and rehabilitation only: In re Tsessmilles, 24 OApp(2d) 153, 53 OO(2d) 363, 265 NE(2d) 308.

11. A judge of a juvenile court may not commit a child who has been found to be a delinquent child, or a juvenile traffic offender, to the county jail upon the failure, refusal, or inability of such child to pay a fine and court costs: 1970 OAG No. 70-143.

12. A male juvenile delinquent over sixteen years of age who, under this section and RC § 5143.04, has been committed to the Ohio state reformatory until he arrives at the age of twenty-one years, unless sooner released for satisfactory behavior and progress in training, may be released by the superintendent of such institution upon the granting of a parole by the pardon and parole commission: 1961 OAG No. 2704.

13. Under RC § 2965.17, such a paroled prisoner may be granted a certificate of final release by the pardon and parole commission if he has faithfully performed all the conditions and obligations of his parole and has obeyed all of the rules and regulations adopted by the pardon and parole commission; but such final release may not be issued before one year after the release from the reformatory unless the said prisoner has attained the age of twenty-one years: 1961 OAG No. 2704.

14. A person who is committed to the Ohio state reformatory as a juvenile delinquent pursuant to this section and RC § 5143.04 is not serving a "sentence" within the meaning of the aggregate sentence provision of RC § 2965.35: 1962 OAG No. 2871.

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER GC § 1652

15. Where a delinquent child has become a ward of the juvenile court and it has been committed to an institution, under the provisions of the General Code relating to the juvenile court, a proceeding in habeas corpus by a parent against the institution or its officers for the custody of the child will not lie: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

16. The provisions of the General Code relating to delinquent children are reformatory in their nature and not penal. Accordingly, the provisions of this section that, "where it appears upon the hearing that such delinquent child is sixteen years of age, or over, and has committed felony," he may be committed to the Ohio state reformatory, are not unconstitutional: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184].

17. This section is not in conflict with GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26). This section provides a different place for the confinement of delinquent children over sixteen years of age from the places of confinement to which other delinquent children may be committed, namely, to the Ohio state reformatory; while GC § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26) provides that delinquent children of any age charged with a felony may be indicted and subjected to the provisions of the general criminal statutes: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184].

18. General Code § 1681 (see now RC § 2151.26) is discretionary and not mandatory, and a delinquent child charged with a felony may be committed as provided in this section or recognized to the court of common pleas, subject to the requirements of the general criminal laws of the state, at the discretion of the juvenile judge: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184]; State v. Joiner, 20 NP(NS) 313, 28 OD 199.

19. Irregularities or errors in a judgment of commitment cannot be reviewed by habeas corpus: In re Crouse, 14 App 274.

20. The Ohio state reformatory is a prison for persons who are convicted of felonies and committed thereto by a sentence of the court following such conviction; while for delinquent children, who have been committed thereto after having committed an act which constitutes a felony, it is only a school or place of reformation: Leonard v. Licker, 3 App 377, 23 CC(NS) 442, 26 CD 427 [citing Prescott v. State, 19 OS 184].

21. Delinquency has not been declared a crime in Ohio, and the Ohio juvenile act is neither criminal or penal in its nature, but is an administrative police regulation of a corrective character; and while the commission of a crime may set the machinery of the juvenile court in motion, the accused was not tried in that court for his crime, but for incorrigibility: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

22. Repugnancy of a state statute to the constitution of the state does not afford ground for the granting of a writ of habeas corpus by a federal court upon application of one convicted thereunder, unless the petitioner is in custody by virtue of such statute and the statute is in conflict with the constitution of the United States: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

23. The juvenile court act, which provides for the care of delinquent children, does not declare delinquency a crime; and such statutes are corrective and not criminal: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

24. A juvenile court may commit a delinquent male child, who is delinquent because of having committed a felony, and who at the time of the hearing is sixteen years of age or over, to the Ohio reformatory, even though such child was not yet sixteen years of age at the time of committing such felony: 1916 OAG vol. 1, p. 249.

25. As to the effect when a minor under eighteen years of age, who is placed on probation by the juvenile court, violates said probation after reaching the age of eighteen years, and as to the jurisdiction of the juvenile and common pleas court in such a case, see: 1917 OAG vol. 2, p. 1914.

26. When a boy over sixteen years of age is committed to the Ohio state reformatory, the costs are paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate of the juvenile judge, as provided in GC § 1682 (see now RC § 2151.54): 1918 OAG vol. 1, p. 324.

27. A female minor child under the age of ten years cannot legally be committed to girls' industrial school by the juvenile court: 1919 OAG vol. 1, p. 673.

28. The juvenile court may not take jurisdiction of a minor child where the jurisdiction of the common pleas court has attached in a divorce proceeding, unless the minor child is charged with being delinquent: 1924 OAG p. 639.

29. A girl over eighteen years of age may be admitted to the girls' industrial school when the juvenile court, prior to her eighteenth birthday, has duly committed her thereto, provided said order has not been rescinded, or suspended, requiring further commitment after her eighteenth birthday: 1925 OAG p. 63.

30. A court exercising jurisdiction as a "juvenile court" does not have authority to try and sentence a female charged with a felony, and therefore cannot lawfully sentence a female to the Ohio reformatory for women: 1931 OAG No. 2840.

31. A juvenile court having found that a male child over sixteen years of age was delinquent, such child, having been made a ward of the juvenile court, remains such until he is of age, even though he has been committed by the court to the reformatory: 1935 OAG No. 4865.

32. The board of parole has no jurisdiction to release on parole or otherwise a male delinquent who has been committed to the reformatory by a juvenile court. Such child can be released by the committing juvenile court any time before reaching the age of twenty-one years: 1935 OAG No. 4865.

33. Inmates of the Ohio state reformatory, committed thereto by the juvenile court under the provisions of par. 5 of this section, must be released upon attaining the age of twenty-one years as provided in GC § 2131-1 (RC § 5143.04): 1942 OAG No. 5087.

34. Fines imposed by a juvenile court upon a juvenile delinquent under authority of this section are not fines imposed for offenses or misdemeanors prosecuted in the name of the state, as referred to in GC § 3056-2 (RC § 3375.52), and therefore are not payable to the trustees of the law library association, but are to be paid, pursuant to GC § 13454-4 (RC § 2949.11), into the treasury of the county: 1943 OAG No. 6406.

35. The release and parole of prisoners confined in penal or reformatory institutions, including juveniles committed to the Ohio state reformatory by a juvenile court under the provisions of par. 5, this section, will continue to be governed by the provisions of GC § 2209 (RC § 2965.01) et seq, notwithstanding the transfer of such persons to the Marion training school: 1950 OAG No. 2051.

[§ 2151.35.6] § 2151.356 Disposition of juvenile traffic offender.

If the child is found to be a juvenile traffic offender the court may make any of the following orders of disposition:

(A) Impose a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs;

(B) Suspend the child's operator's or chauffeur's license or the registration of all motor vehicles registered in the name of such child for such period as the court prescribes;

(C) Revoke the child's operator's or chauffeur's license or the registration of all motor vehicles registered in the name of such child;

(D) Place the child on probation;

(E) Require the child to make restitution for all damages caused by his traffic violation or any part thereof.

If after making such disposition the court finds upon further hearing that the child has failed to comply with the orders of the court and his operation of a motor vehicle constitutes him a danger to himself and to others, the court may make any disposition authorized by section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code.

[§ 2151.35.7] § 2151.357 [Cost.]

The court shall at the time of making any order which removes a child from his own home determine which school district shall bear the cost of educating such child. Such determination shall be made a part of the order which provides for the child's placement or commitment.

Whenever a child is placed in a detention home established under section 2154.34 of the Revised Code, or a public school within this state, not including a school operated by the state, his school district as determined by the court shall pay the cost of educating said child based on the per capita cost of the educational facility within such detention home or public school. Whenever a child is placed by the court in a private institution, school, residential treatment center, or other private facility, the state shall pay to the court a subsidy to help defray the expense of educating such child in an amount equal to the product of the daily per capita educational cost of such facility and the number of days the child resides thereat, provided that such subsidy shall not exceed five hundred dollars per year. 1. A foster home is not an educational facility within the meaning of RC § 2151.35.7, and the section has no application to a foster home: 1970 OAG No.70-166.

2. A child of kindergarten age is included within the meaning of the word "child" as it is used in RC § 2151.35.7: 1972 OAG No. 72-099.

3. If the juvenile court, pursuant to RC § 2151.35.7, removes a child of kindergarten age from the home of its parents and places it under the custody of a welfare agency, and that agency then places the child in a kindergarten program in a school district other than that of the child's parents, RC § 5153.16(D), places the responsibility for payment of the tuition on the welfare agency: 1972 OAG No. 72-099.

4. If a welfare agency has placed a child in a kindergarten program outside the district of the residence of the child's parents, the parents will be responsible for the tuition if they are able to pay. If they are not able to pay, the welfare agency will be responsible for the tuition, even if the board of education of the parents' residence has made no provision for a kindergarten program: 1972 OAG No. 72-099.

5. A board of education which does not have a kindergarten program as part of its curriculum is neither obligated nor permitted to assume the cost of tuition for a child under six years of age who resides within its district and attends a kindergarten program in another school district: 1972 OAG No. 72-099.

6. Subsequent proceedings by the juvenile court declaring a child neglected will not end the obligation of the district of his school residence to continue paying his tuition: In re Laricchiuta, 16 OApp(2d) 164, 45 OO(2d) 456, 243 NE(2d) 111.

7. A child becomes a "school resident" in a school district as soon as he begins to reside therein as the child or ward of a resident. No specific period of residence is required by RC § 3313.64 to entitle him to free schooling in such district: In re Laricchiuta, 16 OApp(2d) 164, 45 OO(2d) 456, 243 NE(2d) 111.

8. A mother's continuing receipt of aid to dependent children from one county after moving to another does not prevent her children from becoming school residents of a district in the county to which she moved with them: In re Laricchiuta, 16 OApp(2d) 164, 45 OO(2d) 456, 243 NE(2d) 111.

9. The school board of the district in which a child has a school residence at the time of his placement in another district must pay his tuition, whether such placement was by order of court or by the child welfare board in whose care the parent had voluntarily left him: In re Laricchiuta, 16 OApp(2d) 164, 45 OO(2d) 456, 243 NE(2d) 111.

10. Similar earlier proceedings by the Juvenile Court of another county do not prevent a child from thereafter becoming a school resident in a county to which he moves with his family: In re Laricchiuta, 16 OApp(2d) 164, 45 OO(2d) 456, 243 NE(2d) 111.

11. Where under RC § 2151.35(B) a juvenile court commits a child to a specialized school in another state, the court, under RC § 2151.36, must itself pay expenses occasioned by the commitment and authorized by the court at the time of commitment, which expenses are paid out of funds appropriated to the court by the board of county commissioners under RC § 2151.10; and pursuant to RC § 2151.36 the court may order the parents, guardian, or person charged with the child's support to reimburse the court for such payments: 1962 OAG No. 2938.

12. Under this section the juvenile court "shall, at time of placing the child, determine which school district must bear the cost of educating the child while he is residing at such place as the court directs": 1963 OAG No. 553.

13. When a county child welfare board assumes control of a school age child and such child is placed by the board in the county children's home or in a foster home, the child's district of school residence prior to the board's assumption of control must pay tuition to another school district in which the child subsequently attends school: 1966 OAG No. 66-077.

[§ 2151.35.8] § 2151.358 Expunge- ment of record.

Any person who has been adjudicated a delinquent or unruly child, may apply to the court for an expungement of his record, or the court may initiate expungement proceedings. Such application shall be filed no sooner than two years after the termination of any order made by the court, or two years after his unconditional discharge from the Ohio youth commission or other institution or facility to which he may have been committed.

Notice of the hearing on such application shall be given to the prosecuting attorney.

If the court finds that the rehabilitation of the person has been attained to a satisfactory degree, the court may order the records sealed and the proceedings in such case shall be deemed never to have occurred. All index references shall be deleted and the person and the court may properly reply that no record exists with respect to such person upon any inquiry in the matter. Inspection of the records included in the order may thereafter be permitted by the court only upon application by the person who is the subject of the records and only to such persons as are named in his application.

The judgment rendered by the court under this chapter shall not impose any of the civil disabilities ordinarily imposed by conviction of a crime in that the child is not a criminal by reason of such adjudication, nor shall any child be charged or convicted of a crime in any court except as provided by this chapter. The disposition of a child under the judgment rendered or any evidence given in court is not admissible as evidence against the child in any other case or proceeding in any other court, except that the judgment rendered and the disposition of such child may be considered by any court only as to the matter of sentence or to the granting of probation. Such disposition or evidence shall not operate to disqualify a child in any future civil service examination, appointment, or application.

1. Although the general assembly may enact legislation to effectuate its policy of protecting the confidentiality of juvenile records, such enactments may not impinge upon the right of a defendant in a criminal case to present all available, relevant and probative evidence which is pertinent to a specific and material aspect of his defense: State v. Cox, 42 OS(2d) 200, 71 OO(2d) 186, 327 NE(2d) 639 (1975).

2. Where it is apparent on appeal that a youth who was adjudicated delinquent, knew of his right to expungement and that the statutory time for expungement had not been met, a claim of error on the part of the lower court in not advising the youth of this right will be regarded as frivolous and not prejudicial: In re Haas, 45 OApp(2d) 187, 74 OO(2d) 231 (1975).

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER RC § 2151.35

3. Although Ohio law generally protects a minor from the exposure of his acts in another judicial forum, paragraph (G) of RC § 2151.35 does not prohibit the cross-examination, in a criminal trial, of a defendant, or defendant's witnesses, concerning a prior juvenile record, where the defendant's evidence attempts to establish his good character: State v. Hale, 21 OApp(2d) 207, 50 OO(2d) 340, 256 NE(2d) 239.

4. Where the defense introduces character evidence to the effect that the defendant had never been in any kind of trouble, and where the trial court disallows cross-examination of defendant's witnesses on the subject of prior juvenile court involvement, the introduction of a juvenile record to rebut such evidence is not prejudicial error: State v. Hale, 21 OApp(2d) 207, 50 OO(2d) 340, 256 NE(2d) 239.

5. Under Ohio law, juvenile convictions were inadmissible as evidence in a subsequent criminal prosecution, and such convictions could not be used to enhance punishment. [RC § 2151.35] The use by the prosecution of any prior convictions for whatever purpose is prejudicial and cannot be construed as harmless error. This error is of constitutional dimension and use of such a conviction, at a trial for a subsequent offense, for any purpose leading to a conviction for that subsequent offense is violative of the Fourteenth Amendment: Workman v. Cardwell, 60 OO(2d) 187, 338 FSupp 893 (1972).

6. When a defendant in a criminal case is permitted to introduce evidence of his life history, he waives the protection of this section, and may be cross-examined with reference to the disposition of any charge preferred against him as a juvenile: State v. Marinski, 139 OS 559, 23 OO 50, 41 NE(2d) 387.

7. The fact that the confessions were used in the juvenile court, did not render them inadmissible in the common pleas court, under this section, because there was but one case or proceeding: State v. Lowder, 79 App 237, 34 OO 568, 72 NE(2d) 785.

8. It is prejudicial error to permit examination of a witness in a negligence action as to convictions and imprisonments with respect to law violations committed in another state, where charges for the offenses involved were heard and disposed of by a juvenile court of such state and, under the laws of such state, denominating a child a criminal because of the adjudication of a juvenile court and denominating such an adjudication a conviction are expressly forbidden: Mason v. Klaserner,

114 App 171, 19 OO(2d) 24, 180 NE(2d) 870.

9. Under this section a minor, tried and found guilty by a juvenile court on a charge of auto theft, is neither charged with a crime nor convicted of a felony, and the judgment rendered therein is not admissible as evidence against him in any other case or proceeding in any other court: Beatty v. Riegel, 115 App 448, 21 OO(2d) 71, 185 NE(2d) 555.

10. In an action by an insurance company to declare an automobile liability policy void, the admission into evidence of juvenile court records was not prejudicial error where the insured's own testimony disclosed his arrest for driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, the suspension of his driver's license, and the payment of a fine: Allstate Ins. Co. v. Cook, 26 OO(2d) 192, 324 F(2d) 752.

11. This section, providing that evidence received in the juvenile court is not admissible as evidence against the child in any other case or proceeding or any other court, is not applicable to a proceeding against the alleged insurance carrier of the child on a supplemental petition to enforce the insurer's liability: Bingham v. Hartman, 88 OLA 126, 181 NE(2d) 721 (App).

DECISIONS CONSTRUING FORMER GC § 1669

12. It is prejudicial error to permit cross-examination of a defendant in a criminal case as to the commission of offenses prior to the one for which he is being tried, when such inquiry is predicated upon juvenile court proceedings against him as a juvenile delinquent, examination of this character being within the prohibitions of GC § 1669 [see former RC § 2151.35 (now RC § 2151.35.8)]: Malone v. State, 130 OS 443, 5 OO 59, 200 NE 473.

[§ 2151.35.9] § 2151.359 Control of conduct of parent, guardian, or custodian.

In any proceeding wherein a child has been adjudged delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent, on the application of a party, or the court's own motion, the court may make an order restraining or otherwise controlling the conduct of any parent, guardian, or other custodian in the relationship of such individual to the child if the court finds that such an order is necessary to:

(A) Control any conduct or relationship that will be detrimental or harmful to the child;

(B) Where such conduct or relationship will tend to defeat the execution of the order of disposition made or to be made.

Due notice of the application or motion and the grounds therefor, and an opportunity to be heard shall be given to the person against whom such order is directed.

§ 2151.36 Support of child.

When a child has been committed as provided by sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, of the Revised Code, the juvenile court may make an examination regarding the income of the parents, guardian, or person charged with such child's support, and may then order that such parent, guardian, or person pay for the care, maintenance, and education of such child and for expenses involved in providing orthopedic, medical or surgical treatment, or special care of such child. The court may enter judgment for the money due and enforce such judgment by execution as in the court of common pleas.

Any expenses incurred for the care, support, maintenance, education, medical or surgical treatment, special care of a child, which has a legal settlement in another county, shall be at the expense of the county of legal settlement, if the consent of the juvenile judge of the county of legal settlement, is first obtained. When such consent is obtained, the board of county commissioners of the county in which such child has a legal settlement shall reimburse the committing court for such expense out of its general fund. If the department of public welfare deems it to be in the best interest of any delinquent, dependent, unruly, abused, or neglected child which has a legal settlement in a foreign state or country, that such child be returned to the state or country of legal settlement, such child may be committed to the department for such return.

Any expense ordered by the court for the care, maintenance, and education of dependent, neglected, abused, unruly, or delinquent children, or for orthopedic, medical or surgical treatment, or special care of such children under sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code, except such part thereof as may be paid by the state or federal government, shall be paid from the county treasury upon specifically itemized vouchers, certified to by the judge. The court shall not be responsible for any expense resulting from the commitment of children to any home, county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, certified organization, or other institution, association, or agency, unless such expense has been authorized by the court at the time of commitment.

1. By the enactment of this section and GC § 1639-57 (RC § 2151.10) the legislature has granted to the juvenile court authority commensurate with its enlarged responsibility for the welfare of neglected, dependent or delinquent children. The court may obligate the county for the payment of expenses necessary to the proper discharge of its responsibility but it is not contemplated that such action will be taken where the welfare of such children is subserved adequately by their commitment to private or municipal institutions that voluntarily assume the expenses resulting therefrom: Cleveland v. Gorman, 87 App 36, 42 OO 278, 89 NE(2d) 605.

2. The county in which a juvenile court assumes jurisdiction of a child and declares such child to be dependent, will be responsible for the support of such child: 1935 OAG No. 4172.

3. Unless a dependent child is committed to an institution designated by this section, or a family home, and in conformity with the juvenile court code, no payment for the care and board of such child is authorized, as there is no commitment under the law: 1937 OAG No.983.

4. Moneys paid into the county welfare board for the support of dependent children, which moneys are collected from the parents of such children, should be paid into the county treasury to the credit of the general fund, such payment amounting to a reimbursement of the county fund for public funds expended for the care of dependent children: 1938 OAG No.1843.

5. The department of public welfare must accept "when able to do so" a child committed by a juvenile court under the authority of this section for transportation to said child's legal settlement, but a lack of available funds to carry on such activity would render the department of public welfare unable "to do so," and therefore, under such circumstances, such department is not required to accept a child so committed: 1938 OAG No.2391.

6. A juvenile court is empowered under proper circumstances, as determined by the court, to commit a child to a foster home and to make such terms respecting such commitment as may be proper and suitable under the circumstances: 1941 OAG No.3353.

7. Where the mother has verbally released her right to custody and has transferred her child to a foster parent in another county, a later transfer to the mother immediately establishes in the child the legal settlement of its mother: 1941 OAG No.4033.

8. Where commitment proceedings are instituted under jurisdiction of the probate court the determination of residence of the child is to be decided by reference to the commissioner of mental diseases under GC § 1890-33 (RC § 5123.29): 1941 OAG No. 4033.

9. While the duty rests upon the board of education of a school district in which a juvenile detention home is located to employ and provide such teachers and such incidental facilities as are necessary to furnish instruction to children confined in such home, such board of education may recover from the county commissioners the cost and expense involved in so doing: 1946 OAG No.1200.

10. Where a crippled child has been committed to the division of social administration for care under GC § 1352-8 (RC § 5103.12), and such child has, or subsequently acquires, legal settlement in another county, the committing court should, in the ordinary case, certify such case under GC § 1639-34 (RC § 2151.36), to the juvenile court of such other county for further proceedings. Following such certification, and until the juvenile court of such other county otherwise orders, the division of social administration may continue to extend care to such child under the original order of commitment, and the cost of such care must be borne by the county of legal settlement: 1952 OAG No. 1839.

11. Where a crippled child has been committed to the division of social administration under GC § 1352-8 (RC § 5103.12), by the juvenile court of a county in which such child does not have legal settlement, the division of social administration is authorized, under such section, to meet the expense of such care from funds allocated from the federal children's bureau to the state of Ohio for the care of crippled children. In such case, in the event that such child has, or subsequently acquires, legal settlement in a county other than the county from which commitment was ordered, the county of legal settlement can be charged with the expense thus incurred only after the consent of the juvenile court of the county of legal settlement has been obtained, as provided in GC § 1639-34 (RC § 2151.36): 1952 OAG No. 1839.

12. The term "legal settlement" as used in this section has reference to that term as defined in RC § 5113.05: 1956 OAG No.6542.

13. A committing juvenile court may, under this section, at the time of commitment, obligate the county for such expenses as are authorized and approved by the judge of the juvenile court for the care of a delinquent child committed to the department of mental hygiene and correction for placement in a private family home or institution operating under such rules and regulations as are adopted by the department: 1956 OAG No.7007.

14. Where, under division (B) of RC § 2151.35, a juvenile court commits a child to a specialized school in another state, the court, under RC § 2151.36, must itself pay expenses occasioned by the commitment and authorized by the court at the time of commitment, which expenses are paid out of funds appropriated to the court by the board of county commissioners under RC § 2151.10; and pursuant to RC § 2151.36, the court may order the parents, guardian, or person charged with the child's support to reimburse the court for such payments: 1962 OAG No. 2938.

15. A child welfare board may not legally request support payments from parents whose children have been taken from them permanently by the courts: 1966 OAG No. 66-148.

16. The county's share of expense of maintaining children committed by the juvenile court to the Ohio board of state charities for placing in homes is to be paid from the general county fund: 1915 OAG vol. 3, p.2159.

17. General Code § 1653 (see now RC § 2151.36), while authorizing commitments by juvenile courts of dependent and neglected children to the care of an individual of good moral character, makes no provision in such cases for payment by the county commissioners of the board of such committed children: 1922 OAG vol.1, p.149.

18. A court of the county in which the mother was originally committed to the girls' industrial school, such county being the legal residence of the mother, has jurisdiction to commit her illegitimate child born in another county, under GC § 1653 (see now RC § 2151.36): 1933 OAG No.1397.

19. A juvenile court has jurisdiction to declare any child a dependent which is found within the county under facts and circumstances constituting dependency. The legal residence of the child or its parents, or those standing in loco parentis does not determine the jurisdiction of the court. (1929 OAG Vol.II, p 1151 followed): 1933 OAG No.1397.

20. Care and support of minors after temporary commitment to a children's home by a juvenile court is terminated, discussed: 1934 OAG No.2388.

21. If commitments are made to a county children's home in another county, the county commissioners of the county from which they are committed are required to pay for their care if such dependent children have a legal settlement in the county from which they are committed: 1934 OAG No.2759.

22. Even though a county child welfare board has been established in a particular county, the judge of the juvenile court of such county, if there is no county children's home in the county, may commit dependent children to a county children's home in another county if such home is willing to receive the children: 1934 OAG No.2759.

23. When a child is committed to the children's home by a juvenile court permanently, and such child at the age of nineteen years, while in the care and custody of the trustees of the children's home, marries, the marriage does not release the child from the guardianship of the trustees: 1934 OAG No.3160.

§ 2151.37 Institution receiving children required to make report. (GC § 1639-36)

At any time the juvenile judge may require from an association receiving or desiring to receive children, such reports, information, and statements as he deems necessary. He may at any time require from an association or institution reports, information, or statements concerning any child committed to it by such judge under sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code.

HISTORY: GC § 1639-36; 117 v 520 (532). Eff 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC § 1675.

§ 2151.38 [Custody of child.]

When a child is committed to the legal custody of the youth commission, or to the permanent custody of a county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, or certified organization, the jurisdiction of the juvenile court in respect to the child so committed shall cease and terminate at the time of commitment, except that if the department or any county department, board, or certified organization having such permanent custody makes application to the court for the termination of such custody, the court upon such application, after notice and hearing and for good cause shown, may terminate such custody at any time prior to the child becoming of age. The court shall make disposition of the matter in whatever manner will serve the best interests of the child. All other commitments made by the court shall be temporary and shall continue for such period as designated by the court in its order, or until terminated or modified by the court, or until a child attains the age of twenty-one years.

1. Where an adjudicated delinquent child becomes twenty-one years of age during the pendency of appeals from his adjudication, all jurisdiction of the juvenile court terminates by operation of RC § 2151.38 so that the court has no authority even to vacate its previous order of commitment, which was suspended by an appellate court: In re J.F., 46 OO(2d) 49, 17 OMisc 40, 242 NE(2d) 604 (JC).

2. This section, providing that the jurisdiction of the juvenile court with respect to a child shall cease when such child is committed to the permanent care of an institution is constitutional: State v. Clevenger, 19

OApp(2d) 306, 48 OO(2d) 416, 251 NE(2d) 159.

3. It is apparent from this section that the juvenile court's jurisdiction of a child continues until the child is twenty-one years of age: Calogeras v. Calogeras, 10 OO(2d) 441, 163 NE(2d) 713 (JC).

4. Under the express provisions of former GC § 1643 (see now RC § 2151.38), the jurisdiction of the juvenile court ceases when a dependent child is committed to the permanent care and guardianship of an institution or association certified by the state board of charities, with permission and power to place such child in a foster home with the probability of adoption: Conti v. Shriner, 30 OLA 193.

5. The juvenile court's jurisdiction is terminated where a child is committed permanently to the county child welfare board and such fact requires a dismissal of an application for modification and change of custody by the child's mother: In re Howell, 74 OLA 217, 140 NE(2d) 347 (JC).

6. When a juvenile court acquires jurisdiction over a dependent child the jurisdiction continues until the child becomes twenty-one years of age, regardless of the residence of the parents; the county in which such court is situated is responsible for its support: 1937 OAG No.891.

7. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court over a "dependent" child can be terminated by proper entry in accordance with this section. When there has been such a termination, the common pleas court has, in a divorce action, complete jurisdiction over the matters of custody, care and support of said children; the common pleas court may, however, under the circumstances described in GC § 1639-16 (RC § 2151-23), transfer said jurisdiction to the juvenile court: 1938 OAG No.3356.

8. When a delinquent or dependent minor is committed to the permanent care and guardianship of the department of public welfare, it is the duty of the department to care for such child until he attains the age of twenty-one years, even though he enlists in the army or navy with the consent of the department, or marries with like consent: 1940 OAG No. 2959.

9. The department of mental hygiene and correction has the exclusive guardianship of delinquent children committed to it by a juvenile court, and such guardianship may not be transferred to the division of social administration, department of public welfare, merely with the consent of the committing court, but such guardianship continues until the commitment order expires or is terminated upon application to the committing court under this section: 1956 OAG No.7007.

10. Children who are inmates of a county children's home, who at the time of placement in the home were not school residents of the district in which such home is located, should be admitted to the schools in the district where the home is located, at the expense of their respective school districts in which they were school residents at the time of placement, notwithstanding the status of the children as to temporary or permanent custody by the county welfare board: 1959 OAG No. 92.

11. Under this section and RC §§ 5141.01 and 5141.02, where a juvenile court commits a child to the boys' industrial school, the jurisdiction of the court over the child ceases; and the fact that the court may have attempted to put a condition upon the release of the child, such as making restitution for damages, does not affect the exclusive power of the school and the department of mental hygiene and correction to release the child for satisfactory behavior and progress in training; and the department may so release the child regardless of whether or not such condition has been fulfilled: 1962 OAG No. 3461.

12. Children committed by a juvenile court to a county department of welfare pursuant to RC Chapter 2151, either permanently or temporarily, remain the responsibility of the department until they reach the age of twenty-one, unless the court, upon a proper application, terminates the order of commission at an earlier date: 1975 OAG No. 75-035.

DECISION UNDER FORMER GC §§ 1643, 1672

15. Under this section the jurisdiction over an incorrigible child continues until he attains the age of twenty-one: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

16. Under this section a court may make an order permitting an incorrigible child to make his home with his father on certain days of the week, and with his mother on the remaining days of the week, subject to certain conditions and provided that final judgment of commitment to any other person, place, or institution, should be suspended so long as such child should comply with such conditions, in the opinion of the judge, without losing jurisdiction of such case; and the court may thereafter remove such child from the custody of its parents and commit it to a county children's home: Children's Home v. Fetter, 90 OS 110, 106 NE 761.

17. Where a delinquent or neglected child has become the ward of the juvenile court and has been committed to an institution, under the provisions of the General Code relating to juvenile courts, the jurisdiction of the juvenile court over such child is a continuing jurisdiction, and it has authority to vacate its original order or modify the same, or make such further and additional orders in relation thereto as to it may seem just and proper: State ex rel Taiford v. Bristline, 96 OS 581, 119 NE 138.

18. Under this section, when a child under the age of eighteen years comes into custody of juvenile court by virtue of a warrant and arrest, such child continues for all necessary purposes of discipline and protection a ward of the court until he or she attains the age of twenty-one years, and this is true even though such court has not adjudicated such complaint prior to time that minor becomes eighteen years of age: State ex rel Heth v. Moloney, 126 OS 526, 186 NE 362.

19. Where mother received due notice in original dependency proceedings against infant daughter, the court, under GC § 1643 (see now RC § 2151.38), acquired continuing jurisdiction of infant, which authorized the court to change the temporary commitment to permanent, without notice to mother (GC § 1672 [see now RC § 2151.38]): In re Cunningham, 27 App 306, 160 NE 733.

20. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court having attached when a child is under eighteen years of age, the child continues to be the ward of the court until attaining the age of twenty-one years: Slawski v. Slawski, 49 App 100, 1 OO 201, 195 NE 258.

21. The juvenile court under former GC § 1643 (see now RC § 2151.38) has continuing jurisdiction of dependent child after having once acquired jurisdiction by service of the citation and notice upon the parent of such child, and adjudication of dependency, and a new citation to the parent or guardian is not necessary at the time a juvenile judge wishes to change a temporary order to a permanent one: Conti v. Shriner, 30 OLA 193.

22. Juvenile court judge is without authority to commit youth over eighteen years of age to boys' industrial school, notwithstanding status of delinquency attached to youth prior to arriving at age of eighteen: 1915 OAG vol.1, p.621.

23. When a child under eighteen comes into the custody of a juvenile court, it continues under the custody of such court until it is twenty-one years old or is adopted under GC § 1672 (see now RC § 2151.-38): 1919 OAG vol.1, p.591.

24. A discussion of temporary and permanent care and custody of dependent girls committed by juvenile courts to the board of state charities: 1920 OAG vol. 2, p.1009.

25. Dependent children temporarily committed by the juvenile court to the board of state charities, may in turn be placed in the home of a mother or parent by said board. The expense of providing necessities for such children must be paid by the treasurer of the county from which they come: 1922 OAG vol.1, p.125.

26. Construction of GC §§ 1643 and 1648 (see now RC §§ 2151.38 and 2151.28) concerning the authority of the juvenile court for recommitment or adoption of children under age. A citation to parents or guardian is not necessary where a judge changes a temporary order to a permanent one: 1925 OAG p.283.

27. The trustees of a county children's home may make agreement on forms prescribed and published by the division of charities to transfer the guardianship of an indigent ward permanently committed to such institution to any public, semi-public, or private association or institution of this state established for the purpose of caring for or placing children: 1932 OAG No.4882.

28. When either a boy or girl is temporarily committed to the children's home by the juvenile court, their marriage at the age of nineteen, while in the custody of the trustees of the children's home, does not affect the jurisdiction of the juvenile court over them and their status is not affected in any way whatsoever as wards of the court: 1934 OAG No. 3160.

§ 2151.39 [Placement of children from other states.]

No person, association or agency, public, or private, of another state, incorporated or otherwise, shall place a child in a family home or with an agency or institution within the boundaries of this state, either for temporary or permanent care or custody or for adoption, unless such person or association has furnished the department of public welfare with a medical and social history of the child, pertinent information about the family, agency, association, or institution in this state with whom the sending party desires to place the child, and any other information or financial guaranty required by the department to determine whether the proposed placement will meet the needs of the child. The department may require the party desiring the placement to agree to promptly receive and remove from the state a child brought into the state whose placement has not proven satisfactorily responsive to the needs of the child at any time until the child is adopted, reaches majority, becomes self-supporting or is discharged with the concurrence of the department. All placements proposed to be made in this state by a party located in a state which is a party to the interstate compact on the placement of children shall be made according to the provisions of sections 5103.20 to 5103.28 of the Revised Code.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. A true construction of this section requires a bond to be executed in case the mother of a child leaves the state of her legal residence and comes into Ohio and gives birth to a child within the territorial limits of the state of Ohio: In re Stringer, 26 OO 4, 11 OSupp 60 (PC).

2. The juvenile court can exercise jurisdiction over a child even though its legal settlement is not in the county; it is sufficient that the child has a residence within the country: In re Stringer, 26 OO 4, 11 OSupp 60 (PC).

3. When a juvenile court declares a child to be a ward of the court, the court assumed full parental rights over the child, and as a consequence the provisions of this section are not applicable; and a decree for adoption may be granted by the probate court without the execution of a bond: In re Stringer, 26 OO 4, 11 OSupp 60 (PC).

§ 2151.40 Cooperation with court.

Every county, township, or municipal official or department, including the prosecuting attorney, shall render all assistance and co-operation within his jurisdictional power which may further the objects of sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code. All institutions or agencies to which the juvenile court sends any child shall give to the court or to any officer appointed by it such information concerning such child as said court or officer requires. The court may seek the co-operation of all societies or organizations having for their object the protection or aid of children.

On the request of the judge, when the child is represented by an attorney, or when a trial is requested the prosecuting attorney shall assist the court in presenting the evidence at any hearing or proceeding concerning an alleged or adjudicated cated delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent child or juvenile traffic offender.

1. A person who sells intoxicating liquor to a child under eighteen years of age, thereby causing the intoxication of such child, "induces" its "delinquency" within the meaning of this section, even though such seller honestly believes at the time of such sale that the child is of proper age: State v. Kominis, 73 App 204, 28 OO 308, 55 NE(2d) 344.

2. The offense of contributing to the delinquency of a minor female, under this section, is a misdemeanor: State v. Beddow, 15 OO 270 (App).

3. The owner of an establishment where intoxicating liquors are sold, who leaves her fifteen year old son in such establishment to "watch" a volunteer bartender while the owner is absent on an errand, is guilty of acting in a way tending to cause delinquency of a minor under the provisions of this section if such minor sells intoxicating liquor to other minors during the owner's absence: State v. Butler, 25 OO 567, 11 OSupp 18 (JC).

4. In order to obtain a conviction under this section the state must prove that there has been an adjudication of delinquency, and that the defendant committed some unlawful act which contributed thereto: State v. Friedman, 35 OO 39 (CP).

5. The violation of the provisions of this section, constitutes a misdemeanor, punishable as provided for in such section: State v. Ausberry, 83 App 514, 38 OO 549, 82 NE(2d) 751.

6. In the prosecution of a mother, predicated on GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41) for contributing toward the neglect of her child by abandoning it, the husband of the accused is competent to testify for the prosecution: State v. Ward, 92 App 179, 49 OO 312, 109 NE(2d) 488.

7. No motion or demurrer being tendered and no bill of particulars being requested, a complaint charging that defendant "did act in a way tending to cause the delinquency" of a minor boy in that defendant

"took indecent liberties with the boy" is, as a matter of law, sufficient to charge an offense under GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41): State v. Clark, 92 App 382, 49 OO 437, 110 NE(2d) 433.

8. Insofar as GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41), condemns aiding, abetting, causing, encouraging, or contributing towards the delinquency of a child, it contemplates an existing delinquency and in such instance it is required that the complaint allege and the proof establish that the minor is or was a delinquent, and that such delinquency was in some measure caused or contributed to by the accused: State v. Clark, 92 App 382, 49 OO 437, 110 NE(2d) 433.

9. The portion of GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41), having to do with acts which in a way tend to cause delinquency presents a different concept. It does not follow that the minor must, as a result of such acts, become a delinquent. If the acts within themselves possess the nature and character as to probably lead the minor into the status of a delinquent, such acts may be considered as tending to cause delinquency: State v. Clark, 92 App 382, 49 OO 437, 110 NE(2d) 433.

10. An affidavit which charges that the accused "did encourage and contribute toward the neglect or dependency of * * * in that he * * * encouraged and contributed to the lack of proper parental care due to the faults and habits of the mother * * * and the neglect by the said mother of the care necessary for its health, morals and well-being; and encouraged and contributed toward conditions and environment such as to warrant the state, in the interests of said child in assuming its guardianship," charges an offense under this section: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

11. In such case, it is not a prerequisite that the child be adjudicated as a neglected, dependent or delinquent child in a separate proceeding before a charge of contributing toward such neglect, dependency or delinquency of such child can be maintained: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

12. In a prosecution for contributing to the neglect or dependency of a minor child, the admission in evidence of the record of a separate proceeding in the same court, involving the same acts of misconduct and adjudicating the child to be a neglected and dependent child, is not erroneous: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

13. In such case, the record of a separate proceeding adjudicating the child to be a neglected and dependent child, and the testimony of the child's mother that she and the defendant engaged in acts of illicit sexual relations in the presence of the child, is sufficient competent evidence to prove the child to be a neglected or dependent child within the meaning of this section: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 51 OO 47, 106 NE(2d) 668.

13.1 In a proceeding under GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41) it is not essential to expressly allege in the affidavit that the child was a "neglected" or "dependent" child: State v. Griffin, 93 App 299, 106 NE(2d) 668.

14. An affidavit drawn pursuant to this section charging a person with contributing toward the delinquency of a minor child, "in that he did act as a receiver of stolen property from the said minor," which neither charges that such child is a delinquent nor sets forth facts showing such child to be a delinquent within the purview of GC § 1639-2 (RC § 2151.02), and which does not set forth facts showing that the accused in any way contributed to the delinquency of such child, does not charge an offense: State v. Kiessling, 93 App 524, 51 OO 225, 114 NE(2d) 154.

15. An affidavit charging defendant, a married man, with improper associations with a sixteen year old female in the late hours of the night and that such child thereupon deported herself so as to injure or endanger her morals or health is sufficient to support a verdict of guilty under the provisions of this section: State v. Mahoney, 54 OLA 218, 87 NE(2d) 496 (App).

15.1 It is not a prerequisite that the minor be found to be delinquent in a separate action before a charge of contributing toward the delinquency of such minor can be maintained, but the affidavit setting forth the charge that defendant contributed toward the delinquency of the minor, must set forth facts showing the minor to be a delinquent minor within the purview of this section: State v. Mahoney, 54 OLA 218, 87 NE(2d) 496 (App).

16. A finding by the court that the defendant was guilty under this section of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl of sixteen years is sustained by evidence that the girl, who ran away from home, was employed by the defendant to serve customers with wine, beer, gin, and other intoxicants, and after working a day and a half quit the employment and was permitted by the defendant to frequent the place as a customer, and aided in her associations with the loose characters, male and female, who made the place their rendezvous: State v. Johns, 32 OLA 315.

17. A prosecution in municipal court under this section commenced after November 19, 1969 for an offense alleged to have been committed by an adult defendant after that date is null and void, as the 1969 amendment to RC § 2151.23 vests exclusive original jurisdiction over such cases in the juvenile court: State v. Sanchez, 22 OApp(2d) 145, 51 OO(2d) 292, 259 NE(2d) 139.

18. Intent is not an element of the offense of acting in a way tending to cause the delinquency of a minor: State v. Poney, 48 OO(2d) 208, 19 OMisc 51, 249 NE(2d) 567 (JC).

18.1 Proof of the offense of acting in a manner tending to contribute to the delinquency of a minor is established by evidence of acts of such a nature as could reasonably be certain to lead to the delinquency of a certain child: State v. Poney, 48 OO(2d) 208, 19 OMisc 51, 249 NE(2d) 567 (JC).

19. Revised Code 3345.21 requiring a university to maintain "law and order" on campus and RC § 2151.41 making it a crime to contribute to the delinquency of a child, place no responsibility on the part of a university to regulate the private lives of its students: Hegel v. Langsam, 29 OMisc 147, 55 OO(2d) 476, 273 NE(2d) 351 (CP 1971).

19.1 An affidavit drawn pursuant to GC § 1639-45 (RC §§ 2151.41, 2151.99), charging an accused with contributing toward the delinquency of a minor by furnishing, aiding or participating in the sale of beer to such minor, but which does not set forth facts showing such minor to be a delinquent within the purview of this section, does not charge an offense against the laws of Ohio: State v. Zaras, 81 App 152, 36 OO 460, 78 NE(2d) 74.

19.2 An affidavit charging that defendant, "the father of an illegitimate child under the age of eighteen years, did unlawfully fail and neglect to care for, support, and educate said child," does not state a cause of action against defendant under this section, since a person prosecuted thereunder must be one who is "charged by law" to be the father of an illegitimate child under eighteen years of age: State v. Parker, 50 OLA 285, 78 NE(2d) 427 (App).

20. General Code §§ 13452-1 to 13452-11, 13451-8a, and 13451-8b (RC §§ 2951.02 to 2951.12, 2947-12 and 2947.13) have no application to persons convicted of violation of this section or GC § 1639-46 (RC § 2151.42), such suspensions of the execution of sentences being governed by GC §§ 1639-49 and 1639-50 (RC §§ 2151.49, 2151.50): 1942 OAG No. 4922.

21. Under the provisions of GC § 1639-49 (RC § 2151.49), read in the light of GC § 1639-50 (RC § 2151.50), a juvenile court is authorized and empowered to suspend the execution of sentences, imposed for violation of this section or GC § 1639-46 (RC § 2151.42), where imprisonment is imposed as part of the punishment, "before or during commitment, upon such condition as he imposes," at least for such period as the juvenile court does not, by reason of age or otherwise, lose jurisdiction over the dependent, neglected, or delinquent child involved: 1942 OAG No. 4922.

22. A conviction for the offense of contributing to the delinquency of a minor will not be disturbed on appeal, where competent evidence was introduced at the trial showing that the defendant, a married man, twenty-nine years of age and with a family, persistently associated with a sixteen-year old girl in such a way as to disrupt her life and morals: State ex rel Meng v. Todaro, 161 OS 348, 53 OO 252, 119 NE(2d) 281.

22.1 A finding or adjudication in a separate proceeding that a minor is delinquent is not a condition precedent to the maintenance of a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of the minor, where the affidavit filed against the one charged with contributing to the delinquency and the evidence on his trial shows that the minor is delinquent: State ex rel Meng v. Todaro, 161 OS 348, 53 OO 252, 119 NE(2d) 281.

23. Where the parents of a female person under 16 years of age actively participate in enabling such person to enter into a marriage relationship, such participation constitutes acts tending to cause the child to become a "delinquent child" as defined by RC § 2151.02 and the parents "act in a way tending to cause delinquency in such child," in violation of this section: State v. Gans, 168 OS 174, 5 OO(2d) 472, 151 NE(2d) 709.

24. Where it is charged only that defendant did aid, abet, induce, cause, encourage or contribute toward the delinquency of a minor child, it is essential, in order to sustain a conviction, to establish by evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that there was some delinquency of such child which defendant either aided, abetted, induced, caused or to which he contributed: State v. Miclau, 167 OS 38, 4 OO(2d) 6, 146 NE(2d) 293.

25. Where it is charged that a defendant did "act in a way tending to cause delinquency" in a child, it is not necessary for a conviction, to establish an actual delinquency, but only that the acts of the defendant were within themselves of such a nature that they would tend to cause delinquency in such child, as delinquency is defined by this section: State v. Gans, 168 OS 174, 5 OO(2d) 472, 151 NE(2d) 709.

26. A person who engages in a conspiracy to carry on a lottery known as "numbers" or policy, in violation of law, is charged with knowledge of the minority of a person under the age of eighteen, used as a runner in the furtherance of the conspiracy; and ignorance of such fact does not constitute a defense in a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, under the provisions of this section: State v. Davis, 95 App 23, 52 OO 369, 117 NE(2d) 55.

27. An affidavit drawn pursuant to this section, charging a person with contributing toward the delinquency of a minor child, which neither charges that such child is a delinquent nor sets forth facts showing such child to be a delinquent within the purview of GC §

1639-2 (RC § 2151.02), and which does not set forth facts showing any conduct on the part of the accused which, within the purview of this section, would tend to cause the delinquency of such child, does not charge an offense: State v. Holbrook, 95 App 526, 54 OO 135, 121 NE(2d) 81.

28. The provision of GC § 1639-45 (RC §§ 2151.41 and 2151.99), that "whoever . . . acts in a way tending to cause delinquency in such child . . . shall be fined . . ." is not void for uncertainty and does not lack uniform operation throughout the state: State v. Cotterel, 97 App 48, 55 OO 272, 123 NE(2d) 438.

29. An affidavit which charges that the accused "did act in a manner tending to cause the delinquency of . . . a minor . . . in that he did engage in immoral and indecent conduct with said minor," properly charges an offense under this section, which makes it an offense to "act in a way tending to cause delinquency in such child"; and such affidavit need not allege facts showing such minor to be a delinquent: State v. Patty, 102 App 18, 1 OO(2d) 480, 140 NE(2d) 804.

30. An affidavit which charges an offense in the exact words of the statute describing such offense is not open to legal objection: State v. Parks, 105 App 208, 6 OO(2d) 40, 152 NE(2d) 154.

31. In a prosecution on the charge of contributing to the neglect of a minor based on the fact that defendant unlawfully removed the minor from the control and custody of the child welfare board, it is essential that such removal be done against the will and without the consent of the board and where the proof according to the record is that at no time did the defendant have custody of the minor except by and with the consent of the board, the prosecution fails completely to establish the essentials of the offense charged: State v. Jones, 76 OLA 112, 145 NE(2d) 458 (App).

32. One who establishes a separate domicile with another, living as husband and wife, knowing him to be the father of three young minor children, is guilty of the violation of this section, which holds in part that "No person shall . . . aid, abet, induce, cause, encourage . . . the neglect . . . of a child": State v. Fullen, 86 OLA 300, 176 NE(2d) 605 (App).

33. A mother is not guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor under this section when instructing her daughter, who is under eighteen years of age, on matters of sex and health: State v. McLaughlin, 4 OApp(2d) 327, 33 OO(2d) 389, 212 NE(2d) 635.

33.1 A drug store proprietor is not guilty of acting in a way tending to cause the delinquency of a fourteen-year old boy to whom he has sold a magazine containing lewd pictures: State v. Crary, 10 OO(2d) 36, 155 NE(2d) 262 (CP).

33.2 The court of common pleas and municipal courts have jurisdiction in offenses involving adults, concurrent with that of the juvenile court, arising under this section or RC § 2151.42: 1958 OAG No. 2016 [1950 OAG No. 1901, overruled].

33.3 In a prosecution for violation of RC § 2151.-41, such section should be considered and construed together with RC § 2945.12 and Const. Art. I, § 10: State v. Walker, 108 App 333, 9 OO(2d) 296, 161 NE(2d) 521.

33.4 Inasmuch as an indigent adult may in juvenile court be found guilty of only a misdemeanor, there is no present requirement that counsel must be appointed to defend him: 1967 OAG No. 67-068.

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1654

Nature of offense

34. Contributing to the delinquency of a female minor is a misdemeanor: Stockum v. State, 106 OS 249, 139 NE 855.

35. The jurisdiction of the juvenile court to prosecute an adult must be predicated on delinquency, dependency or neglect of minor under eighteen years of age: 1915 OAG vol.1, p.143.

36. An affidavit charging that F, on or about the first day of March, 1909, and at divers other days and times between that date and the first day of April, 1910, did unlawfully aid, abet, induce, cause, encourage and contribute to the delinquency of L S, a female minor child, and further stating the acts, means and methods by which he contributed to such delinquency, states an offense under the provisions of this section, is not bad for duplicity: Fisher v. State, 84 OS 360, 95 NE 908.

37. A proprietor of a pool room who permits and encourages boys under eighteen to frequent his pool room and to play pool there, is guilty of contributing to their delinquency: Anss v. State, 16 App 502, 22 OLR 44.

37.1 Statute defining offense cannot be extended by construction to person or things not within its terms, though apparently within its spirit: Peefer v. State, 42 App 276, 182 NE 117.

37.2 Marriage of girl of nearly fifteen to man of forty-one years of age without parent's consent did not constitute her a "delinquent," nor render man guilty of contribution to her delinquency: Peefer v. State, 42 App 276, 182 NE 117.

38. In prosecution on charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor, the nature of the charge permits of a wider latitude in the character of proof required to support it than would be permitted upon a charge of other specific offenses such as rape or assault with intent to rape or kill. One may be guilty of the offense of contributing to the delinquency of a minor by conduct or a series of acts, the commission of no one of which would, in itself, constitute a crime: Pustoy v. State, 12 OLA 560.

39. Finding of guilty on charge of contributing to delinquency of ten year old child, based on excessive punishment by striking with iron poker, was held justified by evidence; one hundred dollar fine and six months workhouse sentence were not unreasonable punishment for such offense: Ford v. State, 13 OLA 139.

39.1 Acts might tend to contribute to delinquency though they would not constitute the offense of contributing to the delinquency; and while a finding of delinquency on the part of the minor is a prerequisite to finding the defendant guilty of the offense of contributing to the delinquency of such minor, such a finding of delinquency is not required in order to convict defendant of the offense of tending to contribute to the delinquency of a minor: State v. Hannawalt, 26 OLA 641 (App).

39.2 Held: 21 year old woman may be convicted of contributing to the delinquency of a minor where she had sexual intercourse with a thirteen year old boy despite his incapacity to emit semen: State ex rel Farrell v. Hornavius, 31 OLA 460 (App).

40. A person owning and conducting a house of ill-repute is guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a minor under seventeen years of age, where it is shown that such minor was admitted by a person apparently acting as a servant or employee and making no inquiry as to the age of the minor: Smith v. State, 14 CC(NS) 257, 24 CD 661.

40.1 While this section was amended in 103 v 864 (871), so as to add to the prior form of such section the offense of "acting in any way tending to cause delinquency in a child," one against whom an affidavit is filed charging him with "contributing to the delinquency of a child," cannot be convicted in the absence of proof of the delinquency of such child, no matter how culpable the acts of such defendant may be; and even if the evidence would sustain a charge of tending to cause delinquency if such charge had been made in such affidavit: Petri v. State, 25 CC(NS) 255, 26 CD 331 [following Fisher v. State, 84 OS 360].

41. Under GC § 1654 (see now RC § 2151.41), a parent cannot be prosecuted for not sending his child to a public, private or parochial school, but may be prosecuted for not giving his child a proper education equivalent to a common school education: In re Hargy, 23 NP(NS) 129, 32 OD 8.

42. A female under 18 who elopes with a man who is 23, without the knowledge and consent of her parents, is a delinquent; and the man is guilty of contributing to her delinquency: State v. Wilcox, 26 NP(NS) 343.

Necessary allegations

43. In a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of a minor, the affidavit, in order to charge a crime, must allege that the minor is under eighteen years of age, and is a delinquent within the meaning of the statute, and that the defendant is guilty of contributing to such delinquency: Willison v. State, 3 App 244, 21 CC(NS) 526, 28 CD 558.

44. Affidavit charging one with contributing to delinquency of a minor states no charge, under GC § 1654 (see now RC § 2151.41), unless it charges one or more acts of delinquency specified in GC § 1644 (see now RC § 2151.38): Edmonds v. State, 30 App 195, 164 NE 649.

44.1 Allegations that minor was under 18, a delinquent within the meaning of statute, and that accused contributed to such delinquency, are essential to statement of offense: Peefer v. State, 42 App 276, 182 NE 117.

45. Delinquency must be an existing condition, to which all persons aiding or contributing may be held amenable under this section: State v. Hawkins, 56 Bull 166

Commitment

46. Imprisonment "at hard labor" under this section is lawful: Stockum v. State, 106 OS 249, 139 NE 855.

48. Contributing to delinquency of a minor, as defined in GC § 1654 (see now RC § 2151.41), is a misdemeanor and a person found guilty of a violation of its provisions cannot lawfully be sentenced to the Ohio reformatory for women: 1931 OAG No.2840.

Evidence

49. In a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of minors, a judgment that such minors were delinquent is admissible in evidence, although it is rendered after the acts complained of: Anss v. State, 16 App 502, 22 OLR 44.

49.1 Testimony of the delinquent, partly corroborated by other witnesses and circumstances, where accused does not take witness stand, is sufficient evidence to justify conviction on charge of contributing to delinquency of minor: DeHoff v. State, 13 OLA 409.

50. Where a person is charged under this section with contributing to the delinquency of a minor under seventeen years of age, by renting a room to her for the purpose of illicit intercourse, and the testimony shows that the minor went there for that purpose, it is not error to permit testimony to be given as to the reputation of the house in which such room is located: Smith v. State, 14 CC(NS) 257, 24 CD 661.

51. Permitting witness who did not know accused to testify, in prosecution for contributing to delinquency of a minor, that accused was immoral, held prejudicial error: Peefer v. State, 42 App 276, 182 NE 117.

Charge

52. For charge to jury in a prosecution for contributing to the delinquency of a female child, see State v. Tollinger, 66 Bull 141.

Other questions

53. Violation of this section is a misdemeanor; while violation of GC § 12413 (See now RC § 2907.02) is a felony: State v. Rose, 89 OS 383, 106 NE 50, LRA 1915A, 256.

54. Where a person has been in jeopardy upon an information or affidavit charging that he contributed to the moral delinquency of a female person in violation of GC § 1654 (see now RC § 2151.41), such jeopardy cannot be successfully pleaded as a bar to a prosecution by indictment on a charge of rape under GC § 12413 (RC § 2907.02). The provision of the constitution relating to jeopardy is in the following words: "No person shall be twice put in jeopardy for the same offense." The offense charged in the information is not the same offense and does not include the offense charged in the indictment, and hence the defense of jeopardy must fail: State v. Rose, 89 OS 383, 106 NE 50, LRA 1915A, 256.

56. When acting as judge of a juvenile court, a probate judge may not tax any costs against delinquent, dependent or neglected children, except the costs which may be taxed against delinquent minors under eighteen years of age by virtue of GC § 1654 (see now RC § 2151.41): In re Costs, 1925 OAG p.12, 3 OLA 625.

57. The judge of a juvenile court is not authorized to suspend the execution of a sentence after a person has been imprisoned for violation of GC §§ 1654 or 1655 (see now RC §§ 2151.41, 2151.42) and is not given authority to place such a person so imprisoned on parole or probation: 1934 OAG No.2517.

[§ 2151.41.1] § 2151.411 Liability of parents for acts of delinquent child.

A parent or guardian having custody of a child is charged with the control of such child and shall have the power to exercise parental control and authority over such child. In any case where a child is found delinquent and placed on probation, if the court finds at the hearing that the parent having custody of such child has failed or neglected to subject him to reasonable parental control and authority, and that such failure or neglect is the proximate cause of the act or acts of the child upon which the finding of delinquency is based, the court may require such parent to enter into a recognizance with sufficient surety, in an amount of not more than five hundred dollars, conditioned upon the faithful discharge of the conditions of probation of such child. If the child thereafter commits a second act and is by reason thereof found delinquent, or violates the conditions of probation, and the court finds at the hearing that the failure or neglect of such parent to subject him to reasonable parental control and authority or to faithfully discharge the conditions of probation of such child on the part of such parent, is the proximate cause of the act or acts of the child upon which such second finding of delinquency is based, or upon which such child is found to have violated the conditions of his probation, the court may declare all or a part of the recognizance forfeited and the amount of such forfeited recognizance shall be applied in payment of any damages which may have been caused by such child, if there be such damages, otherwise, the proceeds therefrom, or part remaining after the payment of damages as aforesaid, shall be paid into the county treasury.

The provisions of this section as it relates to failure or neglect of parents to subject a child to reasonable parental control and authority shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any other sections of this chapter relating to failure or neglect to exercise such parental control or authority. The provisions of this section shall not apply to foster parents.

1. This section and GC § 12123 (RC § 3111.17) authorize a court, in bastardy proceedings, to render a judgment only for the mother's support and maintenance and necessary expenses of childbirth, and support of the child; these do not include attorney fees or care and maintenance of the child from its birth to the time of trial: State ex rel Beebe v. Cowley, 116 OS 377, 156 NE 214.

2. By both the statutory and common law of Ohio, parents are charged with the obligation of supporting their minor children: State ex rel Wright v. Industrial Commission of Ohio, 141 OS 187, 25 OO 277, 47 NE(2d) 209.

3. A father's duty to support his minor child is not extinguished by a decree granting him a divorce and giving to the mother custody of the child with a monetary award against the father, which was never paid: State ex rel Wright v. Industrial Commission of Ohio, 141 OS 187, 25 OO 277, 47 NE(2d) 209.

4. In a prosecution under this section, which provides in part, "whoever is charged by law with the care, support, maintenance or education of a legitimate or illegitimate child under eighteen years of age, and fails, neglects or refuses so to do, * * * may be, after trial and conviction, sentenced to imprisonment * * * or fined," the state must show beyond a reasonable doubt that the accused comes within the class of persons charged by statute with such duty. The record of a judgment in an action for divorce, wherein the mother of such child was plaintiff and the accused was defendant and wherein such child was found to be the issue of the marriage, is not admissible to establish that the accused was "charged by law" with the care and support of such child: State v. Snyder, 157 OS 15, 47 OO 24, 104 NE(2d) 169.

5. In a prosecution under this section, the accused may offer evidence tending to prove that he was not the father of the child or "charged by law" with the care and support thereof, and as a part of his defense he is entitled, on motion duly made, to an order of the court requiring the mother and child, along with the accused, to submit to blood-grouping tests, as provided in GC § 12122-2 (RC § 2317.47): State v. Snyder, 157 OS 15, 47 OO 24, 104 NE(2d) 169.

6. A man can be convicted under this section for failing to support a child although there has been no previous judicial determination that he is the father of such child. It is sufficient if such determination is made for the first time in the proceeding in which he is convicted: State v. Carter, 175 OS 98, 23 OO(2d) 390, 191 NE(2d) 541.

7. Where the mother of a child was lawfully married at the time the child must have been conceived, a man other than her husband cannot be convicted under this section for failing to support that child unless there is clear and convincing evidence that the child is not attributable to the mother's husband; and, even if there is such evidence, the state must prove such man's guilt beyond a reasonable doubt: State v. Carter, 175 OS 98, 23 OO(2d) 390, 191 NE(2d) 541.

8. A petition by a minor child, alleging that a defendant wrongfully induced the plaintiff's father to abandon his family thereby (1) depriving the plaintiff of his father's affection, companionship and guidance and (2) bringing unwanted attention and unwarranted publicity causing embarrassment, humiliation and loss of social standing to the plaintiff, is subject to demurrer on the ground that it fails to state a cause of action: Kane v. Quigley, 1 OS(2d) 1, 30 OO(2d) 1, 203 NE(2d) 338.

9. Revised Code § 2151.42 makes it a criminal offense for the father of an illegitimate child to fail to support such child, does not give rise to a civil action for support on behalf of such child: Baston v. Sears, 15 OS(2d) 166,

44 OO(2d) 144, 239 NE(2d) 62.

10. Prosecution in probate court upon affidavit of wife for nonsupport of minor child held erroneous; information being indispensable under statute: Wilson v. Lasure, 36 App 107, 172 NE 694.

11. Conviction for nonsupport of minor child for specific period does not bar another action for nonsupport during subsequent period: Wilson v. Lasure, 36 App 107, 172 NE 694.

12. Although some of the matters constituting an offense in GC § 12970 (RC § 2903.08), appear in this section, they are so provided in order to enforce protection for the child; there is no inconsistency with the criminal code, the jurisdiction of which lies in another court: In re Cooper, 58 App 519, 11 OO 442, 16 NE(2d) 954 [affirmed, 134 OS 40].

13. An affidavit charging an accused as being the father of an illegitimate minor child and with failing to support the child, without charging that such paternity has been adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction, does not state an offense: State v. Parker, 82 App 235, 37 OO 555, 78 NE(2d) 427.

14. Where an accused is found guilty of nonsupport of an illegitimate minor child of which he was alleged to be the father, the overruling of a motion to vacate the judgment of guilty on the ground of newly discovered evidence is prejudicial error, where such evidence is a birth certificate showing that a person other than the accused is the father of such child: State v. Parker, 82 App 235, 37 OO 555, 78 NE(2d) 427.

15. The filing in juvenile court, pursuant to this section, of an affidavit charging nonsupport of a bastard child, a criminal offense, which court thereafter holds no hearing and makes no order, and into which court the reputed father voluntarily pays certain sums which are remitted to the mother for support of the bastard, does not prevent the common pleas court from exercising jurisdiction in a civil action to recover for the support and maintenance of such child: Wiegel v. Burcham, 94 App 423, 52 OO 132, 115 NE(2d) 847.

16. This section does not place upon the prosecution any duty to show that a person charged with a violation thereof (nonsupport of a minor child) is able to support such child: State v. Priest, 120 App 270, 29 OO(2d) 93, 202 NE(2d) 187.

17. The provisions of this section having to do with the support of a minor child and prohibiting the failure or neglect to provide such support, apply to either parent of such child; and a father who contributes nothing to the support of his two minor children for more than six months except two dresses and ten dollars as presents is guilty of failure to support such children, notwithstanding the fact that the mother of such children received welfare aid for their care and support: State v. Priest, 120 App 270, 29 OO(2d) 93, 202 NE(2d) 187.

18. Imprisonment imposed for a violation of RC § 2151.42, making it an offense for a person charged with the care, support, maintenance, or education of a child to fail to do so, is not imprisonment for debt and, therefore, RC § 2151.42 and RC § 2151.99 are not in violation of const. art. I, § 15, prohibiting imprisonment for debt: State v. Ducey, 25 OApp(2d) 50, 54 OO(2d) 80, 266 NE(2d) 233.

19. Inability to provide support is a proper defense in an action brought pursuant to RC § 2151.42: State v. Ducey, 25 OApp(2d) 50, 54 OO(2d) 80, 266 NE(2d) 233.

20. Only that class of persons capable of paying support money, but failing to do so, may be prosecuted under RC § 2151.42 and RC § 2151.99. These sections are not violative of the equal protection clause of the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States: State v. Ducey, 25 OApp (2d) 50, 54 OO(2d) 80, 266 NE(2d) 233.

21. Where a criminal action was instituted in 1945 charging defendant with nonsupport under this section, such action was governed by the provisions of that section prior to its amendment, effective January 1, 1946: State v. Sharp, 47 OLA 339 (App).

22. The juvenile court had jurisdiction under this section, as effective prior to its amendment January 1, 1946, of a nonsupport proceeding filed by an unmarried woman in 1945 in which the defendant was charged with being the parent of her illegitimate child, notwithstanding the defendant had not been adjudged to be the father of the child under GC § 12110 (RC § 3111.01): State v. Sharp, 47 OLA 339 (App).

23. Court did not err in sustaining demurrer to complaint for nonsupport where defendant had never been adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be the father of the illegitimate child, which was the subject of the action: State ex rel Fisher v. McKinney, 55 OLA 190, 85 NE(2d) 562 (App).

24. In a prosecution under this section, for failure to support an illegitimate child, the accused may offer evidence tending to prove that he is not the father of the child or charged by law with the care and support thereof, and as a part of his defense he is entitled, on motion duly made, to an order of the court requiring the mother and child, along with the accused to submit to blood grouping tests and it is prejudicial error to refuse him this right: State v. Lockwood, 84 OLA 257, 160 NE(2d) 131 (App).

25. Under the provisions of this section the juvenile court's criminal jurisdiction over a parent to compel the support of a minor child terminates when the child becomes eighteen years of age: Calogeras v. Calogeras, 10 OO(2d) 441, 163 NE(2d) 713 (JC).

26. Alleged offenses pertaining to neglecting or mistreating a child, neglecting to provide for a child, or abandoning a child are distinct and independent offenses of an entirely different class from that of manslaughter; they are not of the same general character and violation of the neglect statute does not constitute a lesser included offense of manslaughter: State v. Ross, 87 OLA 379, 176 NE(2d) 746 (CP).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1655

27. Under a former statute (94 v 105, Bates, § 1340-2) a nonresident parent was not within its provisions: State v. Ewers, without report, 76 OS 563, 81 NE 1196.

28. Under the act in its present form (see also GC § 13011 [RC § 3113.05]) a nonresident parent may be prosecuted for nonsupport: State v. Sanner, 81 OS 393, 90 NE 1007, 28 LRA(NS) 130.

29. The term "minor" found in this section (103 v 873) should receive its ordinary legal signification, and so construed embraces only minor children who are legitimate. The juvenile court acting under that section has no authority to proceed and punish the father of an illegitimate child, unless its paternity has been acknowledged after intermarriage in conformity to GC § 8591 (see now RC § 2105.18): Creisar v. State, 97 OS 16, 119 NE 128.

30. The fact that GC § 12123 (RC § 3111.17) provides only for the maintenance of an illegitimate child as a result of a proceeding in bastardy, tends to show that a duty of support, maintenance and education which is imposed by this section applies only to legitimate children: Creisar v. State, 97 OS 16, 119 NE 128 [disapproving State v. Bone, 25 CC(NS) 447, 27 CD 472, and explaining refusal of supreme court to grant certiorari].

31. When one has been charged with an offense under GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42), and has been tried, convicted, sentenced, and imprisoned in a county workhouse for a term of one year pursuant thereto, a proceeding in habeas corpus cannot be successfully maintained to secure his release: Webster v. State ex rel Altick, 129 OS 308, 2 OO 295, 195 NE 548.

32. The violation of GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42), imposing a penalty for the failure to care for, educate, and support a minor under eighteen years of age, is properly charged before a juvenile court by affidavit, under GC § 1683-1 (see now RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.43), and such court has jurisdiction to hear and determine all further proceedings thereunder: Webster v. State ex rel Altick, 129 OS 308, 2 OO 295, 195 NE 548; Baker v. State, 19 OLA 126.

33. A judgment entered in a divorce proceeding releasing the defendant father from any further responsibility regarding his minor child, whose custody, support, and so forth, are committed to the mother, is available to him as a defense against a prosecution under GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42), for failing to contribute to the support of such child: Rowland v. State, 14 App 238, 32 OCA 75 [motion to certify record overruled, State v. Rowland, 19 OLR 83].

34. Prosecution for violation of GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42), based upon an affidavit, is within the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, under the provisions of GC § 1683-1 (see now RC §§ 2151.23, 2151.43), giving such court jurisdiction in all offenses against minors: Snyder v. State ex rel McCoy, 4 OO 537 (App).

35. Settlement of bastardy proceedings and the release executed by the complainant in connection therewith, purporting to release, discharge and save harmless the defendant from all claims which may be asserted by the complainant therein, is not a bar to prosecution of an action for nonsupport of a minor illegitimate child brought under GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42): Snyder v. State ex rel McCoy, 4 OO 537 (App).

36. [A]n action for non-support of an illegitimate child can now be maintained without resorting to a bastardy proceeding (GC § 1655): Seldenright v. Jenkins, 22 OLA 576 (PC).

37. The juvenile court has power under GC § 1655 (see now RC § 2151.42) to compel the fathers of legitimate children of over sixteen and under eighteen years to support them in like manner as they are required to support their children who are under sixteen years of age: 1924 OAG p.718.

38. A step-parent is generally not liable for the support, care, maintenance and education of a minor stepchild as if it were his own. The provisions of the juvenile court chapter generally apply to a step-parent in the same manner as a real parent, where the application is consistent with the intent of the chapter: 1925 OAG p.281.

39. Bond given as a condition of suspension of sentence imposed upon parent for failure to support minor child. Disposition of money if parent fails to comply: 1927 OAG p.395.

[§ 2151.42.1] § 2151.421 Official report of abuse or neglect; investigation; disposition.

Any attorney, physician, including a hospital intern or resident, dentist, podiatrist, practitioner of a limited branch of medicine or surgery as defined in section 4731.15 of the Revised Code, registered or licensed practical nurse, visiting nurse, or other health care professional, licensed psychologist, speech pathologist or audiologist, coroner, administrator or employee of a child day-care center, or administrator or employee of a certified child care agency or other public or private children services agency, school teacher or school authority, social worker, or person rendering spiritual treatment through prayer in accordance with the tenets of a well recognized religion, acting in his official or professional capacity, having reason to believe that a child less than eighteen years of age or any crippled or otherwise physically or mentally handicapped child under twenty-one years of age has suffered any wound, injury, disability, or condition of such a nature as to reasonably indicate abuse or neglect of such child, shall immediately report or cause reports to be made of such information to the children services board or the county department of welfare exercising the children services function, or a municipal or county peace officer in the county in which the child resides or in which the abuse or neglect is occurring or has occurred.

Anyone having reason to believe that a child less than eighteen years of age or any crippled or otherwise physically or mentally handicapped child under twenty-one years of age has suffered any wound, injury, disability, or other condition of such nature as to reasonably indicate abuse or neglect of such child may report or cause reports to be made of such information to the children services board or the county department of welfare exercising the children services function, or to a municipal or county peace officer.

Such reports shall be made forthwith by telephone or in person forthwith, and shall be followed by a written report, if requested by the receiving agency or officer. The written report shall contain:

(A) The names and addresses of the child and his parents or person or persons having custody of such child, if known;

(B) The child's age and the nature and extent of the child's injuries, abuse, or neglect, including any evidence of previous injuries, abuse, or neglect;

(C) Any other information which might be helpful in establishing the cause of the injury, abuse, or neglect.

Any person who is required to report cases of child abuse or neglect may take or cause to be taken color photographs of areas of trauma visible on a child and, if medically indicated cause to be performed radiological examinations of the child.

When the attendance of the physician is pursuant to the performance of services as a member of the staff of a hospital or similar institution, he shall notify the person in charge of the institution or his designated delegate who shall make the necessary reports.

Upon the receipt of a report concerning the possible abuse or neglect of a child, the municipal or county peace officer shall refer such report to the appropriate county department of welfare or children services board.

No child upon whom a report is made shall be removed from his parents, step-parents, guardian, or other persons having custody by a municipal or county peace officer without consultation with the children services board or the county department of welfare exercising the children services function unless, in the judgment of the reporting physician and the officer, immediate removal is considered essential to protect the child from further abuse or neglect.

The county department of welfare or children services board shall investigate, within twenty-four hours, each report referred to it under this section to determine the circumstances surrounding the injury or injuries, abuse, or neglect, the cause thereof, and the person or persons responsible. Such investigation shall be made in cooperation with the law enforcement agency. The county department of welfare or children services board shall report each case to a central registry which the state department of public welfare shall maintain in order to determine whether prior reports have been made in other counties concerning the child or other principals in the case. The department or board shall submit a report of its investigation, in writing to the law enforcement agency.

The county department of welfare or children services board shall make such recommendations to the county prosecutor or city attorney as it deems necessary to protect such children as are brought to its attention.

Anyone or any hospital, institution, school, health department, or agency participating in the making of such reports, or anyone participating in a judicial proceeding resulting from such reports, shall be immune from any civil or criminal liability that might otherwise be incurred or imposed as a result of such actions. Notwithstanding section 4731.22 of the Revised Code, the physician-patient privilege shall not be a ground for excluding evidence regarding a child's injuries, abuse, or neglect, or the cause thereof in any judicial proceeding resulting from a report submitted pursuant to this section.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to define as an abused or neglected child any child who is under spiritual treatment through prayer in accordance with the tenets and practice of a well-recognized religion in lieu of medical treatment, and no report shall be required as to such child.

Any report made under this section is confidential, and any person who permits or encourages the unauthorized dissemination of its contents is guilty of a misdemeanor of the fourth degree.

Reports required by this section shall result in protective services and emergency supportive services being made available by the county department of welfare or children services board on behalf of children about whom such reports are made, in an effort to prevent further neglect or abuse, to enhance their welfare, and, whenever possible, to preserve the family unit intact. The department of public welfare shall exercise rule-making authority under Chapter 119. of the Revised Code to aid in the implementation of this section.

There shall be placed on file with the juvenile court in each county and the department of public welfare an initial plan of cooperation jointly prepared and subscribed to by a committee consisting of the county peace officer, all chief municipal peace officers within the county, the prosecuting attorney of the county and each city, and the children services board or county welfare department exercising the children services function as convened by the county welfare director no later than six months after the effective date of this amendment. Such plan shall set forth the normal operating procedure to be employed by all concerned officials in the execution of their respective responsibilities under this section and section 2151.41 of the Revised Code. Such plan shall include a system for cross-referral of reported cases of abuse and neglect as necessary, and shall also include the name and title of the official directly responsible for making reports to the central registry.

§ 2151.43 Charges against adults; defendant bound over to grand jury.

In cases against an adult under sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code, any person may file an affidavit with the clerk of the juvenile court setting forth briefly, in plain and ordinary language, the charges against the accused who shall be tried thereon. When the child is a recipient of aid pursuant to Chapter 5107. or 5113. of the Revised Code, the county welfare department shall file charges against any person who fails to provide support to a child in violation of section 2919.21 of the Revised Code, unless the department files charges under section 3113.06 of the Revised Code, or unless charges of nonsupport are filed by a relative or guardian of the child, or unless action to enforce support is brought under Chapter 3115. of the Revised Code.

In such prosecution an indictment by the grand jury or information by the prosecuting attorney shall not be required. The clerk shall issue a warrant for the arrest of the accused, who, when arrested, shall be taken before the juvenile judge and tried according to such sections.

The affidavit may be amended at any time before or during the trial.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. The procedure of filing a complaint in the juvenile court on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and then binding the prisoner over to the grand jury upon concluding that a felony over which the juvenile court lacked jurisdiction had been committed did not violate the federal right to be free from double jeopardy: Greear v. Maxwell, 35 OO(2d) 333, 355 F(2d) 991.

2. The court of common pleas and municipal courts have jurisdiction in offenses involving adults, concurrent with that of the juvenile court, arising under RC § 2151.41 or 2151.42; 1950 OAG No. 1901 overruled; 1958 OAG No. 2016.

§ 2151.44 Complaint after hearing. (GC §§ 1639-40, 1639-42)

If it appears at the hearing of a child that any person has abused or has aided, induced, caused, encouraged, or contributed to the dependency, neglect, or delinquency of a child or acted in a way tending to cause delinquency in such child, or that a person charged with the care, support, education, or maintenance of any child has failed to support or sufficiently contribute toward the support, education, and maintenance of such child, the juvenile judge may order a complaint filed against such person and proceed to hear and dispose of the case as provided in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code.

On the request of the judge, the prosecuting attorney shall prosecute all adults charged with violating such sections.

HISTORY: GC §§ 1639-40, 1639-42; 117 v 520 (533, 534). EFF 10-1-53. Analogous to former GC §§ 1658, 1664.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. When at a hearing upon a charge that a child is delinquent, neglected, or dependent, it appears that a person has contributed to bring about the commission of any of these offenses, or in a manner tending to cause them, all the provisions of GC § 1639-40 (RC § 2151.44) does is to vest authority in the juvenile judge to then order complaint filed against such person and proceed upon such complaint: State v. Van Horn, 32 OLA 406 (App).

2. This section is in nowise an exclusive provision and it does not contemplate that no charge of contributing or tending to contribute to the delinquency of a minor may be filed unless and until after hearing of a charge against the child: State v. Van Horn, 32 OLA 406 (App).

§ 2151.45 Expense of extradition. (GC § 1639-41)

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Defendant may waive a jury trial in misdemeanor cases without the same being in writing and under this section one would have been entitled to a jury trial only upon demand being made for the same: State v. Edwards, 66 OLA 479, 117 NE(2d) 444 (App).

DECISIONS UNDER FORMER GC § 1651

1. The jurisdiction which is conferred upon the court of domestic relations for Lucas county is to be exercised in accordance with GC §§ 1639 to 1683-1 (see now RC §§ 2151.01 to 2151.55), and since this section provides for a jury trial in a proper case, GC §§ 1683-12 to 1683-19 (RC §§ 2153.01 to 2153.07) are not rendered unconstitutional by the fact that they fail to provide in express terms for a trial by jury: State ex rel D'Alton v. Ritchie, 97 OS 41, 119 NE 124.

2. A jury may be waived by a defendant in the juvenile court, and where he elects so to do it is not necessary that the waiver be in writing: Walton v. State, 3 App 97, 19 CC(NS) 452, 27 CD 12.

3. While this section was amended in 103 v 864 (871), so as to add to the prior form of such section the offense of "acting in any way tending to cause delinquency in a child," one against whom an affidavit is filed charging him with "contributing to the delinquency of a child," cannot be convicted in the absence of proof of the delinquency of such child, no matter how culpable the acts of such defendant may be; and even if the evidence would sustain a charge of tending to cause delinquency if such charge had been made in such affidavit: Petri v. State, 25 CC (NS) 255, 26 CD 331 [following Fisher v. State, 84 OS 360].

4. If the record does not show distinctly that the defendant was not asked if he had anything to say why judgment should not be pronounced against him, it will be presumed that such question was asked in accordance with GC § 13694 (see now RC § 2947.05): Petri v. State, 25 CC(NS) 255, 26 CD 331.

5. While this section provides that a person who is charged with contributing to the delinquency or neglect of a child may demand a trial by jury, it is said that a record which shows that "defendant did not demand a trial by jury" is insufficient, since the waiver of the right to the jury trial must appear on the record clearly and affirmatively, and the reviewing court cannot assume or imply such waiver from the fact that the record shows that the accused did not demand a jury: Petri v. State, 25 CC (NS) 255, 26 CD 331 [following Simmons v. State, 75 OS 346].

6. General Code § 1651 has nothing to do with the defendant's right to waive a jury trial, but on the contrary gives him the right to demand a jury trial, and then it provides that if he does not demand a jury trial, the judge, upon his own motion, may call a jury; but that does not give the trial judge the right to call a jury where the defendant in compliance with GC § 13442-4 expressly waives a trial by jury and elects to be tried by the court; when that is done, GC § 13442-5 makes it the mandatory duty of the trial judge to try the case without a jury: Baker v. State, 15 OLA 505 (App).

7. CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Since both male and female offenders under GC § 1639-45 (RC § 2151.41) are subjected to the same minimum and maximum penalties, the provision in this section that a convicted female may be confined to the woman's reformatory, is not discriminatory and is not a denial of equal protection of the law: State v. Beddow, 15 OO 270 (App).

2. Where a female is found guilty on seven counts, of contributing to the delinquency of children, and is sentenced pursuant to this section, such sentences by their terms being for a term "not to exceed one year" and the court has not specified that such sentences are to run concurrently, such prisoner should be held for the full period of seven years, unless she is sooner released by order of court: 1944 OAG No. 6998.

3. The provisions of GC § 13457-1 (RC § 2949.33), relating to increased sentences for second and third offenders in certain misdemeanor cases, apply to commitments made to the Ohio reformatory for women, pursuant to this section: 1944 OAG No. 6998.

§ 2151.49 Suspension of sentence.

In every case of conviction under sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code, where imprisonment is imposed as part of the punishment, the juvenile judge may suspend sentence, before or during commitment, upon such condition as he imposes. In the case of conviction for non-support of a child who is receiving aid under Chapter 5107, or 5113, of the Revised Code, if the juvenile judge suspends sentence on condition that the person make payments for support, the payment shall be made to the county welfare department rather than to the child or custodian of the child.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. By the express terms of this section the juvenile court is authorized to "suspend sentence" either before or after commitment, which is construed to mean suspension of the execution of the sentence rather than postponement of imposition of sentence: In re Keagy, 76 App 95, 31 OO 405, 63 NE(2d) 216.

4. Under the provisions of GC § 1639-49 (RC § 2151.49), read in the light of GC § 1639-50 (RC § 2151.50), a juvenile court is authorized and empowered to suspend the execution of sentences, imposed for violation of this section or GC § 1639-46 (RC § 2151.42), where imprisonment is imposed as part of the punishment, "before or during commitment, upon such condition as he imposes," at least for such period as the juvenile court does not, by reason of age or otherwise, lose jurisdiction over the dependent, neglected, or delinquent child involved: 1942 OAG No. 4922.

§ 2151.50 Forfeiture of bond. (GC § 1639-50)

When, as a condition of suspension of sentence under section 2151.49 of the Revised Code, bond is required and given, upon the failure of a person giving such bond to comply with the conditions thereof, such bond may be forfeited, the suspension terminated by the juvenile judge, the original sentence executed as though it had not been suspended, and the term of any sentence imposed in such case shall commence from the date of imprisonment of such person after such forfeiture and termination of suspension. Any part of such sentence which may have been served shall be deducted from any such period of imprisonment. When such bond is forfeited the judge may issue execution thereon without further proceedings.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. An order of the Juvenile Court made pursuant to a finding that the children are "neglected children," and committing said children to the permanent custody of the child welfare board for the purpose of placing them for adoption, is a final appealable order under Sec. 6, Art IV, Ohio Constitution. In re Masters, 165 OS 503, 60 OO 474, 137 NE(2d) 752.

1.1 An alleged father who appears in juvenile court voluntarily at the hearing of an affidavit claiming his alleged daughter to be a neglected child, has no right to prosecute an appeal from the finding, where he is not being prosecuted, and under this section appeals on questions of law apply to the prosecution of adults: State v. Hayes, 62 App 289, 16 OO 10, 23 NE(2d) 956.

2. Where an adult father filed a motion to vacate the previous orders and to dismiss proceedings of a juvenile court, the one order, in part, adjudicating that his child is a dependent child and the other awarding its exclusive custody to the mother, and at the hearing on such motion it was stipulated that the sole issue was the court's jurisdiction to hear, decide and make the order delivered therein on a stated date, there is no right of appeal to the court of appeals on questions of law from the court's order overruling such motion, such proceedings not being classified as a prosecution of an adult within the meaning of the juvenile court code: In re Griffin, 73 App 110, 28 OO 177, 55 NE(2d) 133.

3. A bastardy proceeding, while having some characteristics of a criminal prosecution, is essentially a civil action and an appeal from a judgment therein is not controlled by the provisions of this section relating to appeals from judgments in criminal prosecutions of adults in the juvenile court: State ex rel Pennington v. Barger, 74 App 58, 29 OO 243, 57 NE(2d) 815.

4. Upon a motion for leave to appeal from a sentence imposed by the juvenile court, good cause is shown as that term is employed in GC § 1639-51 (RC § 2151.52), when a substantial question relating to the trial, conviction and sentence of the defendant is raised incident to the appeal: State ex rel Meng v. Todaro, 92 App 247, 49 OO 342, 109 NE(2d) 669.

4.1 Under the juvenile court act (RC § 2151.01 et seq) no appeal shall be taken to the court of appeals except for good cause shown, "upon motion and notice to the prosecuting attorney . . . or unless such motion is allowed by such court"; and where an appellant fails to make a showing of "good cause" preliminary to appealing, the appeal will be denied and the judgment of the lower court affirmed: State v. Parks, 105 App 208, 6 OO(2d) 40, 152 NE(2d) 154.

5. While former GC § 1668 (see now RC § 2151.52) did not authorize proceedings in error in prosecutions of persons under seventeen, such omission did not confer upon the delinquent child the right to attack the judgment of the juvenile court collaterally by a proceeding in habeas corpus: In re Januszewski, 196 Fed 123, 10 OLR 151.

6. General Code § 1668 (see now RC § 2151.52) does not confer jurisdiction upon the court of appeals to review a judgment of the juvenile court adjudging defendants, minors, to be dependents and committing them to an institution: Baker v. State, 17 OLA 384.

§ 2151.53 Physical and mental examinations; records of examination; expenses. (GC (1639-54)

Any person coming within sections 2151.01 to 2151.54, inclusive, of the Revised Code, may be subjected to a physical and mental examination by competent physicians, psychologists, and psychiatrists to be appointed by the juvenile court. Whenever any child is committed to any institution by virtue of such sections, a record of such examinations shall be sent with the commitment to such institution. The compensation of such physicians, psychologists, and psychiatrists and the expenses of such examinations shall be paid by the county treasurer upon specifically itemized vouchers, certified by the juvenile judge.

[INTERSTATE COMPACT ON JUVENILES]

§ 2151.56 Interstate compact on juveniles.

The governor is hereby authorized to execute a compact on behalf of this state with any other state or states legally joining therein in the form substantially as follows:

1. When a boy over sixteen years of age is committed to the Ohio state reformatory, the costs are paid by the county treasurer upon the certificate of the juvenile judge, as provided in GC § 1682 (see now RC § 2151.54): 1918 OAG vol.1, p.324.

THE INTERSTATE COMPACT ON JUVENILES

The contracting states solemnly agree:

Article I—Findings and Purposes

That juveniles who are not under proper supervision and control, or who have absconded, escaped or run away, are likely to endanger their own health, morals and welfare, and the health, morals and welfare of others. The cooperation of the states party to this compact is therefore necessary to provide for the welfare and protection of juveniles and of the public with respect to (1) cooperative supervision of delinquent juveniles on probation or parole; (2) the return, from one state to another, of delinquent juveniles who have escaped or absconded; (3) the return, from one state to another, of nondelinquent juveniles who have run away from home; and (4) additional measures for the protection of juveniles and of the public, which any two or more of the party states may find desirable to undertake cooperatively. In carrying out the provisions of this compact the party states shall be guided by the noncriminal, reformatory and protective policies which guide their laws concerning delinquent, neglected or dependent juveniles generally. It shall be the policy of the states party to this compact to cooperate and observe their respective responsibilities for the prompt return and acceptance of juveniles and delinquent juveniles who become subject to the provisions of this compact. The provisions of this compact shall be reasonably and liberally construed to accomplish the foregoing purposes.

Article II—Existing Rights and Remedies

That all remedies and procedures provided by this compact shall be in addition to and not in substitution for other rights, remedies and procedures, and shall not be in derogation of parental rights and responsibilities.

Article III—Definitions

That, for the purposes of this compact, "delinquent juvenile" means any juvenile who has been adjudged delinquent and who, at the time the provisions of this compact are invoked, is still subject to the jurisdiction of the court that has made such adjudication or to the jurisdiction or supervision of an agency or institution pursuant to an order of such court; "probation or parole" means any kind of conditional release of juveniles authorized under the laws of the states party hereto; "court" means any court having jurisdiction over delinquent, neglected or dependent children; "state" means any state, territory or possessions of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico; and "residence" or any variant thereof means a place at which a home or regular place of abode is maintained.

Article IV—Return of Runaways

(a) That the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody of a juvenile who has not been adjudged delinquent but who has run away without the consent of such parent, guardian, person or agency may petition the appropriate court in the demanding state for the issuance of a requisition for his return. The petition shall state the name and age of the juvenile, the name of the petitioner and the basis of entitlement to the juvenile's custody, the circumstances of his running away, his location if known at the time application is made, and such other facts as may tend to show that the juvenile who has run away is endangering his own welfare or the welfare of others and is not an emancipated minor. The petition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the document or documents on which the petitioner's entitlement to the juvenile's custody is based, such as birth certificates, letters of guardianship, or custody decrees. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such petition. The judge of the court to which this application is made may hold a hearing thereon to determine whether for the purposes of this compact the petitioner is entitled to the legal custody of the juvenile, whether or not it appears that the juvenile has in fact run away without consent, whether or not he is an emancipated minor, and whether or not it is in the best interest of the juvenile to compel his return to the state. If the judge determines, either with or without a hearing, that the juvenile should be returned, he shall present to the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such juvenile. Such requisition shall set forth the name and age of the juvenile, the determination of the court that the juvenile has run away without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, and that it is in the best interest and for the protection of such juvenile that he be returned. In the event that a proceeding for the adjudication of the juvenile as a delinquent, neglected or dependent juvenile is pending in the court at the time when such juvenile runs away, the court may issue a requisition for the return of such juvenile upon its own motion, regardless of the consent of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to legal custody, reciting therein the nature and circumstances of the pending proceeding. The requisition shall in every case be executed in duplicate and shall be signed by the judge. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of such court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a juvenile who has run away, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of a court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return, and who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such juvenile over to the officer whom the court demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

Upon reasonable information that a person is a juvenile who has run away from another state party to this compact without the consent of a parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to his legal custody, such juvenile may be taken into custody without a requisition and brought forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such juvenile and who shall determine after a hearing whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person, subject to the order of the court, for his own protection and welfare, for such a time not exceeding ninety days as will enable his return to another state party to this compact pursuant to a requisition for his return from a court of that state. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a juvenile who has run away, there is pending in the state wherein he is found any criminal charge, or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such state, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this compact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he ran away, the juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

(b) That the state to which a juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for payment of the transportation costs of such return.

(c) That "juvenile" as used in this Article means any person who is a minor under the law of the state of residence of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to the legal custody of such minor.

Article V—Return of Escapees and Absconders

(a) That the appropriate person or authority from whose probation or parole supervision a delinquent juvenile has absconded or from whose institutional custody he has escaped shall present to the appropriate court or to the executive authority of the state where the delinquent juvenile is alleged to be located a written requisition for the return of such delinquent juvenile. Such requisition shall state the name and age of the delinquent juvenile, the particulars of his adjudication as a delinquent juvenile, the circumstances of the breach of the terms of his probation or parole or of his escape from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, and the location of such delinquent juvenile, if known, at the time the requisition is made. The requisition shall be verified by affidavit, shall be executed in duplicate, and shall be accompanied by two certified copies of the judgment, formal adjudication, or order of commitment which subjects such delinquent juvenile to probation or parole or to the legal custody of the institution or agency concerned. Such further affidavits and other documents as may be deemed proper may be submitted with such requisition. One copy of the requisition shall be filed with the compact administrator of the demanding state, there to remain on file subject to the provisions of law governing records of the appropriate court. Upon the receipt of a requisition demanding the return of a delinquent juvenile who has absconded or escaped, the court or the executive authority to whom the requisition is addressed shall issue an order to any peace officer or other appropriate person directing him to take into custody and detain such delinquent juvenile. Such detention order must substantially recite the facts necessary to the validity of its issuance hereunder. No delinquent juvenile detained upon such order shall be delivered over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him, unless he shall first be taken forthwith before a judge of an appropriate court in the state, who shall inform him of the demand made for his return and who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for him. If the judge of such court shall find that the requisition is in order, he shall deliver such delinquent juvenile over to the officer whom the appropriate person or authority demanding him shall have appointed to receive him. The judge, however, may fix a reasonable time to be allowed for the purpose of testing the legality of the proceeding.

Upon reasonable information that a person is a delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, such person may be taken into custody in any other state party to this compact without a requisition. But in such event, he must be taken forthwith before a judge of the appropriate court, who may appoint counsel or guardian ad litem for such person and who shall determine, after a hearing, whether sufficient cause exists to hold the person subject to the order of the court for such a time, not exceeding ninety days, as will enable his detention under a detention order issued on a requisition pursuant to this Article. If, at the time when a state seeks the return of a delinquent juvenile who has either absconded while on probation or parole or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision, there is pending in the state wherein he is detained any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for an act committed in such state, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of such state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of any state party to this compact, upon the establishment of their authority and the identity of the delinquent juvenile being returned, shall be permitted to transport such delinquent juvenile through any and all states party to this compact, without interference. Upon his return to the state from which he escaped or absconded, the delinquent juvenile shall be subject to such further proceedings as may be appropriate under the laws of that state.

(b) That the state to which a delinquent juvenile is returned under this Article shall be responsible for the payment of the transportation costs of such return.

Article VI—Voluntary Return Procedure

That any delinquent juvenile who has absconded while on probation or parole, or escaped from an institution or agency vested with his legal custody or supervision in any state party to this compact, and any juvenile who has run away from any state party to this compact, who is taken into custody without a requisition in another state party to this compact under the provisions of Article IV (a) or of Article V (a), may consent to his immediate return to the state from which he absconded, escaped or ran away. Such consent shall be given by the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem if any, by executing or subscribing a writing, in the presence of a judge of the appropriate court, which states that the juvenile or delinquent juvenile and his counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, consent to his return to the demanding state. Before such consent shall be executed or subscribed, however, the judge, in the presence of counsel or guardian ad litem, if any, shall inform the juvenile or delinquent juvenile of his rights under this compact. When the consent has been duly executed, it shall be forwarded to and filed with the compact administrator of the state in which the court is located and the judge shall direct the officer having the juvenile or delinquent juvenile in custody to deliver him to the duly accredited officer or officers of the state demanding his return, and shall cause to be delivered to such officer or officers a copy of the consent. The court may, however, upon the request of the state to which the juvenile or delinquent juvenile is being returned, order him to return unaccompanied to such state and shall provide him with a copy of such court order; in such event a copy of the consent shall be forwarded to the compact administrator of the state to which said juvenile or delinquent juvenile is ordered to return.

Article VII—Cooperative Supervision of Probationers and Parolees

(a) That the duly constituted judicial and administrative authorities of a state party to this compact (herein called "sending state") may permit any delinquent juvenile within such state, placed on probation or parole, to reside in any other state party to this compact (herein called "receiving state") while on probation or parole, and the receiving state shall accept such delinquent juvenile, if the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of such delinquent juvenile is residing or undertakes to reside within the receiving state. Before granting such permission, opportunity shall be given to the receiving state to make such investigations as it deems necessary. The authorities of the sending state shall send to the authorities of the receiving state copies of pertinent court orders, social case studies and all other available information which may be of value to and assist the receiving state in supervising a probationer or parolee under this compact. A receiving state, in its discretion, may agree to accept supervision of a probationer or parolee in cases where the parent, guardian or person entitled to the legal custody of the delinquent juvenile is not a resident of the receiving state, and if so accepted the sending state may transfer supervision accordingly.

(b) That each receiving state will assume the duties of visitation and of supervision over any such delinquent juvenile and in the exercise of those duties will be governed by the same standards of visitation and supervision that prevail for its own delinquent juveniles released on probation or parole.

(c) That, after consultation between the appropriate authorities of the sending state and of the receiving state as to the desirability and necessity of returning such delinquent juvenile, the duly accredited officers of a sending state may enter a receiving state and there apprehend and retake any such delinquent juvenile on probation or parole. For that purpose, no formalities will be required, other than establishing the authority of the officer and the identity of the delinquent juvenile to be retaken and returned. The decision of the sending state to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole shall be conclusive upon and not reviewable within the receiving state, but if, at the time the sending state seeks to retake a delinquent juvenile on probation or parole, there is pending against him within the receiving state any criminal charge or any proceeding to have him adjudicated a delinquent juvenile for any act committed in such state, or if he is suspected of having committed within such state a criminal offense or an act of juvenile delinquency, he shall not be returned without the consent of the receiving state until discharged from prosecution or other form of proceeding, imprisonment, detention or supervision for such offense or juvenile delinquency. The duly accredited officers of the sending state shall be permitted to transport delinquent juveniles being so returned through any and all states party to this compact, without interference.

(d) That the sending state shall be responsible under this Article for paying the costs of transporting any delinquent juvenile to the receiving state or of returning any delinquent juvenile to the sending state.

Article VIII—Responsibility for Costs

(a) That the provisions of Articles IV (b), V (b) and VII (d) of this compact shall not be construed to alter or affect any internal relationship among the departments, agencies and officers of and in the government of a party state, or between a party state and its subdivisions, as to the payment of costs, or responsibilities therefor.

(b) That nothing in this compact shall be construed to prevent any party state or subdivision thereof from asserting any right against any person, agency or other entity in regard to costs for which such party state or subdivision thereof may be responsible pursuant to Articles IV (b), V (b) or VII (d) of this compact.

Article IX—Detention Practices

That, to every extent possible, it shall be the policy of states party to this compact that no juvenile or delinquent juvenile shall be placed or detained in any prison, jail or lockup nor be detained or transported in association with criminal, vicious or dissolute persons.

Article X—Supplementary Agreements

That the duly constituted administrative authorities of a state party to this compact may enter into supplementary agreements with any other state or states party hereto for the cooperative care, treatment and rehabilitation of delinquent juveniles whenever they shall find that such agreements will improve the facilities or programs available for such care, treatment and rehabilitation. Such care, treatment and rehabilitation may be provided in an institution located within any state entering into such supplementary agreement. Such supplementary agreements shall (1) provide the rates to be paid for the care, treatment and custody of such delinquent juveniles, taking into consideration the character of facilities, services and subsistence furnished; (2) provide that the delinquent juvenile shall be given a court hearing prior to his being sent to another state for care, treatment and custody; (3) provide that the state receiving such a delinquent juvenile in one of its institutions shall act solely as agent for the state sending such delinquent juvenile; (4) provide that the sending state shall at all times retain jurisdiction over delinquent juveniles sent to an institution in another state; (5) provide for reasonable inspection of such institutions by the sending state; (6) provide that the consent of the parent, guardian, person or agency entitled to the legal custody of said delinquent juvenile shall be secured prior to his being sent to another state; and (7) make provision for such other matters and details as shall be necessary to protect the rights and equities of such delinquent juveniles and of the cooperating states.

Article XI—Acceptance of Federal and Other Aid

That any state party to this compact may accept any and all donations, gifts and grants of money, equipment and services from the federal or any local government, or any agency thereof and from any person, firm or corporation, for any of the purposes and functions of this compact, and may receive and utilize the same subject to the terms, conditions and regulations governing such donations, gifts and grants.

Article XII—Compact Administrators

That the governor of each state party to this compact shall designate an officer who, acting jointly with like officers of other party states, shall promulgate rules and regulations to carry out more effectively the terms and provisions of this compact.

Article XIII—Execution of Compact

That this compact shall become operative immediately upon its execution by any state as between it and any other state or states so executing. When executed it shall have the full force and effect of law within such state, the form of execution to be in accordance with the laws of the executing state.

Article XIV—Renunciation

That this compact shall continue in force and remain binding upon each executing state until renounced by it. Renunciation of this compact shall be by the same authority which executed it, by sending six months' notice in writing of its intention to withdraw from the compact to the other states party hereto. The duties and obligations of a renouncing state under Article VII hereof shall continue as to parolees and probationers residing therein at the time of withdrawal until retaken or finally discharged. Supplementary agreements entered into under Article X hereof shall be subject to renunciation as provided by such supplementary agreements, and shall not be subject to the six months' renunciation notice of the present Article.

Article XV—Severability

That the provisions of this compact shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence, or provision of this compact is declared to be contrary to the constitution of any participating state or the United States or the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this compact and the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstance shall not be affected thereby. If this compact shall be held contrary to the constitution of any state participating therein, the compact shall remain in full force and effect as to the remaining states, and in full force and effect as to the state affected as to all severable matters.

Article XVI—Additional Article

[Note: Article XVI of the compact follows RC § 2151.61 in the enrolled bill.]

That this article shall provide additional remedies, and shall be binding only as among and between those party states which specifically execute the same.

For the purposes of this Article, "child," as used herein, means any minor within the jurisdictional age limits of any court in the home state.

When any child is brought before a court of a state of which such child is not a resident, and such state is willing to permit such child's return to the home state of such child, such home state, upon being so advised by the state in which such proceeding is pending, shall immediately institute proceedings to determine the residence and jurisdictional facts as to such child in such home state, and upon finding that such child is in fact a resident of said state and subject to the jurisdiction of the court thereof, shall within five days authorize the return of such child to the home state, and to the parent or custodial agency legally authorized to accept such custody in such home state, and at the expense of such home state, to be paid from such funds as such home state may procure, designate, or provide, prompt action being of the essence.

3. Imprisonment imposed for a violation of RC § 2151.42, making it an offense for a person charged with the care, support, maintenance, or education of a child to fail to do so, is not imprisonment for debt and, therefore, RC §§ 2151.42 and 2151.99 are not in violation of Section 15, Article I, Ohio Constitution, prohibiting imprisonment for debt: State v. RULE 7. Detention and shelter care

(A) Detention: standards. A child taken into custody shall not be placed in detention or shelter care prior to final disposition unless his detention or care is required to protect the person and property of others or those of the child, or the child may abscond or be removed from the jurisdiction of the court, or he has no parent, guardian, or custodian or other person able to provide supervision and care for him and return him to the court when required.

(B) Priorities in placement prior to hearing. A person taking a child into custody shall, with all reasonable speed, either:

(1) Release the child to his parent, guardian, or other custodian; or

(2) Where his detention or shelter care appears to be required under the standards of subdivision (A) bring the child to the court or deliver him to a place of detention or shelter care designated by the court.

(C) Initial procedure upon detention. Any person who delivers a child to a shelter or detention facility shall give the admissions officer at the facility a signed report stating why the child was taken into custody and why he was not released to his parent, guardian or custodian, and shall assist the admissions officer, if necessary, in notifying the parent pursuant to subdivision (E)(3).

(D) Admission. The admissions officer in a shelter or detention facility, upon receipt of a child, shall review the report submitted pursuant to subdivision (C), make such further investigation as is feasible and either:

(1) Release the child to the care of his parents, guardian or custodian; or

(2) Where detention or shelter care is required under the standards of subdivision (A), admit the child to the facility or place him in some appropriate facility.

(E) Procedure after admission. When a child has been admitted to detention or shelter care the admissions officer shall:

(1) Prepare a report stating the time the child was brought to the facility and the reasons he was admitted;

(2) Advise the child of (a) his right to telephone his parents and counsel immediately and at reasonable times thereafter and (b) the time, place and purpose of the detention hearing; and

(3) Use reasonable diligence to contact the child's parent, guardian or custodian and advise him of:

(a) The place of and reasons for detention;

(b) The time the child may be visited;

(c) The time, place and purpose of the detention hearing; and

(d) The right to counsel and appointed counsel in the case of indigency.

(F) Detention hearing.

(1) Hearing: time; notice. When a child has been admitted to detention or shelter care, a detention hearing shall be held promptly, not later than seventy-two hours after the child is placed in detention or shelter care or the next court day, whichever is earlier, to determine whether detention or shelter care is required. Reasonable oral or written notice of the time, place, and purpose of the detention hearing shall be given to the child, and, if he can be found, to his parent, guardian, or other custodian.

(2) Hearing: advisement of rights. Prior to the hearing, the court shall inform the parties as to: (a) the right to counsel and to appointed counsel if indigent and (b) the child's right to remain silent with respect to any allegation of a juvenile traffic offense, delinquency, or unruliness.

(3) Hearing procedure. The court may consider any evidence, including the reports filed by the person who brought the child to the facility and the admissions officer, without regard to formal rules of evidence. Unless it appears from the hearing that the child's detention or shelter care is required under subdivision (A), the court shall order his release to his parent, guardian or custodian.

(G) Rehearing. Any decision relating to detention or shelter care may be reviewed at any time upon motion of any party. If a parent, guardian, or custodian did not receive notice of the initial hearing and did not appear or waive appearance at the hearing, the court shall rehear the matter promptly.

(H) Separation from adults. No child shall be placed in or committed to any prison, jail, lockup or any other place where he can come in contact or communication with any adult convicted of crime, under arrest or charged with crime.

A child may be detained in jail or other facility for detention of adults only if the child is alleged to be delinquent, there is no detention center for delinquent children under the supervision of the court or other agency approved by the court, and the detention is in a room separate and removed from those for adults. The court may order that a child over the age of fifteen years who is alleged to be delinquent be detained in a jail in a room separate and removed from adults if public safety or protection of the child or others reasonably requires such detention.

A child alleged to be neglected or dependent shall not be detained in jail or other facility intended or used for detention of adults charged with criminal offenses or of children alleged to be delinquent unless upon order of the court.

(I) Medical examination. The supervisor of a shelter or detention facility may provide for a physical examination of a child placed therein.

(J) Telephone and visitation rights. A child may telephone his parents and attorney immediately after being admitted to a shelter or detention facility and at reasonable times thereafter.

The child may be visited at reasonable visiting hours by his parents and adult members of his family, his pastor and his teachers. He may be visited by his attorney at any time.

(C) Summons: endorsement. The court may endorse upon the summons an order directed to the party, or person with whom the child may be, to appear personally and bring the child to the hearing.

(D) Warrant: issuance. If it appears that summons will be ineffectual or the welfare of the child requires that he be brought forthwith to the court, a warrant may be issued against the child. A copy of the complaint shall accompany the warrant.

(E) Warrant: form. The warrant shall contain the name of the child or, if that is unknown, any name or description by which he can be identified with reasonable certainty. It shall contain a summary statement of the complaint and in juvenile traffic offense and delinquency proceedings the numerical designation of the applicable statute or ordinance. A copy of the complaint shall be attached to the warrant. The warrant shall command that the child be taken into custody and be brought before the court issuing such warrant without unnecessary delay.

(A) Summons: service, return. Summons shall be served as provided in Civil Rules 4(A), (C) and (D), 4.1, 4.2, 4.3, 4.5 and 4.6. The summons shall direct the party served to appear at a stated time and place; where service is by certified mail such time shall not be less than twenty-one days after the date of mailing.

When the residence of a party is unknown, and cannot with reasonable diligence be ascertained, service shall be made by publication. Before service by publication can be made, an affidavit of a party or his counsel must be filed with the court. The affidavit shall aver that service of summons cannot be made because the residence of the defendant is unknown to the affiant and cannot with reasonable diligence be ascertained.

Upon the filing of the affidavit the clerk shall cause service of notice to be made by publication in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the complaint is filed. If no newspaper is published in that county, then publication shall be in a newspaper published in an adjoining county. The publication shall contain the name and address of the court, the case number, the name of the first party on each side, and the name and last known address, if any, of the person or persons whose residence is unknown. The publication shall also contain a summary statement of the object of the complaint and shall notify the person to be served that he is required to appear at the time and place stated; such time shall not be less than fourteen days after the date of publication. The publication shall be published once and service shall be complete on the date of publication.

After the publication, the publisher or his agent shall file with the court an affidavit showing the fact of publication together with a copy of the notice of publication. The affidavit and copy of the notice shall constitute proof of service.

(B) Warrant: execution; return.

(1) By whom. The warrant shall be executed by any officer authorized by law.

(2) Territorial limits. The warrant may be executed at any place within this state.

(3) Manner. The warrant shall be executed by taking the party against whom it is issued into custody. The officer need not have the warrant in his possession at the time he executes it, but in such case he shall inform the party of the complaint made and the fact that the warrant has been issued. A copy of the warrant shall be given to the person named therein as soon as possible.

(4) Return. The officer executing a warrant shall make return thereof to the issuing court. Unexpected warrants shall upon request of the issuing court be returned to that court.

A warrant returned unexecuted and not cancelled or a copy thereof may, while the complaint is pending, be delivered by the court to an authorized officer for execution.

An officer executing a warrant shall take the person named therein without unnecessary delay before the court which issued the warrant.

RULE 17. Subpoena

(A) For attendance of witnesses; form; issuance. Every subpoena issued by the clerk shall be under the seal of the court, shall state the name of the court and the title of the action, and shall command each person to whom it is directed to attend and give testimony at a time and place therein specified. The clerk shall issue a subpoena, or a subpoena for the production of documentary evidence, signed and sealed but otherwise in blank, to a party requesting it, who shall fill it in and file a copy thereof with the clerk before service.

(B) Parties unable to pay. The court shall order at any time that a subpoena be issued for service on a named witness upon an ex parte application of a party upon a satisfactory showing that the presence of the witness is necessary and that the party is financially unable to pay the witness fees required by subdivision (D). If the court orders the subpoena to be issued the costs incurred by the process and the fees of the witness so subpoenaed shall be paid in the same manner in which similar costs and fees are paid in case of a witness subpoenaed in behalf of the state in a criminal prosecution.

(C) For production of documentary evidence. A subpoena may also command the person to whom it is directed to produce the books, papers, documents or other objects designated therein; but the court upon motion made promptly and in any event at or before the time specified in the subpoena for compliance therewith may quash or modify the subpoena if compliance would be unreasonable or oppressive. The court may direct that the books, papers, documents or other objects designated in the subpoena be produced before the court at a time prior to the hearing or prior to the time they are offered in evidence and may upon their production permit them or portions thereof to be inspected by the parties or their attorneys.

(D) Service. A subpoena may be served by a sheriff, bailiff, coroner, clerk of court, constable, probation officer or a deputy of any, by an attorney at law or his agent or by any person designated by order of the court who is not a party and is not less than eighteen years of age. Service of a subpoena upon a person named therein shall be made by delivering a copy thereof to such person or by reading it to him in person or by leaving it at his usual place of residence, and by tendering to him upon demand the fees for one day's attendance and the mileage allowed by law. The person serving the subpoena shall file a return thereof with the clerk. If the witness being subpoenaed resides outside the county in which the court is located, the fees for one day's attendance and mileage shall be tendered without demand. The return may be forwarded through the postal service, or otherwise.

(E) Subpoena for taking depositions; place of examination. When the attendance of a witness before an official authorized to take depositions is required, the subpoena shall be issued by such person and shall command the person to whom it is directed to attend and give testimony at a time and place specified therein. The subpoena may command the person to whom it is directed to produce designated books, papers, documents or tangible objects which constitute or contain evidence relating to any of the matters within the scope of the examination permitted by Rule 25.

A person whose deposition is to be taken may be required to attend an examination in the county wherein he resides or is employed or transacts his business in person, or at such other convenient place as is fixed by an order of court.

(F) Subpoena for a hearing. At the request of any party subpoenas for attendance at a hearing shall be issued by the clerk of the court in which the hearing is held. A subpoena requiring the attendance of a witness at a hearing may be served at any place within this state.

(G) Contempt. Failure by any person without adequate excuse to obey a subpoena served upon him may be deemed a contempt of the court or officer issuing the subpoena.

RULE 18. Time

(A) Time: computation. In computing any period of time prescribed or allowed by these rules, by the local rules of any court, by order of court, or by any applicable statute, the date of the act or event from which the designated period of time begins to run shall not be included. The last day of the period so computed shall be included, unless it is a Saturday, a Sunday, or a legal holiday, in which event the period runs until the end of the next day which is not a Saturday, a Sunday or a legal holiday. When the period of time prescribed or allowed is less than seven days, intermediate Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays shall be excluded in computation.

(B) Time: enlargement. When an act is required or allowed to be performed at or within a specified time, the court for cause shown may at any time in its discretion (1) with or without motion or notice, order the period enlarged if application therefor is made before expiration of the period originally prescribed or of that period as extended by a previous order, or (2) upon motion permit the act to be done after expiration of the specified period if the failure to act on time was the result of excusable neglect or would result in injustice to a party, but the court may not extend the time for taking any action under Rule 7(F)(1), Rule 22(F), Rule 29(A) and Rule 29(F)(2)(b), except to the extent and under the conditions stated in them.

(C) Time: unaffected by expiration of term. The period of time provided for the doing of any act or the taking of any proceeding is not affected or limited by the expiration of a term of court. The expiration of a term of court in no way affects the power of a court to do any act in a juvenile proceeding.

(D) Time: for motions; affidavits. A written motion, other than one which may be heard ex parte, and notice of the hearing thereof, shall be served not later than seven days before the time specified for the hearing unless a different period is fixed by rule or order of the court. For cause shown such an order may be made on ex parte application. When a motion is supported by affidavit, the affidavit shall be served with the motion, and opposing affidavits may be served not less than one day before the hearing unless the court permits them to be served at a later time.

(E) Time: additional time after service by mail. Whenever a party has the right or is required to do an act within a prescribed period after the service of a notice or other paper upon him and the notice or other paper is served upon him by mail, three days shall be added to the prescribed period. This subdivision does not apply to service of summons.

(B) Service: how made. Whenever under these rules or by an order of the court service is required or permitted to be made upon a party represented by an attorney, the service shall be made upon the attorney unless service upon the party himself is ordered by the court. Service upon the attorney or upon the party shall be made in the manner provided in Civil Rule 5(B).

(C) Filing. All papers required to be served upon a party shall be filed simultaneously with or immediately after service. RULE 22. Pleadings and motions; defenses and objections

(A) Pleadings and motions. Pleadings in juvenile proceedings shall be the complaint and the answer, if any, filed by a party. A party may move to dismiss the complaint or for other appropriate relief.

(B) Amendment of pleadings. Any pleading may be amended at any time prior to the adjudicatory hearing. After the commencement of the adjudicatory hearing, a pleading may be amended upon agreement of the parties, or if the interests of justice require, upon order of court. Such order shall where requested grant a party reasonable time in which to respond to an amendment.

(C) Answer. No answer shall be necessary. A party may file an answer to the complaint, which, if filed, shall contain specific and concise admissions or denials of each material allegation of the complaint.

(D) Prehearing motions. Any defense, objection or request which is capable of determination without hearing on the allegations of the complaint may be raised before the adjudicatory hearing by motion. The following must be heard before the adjudicatory hearing, though not necessarily on a separate date:

(1) Defenses or objections based on defects in the institution of the proceeding;

(2) Defenses or objections based on defects in the complaint (other than failure to show jurisdiction in the court or to charge an offense) which objections shall be noticed by the court at any time during the pendency of the proceeding;

(3) Motions to suppress evidence on the ground that it was illegally obtained;

(4) Motions for discovery.

(E) Motion time. All prehearing motions shall be filed by the earlier of (1) seven days prior to hearing, or (2) ten days after the appearance of counsel. The court in the interest of justice may extend the time for making prehearing motions.

The court for good cause shown may permit a motion to suppress evidence under subsection (D) (3) to be made at the time such evidence is offered.

(F) State's right to appeal upon granting a motion to suppress. In delinquency proceedings the state may take an appeal as of right from the granting of a motion to suppress evidence if, in addition to filing a notice of appeal, the prosecuting attorney certifies that (1) the appeal is not taken for the purpose of delay and (2) the granting of the motion has rendered proof available to the state so weak in its entirety that any reasonable possibility of proving the complaint's allegations has been destroyed.

Such appeal shall not be allowed unless the notice of appeal and the certification by the prosecuting attorney are filed with the clerk of the juvenile court within seven days after the date of the entry of the judgment or order granting the motion. Any appeal which may be taken under this rule shall be diligently prosecuted.

A child in detention or shelter care may be released pending this appeal when the state files the notice of appeal and certification.

This appeal shall take precedence over all other appeals.

(A) Request for discovery. Upon written request, each party of whom discovery is requested shall forthwith produce for inspection, copying or photographing the following information, documents and material in his custody, control or possession:

(1) The names and last known addresses of each witness to the occurrence which forms the basis of the charge or defense;

(2) Copies of any written statements made by any party or witness;

(3) Transcriptions, recordings and summaries of any oral statements of any party or witness, except the work product of counsel;

(4) Any scientific or other reports which a party intends to introduce at the hearing, or which pertain to physical evidence which a party intends to introduce;

(5) Photographs and any physical evidence which a party intends to introduce at the hearing.

(B) Order granting discovery: limitations; sanctions. If a request for discovery is refused, application may be made to the court for a written order granting the discovery. Motions for discovery shall certify that a request for discovery has been made and refused. An order granting discovery may make such discovery reciprocal for all parties to the proceeding, including the party requesting discovery. Notwithstanding the provisions of subdivision (A), the court may deny, in whole or part, or otherwise limit or set conditions on the discovery authorized by such subdivision, upon its own motion, or upon a showing by a party upon whom a request for discovery is made that granting discovery may jeopardize the safety of a party or, witness, or confidential informant, result in the production of perjured testimony or evidence, endanger the existence of physical evidence, violate a privileged communication, or impede the criminal prosecution of a minor as an adult or of an adult charged with an offense arising from the same transaction or occurrence.

(C) Failure to comply. If at any time during the course of the proceedings it is brought to the attention of the court that a person has failed to comply with an order issued pursuant to this rule, the court may grant a continuance, prohibit the person from introducing in evidence the material not disclosed, or enter such other order as it deems just under the circumstances.

RULE 28. [Reserved]RULE 29. Adjudicatory hearing

(A) Scheduling the hearing. The date for the adjudicatory hearing shall be set when the complaint is filed, or as soon thereafter as is practicable. If the child who is the subject of the complaint is in detention or shelter care, the hearing shall be held not later than ten days after the filing of the complaint; upon a showing of good cause the adjudicatory hearing may be continued and detention or shelter care extended.

(B) Advisement and findings at the commencement of the hearing. At the beginning of the hearing, the court shall:

(1) Ascertain whether notice requirements have been complied with, and if not, whether the affected parties waive compliance;

(2) Inform the parties of the substance of the complaint, the purpose of the hearing and possible consequences thereof, including the possibility that the cause may be transferred to the appropriate adult court under Rule 30 where the complaint alleges that a child fifteen years of age or over is delinquent by conduct which would constitute a felony if committed by an adult;

(3) Inform unrepresented parties of their right to counsel, and determine if such parties are waiving their right to counsel;

(4) Appoint counsel for any unrepresented party under Rule 4 (A) who does not waive his right to counsel; and

(5) Inform any unrepresented party who waives counsel of his rights: to obtain counsel at any stage of the proceedings, to remain silent, to offer evidence, to cross-examine witnesses, and, upon request, to have a record of all proceedings made, at public expense if indigent.

(C) Entry of admission or denial. The court shall request each party against whom allegations are made in the complaint to admit or deny the allegations. A failure or refusal to admit the allegations shall be deemed a denial.

(D) Initial procedure upon entry of an admission. The court may refuse to accept an admission and shall not accept an admission without addressing the party personally and determining that:

(1) He is making the admission voluntarily with understanding of the nature of the allegations and the consequences of the admission; and

(2) He understands that by entering his admission he is waiving his rights to challenge the witnesses and evidence against him, to remain silent and to introduce evidence at the adjudicatory hearing.

The court may hear testimony, review documents, or make further inquiry, as it deems appropriate, or it may proceed directly to the action required by subdivision (F).

(E) Initial procedure upon entry of a denial. If a party denies the allegations, the court shall:

(1) Direct the prosecuting attorney or another attorney-at-law to assist the court by presenting evidence in support of the allegations of a complaint;

(2) Order the separation of witnesses, upon request of any party;

(3) Take all testimony under oath or affirmation in either question-answer or narrative form; and

(4) Determine the issues by proof beyond a reasonable doubt in juvenile traffic offense, delinquency, and unruly proceedings, by clear and convincing evidence in dependency, neglect, and child abuse proceedings, and by a preponderance of the evidence in all other cases.

(F) Procedure upon determination of the issues. Upon the determination of the issues, the court shall:

(1) If the allegations of the complaint were not proved, dismiss the complaint;

(2) If the allegations of the complaint are admitted or proved:

- (a) enter an adjudication and proceed forthwith to disposition; or
- (b) enter an adjudication and continue the matter for disposition for not more than six months and may make appropriate temporary orders; or
- (c) postpone judgment of adjudication for not more than six months; or

RULE 30. Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution

(A) Preliminary hearing. In any proceeding where the court may transfer a child fifteen or more years of age for prosecution as an adult, the court shall hold a preliminary hearing to determine if there is probable cause to believe that the child committed the act alleged and that such act would be a felony if committed by an adult. Such hearing may be upon motion of the court, the prosecuting attorney or the child.

(B) Investigation. If the court finds probable cause, it shall continue the proceedings for full investigation. Such investigation shall include a mental and physical examination of the child by the Ohio Youth Commission, a public or private agency, or by a person qualified to make such examination. When the investigation is completed, a hearing shall be held to determine whether to transfer jurisdiction. Written notice of the time, place and nature of the hearing shall be given to the parties at least three days prior to the hearing.

(C) Prerequisites to transfer. The proceedings may be transferred if the court finds there are reasonable grounds to believe:

(1) The child is not amenable to care or rehabilitation in any facility designed for the care, supervision and rehabilitation of delinquent children; and

(2) The safety of the community may require that the child be placed under legal restraint for a period extending beyond the child's majority.

(D) Retention of jurisdiction. If the court retains jurisdiction, it shall set the proceedings for hearing on the merits.

(E) Determination of amenability to rehabilitation. In determining whether the child is amenable to the treatment or rehabilitative processes available to the juvenile court, the court shall consider:

- (1) The child's age and his mental and physical health;
- (2) The child's prior juvenile record;
- (3) Efforts previously made to treat or rehabilitate the child;
- (4) The child's family environment; and
- (5) School record.

(F) Waiver of mental and physical examination. The child may waive the mental and physical examination required under subdivision (B). Refusal to submit to a mental and physical examination or any part thereof by the child shall constitute waiver thereof.

(G) Order of transfer. The order of transfer shall state the reasons therefor.

(H) Release of transferred child. The juvenile court shall set terms and conditions for the release of the transferred child in accordance with Criminal Rule 46.

Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution:

O-Jur2d: Juvenile Courts § 22.5

RULE 31. [Reserved]RULE 32. Social history; physical examination; mental examination; custody investigation

(A) Social history and physical or mental examination: availability before adjudication. The court may order and utilize a social history or physical or mental examination at any time after the filing of a complaint:

(1) Upon the request of the party concerning whom the history or examination is to be made;

(2) Where transfer of a child for adult prosecution is an issue in the proceeding;

(3) Where a material allegation of a neglect, dependency, or abused child complaint relates to matters that such a history or examination may clarify;

(4) Where a party's legal responsibility for his acts or his competence to participate in the proceedings is an issue;

(5) Where a physical or mental examination is required to determine the need for emergency medical care under Rule 13; or

(6) Where authorized under Rule 7(I).

(B) Limitations on preparation and use. Until there has been an admission or adjudication that the child who is the subject of the proceedings is a juvenile traffic offender, delinquent, unruly, neglected, dependent, or abused, no social history, physical examination or mental examination shall be ordered except as authorized under subdivision (A) and any social history, physical examination or mental examination ordered pursuant to subdivision (A) shall be utilized only for the limited purposes therein specified. The person preparing a social history or making a physical or mental examination shall not testify about the history or examination or information received in its preparation in any juvenile traffic offender, delinquency, or unruly child adjudicatory hearing, except as may be required in a hearing to determine whether a child should be transferred to an adult court for criminal prosecution.

(C) Availability of social history or investigation report. A reasonable time before the dispositional hearing, or any other hearing at which a social history or physical or mental examination is to be utilized, counsel shall be permitted to inspect any social history or report of a mental or physical examination. The court may, for good cause shown, deny such inspection or limit its scope to specified portions of the history or report. The court may order that the contents of the history or report, in whole or part, not be disclosed to specified persons. If inspection or disclosure is denied or limited, the court shall state its reasons for such denial or limitation to counsel.

(D) Investigation: custody; habeas corpus. On the filing of a complaint for custody or for a writ of habeas corpus to determine the custody of a child, or on the filing of a motion for change of custody, the court may cause an investigation to be made as to the character, health, family relations, past conduct, present living conditions, earning ability and financial worth of the parties to the action. The report of such investigation shall be confidential, but shall be made available to the parties or their counsel upon written request not less than three days before hearing. RULE 33. [Reserved]RULE 34. Dispositional hearing

(A) Scheduling the hearing. The dispositional hearing may be held immediately following the adjudicatory hearing or at a later time fixed by the court. Where the dispositional hearing is to be held immediately following the adjudicatory hearing, the court, upon the request of a party shall continue the hearing for a reasonable time to enable the party to obtain or consult counsel.

(B) Hearing procedure. The hearing shall be conducted in the following manner:

(1) The judge who presided at the adjudicatory hearing shall, if possible, preside;

(2) The court may admit any evidence that is material and relevant, including hearsay, opinion and documentary evidence; and

(3) Medical examiners and each investigator who prepared a social history shall not be cross-examined, except upon consent of all parties, for good cause shown, or as the court in its discretion may direct. Any party may offer evidence supplementing, explaining, or disputing any information contained in the social history or other reports which may be used by the court in determining disposition.

(C) Judgment. After the conclusion of the hearing, the court shall enter an appropriate judgment within seven days. A copy of the judgment shall be given to any party requesting such copy. In all cases where a child is placed on probation, the child shall receive a written statement of the conditions of probation. If the judgment is conditional, the order shall state the conditions. If the child is not returned to his own home, the court shall determine which school district shall bear the cost of his education and may fix an amount of support to be paid by the responsible parent, or to be paid from public funds.

(D) Restraining orders. In any proceeding where a child is made a ward of the court, the court may grant a restraining order controlling the conduct of any party if the court finds that such order is necessary to control any conduct or relationship which may be detrimental or harmful to the child and tend to defeat the execution of a dispositional order.

(E) Advisement of rights after hearing. At the conclusion of the hearing, the court shall advise the child of his right to record expungement and, where any part of the proceeding was contested, advise the parties of their right to appeal.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. Error cannot be predicated on the juvenile court's holding a dispositional hearing immediately following an adjudicatory hearing and its failure to continue the dispositional hearing for a reasonable time to enable the party to obtain or consult counsel, as prescribed by Juvenile Rule 34(A), unless it affirmatively appears in the record that the affected non-indigent party has requested such continuance: In re Bolden, 37 OApp(2d) 7, 66 OO(2d) 26, 306 NE(2d) 166 (1973).

2. Although the statutes relating to juvenile delinquency contemplate that more than one act of delinquency occurring in the same time reference may be the predicate for more than one complaint, and, upon trial, for more than one finding of delinquency, the plural findings that a child is a delinquent child constitute a finding of a single legal status existing at that point of time and permit one disposition for each finding based on a single complaint which must be consistent with and not mutually exclusive of the disposition for each other finding made pursuant to some other complaint: In re Bolden, 37 OApp(2d) 7, 66 OO(2d) 26, 306 NE(2d) 166 (1973).

3. A temporary order of a juvenile court changing custody under Juvenile Rule 13 or 29, is not a dispositional order under Juvenile Rule 34, and hence is not a final appealable order: Morrison v. Morrison, 45 OApp(2d) 299, 74 OO(2d) 441, 344 NE(2d) 144 (1973).

4. Constitutional due process in juvenile cases: In re Gault, 387 US 1, 87 SCt 1428, 18 LEd(2d) 527, 40 OO(2d) 378; In re Winship, 397 US 358, 90 SCt 1068, 25 LEd(2d) 368, 51 OO(2d) 323; McKeiver v. Pennsylvania, 403 US 528, 91 SCt 1976, 29 LEd(2d) 647.

5. Both the existing juvenile code and the Juvenile Rules require a hearing before a temporary commitment to the Ohio youth commission can be made permanent, which hearing requires the presence of the youth involved: 1972 OAG No. 72-071

RULE 35. Proceedings after judgment

(A) Continuing jurisdiction; invoked by motion. The continuing jurisdiction of the court shall be invoked by motion filed in the original proceeding, notice of which shall be served in the manner provided for the service of process.

(B) Revocation of probation. The court shall not revoke probation except after a hearing at which the child shall be present and apprised of the grounds on which such action is proposed. The parties shall have the right to counsel and the right to appointed counsel where entitled thereto under Rule 4(A). Probation shall not be revoked except upon a finding that the child has violated a condition of probation of which he had, pursuant to Rule 34(C), been notified.

(C) Detention. During the pendency of proceedings under this rule, a child may be placed in detention in accordance with the provisions of Rule 7.

RULE 40. Referees: appointment; powers; duties

(A) Appointment. The juvenile judge may appoint one or more referees. The appointment of a referee may empower him to act in a single proceeding or in a specified class of proceedings or portions thereof. The juvenile judge shall not appoint as referee any person who has contemporaneous responsibility for working with, or supervising the behavior of, children who are subject to dispositional orders of the appointing court or any other juvenile court.

(B) Powers. An order of reference to a referee may specify or limit his powers and may direct him to report only upon particular issues or to do or perform particular acts or to receive and report evidence only and may fix the time and place for beginning and closing the hearings and for the filing of his report. Subject to the specifications and limitations stated in the order, the referee has and shall exercise the power of the court to regulate all proceedings in every hearing before him and to do all acts and take all measures necessary or proper for the efficient performance of his duties under the order. He may summon and compel the attendance of witnesses and may require the production before him of evidence upon all matters embraced in the reference, including the production of all books, papers, vouchers, documents and writings applicable thereto. He may rule upon the admissibility of evidence unless otherwise directed by the order of reference and has the authority to put witnesses on oath and may himself examine them and may call parties to the action and examine them upon oath. The referee shall make a report of the proceeding, including evidence offered and excluded, in the same manner and subject to the same limitations as provided in Rule 37 for hearings by the court.

(C) Proceedings.

(1) Meetings. When a special reference is made in a specific case, the clerk shall forthwith furnish the referee with a copy of the order of reference. Upon receipt thereof unless the order of reference otherwise provides, the referee shall forthwith set a time and place for the first meeting of the parties or their attorneys, or for the hearing of the case, to be held promptly after the date of the order of reference and shall notify the parties or their attorneys or both. When a general reference has been made for a specified class of proceedings or portions thereof, the clerk or the referee shall forthwith upon receiving the case set a time and place for hearing of the case, to be held promptly after receiving the case, and shall notify the parties or their attorneys or both.

Any party, on notice to the other parties and to the referee, may apply to the court for an order requiring the referee to expedite the matter and to make his report. If a party fails to appear at the time and place appointed, the referee may proceed ex parte, or, in his discretion, may take appropriate steps to have the absent party brought before him forthwith or at a future day, or may adjourn the proceedings to a future day, giving notice to the absent party of the adjournment.

(2) Witnesses. The parties may procure the attendance of witnesses before the referee by the issuance and service of subpoenas as provided in Rule 17. If without adequate excuse a witness fails to appear or to give evidence, he may be punished as for a contempt and be subject to the consequences, penalties, and remedies provided in Rule 17.

(D) Report.

(1) Contents and filing. The referee shall prepare a report upon the matters submitted to him by the order of reference or otherwise. He shall file the report with the judge and forthwith provide copies to the parties. The report shall set forth the findings of the referee upon the case submitted to him, together with his recommendation as to the judgment or order to be made in the case in question, but he shall file with his report a transcript of the proceedings and of the evidence only if the court so directs.

(2) Objections to report. A party may, within fourteen days of the filing of the report, serve and file written objections to the referee's report. Such objections shall be considered a motion. Objections shall be specific and state with particularity the grounds therefor. Upon consideration of the objections the court may: adopt, reject or modify the report; hear additional evidence; return the report to the referee with instructions; or hear the matter itself.

(3) Stipulation as to findings. When the parties stipulate in writing that a referee's findings of fact shall be final, only questions of law arising upon the report shall thereafter be considered.

(4) Draft report. Before filing his report a referee may submit a draft thereof to counsel for all parties for the purpose of receiving their suggestions. The referee shall sign any findings or decision and file it together with any exceptions.

(5) When effective. The report of a referee shall be effective and binding only when approved and entered as a matter of record by the court.

(A) Application where parental consent not required. When a minor desires to contract matrimony and has no parent, guardian, or custodian whose consent to the marriage is required by law, the minor shall file an application under oath in the county where the female resides requesting that the judge of the juvenile court give consent and approbation in the probate court for such marriage.

(B) Contents of application. The application required by subdivision (A) shall contain:

- (1) The name and address of the person for whom consent is sought;
- (2) The age of said person;
- (3) The reason why consent of a parent is not required; and

(C) Application where minor female pregnant or delivered of illegitimate child. Where a minor female is pregnant or has been delivered of an illegitimate child and the parents of such child seek to marry even though one or both of them is under the minimum age prescribed by law for persons who may contract marriage, such persons shall file an application under oath in the county where the female resides requesting that the judge of the juvenile court give consent in the probate court to such marriage.

(D) Contents of application. The application required by subdivision (C) shall contain:

- (5) Any other facts which may assist the court in determining whether to consent to such marriage.

If pregnancy is asserted, a certificate from a physician verifying pregnancy shall be attached to the application. If an illegitimate child has been delivered, the birth certificate of such child shall be attached.

The consent to the granting of the application by each parent whose consent to the marriage is required by law shall be indorsed on the application.

(E) Investigation. Upon receipt of an application under subdivision (C), the court shall set a date and time for hearing thereon at its earliest convenience and shall direct that an inquiry be made as to the circumstances surrounding the applicants.

(F) Notice. If neglect or abandonment is alleged in an application under subdivision (A) and the address of the parent is known, the court shall cause notice of the date and time of hearing to be served upon such parent.

(G) Judgment. If the court finds that the allegations stated in the application are true, and that the granting of the application is in the best interest of the applicants, the court shall grant the consent and shall make the applicant referred to in subdivision (C) a ward of the court.

(H) Certified copy. A certified copy of the judgment entry shall be transmitted to the probate court.

§ 2107.33 Revocation of will. (GC §§ 10504-47, 10504-48)

A will shall be revoked by the testator by tearing, canceling, obliterating, or destroying such will with the intention of revoking it, or by some person in such testator's presence, or by such testator's express written direction, or by some other written will or codicil, executed as prescribed by sections 2107.01 to 2107.62, inclusive, of the Revised Code, or by some other writing which is signed, attested, and subscribed in the manner provided by such sections. This section does not prevent the revocation implied by law, from subsequent changes in the circumstances of the testator.

A bond, agreement, or covenant made by a testator, for a valuable consideration, to convey property previously devised or bequeathed in a will, shall not revoke such devise or bequest. The property shall pass by such devise or bequest subject to the remedies on such bond, agreement, or covenant, for a specific performance or otherwise, against the devisees or legatees, which might be had by law against the heirs of the testator, or his next of kin, if it had descended to them.

§ 2107.39 Election by surviving spouse.

After the probate of a will and the filing of the inventory, appraisal, and a schedule of debts where ordered, the probate court on the motion of the executor or administrator, or on its own motion, forthwith shall issue a citation to the surviving spouse, if any be living at the time of the issuance of such citation, to elect whether to take under the will or under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code. If such spouse elects to take under such section, such spouse shall take not to exceed one half of the net estate and unless the will shall expressly provide that in case of such election there shall be no acceleration of remainder or other interests bequeathed or devised by the will, the balance of the net estate shall be disposed of as though such spouse had predeceased the testator. The election shall be made within one month after service of the citation to elect, or if no citation is issued such election shall be made within seven months after the appointment of the executor or administrator. On a motion filed before the expiration of such seven months and for good cause shown, the court may allow further time for the making of the election. The election shall be entered on the journal of the court.

When proceedings for advice or to contest the validity of a will are begun within the time allowed by this section for making the election, such election may be made within three months after the final disposition thereof if the will is not set aside.

When a surviving spouse succeeds to the entire estate of the testator, having been named the sole devisee and legatee, it shall be presumed that the spouse elects to take under the will of the testator and no citation shall be issued to the spouse as provided herein, and no election shall be required, unless the spouse manifests a contrary intention.

At any time before the period of the election provided by section 2107.39 of the Revised Code has expired, the surviving spouse may file a petition in the probate court or in the court of common pleas making all persons interested in the will defendants thereto, asking a construction of such will in favor of such spouse, and for the judgment of the court.

§ 2107.42 Election to take under the will; effect. (GC § 10504-61)

If a surviving spouse elects to take under the will, such spouse shall be barred of all right to an intestate share of the property passing under the will and shall take under the will alone, unless it plainly appears from the will that the provision therein for the spouse was intended to be in addition to an intestate share. Such election shall not bar the right of the surviving spouse to an intestate share of that portion of the estate as to which the decedent dies intestate. Unless the will expressly otherwise directs, such election shall not bar the right of the surviving spouse to remain in the mansion of the deceased consort, or to claim and receive the property or money in lieu thereof, which is not an asset of the estate for administration as provided by section 2115.13 of the Revised Code. Nor shall such election bar the right of the widow to receive the allowance for the support of herself and children provided by section 2117.20 of the Revised Code, unless the will expressly otherwise directs.

When the election is made in person before such judge or referee, the judge or referee shall explain the will, the rights under such will, and by law, in the event of a refusal to take under the will.

The duties of a fiduciary shall be those required by law, and such additional duties as the court orders.

No act or transaction by a fiduciary shall be valid prior to the issuance of letters of appointment to him. This section does not prevent an executor named in a will from paying funeral expenses or prevent necessary acts for the preservation of the trust estate prior to the issuance of such letters.

§ 2109.21 Residence qualifications of fiduciary. (GC § 10506-65)

An administrator, special administrator, administrator de bonis non, or administrator with the will annexed shall be a resident of this state and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer such resident.

If the executor or trustee named in a will is a nonresident of this state, the probate court may refuse to issue letters of appointment to such person. If at the time of appointment such executor or trustee is a resident of this state and proof is thereafter established that he is no longer such resident, the court may remove such fiduciary.

A guardian shall be a resident of the county, except that the court may appoint a nonresident of the county who is a resident of the state as guardian of the person, of the estate, or of both, and except that a nonresident of the county or of the state may be appointed a guardian, if named in a will by a parent of a minor, as provided by section 2111.12 of the Revised Code. A guardian, other than a guardian named in a will by a parent of a minor, may be removed on proof that he is no longer a resident of the county in which he resided at the time of his appointment and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer a resident of the state.

Any fiduciary whose residence qualifications are not defined in this section shall be a resident of the state and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer such resident.

§ 2109.30 Accounts of fiduciaries.

(A) Within seven months after his appointment, every executor and administrator shall render an account of his administration and shall render further accounts at least once each year thereafter. Every other fiduciary shall render an account of the administration of his estate or trust at least once in each two years. An account shall be rendered by any fiduciary at any time other than that mentioned in this section upon the order of the court either at its own instance, or upon the motion of any person interested in the estate or trust for good cause shown. Every fiduciary shall render a final account within thirty days after completing the administration of the estate or the termination of his trust, or within such other period of time as the court may order.

Every account shall include an itemized statement of all receipts of the fiduciary during the accounting period and of all disbursements and distributions made by him during such period, verified by vouchers or proof. In addition the account shall include an itemized statement of all funds, assets, and investments of the estate or trust known to or in the possession of the fiduciary at the end of the accounting period and shall show any changes in investments since the last previous account. The accounts of testamentary trustees shall, and the accounts of other fiduciaries may, show receipts and disbursements separately identified as to principal and income.

Every account shall be upon the signature and oath of the fiduciary. When an account is rendered by two or more joint fiduciaries, the court may allow the account upon the signature and oath of one of them.

Upon the filing of every account the fiduciary, except corporate fiduciaries subject to section 1109.16 of the Revised Code, shall exhibit to the court, for its examination, the securities shown in said account as being in the hands of the fiduciary or the certificate of the person in possession of such securities, if held as collateral or pursuant to section 2109.13 of the Revised Code, and a passbook or certified bank statement showing as to each depository the fund deposited therein to the credit of the trust. The court may designate a deputy clerk of said court, an agent of a corporate surety on the bond of such fiduciary, or another suitable person who the court appoints as commissioner to make such examination and report his findings to the court. When such securities are located outside the county, the court may appoint a commissioner or request another probate court to make such examination and report its findings to the court. The court may examine the fiduciary under oath touching the account.

When a fiduciary is authorized by law or by the instrument governing distribution to distribute the assets of the estate or trust, in whole or in part, he may do so and include a report of such distribution in his succeeding account.

An account showing complete administration before distribution of assets shall be designated "final account." An account filed subsequent to the final account and showing distribution of assets shall be designated "account of distribution." An account showing complete administration and distribution of assets shall be designated "final and distributive account."

(B) In estates of decedents where the sole legatee or heir is also the executor or administrator, no partial accountings are required.

In estates of decedents where none of the legatees or heirs is under a legal disability, each partial accounting of the executor or administrator may be waived by the written consent of all such legatees or heirs filed in lieu of a partial accounting otherwise required.

§ 2109.32 Hearing on account; notice. (GC §§ 10506-36, 10506-39)

Every fiduciary's account required by section 2109.30 of the Revised Code shall be set for hearing before the probate court. Within one month after an account is filed, the court shall cause notice of the filing of such account and the time and place of the hearing thereon to be published once in some newspaper of general circulation in the county. The hearing on the account shall be set not earlier than thirty days after the publication of such notice. The costs of such notice, if more than one account is specified in the same notice, shall be paid in equal proportions by the fiduciaries.

At the hearing upon an account, the court shall inquire into, consider, and determine all matters relative to such account and the manner in which the fiduciary has executed his trust, including the investment of trust funds, and may order the account approved and settled or make such other order as the court deems proper. If, at the hearing upon an account, the court finds that the fiduciary has fully and lawfully administered the estate or trust and has distributed the assets thereof in accordance with the law or the instrument governing distribution, as shown in such account, the court shall order the account approved and settled and may order the fiduciary discharged.

§ 2113.03 Release from administration.

Upon the application of any interested party, after notice of the filing thereof has been given to the surviving spouse and heirs at law in such manner and for such length of time as the probate court directs, and after three weeks' notice to all interested parties by publication thereof once each week in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, unless such notices are waived or found unnecessary, the court, when satisfied that the assets of an estate are ten thousand dollars or less in value, and that creditors will not be prejudiced thereby, may make an order relieving such estate from administration and directing delivery of personal property and transfer of real estate to the persons entitled thereto.

For the purposes of this section, the value of an estate which can reasonably be considered to approximate ten thousand dollars, and which is not composed entirely of money, stocks, bonds or other property the value of which is evident, shall be determined by an appraiser selected by the applicant from a list of appraisers on file with the court, the appraiser's valuation of the property shall be reported to the court in the application to relieve the estate from administration. The appraiser shall be paid in accordance with section 2115.06 of the Revised Code.

For such purpose the court shall fix the amount of property to be delivered or transferred to the surviving spouse or minor children of the deceased in lieu of the claim of such spouse or minor children to property not deemed assets and to an allowance for a year's support.

When a delivery or transfer of property has been ordered without administration, the court shall appoint a commissioner to execute instruments of conveyance when necessary.

The application provided for in this section shall be in writing under oath and shall contain the name, date, and place of death of the decedent; the names, ages, and addresses of the persons entitled to the next estate of inheritance under the statutes of descent and distribution and their respective degrees of relationship to the decedent whether the decedent died intestate; a summary statement of the character and value of the property comprising the estate; and a list of all known creditors of the decedent with the amount of their claims.

When the decedent died testate the will shall be presented for probate, and if admitted to probate, the court may relieve the estate from administration, and order distribution of the estate under the will.

An order of the court relieving an estate from administration shall have the same effect as administration proceedings in freeing land in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value from possible claims of unsecured creditors.

§ 2113.04 Payment of wages of deceased employee without administration. (GC § 10509-5a)

Any employer, including the state or a political subdivision, at any time not less than thirty days after the death of his or its employee, may pay all wages or personal earnings due to such deceased employee to: (A) the surviving spouse (B) any one or more of the children eighteen years of age or older or (C) the father or mother of the deceased employee, preference being given in the order named, without requiring letters testamentary or letters of administration to be issued upon the estate of such deceased employee, where such wages or personal earnings do not exceed three hundred dollars. The payment of such wages or personal earnings is a full discharge and release to the employer from any claim for such wages or personal earnings. If letters testamentary or letters of administration are thereafter issued upon the estate of such deceased employee, any person receiving payment of wages or personal earnings under this section is liable to the executor or administrator for the sum received by him.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-5a; 119 v 394 (423); 124 v 27, § 1. Eff 10-1-53.

§ 2113.05 Letters testamentary shall issue.

When a will is approved and allowed, the probate court shall issue letters testamentary thereon to the executor named in such will, if he is suitable, competent, accepts the trust, and gives bond if that is required.

If no executor is named in a will, or if the executor named therein dies, fails to accept the trust, resigns, or is otherwise disqualified, letters of administration with the will annexed shall be granted to such suitable person or persons, named as devisees or legatees in the will, who would have been entitled to administer the estate if such decedent had died intestate, unless the will indicates an intention that such person or persons shall not be granted letters of administration. Otherwise, the court shall grant letters of administration with the will annexed to some other suitable person.

§ 2113.06 To whom letters of administration shall be granted. (GC § 10509-3)

Administration of the estate of an intestate shall be granted to persons mentioned in this section, in the following order:

(A) To the surviving spouse of the deceased, if resident of the state;

(B) To one of the next of kin of the deceased, resident of the county;

(C) To one of the next of kin of the deceased, resident of the state;

If the persons entitled to administer the estate fail to take or renounce such administration voluntarily, they shall be cited by the probate court for that purpose, if resident within the county.

If there are no persons entitled to administration, or if they are for any reason unsuitable for the discharge of the trust, or if without sufficient cause they neglect to apply within a reasonable time for the administration of the estate, their right to priority shall be lost and the court shall commit the administration to some suitable person who is a resident of the county. Such person may be a creditor of the estate.

This section applies to the appointment of an administrator de bonis non.

§ 2113.07 Application for appointment as executor or administrator. (GC § 10509-4)

Before being appointed executor or administrator, every person shall make and file an application under oath, which must contain the names of the surviving spouse and all the next of kin of the deceased known to such person, their post-office addresses if known, a statement in general terms as to what the estate consists of and its probable value, and a statement of any indebtedness the deceased had against such person making said application.

The application may be accompanied by a waiver signed by the persons resident of the county entitled to administer the estate, and in the absence of such waiver such persons shall be cited by the probate court for the purpose of ascertaining whether they desire to take or renounce such administration.

Letters of administration shall not be issued upon the estate of an intestate until the person to be appointed has made and filed an affidavit that there is not to his knowledge a last will and testament of such intestate.

HISTORY: GC § 10509-4; 114 v 320 (401); 116 v 307, § 1; 116 v PtII 28, § 1. Eff 10-1-53.

§ 2113.08 Notice of appointment. (GC §§ 10509-6, 10509-7)

Within one month after appointment of an executor or administrator, the probate judge shall cause notice of the appointment to be published in some newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the letters were issued for three consecutive weeks, but such notice shall not be necessary when there is no estate except a right of action for wrongful death.

An affidavit of the publisher or agent of the newspaper making such publication which is filed and recorded, together with a copy of the notice, in the probate court within six months after the appointment shall be admitted as evidence of the time, place, and manner in which notice was given.

§ 2113.38 Purchase of property by surviving spouse.

A surviving spouse even though acting as executor or administrator, may purchase the following property, if left by the decedent and if not specifically devised or bequeathed:

(A) The mansion house, including the parcel of land on which such house is situated and lots or farm land adjacent thereto and used in conjunction therewith as the home of the decedent, and the household goods contained therein, at the appraised value as fixed by the appraisers;

(B) Securities listed on an approved stock exchange, as defined in division (E) of section 1707.02 of the Revised Code, at the market price at the time of purchase;

(C) Any other real or personal property of the decedent not exceeding, with the mansion house and land used in conjunction therewith and such household goods as the spouse elects to purchase, one third of the gross appraised value of the estate, at the appraised value as fixed by the appraisers.

A spouse desiring to exercise such right of purchase with respect to personal property shall file in the probate court an application setting forth an accurate description of such personal property and the election of such spouse to purchase it at the appraised or market value, as the case may be. No notice is required for the court to hear such application insofar as it appertains to household goods contained in the mansion house or securities listed on an approved stock exchange. If such application includes other personal property the court shall cause a notice of the time and place of the hearing of such application with respect to such other personal property to be given to the executor or administrator, the heirs or beneficiaries interested in the estate, and to such other interested persons as the court determines, in the manner provided by section 2101.26 of the Revised Code.

A spouse desiring to exercise such right of purchase with respect to an interest in real estate shall file in the court a petition containing an accurate description of such real estate and naming as parties defendant the executor or administrator, the persons to whom such real estate passes by inheritance or residuary devise, and all mortgagees and other lien holders whose claims affect such real estate or any part thereof. Spouses of parties defendant need not be made parties defendant. Such petition shall set forth the election of the surviving spouse to purchase said interest in real estate at the appraised value and shall contain a prayer accordingly. A summons shall thereupon be issued and served on said defendants, in the same manner as provided for service of summons in actions to sell real estate to pay debts. No hearing on the application or petition shall be held until the inventory is approved.

On the hearing of the application or petition, the finding of the court shall be in favor of such surviving spouse unless it appears that the appraisal was made as a result of collusion or fraud or that it is so manifestly inadequate that a sale at such price would unconscionably prejudice the rights of the parties in interest or creditors. The action of the court shall not be held to prejudice the rights of lien holders.

Upon a finding in favor of said surviving spouse, the court shall make an entry fixing the terms of payment to the executor or administrator for such property, having regard for the rights of creditors of the estate, and ordering the executor or administrator, or a commissioner who may be appointed and authorized for the purpose, to transfer and convey such property to such spouse upon compliance with the terms fixed by the court. If the court, having regard for the amount of property to be purchased, its appraised value, and the distribution to be made of the proceeds arising from the sale, finds that the original bond given by the executor or administrator is sufficient, such court may dispense with the giving of additional bonds. If the court finds that such original bond is insufficient, as a condition to transfer and conveyance such court shall require the executor or administrator to execute an additional bond in such amount as the court may fix, with proper surety, conditioned and payable as provided in section 2127.27 of the Revised

Code. This section does not prevent the court from ordering transfer and conveyance without bond in cases where the will of a testator provides that the executor need not give bond. The executor or administrator, or such commissioner, shall thereupon execute and deliver to the spouse a proper bill of sale or deed, as the case may be, for such property, and make a return thereof to the court.

The death of the surviving spouse prior to the filing of the court's entry fixing the terms of payment for property elected to be purchased shall nullify the election with respect thereto. Such property, whether real or personal, shall thereafter be free of the right granted in this section.

The application or petition provided for in this section shall not be filed prior to filing the inventory nor later than one month after the approval of the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code. Failure to file such application or petition within such time nullifies the election with respect to the property required to be included therein and such property, whether real or personal, shall thereafter be free of the right granted in this section.

§ 2113.49 Court may order alteration or cancellation of contract. (GC § 10509-225)

When a person who has entered into a written contract for the sale and conveyance of an interest in real estate dies before its completion, his executor or administrator, when not required to otherwise dispose of such contract, may file a petition for the alteration or cancellation of such contract, in the court of common pleas or in the probate court of the county in which he was appointed, or in which the real estate or any part thereof is situated. If the decedent died intestate, the surviving spouse and heirs, and if the decedent died testate, the surviving spouse, and devisees or legatees having an interest in such contract, when not plaintiffs, must, together with the purchaser, be made parties defendant.

If, upon hearing, the court is satisfied that it is for the best interests of the estate, it may, with the consent of the purchaser, authorize the executor or administrator to agree to the alteration or cancellation of such contract, and to execute and deliver such instruments to the purchaser as are required to make the order of the court effective. Before making such order, the court shall cause to be secured to and for the benefit of the estate of the deceased its just part of the consideration of the contract. Such instruments as are executed and delivered pursuant to such order shall recite the order and be as binding on the heirs and other parties in interest, as if made by the deceased in his lifetime.

§ 2113.53 Payment of legacies and distributions.

Except as provided in section 2113.532 [2113.53.2] of the Revised Code, when six months have expired after the appointment of an executor or administrator and one month has expired after approval of the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, and the surviving spouse has made an election, and when all debts are paid, except debts not due and payable, and claims rejected within two months or in suit, and when provision has been made as prescribed in section 2117.28 of the Revised Code for any debts which are not due and payable, the executor or administrator may provide for the payment of such rejected claims and claims in suit by setting aside enough assets for that purpose, to the satisfaction of and in the manner directed by the probate court. Having done so, such executor or administrator may distribute to the legatees entitled thereto under the will, if there is no action pending to set aside the will, or to the distributees entitled thereto by law, in cash or in kind, any part or all of the assets of the estate not set apart as provided in this section and not required for any other purpose. Each legatee or distributee is liable to return such assets, or the proceeds therefrom, should they be necessary to pay any such rejected claims or claims in suit.

If the executor or administrator proposes to set aside assets for the payment of any claim, each claimant for whom assets are to be set aside shall be given notice, in such manner as the court shall order, of the hearing upon the application to set aside assets and shall have the right to be fully heard as to the nature and amount of the assets to be set aside for payment of his claim and as to all other conditions in connection therewith. In any case where the executor or administrator may set aside assets as provided in this section, the court, upon its own motion or upon application of the executor or administrator, as a condition precedent to any distribution, may require any legatee or distributee to give a bond to the state with surety approved and in an amount fixed by the court, conditioned to secure the return of the assets to be distributed, or the proceeds therefrom or as much thereof as may be necessary to satisfy the claims that may be recovered against the estate, and to indemnify the executor or administrator against loss and damage on account of such distribution. Such bond may be in addition to the assets to be set aside or partially or wholly in lieu thereof, as the court shall determine.

[§ 2113.53.2] § 2113.532 [Transfer of automobile title.]

The executor or administrator, with the approval of the probate court, may transfer title to an automobile owned by the decedent:

(A) To the surviving spouse, when such automobile is set off and allowed for support of the widow pursuant to section 2117.20 of the Revised Code, or is selected as property exempt from administration pursuant to section 2115.13 of the Revised Code, or is purchased by such surviving spouse pursuant to section 2113.38 of the Revised Code;

§ 2113.54 Distribution upon application of legatee or distributee.

When seven months have expired after the appointment of an executor or administrator and the surviving spouse has made an election, a legatee or distributee may apply to the probate court for an order requiring the executor or administrator to distribute the assets of the estate, either in whole or in part, in cash or in kind. Upon notice to the executor or administrator, the court shall inquire into the condition of the estate, and if all ♦ claims have either been paid or adequate provision has been or can be made for their payment, the court shall make such order with reference to distribution of the estate as the condition of the estate and the protection of all parties interested therein may demand. The order of the court shall provide that assets be set aside for the payment of claims rejected within two months or in suit and each claimant for whom assets are to be set aside shall be entitled to be fully heard as to the nature and amount of the assets to be set aside for payment of his claim, and as to all other conditions in connection therewith. Each legatee or distributee receiving distribution from the estate shall be liable to return the assets distributed to him, or the proceeds therefrom, should they be necessary to pay such claims. The court, upon its own motion or upon application of the executor or administrator, as a condition precedent to any distribution, may require any legatee or distributee to give bond to the state with surety approved and in an amount fixed by the court, conditioned as provided in section 2113.53 of the Revised Code or as may be directed by the court. Such bond may be in addition to the assets to be set aside or partially or wholly in lieu thereof, as the court shall determine.

Within one month after the date of his appointment, unless the probate court grants an extension of time for good cause shown, every executor or administrator shall make and return on oath into court a true inventory of the real estate of the deceased located in Ohio and the chattels, moneys, rights, and credits of the deceased which are to be administered and which have come to his possession or knowledge. Such inventory is to be based on values as of the date of death of the decedent, except that if the decedent left no surviving spouse or minor children and the probable value of the personal property is less than five hundred dollars, or except that if the personal property consists wholly of automobiles, moneys, deposits, stocks, bonds, or other securities, or other personal property of readily ascertainable value, the court may direct that an inventory and appraisement be omitted and an inventory without appraisement be filed in lieu thereof. If his predecessors have done so, a fiduciary need not return and file an inventory, unless, in the opinion of the court, it is necessary.

At the time of filing the inventory, the executor or administrator shall file therewith a separate schedule describing any legal or equitable interest in the real estate owned by the decedent located outside of the state which has come to his knowledge.

§ 2115.06 Appraisers; compensation; fees may be charged against the estate.

The real estate and personal property comprised in the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, unless an appraisement thereof has been dispensed with by an order of the probate court, shall be appraised by one suitable disinterested person appointed by the court and sworn to a faithful discharge of his trust. The court on its own motion may, and upon motion of the executor, administrator, or any interested person, shall appoint not more than two additional appraisers. The court may appoint separate appraisers of property located in any other county.

If appraisers fail to attend to the performance of their duty, the probate judge may appoint others to supply the place of such delinquents.

Each appraiser shall be paid such amount as the probate judge may allow for his services, taking into consideration his training, qualifications, experience, time reasonably required, and the value of the property appraised. The amount of such fees may be charged against the estate as part of the costs of the proceeding.

§ 2115.13 Property exempt from administration. (GC §§ 10509-54, 10509-55)

When a person dies leaving a surviving spouse or minor children, certain properties, if selected as provided in this section, are not assets or administered as such, but must be included and stated in the inventory of the estate. Such property includes only household goods, livestock, grain, feed, hay, tools, implements, automobiles, utensils, wearing apparel of the deceased, relics and heirlooms of the family and of the deceased, ornaments, and pictures and books. Such property is to be selected by such surviving spouse, or if there is no surviving spouse by the guardian or next friend of such minor children. Such property shall not exceed in value twenty per cent of the appraised value of the property, real and personal, comprised in the inventory, but in no event is the value of the property not deemed assets to be more than twenty-five hundred dollars if there is a surviving spouse, or more than one thousand dollars if there is no surviving spouse, but surviving minor children, or less than five hundred dollars in either case if there is so much comprised in the inventory and selected as provided in this section. If the personal property selected is of less value than the total amount which may be selected as provided in this section, then such surviving spouse, guardian, or next friend shall receive such sum of money as shall equal the difference between the value of the personal property selected and such amount, and such sum of money shall be a charge on all property, real and personal, belonging to the estate, prior to the claims of all unsecured creditors of the deceased or of the estate.

Except money and the wearing apparel of the deceased, the property exempted from administration shall remain in the possession of the surviving spouse during the time such surviving spouse lives with and provides for such minor children. When such surviving spouse ceases to do so, he or she must be allowed to retain his or her wearing apparel, ornaments, and one bed, bedstead, and the bedding for it. The other articles exempted and not consumed shall then belong to such minor children. If there is a surviving spouse and no minor children, then such articles shall belong to the surviving spouse. Such exempted sum of money as is received by a surviving spouse shall belong to such surviving spouse.

The appraisers of a decedent's estate shall not include in the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code the provisions, property, or money set off and allowed by them to the widow or children, but these must be stated in a separate schedule and returned with the inventory to the probate court by the executor or administrator.

§ 2117.02 Presentation of claim to probate court.

An executor or administrator within four months after the date of his appointment shall present any claim which he has against the estate to the probate court for allowance. Such claim shall not be paid unless allowed by the court. When an executor or administrator presents such claim, amounting to five hundred dollars or more, the court must fix a day not less than four nor more than six weeks from its presentation, when the testimony touching it shall be heard. The court forthwith shall issue an order directed to the executor or administrator requiring him to give notice in writing to all the heirs, legatees, or devisees of the decedent interested in the estate, and to such creditors as are therein named. Such notice must contain a statement of the amount claimed, designate the time fixed for hearing the testimony, and be served upon the persons named in the order at least twenty days before the time for hearing. If any persons mentioned in the order are not residents of the county, service of notice may be made upon them by publication for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper published or circulating in the county, or in such other manner as the court may direct. All the persons named in the order shall be parties to the proceeding, and any other person having an interest in the estate may come in and be made a party thereto.

§ 2117.06 Presentation and allowance of creditor's claims; property tax assessments; statements and notices required.

All creditors having claims against an estate shall present their claims to the executor or administrator in writing, including claims arising out of contract, out of tort, on cognovit notes, or on judgments, whether due or not due, secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated. All claims shall be presented within four months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator except that claims for assessments for personal and intangible property taxes and penalties for which the decedent was personally liable shall be presented by the tax commissioner or his agent within ninety days after the receipt by the clerk of the probate division of the county where the estate is being administered or receipt by the commissioner of the preliminary notice prescribed by section 5731.20 of the Revised Code. Every claim presented shall set forth the claimant's address. In the absence of any prior demand for allowance, the executor or administrator shall allow or reject all claims except tax assessment claims within thirty days after their presentation; provided that failure of the executor or administrator to allow or reject within said time shall not prevent him from doing so thereafter nor shall it prejudice the rights of any claimant. Upon the allowance of a claim the executor or the administrator, on demand of the creditor, shall furnish the creditor with a written statement or memorandum of the fact and date of such allowance. In the event the executor or administrator has actual knowledge of a pending action commenced against the decedent prior to his death in a court of record in this state, such executor or administrator shall file a notice of his appointment in such pending action within ten days after acquiring such knowledge. Where the administrator or executor is other than a natural person, actual knowledge of a pending suit against said decedent shall be limited to the actual knowledge of that person charged with the responsibility of administering said estate. Any person whose claim has been presented, and not thereafter rejected, is a creditor as said term is used in Chapters 2113. to 2125., inclusive, of the Revised Code. Claims which are contingent need not be presented except as provided in sections 2117.37 to 2117.42, inclusive, of the Revised Code.

§ 2117.07 Presentation of claims after three months.

Anyone having a claim against an estate who fails to present his claim to the executor or administrator within the time prescribed by law may file a petition in the probate court for authority to present his claim after the expiration of such time. Such petition forthwith shall be assigned for hearing and at least five days before the date of the hearing the claimant shall give written notice thereof to the executor or administrator and to such other parties as the court may designate. The court may authorize such claimant to present his claim to the executor or administrator if, on the hearing, the court finds as follows:

(A) That the claimant did not have actual notice of the decedent's death or of the appointment of the executor or administrator in sufficient time to present his claim within the period prescribed by section 2117.06 of the Revised Code;

(B) That the claimant's failure to present his claim was due to the absence of the executor or administrator from his usual place of residence or business during a substantial part of such period or was due to any wrongful act or statement on the part of the executor or administrator or his attorney;

(C) That the claimant was subject to any legal disability during such period or any part thereof.

A claim which is not presented within six months from the appointment of the executor or administrator shall be forever barred as to all parties, including devisees, legatees, and distributees and no payment shall be made nor any action maintained thereon, except as otherwise provided in sections 2117.37 to 2117.42, inclusive, of the Revised Code, with reference to contingent claims.

The executor or administrator is not accountable to any such claimant for any assets of the estate which he may lawfully have paid out or distributed prior to service upon him of notice of the hearing on such petition, nor for any other action which he may lawfully have taken prior to such time; and such claim shall not prevail against creditors, legatees, and distributees who have received payment or distribution from the assets of the estate prior to the service of such notice, or against a surviving spouse who has made her election to take under the will or under sections 2105.01 to 2105.21, inclusive, of the Revised Code, prior to such time, or against bona fide purchasers and other persons who have dealt with the executor or administrator in good faith.

This section applies to any person who is required to give written notice to the executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of death.

Nothing in this section or in section 2117.06 of the Revised Code shall reduce the time mentioned in sections 2125.02, 2305.09, 2305.10, 2305.11, or 2305.12 of the Revised Code, provided that no portion of any recovery on a claim brought pursuant to such sections shall come from the assets of an estate unless such claim has been presented against the estate in accordance with Chapter 2117. of the Revised Code.

§ 2117.16 Schedule of debts.

The probate court may by rule require that every executor or administrator, after four and not later than five months following the date of his appointment, shall make ~~and~~ and return into the probate court a schedule of all claims against the estate he represents which have then been presented to him and ~~any~~ any other valid debts of the estate of which he has knowledge. Such schedule shall state the name and address of the claimant as it appears on his claim, the amount claimed, the date of presentation of the claim, the class into which it falls for payment, the security held therefor, the date of maturity if not yet due, whether allowed or rejected by the executor or administrator, and the date of such allowance or rejection.

§ 2117.20 [Surviving spouse or children to receive allowance.]

The appraisers of a decedent's estate shall set off and allow to the widow and to the children under the age of eighteen years, or if there is no widow then to such children, sufficient provisions or other property to support them for twelve months from the decedent's death, but such allowance shall be set off to such children only when necessary for their support, taking into consideration the father's primary duty to care for his children. The probate judge may fix the year's allowance if the appraisers fail to do so, or if for any reason there is no appraisal, and shall fix the year's allowance upon motion of the executor or administrator. If the widow or such children, after the decedent's death and previous to such allowance, have consumed any part of the estate for their support, the appraisers shall take that into consideration in determining the amount of the allowance. Any allowance granted to children shall be held by the surviving parent or by the guardian, with power to use it for the children's support.

When there is not sufficient personal property, or property of a suitable kind, to set off to the widow or children, as provided in section 2117.20 of the Revised Code, the appraisers of a decedent's estate must certify what sum or further sum in money is necessary for the support of such widow or children. When money is allowed for the support of such widow or children, it shall be paid upon approval of the inventory required by section 2115.02 of the Revised Code, or as soon thereafter as money is available for that purpose. § 2117.23 Year's allowance when decedent is nonresident. (GC § 10509-78)

When a nonresident decedent dies leaving property in Ohio and the will of such decedent has been admitted to probate in Ohio as provided by sections 2107.11 and 2107.18 of the Revised Code, the person granted letters testamentary or of administration shall, at any time prior to the approval of the inventory and appraisement, notify the widow and a child or children of the decedent under the age of eighteen, that each or all of them have sixty days after the approval of the inventory and appraisement to apply for a year's allowance to be set off out of the Ohio property of the decedent. The probate court may set off a year's allowance to such widow and child or children or apportion the same among them as it seems just and reasonable, having due regard for the laws of the state of decedent's residence as to its provisions for widows and children, the assets of the estate which are subject to administration in the state of decedent's residence, the amount the widow and children may be expected to receive in the state of decedent's residence, and any other facts and circumstances which may have a bearing on the case. No allowance shall be made which will exceed the amount usually allowed widows and children under the laws of this state relating to the administration of estates of resident decedents. Any allowance granted to a child or children shall be held by the widow if living with and supporting such child or children, or a resident or foreign guardian, with power to use it for the support of such child or children. Notice of the hearing on an application for such allowance may be given to any person as the court may require in the manner provided by sections 2101.26, 2101.27 and 2101.28 of the Revised Code. The year's allowance so set off shall acquire no greater charge against the Ohio property than in estates of resident decedents.

§ 2117.25 Order in which debts to be paid.

Every executor or administrator shall proceed with diligence to pay the debts of the deceased and shall apply the assets in the following order:

- (A) Costs and expenses of administration;
- (B) Bill of funeral director not exceeding eight hundred dollars and such funeral expenses other than the bill of the funeral director as are approved by the probate court;
- (C) The allowance made to the widow and children for their support for twelve months;
- (D) Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States;

(E) Expenses of the last sickness of the decedent;

(F) Personal property taxes and obligations for which the decedent was personally liable to the state or any subdivision thereof;

(G) Debts for manual labor performed for the deceased within twelve months preceding decedent's death, not exceeding one hundred fifty dollars to any one person;

(H) Other debts as to which claims have been presented within four months after the appointment of the executor or administrator;

(I) All other debts for which claims have been presented after four months from the appointment of the executor or administrator.

Such part of the bill of the funeral director as exceeds eight hundred dollars and such part of a claim included in division (G) of this section as exceeds one hundred fifty dollars shall be included as a debt under divisions (H) or (I) of this section, depending upon the time when the claim for such additional amount is presented.

Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code relating to the manner in which and the time within which claims shall be presented shall apply to claims set forth in divisions (B) and (G) of this section. Claims for an expense of administration or for the allowance for support for twelve months need not be presented. The executor or administrator shall pay debts included in divisions (D) and (F) of this section, of which he has knowledge, regardless of presentation.

The giving of written notice to an executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of death shall be equivalent to the presentation of a claim to such executor or administrator for the purpose of determining the order of payment of any judgment rendered or decree entered in such action.

No payments shall be made to creditors of one class until all those of the preceding class are fully paid or provided for. In the event of an insufficiency of assets to pay all the claims of one class, the creditors of such class shall be paid ratably.

If it appears at any time that the assets have been exhausted in paying prior or preferred charges, allowances, or claims, such payments shall be a bar to an action on any claim not entitled to such priority or preference.

- (B) For the enforcement of a lien against or involving title to specific property;
- (C) For the recovery of a claim that would not be affected by the insolvency of the estate;
- (D) On account of fraud, conversion, or concealment of assets;

(E) Any other action as to which a different rule is prescribed by statute.

When an executor or administrator dies, resigns, or is removed without having fully administered the estate of the deceased, the time between such death, resignation, or removal and the appointment of a successor shall be excluded in computing the seven months or longer period provided in this section. In any event, his successor shall not be held to answer such suit until after the expiration of four months from the date of such successor's appointment or such further time allowed him by the court for the collection of the assets of the estate.

If a new appraisement is not ordered, the value set forth in the inventory shall be the appraised value of the real estate. If the court orders a new appraisement the value returned shall be the appraised value of the real estate.

If the interest of the deceased or ward in the real estate is fractional and undivided, and if a party prays for and the court orders the entire interest in the real estate to be sold, a new appraisement of the entire interest in the real estate shall be ordered.

If the prayer of the petition is granted and new appraisement is ordered, the court shall appoint one or more, but not exceeding three judicious and disinterested persons of the vicinity not next of kin of the petitioner to appraise the real estate in whole and in parcels at its true value in money. Where the real estate lies in two or more counties the court may appoint appraisers in any or all of the counties in which the real estate or a part thereof is situated.

If the petition alleges that it is necessary to sell part of the real estate and that by such partial sale the residue of the estate, or specific part thereof, would be greatly injured, the court, if it so finds, may order a sale of the whole estate.

§ 2127.31 Persons interested may give bond to prevent sale. (GC § 10510-36)

An order to sell the real estate of a deceased person shall not be granted in an action by an executor or administrator, if, after the action is

If such bond is not given until after the order of sale is granted, and the executor or administrator in reliance thereon abates the action, such bond shall be binding upon the obligors and may be enforced as though given prior to the granting of the order of sale.

§ 2127.32 Public or private sale. (GC §§ 10510-37, 10510-38)

The real estate included in the court's order of sale, as provided in section 2127.29 of the Revised Code, shall be sold either in whole or in parcels at public auction at the door of the courthouse in the county in which the order of sale was granted or at such other place as the court may direct, and such order shall fix the place, day, and hour of sale. If it appears to be more for the interest of the ward or the estate to sell such real estate at private sale, the court may authorize the petitioner so to sell it either in whole or in parcels. If such order for private sale is issued it shall be returned by the petitioner. Upon motion and showing of a person interested in the proceeds of the sale, filed after thirty days from the date of such order, the court may require the petitioner to return the order if the premises have not been sold. Thereupon the court may order the real estate to be sold at public sale.

If upon showing of any person interested the court finds that it will be to the interest of the ward or the estate, it may order a reappraisal and sale thereof in parcels.

If the sale is to be public, the executor, administrator, or guardian must give notice of the time and place of such sale by advertisement at least four weeks successively in some newspaper printed in the county where the lands are situated.

The order for the sale of real estate, granted by the probate court or the court of common pleas in an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian, shall prescribe the terms of the sale and payment of the purchase money either in whole or in part for cash or on deferred payments. In the sales by executors or administrators, deferred payments shall not exceed two years with interest.

§ 2127.35 Confirmation of sale; deed. (GC §§ 10510-41, 10510-44)

An executor, administrator, or guardian shall make return of his proceedings under the order for the sale of real estate granted by the probate court or the court of common pleas. The court after careful examination thereof, if satisfied that the sale has in all respects been legally made, shall confirm such sale and order such executor, administrator, or guardian to make a deed to the purchaser.

Such deed shall be received in all courts as prima facie evidence that such executor, administrator, or guardian in all respects observed the direction of the court and complied with the requirements of the law, and shall convey the interest in the real estate which is directed to be sold by the court, and shall vest title to such interest in the purchaser in like manner as if conveyed by the deceased in his lifetime, or by the ward free from disability, and by the owners of the remaining interests therein.

§ 2127.36 Security for deferred payments. (GC §§ 10510-42, 10510-43)

The order for the sale of real estate granted in an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian shall require that before the delivery of the deed the deferred installments of the purchase money be secured by mortgage on the real estate sold and mortgage notes bearing interest at such rate as the probate court or the court of common pleas may approve. If after the sale is made and before delivery of such deed the purchaser offers to pay the full amount of the purchase money in cash, the court may order that it be accepted, if for the best interest of the estate or the ward, and direct its distribution.

The court in such order may also direct the sale, without recourse, of any or all of the notes taken for deferred payments, if for the best interest of the estate or the ward, at not less than their face value with accrued interest, and direct the distribution of the proceeds.

§ 2127.38 Distribution of money received.

The sale price of real estate sold following an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian shall be applied and distributed as follows:

(A) To discharge the costs and expenses of the sale, including reasonable fees to be fixed by the probate court or the court of common pleas for services performed by attorneys for the fiduciary in connection with the sale, and such compensation, if any, to the fiduciary for his services in connection with the sale as the court may fix, which costs, expenses, fees, and compensation shall be paid prior to any liens upon the real estate sold and notwithstanding the purchase of such real estate by a lien holder;

(B) To the payment of taxes, penalties, and assessments then due against such real estate and to the payment of mortgages and judgments against the ward or deceased person, according to their respective priorities of lien, so far as they operated as a lien on the real estate of the deceased at the time of the sale or on the estate of the ward at the time of the sale, which shall be apportioned and determined by the court, or on reference to a master, or otherwise;

(C) In the case of an executor or administrator, the remaining proceeds of sale shall be applied as follows:

(1) To the payment of legacies with which the real estate of the deceased was charged, if the action is to sell real estate to pay legacies;

(2) To discharge the claims and debts of the estate in the order provided by law.

Whether such executor or administrator was appointed in this state or elsewhere, the surplus of the proceeds of sale must be considered for all purposes as real estate and be disposed of accordingly.

(D) In the case of a guardian of the person and estate, or of the estate only, of a mentally incompetent person, the remaining proceeds of sale must be considered for all purposes as real estate until such mental incompetency is removed, and on the death of any such mentally incompetent ward before such mental incompetency is removed, such remaining proceeds shall pass and devolve to the same person or persons and in the same manner and to the same extent as the real estate sold would have passed and devolved had there been no sale. In the case of a guardian of the person and estate, or of the estate only, of an adult person who is not mentally incompetent, the remaining proceeds of sale shall be applied in the manner and upon the terms approved by the court which appointed such guardian. Division (D) of this section applies whether such guardian was appointed in this state or elsewhere.

§ 2127.39 When proceeds of sale marshaled in conformity with will. (GC § 10510-47)

When an action to sell real estate is brought by an executor or administrator with the will annexed, if in the last will of the deceased there is a disposition of his estate for the payment of debts, or a provision that may require or induce the probate court or the court of common pleas to marshal the assets differently from the way the law otherwise would prescribe, such devises, or parts of the will, must be set forth in the petition and a copy of the will exhibited to the court, whereupon the court shall marshal the proceeds of the sale accordingly, so far as it can be done consistently with the rights of creditors.

§ 2127.40 Sale by executor or administrator of real estate fraudulently conveyed by decedent. (GC §§ 10510-49, 10510-50)

When an action is brought by an executor or administrator to sell real estate to pay debts, the real estate subject to sale shall include all rights and interests in lands, tenements, and hereditaments conveyed by the deceased in his lifetime with intent to defraud his creditors; except that lands fraudulently conveyed cannot be taken from any who purchased them for a valuable consideration, in good faith, and without knowledge of the fraud. No claim to such lands shall be made unless within four years next after the decease of the grantor.

If real estate fraudulently conveyed is to be included in such action, the executor or administrator, either before or at the same time, may bring a suit in the court of common pleas in the county wherein the real estate is situated to recover possession of it; or, in his action for its sale, he may allege the fraud and have the fraudulent conveyance avoided therein. But when such real estate is included in the petition before the recovery of possession by the executor or administrator, the action shall be brought in the court of common pleas in the county wherein such real estate is situated.

§ 2127.41 Proceeds arising from partition of real estate may be reached by the executor or administrator. (GC §§ 10510-51, 10510-52)

If after the institution of proceedings for the partition of the real estate of a deceased person it is found that the assets in the hands of his executor or administrator are probably insufficient to pay the debts of the estate, together with the allowance for the support of the widow and children for twelve months, the expenses of administration, and the legacies which are a charge upon such real estate, the executor or administrator shall make a written statement to the probate court of such assets, indebtedness, expenses, and legacies and the court forthwith shall ascertain the amount necessary to pay such debts, expenses, and legacies and give a certificate thereof to the executor or administrator.

The executor or administrator thereupon shall present such certificate to the court in which the proceedings for partition are or have been pending, and on his motion the court shall order the amount named in the certificate to be paid over to the executor or administrator out of the proceeds of the sale of the premises, if thereafter they are sold or have already been sold. This section does not prohibit an executor or administrator from proceeding to sell real estate belonging to the estate for the payment of debts or legacies, although it has been sold on partition or otherwise or the proceeds of such sale fully distributed.

After letters of appointment are issued to a fiduciary, the court shall accept filings by mail in matters of estates, guardianships, or trusts, but not accounts, unless the court in writing notifies the fiduciary or attorney of record that a personal appearance is necessary, or a personal appearance is otherwise required by law. § 2113.03 Release from administration.

(A) Upon the application of any interested party, after notice of the filing thereof has been given to the surviving spouse and heirs at law in the manner and for the length of time the probate court directs, and after three weeks' notice to all interested parties by publication once each week in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, unless the notices are waived or found unnecessary, the court, when satisfied that the assets of an estate are fifteen thousand dollars or less in value, and that creditors will not be prejudiced, may make an order relieving the estate from administration and directing delivery of personal property and transfer of real estate to the persons entitled to them.

For the purposes of this section, the value of an estate that can reasonably be considered to approximate fifteen thousand dollars, and that is not composed entirely of money, stocks, bonds, or other property the value of which is evident, shall be determined by an appraiser selected by the applicant, subject to the approval of the court. The appraiser's valuation of the property shall be reported to the court in the application to relieve the estate from administration. The appraiser shall be paid in accordance with section 2115.06 of the Revised Code.

For the purposes of this section, the court shall fix the amount of property to be delivered or transferred to the surviving spouse or minor children of the deceased in lieu of the claim of the spouse or minor children to property under section 2117.20 of the Revised Code.

When a delivery or transfer of property has been ordered without administration, the court shall appoint a commissioner to execute instruments of conveyance when necessary.

When the decedent died testate the will shall be presented for probate, and if admitted to probate, the court may relieve the estate from administration, and order distribution of the estate under the will.

An order of the court relieving an estate from administration shall have the same effect as administration proceedings in freeing land in the hands of an innocent purchaser for value from possible claims of unsecured creditors.

(B). An application to relieve an estate from administration shall be in writing under oath, and shall contain the following information:

- (1) The name, date, and place of death of the decedent;
- (2) The names, ages, and addresses of the persons entitled to the next estate of inheritance under the statutes of descent and distribution, and their respective degrees of relationship to the decedent;
- (3) A summary statement of the character and value of the property comprising the estate;
- (4) A list of all known creditors of the decedent, and the amount of their claims;
- (5) If the decedent died intestate, a statement to that effect;
- (6) If the decedent died testate, a copy of the will attached to the application.

(C) The application shall be in the following form, and this form shall be used exclusively by the probate courts in this state:

(A) Except as restricted by the will or otherwise provided by law, an executor or administrator may sell at public or private sale, grant options to sell, exchange, re-exchange, or otherwise dispose of any real estate belonging to the estate at any time at prices and upon terms as are consistent with this section and may execute and deliver deeds and other instruments of conveyance if all of the following conditions are met:

(1) The surviving spouse, all of the legatees and devisees in the case of testacy, and all of the heirs in the case of intestacy, give written consent to the general power of sale. The consent shall be filed in the probate court.

(2) Any sale under an authorized general power of sale must be made at a price of at least eighty per cent of the appraised value, as set forth in an approved inventory.

(3) No general power of sale provided for in this section is effective if the surviving spouse, any legatee, devisee, or heir is a minor. No person may give the consent of the minor that is required by this section.

TITLE 21: COURTS—PROBATE—JUVENILE

§ 2101.01 Probate division; location; equipment; employees.

A probate division of the court of common pleas shall be held at the county seat in each county in an office furnished by the board of county commissioners, in which the books, records, and papers pertaining to the probate division shall be deposited and safely kept by the probate judge. The board shall provide suitable cases or other necessary items for the safekeeping and preservation of the books, records, and papers of the court, and shall furnish any blankbooks, blanks, and stationery, and any machines, equipment, and materials for the keeping or examining of records, that the probate judge requires in the discharge of official duties. The board shall also authorize expenditures for accountants, financial consultants, and other agents required for auditing or financial consulting by the probate division whenever the probate judge considers these services and expenditures necessary for the efficient performance of the division's duties. The probate judge shall employ and supervise all clerks, deputies, referees, and employees of the probate division.

As used in the Revised Code, "probate court" means the probate division of the court of common pleas, and "probate judge" means the judge of the court of common pleas who is judge of the probate division. All pleadings, forms, journals, and other records filed or used in the probate division shall be entitled "In the Court of Common Pleas, Probate Division," but are not defective if entitled "In the Probate Court."

§ 2101.11 [Custody of files; clerks and appointees; annual request for appropriation.]

(A) Each probate judge shall have the care and custody of the files, papers, books, and records belonging to the probate office. He is authorized to perform the duties of clerk of his own court. He may appoint deputy clerks, stenographers, a bailiff, and any other necessary employees, each of whom shall take an oath of office before entering upon the duties of his appointment, and when so qualified, may perform the duties appertaining to the office of clerk of the court. Each appointee may administer oaths in all cases when necessary, in the discharge of his duties.

(B) Subject to the appropriation made by the board of county commissioners pursuant to this division, each appointee shall receive such compensation and expenses as the judge determines. Each appointee shall serve during the pleasure of the judge. The compensation of each appointee shall be paid in semi-monthly installments by the county treasurer from the county treasury, upon the warrants of the county auditor, certified to by the judge. The judge shall annually submit a written request for an appropriation to the board of county commissioners that shall set forth estimated administrative expenses of the court, including the salaries of appointees as determined by the judge and any other costs, fees, and expenses including those enumerated in section 5123.96 of the Revised Code, that the judge considers reasonably necessary for the operation of the court. The board shall conduct a public hearing with respect to the written request submitted by the judge and shall appropriate such sum of money each year as it determines, after conducting the public hearing and considering the written request of the judge, is reasonably necessary to meet all the administrative expenses of the court, including the salaries of appointees as determined by the judge and any other costs, fees, and expenses including the costs, fees, and expenses enumerated in section 5123.96 of the Revised Code. The total compensation paid to the appointees in any calendar year shall not exceed the total fees earned by the court during the preceding calendar year, unless approved by the board.

If the judge considers the appropriation made by the board pursuant to this division insufficient to meet all the administrative expenses of the court, he shall commence an action under Chapter 2731. of the Revised Code in the court of appeals for the judicial district for a determination of the duty of the board of county commissioners to appropriate the amount of money in dispute. The court of appeals shall give priority to the action filed by the probate judge over all cases pending on its docket. The burden shall be on the probate judge to prove that the appropriation requested is reasonably necessary to meet all administrative expenses of the court. If, prior to the filing of an action under Chapter 2731. of the Revised Code or during the pendency of the action, the judge exercises his contempt power in order to obtain the sum of money in dispute, he shall not order the imprisonment of any member of the board of county commissioners notwithstanding sections 2705.02 to 2705.06 of the Revised Code.

(C) The judge may require any of his appointees to give bond in the sum of not less than one thousand dollars conditioned for the honest and faithful performance of his duties. The sureties on the bonds shall be approved in the manner provided in section 2101.03 of the Revised Code.

The judge shall be personally liable for the default, malfeasance, or nonfeasance of such appointee, but if a bond is required of such appointee, the liability of the judge shall be limited to the amount by which the loss resulting from such default, malfeasance, or nonfeasance exceeds the amount of the bond.

All bonds required to be given in the probate court, on being accepted and approved by the probate judge, shall be filed in his office.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) When a judge undertakes to enforce his ex parte order, directing a board of county commissioners to purchase furnishings and equipment reasonably necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the court, by proceedings in contempt, the board has remedy by way of appeal only from the finding and order in the contempt proceedings: In re Furnishings for Courtroom Two, 66 OS2d 427, 20 OO3d 367, 423 NE2d 86.

2. (1983) The statutory limitation on appointee compensation, set forth in RC § 2101.11, may not validly be applied to the judge of the probate division of the court of common pleas when there has been no showing that the judge abused his discretion in establishing either the size or compensation ranges of his staff: State ex rel. Slaby v. Summit County Council, 7 OApp3d 199, 7 OBR 258, 454 NE2d 1379.

3. (1983) That portion of RC § 2101.11(B), containing language substantially identical to that in RC § 2151.10, effective July 26, 1979, is unconstitutional: State ex rel. Slaby v. Summit County Council, 7 OApp3d 199, 7 OBR 258, 454 NE2d 1379.

4. (1983) Regardless of statutory authorization, the judges of the courts of common pleas and their divisions have the inherent authority to determine in the first instance, in the exercise of sound discretion, the sum of money reasonable for the efficient operation of the court, and absent an abuse of discretion in the determination of such sum, may proceed either in contempt or mandamus to receive the necessary funding from their respective counties: State ex rel. Slaby v. Summit County Council, 7

OApp3d 199, 7 OBR 258, 454 NE2d 1379.

5. (1984) A court may modify its budget request at any time if such modification is otherwise reasonable and necessary: State ex rel. Arbaugh v. Richland Cty. Bd. of Comrs., 14 OS3d 5, 14 OBR 311, 470 NE2d 880.

6. (1984) Mandamus will issue where the county commissioners fail to meet their burden of proving that the budget requests submitted for the probate and juvenile divisions of the court of common pleas were unreasonable and unnecessary: State ex rel. Rudes v. Rofkar, 15 OS3d 69, 15 OBR 163, 472 NE2d 354.

7. (1985) Mandamus action by court officials to secure the requested funding appropriation will be denied where the requested salary increases for court employees constitute an abuse of discretion: State ex rel. Britt v. Bd. of Franklin Cty. Comms., 18 OS3d 1, 18 OBR 1, 480 NE2d 77.

§ 2101.12 [Records to be kept; indexes.]

(C) A civil docket, in which shall be noted the names of parties to actions and proceedings, the date of the commencement of the actions and proceedings, and of the filing of the papers relating to the actions and proceedings, a brief note of the orders made in the actions and proceedings, and the date of entering the orders;

(G) An execution docket, in which shall be entered a memorandum of executions issued by the probate judge stating the names of the parties, the name of the person to whom delivered, his return

(H) A marriage record, in which shall be entered licenses, the names of the parties to whom issued, the names of the persons applying for a license, a brief statement of the facts sworn to by persons applying for a license, and the returns of the person solemnizing the marriage;

(I) A naturalization record, in which shall be entered the declaration of intention of the person seeking to be naturalized, the oath of the person naturalized, and the affidavit or oath of witnesses who testify in his behalf, in which affidavit shall be stated the place of residence of the witnesses;

(J) A permanent record of all births and deaths occurring within the county, reported as provided by law, which record shall be kept in the form and manner that may be designated by the director of health;

For each record required by this section, an index shall be maintained. Each index shall be kept current with the entries in the record and shall refer to the entries alphabetically by the names of the persons as they were originally entered, indexing the page of the record where the entry is made. On the order of the judge, blankbooks, other record forms, or other record-keeping materials approved by the probate judge for such records and indexes shall be furnished by the board of county commissioners at the expense of the county.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1982) A probate judge may not invest prepaid and unearned costs in United States Treasury Bills; rather, such costs must be held by the court or deposited as provided in RC § 2335.25. Where such funds are deposited or invested any interest earned thereon should be paid into the county treasury to the credit of the general fund (1965 Op. Att'y Gen. No.65-190 and 1961 Op. Att'y Gen. No.2720, p.748, overruled in part): OAG No.82-054.

2. (1982) Interest earned on the deposit or investment of prepaid and unearned costs by a probate court is "public money" as defined in RC § 117.10 for purposes of examination by the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices: OAG No.82-054.

[§ 2101.16.1] § 2101.161 [Deposit of prepaid and unearned costs.]

The probate court may order that prepaid and unearned costs be deposited with a bank, savings and loan association, or trust company incorporated under the laws of this state or of the United States. The order shall be entered on the journal of the court and may specify that deposited costs are to be held in an account, or invested in an investment, supervised by the bank, association, or company. Interest earned on deposited costs shall be paid into the county treasury by the end of the calendar year in which it is received.

(A) No probate judge or his deputy clerk shall sell or offer for sale for more than one dollar any merchandise to be used in connection with any license, order, or document issued by the probate court, or make any charge in connection with the issuance of any license, order, or document except that specifically provided by law.

(B) All moneys obtained from the sale of merchandise to be used in connection with any license, order, or document issued by a probate court shall be paid by the probate judge or the deputy clerk of the court into the county treasury. The moneys shall be credited to a fund to be known as the probate court conduct of business fund. The moneys so credited shall be used solely for the conduct of the business of the probate court.

Upon receipt of an order of the probate judge for the payment of moneys from the fund for the conduct of the business of the court, the county auditor shall draw a warrant on the county treasurer for the amount of money specified in the order, but not exceeding the balance of the moneys in the fund, which warrant shall be made payable to the probate judge or another person designated in the order.

(A) Except as otherwise provided by law, the probate court has exclusive jurisdiction:

(1) To take the proof of wills and to admit to record authenticated copies of wills executed, proved, and allowed in the courts of any other state, territory, or country. (7) To qualify assignees, appoint and qualify trustees and commissioners of insolvents, control their conduct, and settle their accounts;

(9) To authorize the completion of real contracts on petition of executors and administrators;

(10) To issue writs of habeas corpus, and determine the validity of the caption and detention of the persons brought before it on the writs. The probate court may refer a petition for a writ of habeas corpus to the court of common pleas if the petitioner is detained on a charge, indictment, or conviction of having committed a felony or misdemeanor under the laws of the United States or this state, or under an ordinance of any political subdivision of this state.

(11) To construe wills;

(16) To hear and determine actions to contest the validity of wills;

(17) To make a determination of the presumption of death of missing persons and to adjudicate the property rights and obligations of all parties affected thereby;

(18) To hear and determine an action commenced pursuant to section 3107.41 of the Revised Code to obtain the release of information pertaining to the birth name of the adopted person and the identity of his biological parents and biological siblings.

(B) The probate court has concurrent jurisdiction with, and the same powers at law and in equity as, the general division of the court of common pleas to hear and determine actions involving inter vivos trusts.

(C) The probate court has plenary power at law and in equity to dispose fully of any matter that is properly before the court, unless the power is expressly otherwise limited or denied by statute.

(D) The jurisdiction acquired by a probate court over a matter or proceeding is exclusive of that of any other probate court, except when otherwise provided by law.

When a probate judge has a prejudice, either for or against a party or his counsel in a matter or cause pending before him, or is otherwise interested in such a cause or matter, or disqualified to sit in the cause or matter, but the prejudice, interest, or disqualification is not such as to permit or require certification of the proceedings to the court of common pleas as provided by section 2101.38 of the Revised Code, any party to the cause or matter, or the counsel of any such party, may file an affidavit with the clerk of the supreme court setting forth the prejudice, interest, or disqualification. The clerk of the supreme court forthwith shall notify the probate court of the filing of such an affidavit, and the fact of the filing of the affidavit shall be entered upon the record of the probate court. The judge may upon his own motion make an entry setting forth the prejudice, interest, or disqualification, a copy of which shall be filed with the clerk of the supreme court.

Forthwith upon the filing of such an affidavit or entry, the clerk of the supreme court shall forward the affidavit or entry to the chief justice of the supreme court who, if satisfied that the prejudice, interest, or disqualification exists, shall assign a probate judge or a judge of the court of common pleas to hear the cause or matter in place of such probate judge. The judge assigned shall proceed and try the cause or matter. Whoever violates this section shall forfeit his office.

The deputy clerk of a probate court may engage in the practice of law if his practice is not related in any way to probate law or practice. The deputy may engage in the practice of law only with the continued consent and approval of all of the judges of the probate court.

A referee appointed solely to conduct hearings under Chapters 5122. and 5123. of the Revised Code may engage in the practice of law, including probate law, except that he shall not practice law under these chapters other than as a referee and shall not knowingly accept any business arising out of or otherwise connected with a proceeding in which he served as a referee under these chapters.

The prosecuting attorney shall file his information against a judge or deputy clerk who practices law in violation of this section in the court of common pleas, and proceed as upon indictment.

This section does not prevent a probate judge or deputy clerk from finishing business commenced by him prior to his election or appointment, provided it is not connected with his official duty.

§ 2101.43 Petition for submission of question of combining probate court and court of common pleas.

Whenever ten per cent of the number of electors voting for governor at the next preceding election in any county having less than sixty thousand population, as determined by the next preceding federal census, petition a judge of the court of common pleas of such county, not less than seventy-five days before any general election for county officers, for the submission to the electors of such county the question of combining the probate court with the court of common pleas, such judge shall place upon the journal of said court an order requiring the sheriff to make proclamation that at the next ensuing general election there will be submitted to the electors the question of combining the probate court with the court of common pleas. The clerk of the court of common pleas shall, thereupon, make and deliver a certified copy of such order to the sheriff, and the sheriff shall include notice of the submission of such question in his proclamation of election for the ensuing general election.

Each elector joining in a petition for the submission of said question shall sign such petition in his own handwriting, unless he cannot write and his signature is made by mark, and shall add thereto the township, precinct, or ward of which he is a resident. Such petition may consist of as many parts as are convenient. One of the signers to each separate paper shall swear before some officer qualified to administer the oath that the petition is bona fide to the best of his knowledge and belief. Such oath shall be a part of or attached to such paper. The judge upon receipt of such petition shall deposit it with the clerk of the court of common pleas.

No signature shall be taken from or added to such petition after it has been filed with the judge. When deposited such petition shall be preserved and open to public inspection, and if it is in conformity with this section, it shall be valid, unless objection thereto is made in writing by an elector of the county within five days after the filing thereof. Such objections, or any other questions arising in the course of the submission of the ques-

[§ 2103.04.1] § 2103.041 [Judicial sale of dower interest.]

In any action involving the judicial sale of real property for the purpose of satisfying the claims of creditors of an owner of an interest in the property, the spouse of the owner may be made a party to the action and the dower interest of the spouse, whether inchoate or otherwise, may be subjected to the sale without the consent of the spouse. The court shall determine the present value and priority of the dower interest, using the American experience table of mortality as the basis for determining the value, and shall award the spouse a sum of money equal to the present value of the dower interest, to be paid out of the proceeds of the sale according to the priority of the interest. To the extent that the owner and his spouse are both liable for the indebtedness, the dower interest of the spouse is subordinate to the claims of their common creditors.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1977) The specific mandate of RC § 2105.06 et seq., governing escheats of property to the state, must be strictly followed to create a valid finding and judgment by the Probate Court of the escheat of property to the state where a decedent leaves no heirs. To be valid, such judgment of escheat must be that there are no heirs, not that "to the knowledge of plaintiff there are no known next of kin": Borovskaya v. State, 54 OApp2d 79, 8 OO3d 132, 375 NE2d 57.

2. (1980) A wife's right to inherit from her husband is not forfeited by the fact that both parties thought that a legal divorce had been obtained more than forty years before and both had remarried, although the husband's second wife had predeceased him: Holmes v. Fentress, 19 OO3d 87 (App).

3. (1982) When an intestate dies leaving no spouse, no children or their lineal descendants, or no surviving parent and is preceded in death by two brothers, one of whom leaves one child and one of whom leaves two children surviving at the time of the death of the intestate, the children of such deceased brothers, being in an equal degree of consanguinity to the intestate, inherit per capita pursuant to RC § 2105.12: Washburn v. Scurlock, 5 OApp3d 125, 5 OBR 284, 449 NE2d 797.

4. (1984) Revised Code §§ 2105.06 and 2107.39 concern the devolution of a decedent's property; they are to be read in pari materia and construed together: Winkelfoos v. Mann, 16 OApp3d 266, 16 OBR 291, 475 NE2d 509.

5. (1984) The first $30,000 which a surviving spouse is to receive pursuant to RC § 2105.06(C) is a distribution which is to be made from the net estate rather than a charge against and deduction from the gross estate: Winkelfoos v. Mann, 16 OApp3d 266, 16 OBR 291, 475 NE2d 509.

6. (1984) The "net estate" is that portion of the estate remaining after satisfaction of all the indebtedness of the decedent and the obligations of the estate. (Weeks v. Vandever, 13 OS2d 15 [42 OO2d 25], followed.): Winkelfoos v. Mann, 16 OApp3d 266, 16 OBR 291, 475 NE2d 509.

7. (1984) The right to inherit property is neither a natural nor an inherent right. Rather, it is a statutory right created by the legislature and, therefore, subject to the legislature's control: Winkelfoos v. Mann, 16 OApp3d 266, 16 OBR 291, 475 NE2d 509.

[§ 2105.06.2] § 2105.062 [Election to receive mansion house.]

(A) The surviving spouse may elect to receive, as part of the surviving spouse's share of the intestate estate under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code, the entire interest of the decedent spouse in the mansion house. The interest of the decedent spouse in the mansion house is valued at the appraised value with the deduction of that portion of all liens on the mansion house, existing at the time of death and attributable to the decedent's interest in the mansion house.

(B) The election pursuant to division (A) of this section shall be made at or before the time a final account is rendered.

(C) If the spouse makes an election pursuant to division (A) of this section, the administrator or executor shall, unless the election is one made under division (D) of this section, file an application for a certificate of transfer as provided for in section 2113.61 of the Revised Code. The application shall also contain an inventory of the property that the spouse is entitled to receive under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code. If the value of the property the spouse is entitled to receive is equal to or greater than the value of the mansion house, the court shall issue the certificate of transfer.

(D) The surviving spouse may make an election pursuant to division (A) of this section in an estate relieved from administration under section 2113.03 of the Revised Code. The election shall be made at the time of or prior to the entry of the order relieving the estate from administration. Either the spouse or the applicant for the order relieving the estate from administration shall file the application for certificate of transfer under division (C) of this section.

(E) If the surviving spouse dies prior to making an election pursuant to division (A) of this section, the surviving spouse shall be conclusively presumed not to have made an election pursuant to that division. After the surviving spouse's death, no other person is authorized to make an election pursuant to that division on behalf of the estate of the surviving spouse.

(F) As used in this section, the mansion house includes the parcel of land on which the house is situated and, at the option of the surviving spouse, the household goods contained within the house and the lots or farm land adjacent to the house and used in conjunction with it as the home of the decedent.

§ 2105.07 Escheat of personal estate.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1977) Where there is a living heir of a decedent, even though he may be unknown to the administrator at the time of administration of the estate, the state takes no title to the personal property of the estate by escheat: Borovskaya v. State, 54 OApp2d 79, 8 OO3d 132, 375 NE2d 57.

2. (1983) Escheat is an incident or attribute of sovereignty. In Ohio, by virtue of RC § 2105.07, the right of the state to escheated funds has been relinquished to the county: Illes v. State, 10 OApp3d 111, 10 OBR 135, 460 NE2d 707.

3. (1983) In Ohio there is no statutory or case law which authorizes a rightful heir who appears subsequent to distribution to recover escheated funds: Illes v. State, 10 OApp3d 111, 10 OBR 135, 460 NE2d 707.

§ 2105.09 Disposition of escheated lands.

(A) The county auditor, unless he acts pursuant to division (C) of this section, shall take possession of real property escheated to the state that is located in his county and outside the incorporated area of a city. The auditor shall take possession in the name of the state and sell the property at public auction, at the county seat of the county, to the highest bidder, after having given thirty days' notice of the intended sale in a newspaper published within the county.

On the application of the auditor, the court of common pleas shall appoint three disinterested freeholders of the county to appraise the real property. The freeholders shall be governed by the same rule as appraisers in sheriffs' or administrators' sales. The auditor shall sell the property at not less than two thirds of its appraised value and may sell it for cash, or for one-third cash and the balance in equal annual payments, the deferred payments to be amply secured. Upon payment of the whole consideration, the auditor shall execute a deed to the purchaser, in the name and on behalf of the state. The proceeds of the sale shall be paid by the auditor to the county treasurer.

The treasurer shall pay the proceeds, not exceeding six hundred dollars in any case, to the regularly organized agricultural society within the county. The excess of the proceeds, or the whole thereof if there is no regularly organized agricultural society within the county, shall be paid into the state treasury to the credit of the general revenue fund.

(B) The legislative authority of a city within which are lands escheated to the state, unless it acts pursuant to division (C) of this section, shall take possession of the lands for the city, and the title to the lands shall vest in the city. The city shall use the premises primarily for health, welfare, or recreational purposes, or may lease them at such prices and for such purposes as it considers proper. With the approval of the tax commissioner, the city may sell the lands or any undivided interest in the lands, in the same manner as is provided in the sale of land not needed for any municipal purposes; provided, that the net proceeds from the rent or sale of the premises shall be devoted to health, welfare, or recreational purposes.

(C) As an alternative to the procedure prescribed in divisions (A) and (B) of this section, the county auditor, or if the real property is located within the incorporated area of a city, the legislative authority of that city by an affirmative vote of at least a majority of its members, may request the probate court to direct the administrator or executor of the estate that contains the escheated property to commence an action in the probate court for authority to sell the real property in the manner provided in Chapter 2127. of the Revised Code. The proceeds from the sale of real property that is located outside the incorporated area of a city shall be distributed by the court in the same manner as the proceeds are distributed under division (A) of this section. The proceeds from the sale of real property that is located within the incorporated area of a city shall be distributed by the court in the same manner as the proceeds are distributed under division (B) of this section.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1977) Section 12 of the Illinois Probate Act, which allows illegitimate children to inherit by intestate succession only from their mothers (though under Illinois law legitimate children may inherit by intestate succession from both their mothers and their fathers), held to violate the Equal Protection Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment: Trimble v. Gordon, 430 US 762, 52 LEd2d 31, 97 SCt 1459, 4 OObd 296.

§ 2105.18 [Application acknowledging paternity.]

The natural father of a child may file an application in the probate court of the county in which he resides, in the county in which the child resides, or the county in which the child was born, acknowledging that the child is his. If such an application is filed, upon consent of the mother, or if she is deceased, incompetent, or has surrendered custody, upon consent of the person or agency having custody of the child or of a court having jurisdiction over the child's custody, the probate court, if satisfied that the applicant is the natural father, and that establishment of the relationship is for the best interest of the child, shall enter the finding of fact upon its journal. Thereafter, the child is the child of the applicant, as though born to him in lawful wedlock.

1. (1977) The biological father of a child can not be held for its support where the mother, during pregnancy, contracts marriage with another man, who marries her with full knowledge of her condition and thereby consents to stand in loco parentis to such child and to being the father of the child. (Miller v. Anderson, 43 OS 473, approved and followed); Hall v. Rosen, 50 OS2d 135, 4 OO3d 336, 363 NE2d 725.

2. (1976) A full legal father-child relationship is created when a father acknowledges his child under RC § 2105.18. Thereafter, RC § 3107.06 requires his consent before another may adopt the child, provided that the natural father has not wilfully failed to support the child: In re Robinette, 3 OO3d 355 (CP).

3. (1977) There is a distinction between a "putative" father and a father who has been adjudicated as such by his own admission: In re Wright, 52 OMisc 4, 6 OO3d 31, 367 NE2d 931 (CP).

4. (1977) A father adjudicated as such by his own admission has legal standing to seek custody of his illegitimate child against the world, including the mother: In re Wright, 52 OMisc 4, 6 OO3d 31, 367 NE2d 931 (CP).

5. (1977) In addition, the Equal Protection Clauses of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution and Section 2, Article I of the Ohio Constitution mandate that RC § 2105.18, providing for legitimization of illegitimate children, afford every illegitimate child the opportunity to become legitimated by filing an application of legitimization and by proving by clear and convincing evidence the identity of the child's natural father. If the probate court is satisfied that the person named in the application for legitimization is the child's natural father and that establishment of this relationship is for the best interest of the child, the court shall enter that finding of fact upon its journal and thereafter the child is the child of the person named in the application as though born to him in lawful wedlock: In re Minor of Martin, 51 OApp2d 21, 5 OO3d 141, 365 NE2d 892.

6. (1977) Juvenile court proceedings under RC § 3111.17 are conducted to determine a "reputed father" for the purpose of obtaining support for a child and payment for medical expenses. A determination of a "reputed father" under RC § 3111.17 does not convert that finding into a finding of a "natural father" under RC § 2105.18. Nor does such a determination give the mother authority either as agent for the father or by operation of law to file an application for legitimization under RC § 2105.18 and acknowledge that the alleged father is the natural father of the child: In re Minor of Martin, 51 OApp2d 21, 5 OO3d 141, 365 NE2d 892.

7. (1977) An illegitimate child may be legitimated if the natural father of the child files an application in the appropriate probate court acknowledging that the child is his and the mother of the child consents to the legitimization. If the probate court is satisfied that the applicant is the natural father and that establishment of this relationship is for the best interest of the child, the probate court shall enter the finding of fact upon its journal and thereafter the child is the child of the applicant as though born to him in lawful wedlock: In re Minor of Martin, 51 OApp2d 21, 5 OO3d 141, 365 NE2d 892.

8. (1978) Although a man, after marrying a child's mother, signs a declaration of paternity indicating he is the father of such child and a birth certificate is issued reflecting this contention, he obtains no rights to custody or visitation after a decree of divorce has been entered where it is undisputed that another is the biological father: Chatman v. Chatman, 54 OApp2d 6, 8 OO3d 24, 374 NE2d 433.

9. (1979) As applied to appellant, Ohio's intestacy laws do not unconstitutionally discriminate against illegitimates: White v. Randolph, 59 OS2d 6, 13 OO3d 3, 391 NE2d 333.

10. (1981) The second paragraph of RC § 2105.18 was not intended to provide an individual with the means for challenging the paternity of an already legitimate child: In re Mancini, 2 OApp3d 124, 2 OBR 138, 440 NE2d 1232.

11. (1982) The evidence of the consent by the natural mother to the natural father's legitimization of the child at the time of the hearing which resulted in the order of support and visitation in the domestic relations court is sufficient to constitute consent pursuant to RC § 2105.18: In re Legitimation of Conn, 7 OApp3d 241, 7 OBR 303, 455 NE2d 16.

§ 2105.19 [Persons prohibited from benefiting by the death of another.]

(A) Except as provided in division (C) of this section, no person who is convicted of, pleads guilty to, or is found not guilty by reason of insanity of a violation of or complicity in the violation of section 2903.01, 2903.02, or 2903.03 of the Revised Code or of an existing or former law of any other state, the United States, or a foreign nation, substantially equivalent to a violation of or complicity in the violation of any of these sections, no person who is indicted for a violation of or complicity in the violation of any of those sections or laws and subsequently is adjudicated incompetent to stand trial on that charge, and no juvenile who is found to be a delinquent child by reason of committing an act that, if committed by an adult, would be a violation of or complicity in the violation of any of those sections or laws, shall in any way benefit by the death. All property of the decedent, and all money, insurance proceeds, or other property or benefits payable or distributable in respect of the decedent's death, shall pass or be paid or distributed as if the person who caused the death of the decedent had predeceased the decedent.

(B) A person prohibited by division (A) of this section from benefiting by the death of another is a constructive trustee for the benefit of those entitled to any property or benefit that the person has obtained, or over which he has exerted control, because of the decedent's death. A person who purchases any such property or benefit from the constructive trustee, for value, in good faith, and without notice of the constructive trustee's disability under division (A) of this section, acquires good title, but the constructive trustee is accountable to the beneficiaries for the proceeds or value of the property or benefit.

(C) A person who is prohibited from benefiting from a death pursuant to division (A) of this section either because he was adjudicated incompetent to stand trial or was found not guilty by reason of insanity, or his guardian appointed pursuant to Chapter 2111. of the Revised Code or other legal representative, may file a complaint to declare his right to benefit from the death in the probate court in which the decedent's estate is being administered or which released the estate from administration. The complaint shall be filed no later than sixty days after the person is adjudicated incompetent to stand trial or found not guilty by reason of insanity. The court shall notify each person who is a devisee or legatee under the decedent's will, or if there is no will, each person who is an heir of the decedent pursuant to section 2105.06 of the Revised Code that such a complaint has been filed within ten days after the filing of such a complaint. The person who files the motion, and each person who is required to be notified of the filing of the motion under this division is entitled to a jury trial in the action. To assert the right, the person desiring a jury trial shall demand a jury in the manner prescribed in the civil rules.

A person who files a complaint pursuant to this division shall be restored to his right to benefit from the death unless the court determines, by a preponderance of the evidence, that the person would have been convicted of a violation of, or complicity in the violation of, section 2903.01, 2903.02, or 2903.03 of the Revised Code, or of a law of another state, the United States, or a foreign nation that is substantially similar to any of those sections, if he had been brought to trial in the case in which he was adjudicated incompetent or if he were not insane at the time of the commission of the offense.

1. (1984) At common law, the beneficiary of a life insurance policy cannot recover the proceeds if he caused the insured's death by his intentional and felonious act: Huff v. Union Fidelity Life Ins. Co., 14 OApp3d 135, 14 OBR 151, 470 NE2d 236.

2. (1984) Absent the application of RC § 2105.19(A) which bars from recovery those persons convicted of or pleading guilty to certain designated homicide offenses, a person challenging the beneficiary's claim has the burden of proving the intentional and malicious killing: Huff v. Union Fidelity Life Ins. Co., 14 OApp3d 135, 14 OBR 151, 470 NE2d 236.

3. (1984) A minor whose age precludes convictions that statutorily bar recovery for an adult can still forfeit beneficial rights under the common-law rule: Huff v. Union Fi- delity Life Ins. Co., 14 OApp3d 135, 14 OBR 151, 470 NE2d 236.

4. (1984) A justifiable killing in defense of oneself or another will not disqualify a beneficiary from recovering benefits resulting from that death: Huff v. Union Fidelity Life Ins. Co., 14 OApp3d 135, 14 OBR 151, 470 NE2d 236.

5. (1984) Revised Code § 2105.19 provides that all money or other property or benefits payable or distributable in respect to the death of the decedent shall pass or be paid as if the guilty person had predeceased the decedent. Thus, for purposes of RC § 2105.19, where the decedent and the guilty party had a joint and survivorship bank account, the guilty party is considered to have predeceased the decedent and the decedent is to be treated as the survivor: In re Estate of Fiore, 16 OApp3d 473, 16 OBR 555, 476 NE2d 1093.

6. (1984) A plea of "no contest" to a charge of murder under RC § 2903.02, followed by a finding of guilty, does not bar the application of RC § 2105.19: In re Estate of Fiore, 16 OApp3d 473, 16 OBR 555, 476 NE2d 1093.

7. (1984) Revised Code § 2105.19 does not impair the obligation of contracts as set forth in both the Ohio and United States Constitutions: In re Estate of Fiore, 16 OApp3d 473, 16 OBR 555, 476 NE2d 1093.

8. (1983) Revised Code § 2105.19 does not preclude a juvenile adjudicated delinquent by reason of having murdered his father from inheriting from his father's estate: In re Estate of Birt, 18 OMisc2d 7, 18 OBR 407, 481 NE2d 1387 (CP).

9. (1985) The identity of a person who intentionally and feloniously causes the death of another can be established in a civil proceeding in order to prevent the wrongdoer from receiving the proceeds of the deceased's life insurance policy: *Shrader v. 1. 2. (1982) Though no specific statutory definition of the term "will" exists, case law and statutory language clearly demonstrate that a will must be in writing, executed with certain formalities and by its language illustrate, at the minimum, a testamentary intent, i.e., a disposition of property to take effect only at death: In re Estate of Ike, 7 OApp3d 87, 7 OBR 100, 454 NE2d 577.

1. (1978) The testimony of a physician as to the issue of an individual's competency is not dispositive of that issue as a matter of law: Vetter v. Hampton, 54 OS2d 227, 8 OO3d 198, 375 NE2d 804.

2. (1981) Expert opinion testimony is admissible as to an ultimate fact without infringing upon the function of the jury, if the determination of such ultimate fact requires the application of expert knowledge not within the common knowledge of the jury. This rule permits the giving of an expert opinion as to the mental capacity of the decedent and her competency to make a will. (EvR 704 applied): In re estate of Seelig, 2 OApp3d 223, 2 OBR 243, 441 NE2d 598.

3. (1983) A testator's treating physician's opinion is competent in an action where the testator's mental strength and weakness are in issue; however, that opinion is not conclusive as a matter of law: Gannett v. Booker, 12 OApp3d 49, 12 OBR 190, 465 NE2d 1326.

4. (1983) Because undue influence is usually proved by circumstantial evidence and because a wide range of evidence is to be permitted to establish undue influence, it is error for a trial court to grant a motion in limine limiting the presentation of evidence to those events occurring within a specified time period before and after the execution of the contested will: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

5. (1983) In order to sustain allegations of undue influence in a will contest, a plaintiff must prove: (1) that the testator was "susceptible"; (2) another's opportunity to exert the influence; (3) the fact of improper influence exerted or attempted; and (4) the result showing the effect of such influence: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

6. (1983) Where a will is attacked on grounds of undue influence, a wide range of inquiry should be permitted to bring before the jury the facts and influences bearing upon the preparation of the will: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

The judge, on being paid the fee of one dollar, shall receive, keep, and give a certificate of deposit for such will.

The judge shall indorse thereon the date of delivery and the person by whom such will was delivered. The wrapper may be indorsed with the name of a person to whom it is to be delivered after the death of the testator. Such will shall not be opened or read until delivered to a person entitled to receive it, until the maker petitions the probate court for a declaratory judgment of the validity of the will pursuant to section 2107.081 [2107.08.1] of the Revised Code, or until otherwise disposed of as provided in section 2107.08 of the Revised Code.

§ 2107.08 Delivery of will.

During the lifetime of a testator, the testator's will, deposited according to section 2107.07 of the Revised Code, shall be delivered only to him, to some person authorized by him by a written order proved by the oath of a subscribing witness, or to a probate court for a determination of its validity when the testator so requests. After the testator's death, the will shall be delivered to the person named in the indorsement on the wrapper of the will, if there is a person named who demands it. If the testator has petitioned the court for a judgment declaring the validity of the will pursuant to section 2107.081 [2107.08.1] of the Revised Code and the court has rendered such a judgment, the probate judge with possession shall deliver the will to the proper probate court as determined under section 2107.11 of the Revised Code, upon the death of the testator, for probate.

If no person named in the indorsement demands the will and it is not one that has been declared valid pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, it shall be publicly opened in the probate court within two months after notice of the testator's death and retained in the office of the probate judge until offered for probate. If the jurisdiction belongs to any other court, such will shall be delivered to the person entitled to its custody, to be presented for probate in the other court. If the judge who opens such will has jurisdiction of it, he shall immediately give notice of its existence to the executor named in the will or, if any, to the persons holding a power to nominate an executor as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code, or, if it is the case, to the executor named in the will and to the persons holding a power to nominate a coexecutor as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code. If no executor is named and no persons hold a power to nominate an executor as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code, the judge shall give notice to other persons immediately interested.

[§ 2107.08.1] § 2107.081 [Petition for judgment declaring validity of will.]

(A) A person who executes a will allegedly in conformity with the laws of this state may petition the probate court of the county in which he is domiciled, if he is domiciled in this state or the probate court of the county in which any of his real property is located, if he is not domiciled in this state, for a judgment declaring the validity of the will.

The petition may be filed in the form determined by the probate court of the county in which it is filed.

The petition shall name as parties defendant all persons named in the will as beneficiaries, and all of the persons who would be entitled to inherit from the testator under Chapter 2105. of the Revised Code had the testator died intestate on the date the petition was filed.

For the purposes of this section, "domicile" shall be determined at the time of filing the petition with the probate court.

(B) The failure of a testator to file a petition for a judgment declaring the validity of a will he has executed shall not be construed as evidence or an admission that the will was not properly executed pursuant to section 2107.03 of the Revised Code or any prior law of this state in effect at the time of execution or as evidence or an admission that the testator did not have the requisite testamentary capacity and freedom from undue influence under section 2107.02 of the Revised Code.

(B) By certified mail, with a copy of the summons and petition, to the party at his last known address or any other valid personal service permitted by the Rules of Civil Procedure, if the party is not an inhabitant of this state or is not found within this state;

(C) By publication, according to Civil Rule 4.4, in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county where the petition was filed, for three consecutive weeks, if the address of the party is unknown, if all methods of personal service permitted under division (B) of this section were attempted without success, or if the interest of the party under the will or in the estate of the testator should the will be declared invalid is unascertainable at that time.

When a petition is filed pursuant to section 2107.081 [2107.08.1] of the Revised Code, the probate court shall conduct a hearing on the validity of the will. The hearing shall be adversary in nature and shall be conducted pursuant to section 2721.10 of the Revised Code, except as otherwise provided in sections 2107.081 [2107.08.1] to 2107.085 [2107.08.5] of the Revised Code.

[§ 2107.08.4] § 2107.084 [Declaration of validity; sealing, filing; procedure for revoking or modifying will.]

(A) The probate court shall declare the will valid if, after conducting a proper hearing pursuant to section 2107.083 [2107.08.3] of the Revised Code, it finds that the will was properly executed pursuant to section 2107.03 of the Revised Code or under any prior law of this state that was in effect at the time of execution and that the testator had the requisite testamentary capacity and freedom from undue influence pursuant to section 2107.02 of the Revised Code.

Any such judgment declaring a will valid is binding in this state as to the validity of the will on all facts found, unless provided otherwise in this section, section 2107.33, or division (B) of section 2107.71 of the Revised Code, and, if the will remains valid, shall give the will full legal effect as the instrument of disposition of the testator's estate, unless the will has been modified or revoked according to law.

(B) Any declaration of validity issued as a judgment pursuant to this section shall be sealed in an envelope along with the will to which it pertains, and filed by the probate judge or his designated officer in the offices of that probate court. The filed will shall be available during the testator's lifetime only to the testator. If the testator removes a filed will from the possession of the probate judge, the declaration of validity rendered under division (A) of this section no longer has any effect.

(C) A testator may revoke or modify a will declared valid and filed with a probate court pursuant to this section by petitioning the probate court in possession of the will and asking that the will be revoked or modified. The petition shall include a document executed pursuant to sections 2107.02 and 2107.03 of the Revised Code, and shall name as parties defendant those persons who were parties defendant in any previous action declaring the will valid, those persons who are named in any modification as beneficiaries, and those persons who would be entitled because of the revocation or modification, to inherit from the testator under Chapter 2105. of the Revised Code had the testator died intestate on the date the petition was filed. Service of the petition and process shall be made on these parties by the methods authorized in section 2107.082 [2107.08.2] of the Revised Code.

Unless waived by all parties, the court shall conduct a hearing on the validity of the revocation or modification requested under this division in the same manner as it would on any initial petition for a judgment declaring a will to be valid under this section. If the court finds that the revocation or modification is valid, as defined in division (A) of this section, the revocation or modification shall take full effect and be binding, and revoke the will or modify it to the extent of the valid modification. The revocation or modification, the judgment declaring it valid, and the will itself shall be sealed in an envelope and filed with the probate court, and shall be available during the testator's lifetime only to the testator.

(D) A testator may also modify a will by any later will or codicil executed according to the laws of this state or any other state and may revoke a will by any method permitted under section 2107.33 of the Revised Code.

(E) A declaration of validity of a will, or of a revocation or modification of a will previously determined to be valid, given under division (C) of this section, is not subject to collateral attack, except by a person and in the manner specified in division (B) of section 2107.71 of the Revised Code, but is appealable subject to the terms of Chapter 2721. of the Revised Code.

[§ 2107.08.5] § 2107.085 [Effect on other proceedings.]

The finding of facts by a probate court in a proceeding brought under sections 2107.081 [2107.08.1] to 2107.085 [2107.08.5] of the Revised Code is not admissible as evidence in any proceeding other than one brought to determine the validity of a will.

The determination or judgment rendered in a proceeding under these sections is not binding upon the parties to such a proceeding in any action not brought to determine the validity of a will.

The failure of a testator to file a petition for a judgment declaring the validity of a will he has executed is not admissible as evidence in any proceeding to determine the validity of that will or any other will executed by the testator.

§ 2107.09 Who may enforce production of a will.

(A) If real or personal estate is devised or bequeathed by a last will, the executor, or any interested person, may cause such will to be brought before the probate court of the county in which the decedent was domiciled. By citation, attachment, or warrant or, if circumstances require it, by warrant or attachment in the first instance, such court may compel the person having the custody or control of such will to produce it before the court for the purpose of being proved.

If the person having the custody or control of the will intentionally conceals or withholds it or neglects or refuses to produce it for probate without reasonable cause, he may be committed to the county jail and kept in close custody until he produces the will. This person also shall be liable to any party aggrieved for the damages sustained by such neglect or refusal.

Any citation, attachment, or warrant issued pursuant to this section may be issued into any county in the state and shall be served and returned by the officer to whom it is delivered.

The officer to whom such process is delivered shall be liable for neglect in its service or return in like manner as sheriffs are liable for neglect in not serving or returning a capias issued upon an indictment.

(B) In the case of a will that has been declared valid pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, the probate judge who made the declaration or who has possession of the will shall cause the will and the judgment declaring validity to be brought before the proper probate court as determined by section 2107.11 of the Revised Code at a time after the death of the testator. If the death of the testator is brought to the attention of the probate judge by an interested party, the judge shall cause the will to be brought before the proper probate court at that time.

§ 2107.10 Effect of withholding will.

(A) No property or right, testate or intestate, shall pass to a beneficiary named in a will who knows of the existence of the will for three years and has the power to control it, and, without reasonable cause, intentionally conceals or withholds it or neglects or refuses within the three years to cause it to be offered for or admitted to probate. The estate devised to such devisee shall descend to the heirs of the testator, not including any heir who has concealed or withheld the will.

(B) No property or right, testate or intestate, passes to a beneficiary named in a will when the will was declared valid and filed with a probate judge pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, the declaration and filing took place in a county different from the county in which the will of the testator would be probated under section 2107.11 of the Revised Code, and the named beneficiary knew of the declaration and filing and of the death of the testator and did not notify the probate judge with whom the will was filed. This division does not preclude a named beneficiary from acquiring property or rights from the estate of the testator for failing to notify a probate judge if it is his reasonable belief that the judge has previously been notified of the testator's death.

§ 2107.11 Jurisdiction to probate.

A will shall be admitted to probate:

(A) In the county in which the testator was domiciled if, at the time of his death, he was domiciled in this state;

(B) In any county of this state where any real or personal property of such testator is located if, at the time of his death, he was not domiciled in this state, and provided that such will has not previously been admitted to probate in this state or in the state of such testator's domicile;

(C) In the county of this state in which a probate court rendered a judgment declaring that the will was valid and where the will was filed with the probate court.

For the purpose of this section, intangible personal property is located in the place where the instrument evidencing a debt, obligation, stock, or chose in action is located or if there is no such instrument where the debtor resides.

1. (1976) The time frame of RC § 2107.18 concerns the situation at the time the will was "made," not at the time it was presented for probate: In re Nash, 3 OO3d 347, 361 NE2d 558 (CP).

2. (1976) Revised Code § 2107.18 does not require, as does RC § 2107.27, that the will sought to be proved has been "unrevoked at the death of the testator": In re Nash, 3 OO3d 347, 361 NE2d 558 (CP).

3. (1978) Under RC § 2107.18 and RC § 2107.18.1, a will must be admitted to probate when the proponents introduce substantial evidence tending to prove the validity of the will: In re Young, 60 OApp2d 390, 14 OO3d 359, 397 NE2d 1223.

If it appears that the instrument purporting to be a will is not entitled to admission to probate, the court shall enter an interlocutory order denying probate of the instrument, and shall continue the matter for further hearing. The court shall order that not less than ten days' notice of the further hearing be given by the applicant, the executor named in the instrument, the persons holding a power to nominate an executor as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code, or a commissioner appointed by the court, to all persons named in the instrument as legatees, devisees, beneficiaries of a trust, trustees, executors, or persons holding a power to nominate an executor, coexecutor, successor executor, or successor coexecutor as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code. Upon further hearing, witnesses may be called, subpoenaed, examined, and cross-examined in open court or by deposition, and their testimony reduced to writing and filed in the same manner as in hearings for the admission of wills to probate. Thereupon, the court shall revoke its interlocutory order denying probate to the instrument, and admit it to probate, or enter a final order refusing to probate it. Such court may admit the will of later date to probate the same as if no earlier will had been so admitted. In such case, the proceedings shall be the same as if no other will had been admitted.

When an authenticated copy of a will has been admitted to record by a probate court, and an authenticated copy of a will of later date executed and proved as required by law, is presented to the same court for record, it shall be admitted to record in the same manner as if no authenticated copy of the will of earlier date had been so admitted.

If the court admits the later will to probate, or the authenticated copy of a later will to record, its order shall operate as a revocation of the order admitting the will of earlier date to probate, or shall operate as a revocation of the order admitting the authenticated copy of the will of earlier date to record, and the court shall enter on the record of the earlier will a marginal note "later will admitted to probate..." 1. (1976) A purported will which upon presentation for probate contains eight separate black ink deletions, apparently made with a felt marking pen, the last blacking completely covering testatrix's signature, is not a spoliated will: In re Nash, 3 OO3d 347, 361 NE2d 558 (CP).

2. (1976) Whether such purported will should be admitted to probate is governed by the provisions of RC § 2107.11 et seq., dealing with the probate of an ordinary will, not by the provisions of RC § 2107.26 et seq., dealing with the probate of a spoliated will, as these sections existed at the time of decedent's death on August 29, 1975: In re Nash, 3 OO3d 347, 361 NE2d 558 (CP).

§ 2107.27 Notice of application; testimony; probate.

When application is made to the probate court to admit to probate a will which has been lost, spoliated, or destroyed, the party seeking to prove such will shall give a written notice to the surviving spouse and to the next of kin of the testator known to be residents of the state, and to all persons, known to reside in the county where the testator resided at the time of his death, whose interest it may be to resist the probate. The party seeking to prove such will shall give the written notice not less than five days before the day on which such proof is to be made, or give notice, by publication in a newspaper published in the county, not less than thirty days before the day set for hearing such proof.

In such cases, the court shall cause the witnesses to such will and other witnesses whom a person interested in having such will admitted to probate may desire to have appear, to come before the court. Such witnesses shall be examined by the probate judge and their testimony reduced to writing and filed by him in his court. When witnesses reside out of its jurisdiction, or reside within such jurisdiction but are infirm or unable to attend, the court may order their testimony to be taken and reduced to writing by some competent person, which testimony shall be filed in such court.

If upon such proof, the court is satisfied that such last will and testament was executed in the manner provided by the law in force at the time of its execution, that its contents are substantially proved, that it was unrevoked at the death of the testator, and has been lost, spoliated, or destroyed since his death or since he became incapable of making a will by reason of insanity, or before the death of the testator if his lack of knowledge of such loss, spoliation, or destruction can be proved by clear and convincing testimony, such court shall find and establish the contents of such will as near as can be ascertained and cause them and the testimony taken in the case to be recorded in such court.

The contents of such a last will and testament shall be as effectual for all purposes, as if the original will has been admitted to probate and record.

§ 2107.33 Revocation of will.

(A) A will shall be revoked by the testator by tearing, canceling, obliterating, or destroying it with the intention of revoking it, or by some person in the testator's presence, or by the testator's express written direction, or by some other written will or codicil, executed as prescribed by sections 2107.01 to 2107.62 of the Revised Code, or by some other writing that is signed, attested, and subscribed in the manner provided by those sections. A will that has been declared valid and is in the possession of a probate judge may also be revoked according to division (C) of section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code.

(B) If a testator removes a will that has been declared valid and is in the possession of a probate judge pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code from the possession of the judge, the declaration of validity that was rendered no longer has any effect.

(C) If after executing a will, a testator is divorced, obtains a dissolution of marriage, or has his marriage annulled, or upon actual separation from his spouse, enters into a separation agreement whereby the parties intend to fully and finally settle their prospective property rights in the property of the other, whether by expected inheritance or otherwise, any disposition or appointment of property made by the will to the former spouse, any provision in the will conferring a general or special power of appointment on the former spouse, and any nomination in the will of the former spouse as executor, trustee, or guardian, shall be revoked unless the will expressly provides otherwise.

(D) Property prevented from passing to a former spouse because of revocation by this section shall pass as if the former spouse failed to survive the decedent, and other provisions conferring some power or office on the former spouse shall be interpreted as if the spouse failed to survive the decedent. If provisions are revoked solely by this section, they shall be deemed to be revived by testator's remarriage with the former spouse or upon the termination of a separation agreement executed by them.

(E) A bond, agreement, or covenant made by a testator, for a valuable consideration, to convey property previously devised or bequeathed in a will, does not revoke the devise or bequest. The property passes by the devise or bequest, subject to the remedies on the bond, agreement, or covenant, for a specific performance or otherwise, against the devisees or legatees, that might be had by law against the heirs of the testator, or his next of kin, if the property had descended to them.

§ 2107.39 Election by surviving spouse.

(A) After the probate of a will and the filing of the inventory, the appraisal, and a schedule of debts where ordered, the probate court shall issue a citation to the surviving spouse, if any is living at the time of the issuance of the citation, to elect whether to take under the will or under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code.

(B) If the surviving spouse elects to take under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code and if the value of the property that the surviving spouse is entitled to receive is equal to or greater than the value of the mansion house as determined under section 2105.062 [2105.06.2] of the Revised Code, the surviving spouse is also entitled to make an election pursuant to division (A) of section 2105.062 [2105.06.2] of the Revised Code.

(C) If the surviving spouse elects to take under section 2105.06 of the Revised Code, the spouse shall take not to exceed one half of the net estate unless two or more of the decedent's children or their lineal descendants survive, in which case the spouse shall take not to exceed one-third of the net estate.

(D) Unless the will expressly provides that in case of an election under division (A) of this section there shall be no acceleration of remainder or other interests bequeathed or devised by the will, the balance of the net estate shall be disposed of as though the spouse had predeceased the testator.

(E) The election under division (A) of this section shall be made at any time after the probate of the will, but not later than one month after the service of the citation to elect. On a motion filed before the expiration of the one-month period, and for good cause shown, the court may allow further time for the making of the election. If no action is taken by the surviving spouse within the one-month period, it is conclusively presumed that the surviving spouse elects to take under the will. The election shall be entered on the journal of the court.

When proceedings for advice or to contest the validity of a will are begun within the time allowed by this division for making the election, the election may be made within three months after the final disposition of the proceedings, if the will is not set aside.

(F) When a surviving spouse succeeds to the entire estate of the testator, having been named the sole devisee and legatee, it shall be presumed that the spouse elects to take under the will of the testator. No citation shall be issued to the surviving spouse as provided in division (A) of this section, and no election shall be required, unless the surviving spouse manifests a contrary intention.

1. (1977) In the construction of a will, the sole purpose of the court should be to ascertain and carry out the intention of the testator. Such intentions must be ascertained from the words contained in the will: Carr v. Stradley, 52 OS2d 220, 6 OO3d 469, 371 NE2d 540.

2. (1977) A testator is never presumed to have died intestate as to any part of his estate to which his attention was seemingly directed, and a court will put such a construction upon equivocal words as to prevent such a result: Carr v. Stradley, 52 OS2d 220, 6 OO3d 469, 371 NE2d 540.

3. (1977) Where property is held in a testamentary trust, and the income produced therefrom is in excess of the sums which the trustee is instructed to disburse, such surplus income may be held in the trust and accumulated until it can be paid out at the termination of the trust in accordance with the directions of the testator: Carr v. Stradley, 52 OS2d 220, 6 OO3d 469, 371 NE2d 540.

4. (1976) Where a life tenant fails to exercise her power to consume, the executrix of her estate may exercise the power to consume and invade the testator's estate, but only to the extent necessary to pay unpaid debts for the care and maintenance of the life tenant, the expenses of her last illness, and her funeral expenses: Kurtz v. Brown, 53 OApp2d 190, 7 OO3d 255, 372 NE2d 1338.

5. (1976) The conversion of real property to personality does not destroy the rights of a life tenant or those of vested remaindermen: Kurtz v. Brown, 53 OApp2d 190, 7 OO3d 255, 372 NE2d 1338.

6. (1976) Where a will provides that a life tenant shall have the power to sell and convey the testator's real property as is necessary for her care and maintenance, the life tenant is a quasi-trustee for the remaindermen as to the amount not necessary for her care and maintenance: Kurtz v. Brown, 53 OApp2d 190, 7 OO3d 255, 372 NE2d 1338.

7. (1976) Decedent's will ordered that her home, which was subsequently placed in the national Registry of Historical Places for its architectural importance, be razed. There was testimony by her co-executor, and attorney for over forty years, that this direction was a result of her fear that her home would, like the surrounding homes, be converted into a rooming house or commercial premises.

There was also testimony that testatrix would otherwise have wished to have her home preserved. Therefore the executors may be empowered to sell the home to an historical society with the restriction that the home never be converted to commercial purposes: National City Bank v. Case Western Reserve University, 7 OO3d 100 (CP).

8. (1977) In the absence of an express provision in a will for the payment of a federal estate tax, an intention is imputed to a testator that a devise to his surviving spouse is not to be reduced in any way by the payment of such tax: Sawyer v. Sawyer, 53 OApp2d 323, 7 OO3d 422, 374 NE2d 166.

9. (1978) In the absence of an effective representative of any adverse interest, an administrator may further appeal to the supreme court where the trial court's determination has been reversed by the court of appeals: Boulger v. Evans, 54 OS2d 371, 8 OO3d 388, 377 NE2d 753.

10. (1978) The state of Ohio is not a necessary party in an action to construe a will where there has been no prior judicial determination of escheat to the state: Boulger v. Evans, 54 OS2d 371, 8 OO3d 388, 377 NE2d 753.

11. (1978) Attorney fees should not be awarded against the estate in an action to construe a will where the action is brought by a beneficiary and the result benefits only a certain class of beneficiaries: Cowgill v. Faulconer, 8 OO3d 423 (CP).

12. (1978) A devise in equal shares to the children of a deceased brother, and to the children of another brother is a devise to a class of persons identified by reference as the children of said brothers. All children in such class receive said devise per capita and not per stirpes: Cowgill v. Faulconer, 8 OO3d 423 (CP).

13. (1978) A devise in equal shares to the children of a deceased brother and the children of another brother "who survive me, share and share alike" required a per capita distribution, but limits the beneficiaries of the class to those persons who survive testatrix: Cowgill v. Faulconer, 8 OO3d 423 (CP).

14. (1978) It is within the sound discretion of the court to determine in each case if the facts and circumstances warrant the expense of attorney fees paid from the assets of the estate: Cowgill v. Faulconer, 8 OO3d 423 (CP).

15. (1978) A probate court has jurisdiction under this section to construe irrevocable inter vivos trusts executed by the testator where it is necessary to construe such trust agreements in order to give effect to the decedent's will: Steman v. Chase Manhattan Bank, 9 OO3d 395.

16. (1979) A bequest to a class of persons "living at the time of my death" includes in such class a child en ventre sa mere who is a viable unborn child capable of sustaining life outside the mother's womb even though not born until three days after the death of testatrix: Ebbs v. Smith, 11 OO3d 355 (CP).

17. (1980) A testator may provide for a bequest of specific property to pass as part of a devisee's share in the residuary estate: Plyley v. Brown, 18 OO3d 245 (CP).

18. (1982) Where a term in a will is susceptible to various meanings, the Probate Court may consider the circumstances surrounding the drafting of the instrument, in order to arrive at a construction consistent with the overall intent of the testator so as to uphold all parts of the will: Wills v. Union Savings & Trust, 69 OS2d 382, 23 OO3d 350, 433 NE2d 152.

19. (1982) Where a donee of a special testamentary power of appointment expresses his intent to exercise his power by will, and designates various charitable institutions as beneficiaries, the Probate Court may exercise its inherent equitable powers to give effect to the attempted exercise of such power: Wills v. Union Savings & Trust, 69 OS2d 382, 23 OO3d 350, 433 NE2d 152.

20. (1982) The testatrix's intent in a will which bequeaths "all of my personal property and household goods to my niece" can be interpreted as bequeathing all personal property including intangible personal property: Sandy v. Mouhot, 1 OS3d 143, 1 OBR 178, 438 NE2d 117.

21. (1982) A will contest action does not constitute such a claim as to be susceptible of pleading as a matter of right as a counterclaim or cross-claim: Hess v. Sommers, 4 OApp3d 281, 4 OBR 500, 448 NE2d 494.

22. (1984) In a testamentary gift to persons named and the children of a deceased daughter, share and share alike, the persons entitled will, in the absence of anything to show a contrary intention, take per capita, and not per stirpes: Johnson v. Johnson, 13 OMisc2d 15, 13 OBR 302, 468 NE2d 945 (CP).

§ 2107.47 Protection of purchaser against later will.

(A) The title, estate, or interest of a bona fide purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer, for value, in land situated in this state, that is derived from an heir of a decedent and acquired without knowledge of a will of the decedent that effectively disposes of it to another person, shall not be defeated by the production of a will of the decedent, unless, in the case of a resident decedent, the will is offered for probate within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator, or unless, in the case of a nonresident decedent, the will is offered for record in this state within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator.

(B) The title, estate, or interest of a bona fide purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer, for value, in land situated in this state, that is derived from a beneficiary under a will of a decedent and acquired without knowledge of a later will of the decedent that effectively disposes of it to another person, shall not be defeated by the production of a later will of the decedent, unless, in the case of a resident decedent, the later will is offered for probate within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator, or unless, in the case of a nonresident decedent, the later will is offered for record in this state within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator.

§ 2107.49 Rule in Shelley's case abolished.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1977) The rule of common law, known as the "rule in Shelley's Case" was abolished as to deeds by a statute effective August 22, 1941, and the abolition thereof cannot be applied retroactively: Waters v. Monroe Coal Company, 54 OMisc 37, 8 OO3d 344, 376 NE2d 977.

2. (1977) The rule is that where an ancestor took a freehold for life and, by the same conveyance, was limited either mediately or immediately to his heirs, the word "heirs" was a word of limitation, not of purchase, and the fee vested in the ancestor. It is a rule of property rather than one of construction: Waters v. Monroe Coal Company, 54 OMisc 37, 8 OO3d 344, 376 NE2d 977.

2. (1977) The residuary bequest to the testator's wife did not pass to her adopted daughter under RC § 2107.52, the anti-lapse statute, because the wife died within a few hours of the testator, in a common accident, and thus the bequest to the wife failed under RC § 2105.21: *Lyman v. § 2107.54 Contribution; exception.

(A) When real or personal property, devised or bequeathed, is taken from the devisee or legatee for the payment of a debt of the testator, the other devisees and legatees shall contribute their respective proportions of the loss to the person from whom such payment was taken so that the loss will fall equally on all the devisees and legatees according to the value of the property received by each of them.

If, by making a specific devise or bequest, the testator has exempted a devisee or legatee from liability to contribute to the payment of debts, or if the will makes a different provision for the payment of debts than the one prescribed in this section, the estate shall be applied in conformity with the will.

(B) A devisee or legatee shall not be prejudiced by the fact that the holder of a claim secured by lien on the property devised or bequeathed failed to present such claim to the executor or administrator for allowance within the time allowed by sections 2117.06 and 2117.07 of the Revised Code, and the devisee or legatee shall be restored by right of contribution, exoneration, or subrogation, to the position he would have occupied if such claim had been presented and allowed for such sum as is justly owing on it.

(C) A devisee of real estate that is subject to a mortgage lien that exists on the date of the testator's death, who does not have a right of exoneration that extends to that lien because of the operation of division (B) of section 2113.52 of the Revised Code, has a duty to contribute under this section to devisees and legatees who are burdened if the claim secured by the lien is presented and allowed pursuant to Chapter 2117. of the Revised Code.

(D) This section does not affect the liability of the whole estate of the testator for the payment of his debts. This section applies only to the marshaling of the assets as between those who hold or claim under the will.

1. (1976) The judgment of an out of state court rendered with regard to the validity and functions of a guardianship established by such court is entitled to full faith and credit in Ohio, but the exercise of a personal power of appointment, which had been granted to the beneficiary of an Ohio trust who subsequently becomes incompetent, by the guardian, after authorization by such court, is not binding upon the Ohio court administering the trust where the trustee and the takers-in-default under the trust were never parties in the guardianship proceedings authorizing the exercise of the power: Toledo Trust Co. v. National Bank of Detroit, 50 OApp2d 147, 4 OO3d 125, 362 NE2d 273.

2. (1976) A general power of appointment established in a beneficiary under a trust instrument may not be exercised by a guardian appointed after the beneficiary becomes incompetent, where such exercise is not to provide care, maintenance and support, but is to effect a testamentary disposition of property: *Toledo Trust Co. v. 3. § 2107.64 Trustee as beneficiary.

A policy of life insurance, or an employee or self-employed benefit plan including, but not limited to, an employee trust or annuity plan, a Keogh plan, an individual retirement account or annuity, or a retirement bond, may designate as beneficiary a trustee named by will. Upon qualification and issuance of letters of trusteeship, the proceeds of the insurance or benefit plan shall be payable to the trustee to be held and disposed of under the terms of the will as they exist as of the date of the death of the testator and in the same manner as other testamentary trusts are administered. However, if no qualified trustee makes claim to the proceeds from the insurance company or the trustee of or other person holding funds of the benefit plan within twelve months after the death of the insured or the person covered by the benefit plan, or if satisfactory evidence is furnished to the insurance company or the trustee of or other person holding funds of the benefit plan within that twelve-month period showing that there is or will be no trustee to receive the proceeds, payment shall be made by the insurance company or the trustee of or other person holding funds of the benefit plan to the executors, administrators, or assigns of the insured or person covered by the benefit plan, unless otherwise provided by agreement with the insurance company or the trustee of or other person holding funds of the benefit plan during the lifetime of the insured or the person covered by the benefit plan.

The proceeds of the insurance or of the benefit plan as received by the trustee shall not be subject to debts of the insured or the person covered by the benefit plan or to estate tax to any greater or lesser extent than if the proceeds were payable to the beneficiary or beneficiaries named in the trust and not to the estate of the insured or the person covered by the benefit plan.

The insurance proceeds, or the proceeds of the benefit plan, so held in trust may be commingled with any other assets that may properly come into the trust.

Nothing in this section shall affect the validity of any life insurance policy beneficiary designation made prior to August 10, 1965, or the validity of any benefit plan beneficiary designation made prior to the effective date of this amendment, naming trustees of a trust established by will.

§ 2107.65 [Power to nominate executor.]

A testator may confer in his will, upon one or more persons, the power to nominate, in writing, an executor, coexecutor, successor executor, or successor coexecutor, and also may provide in his will that persons so nominated may serve without bond. If a will confers such a power, the holders of it have the authority to nominate themselves as executor, coexecutor, successor executor, or successor coexecutor unless the will provides to the contrary.

§ 2107.71 [Civil action to contest validity of will.]

(A) A person interested in a will or codicil admitted to probate in the probate court, which will or codicil has not been declared valid by judgment of a probate court pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, or which will or codicil has been declared valid by judgment of a probate court pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, but which has been removed from the possession of the probate judge, may contest its validity by a civil action in the probate court in the county in which such will or codicil was admitted to probate.

(B) Except as otherwise provided in this division, no person may contest the validity of any will or codicil as to facts decided if it was submitted to a probate court by its maker during his lifetime and declared valid by judgment of the probate court and filed with the judge of the probate court pursuant to section 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code and if the will was not removed from the possession of the probate judge. A person may contest the validity of such a will, modification, or codicil as to such facts if the person is one who should have been named a party defendant in the action in which the will, modification, or codicil was declared valid, pursuant to section 2107.081 [2107.08.1] or 2107.084 [2107.08.4] of the Revised Code, and if the person was not named a defendant and properly served in such action. Upon the filing of an action contesting the validity of a will or codicil that is authorized by this division, the court shall proceed with the action in the same manner as if the will, modification, or codicil had not been previously declared valid under sections 2107.081 [2107.08.1] to 2107.085 [2107.08.5] of the Revised Code.

(C) No person may introduce, as evidence in an action authorized by this section contesting the validity of a will, the fact that the testator of the will did not file a petition for a judgment declaring its validity under section 2107.081 [2107.08.1] of the Revised Code.

1. (1978) Where an action to contest a will is mistakenly docketed in the general division of the court of common pleas rather than the probate division of that court, prejudicial error is committed if the court dismisses the complaint instead of transferring the action to the docket of the probate division, pursuant to a motion of the complainant: Siebenthal v. Summers, 56 OApp2d 168, 10 OO3d 186, 381 NE2d 1344.

2. (1981) There is no constitutional or statutory right to a jury trial in a will contest action: State ex rel. Kear v. Court of Common Pleas, 67 OS2d 189, 21 OO3d 118, 423 NE2d 427.

3. (1982) A will contest action does not constitute such a claim as to be susceptible of pleading as a matter of right as a counterclaim or cross-claim: Hess v. Sommers, 4 OApp3d 281, 4 OBR 500, 448 NE2d 494.

4. (1982) A will contest raises the single and ultimate issue whether the writing produced is the last will or codicil of the testator: Hess v. Sommers, 4 OApp3d 281, 4 OBR 500, 448 NE2d 494.

5. (1982) Although legatees, devisees, heirs, executors and other interested parties are necessary parties to a will contest action, it does not follow that by bringing such an action those who contest the will are making claims against any other opposing party: Hess v. Sommers, 4 OApp3d 281, 4 OBR 500, 448 NE2d 494.

6. (1983) Where a will is attacked on grounds of undue influence, a wide range of inquiry should be permitted to bring before the jury the facts and influences bearing upon the preparation of the will: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

7. (1983) In order to sustain allegations of undue influence in a will contest, a plaintiff must prove: (1) that the testator was "susceptible"; (2) another's opportunity to exert the influence; (3) the fact of improper influence exerted or attempted; and (4) the result showing the effect of such influence: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

8. (1983) Because undue influence is usually proved by circumstantial evidence and because a wide range of evidence is to be permitted to establish undue influence, it is error for a trial court to grant a motion in limine limiting the presentation of evidence to those events occurring within a specified time period before and after the execution of the contested will: Rich v. Quinn, 13 OApp3d 102, 13 OBR 119, 468 NE2d 365.

9. (1983) A probate court is not bound by the fees provided for in a contingent fee contract. The court must determine the amount of fees which are reasonably necessary for the services rendered to the estate. Such a determination does not, however, preclude the payment by the beneficiaries of the balance of the contracted fee under the terms of the contingent fee contract: In re Estate of Whitmore, 13 OApp3d 170, 13 OBR 205, 468 NE2d 769.

10. (1983) Contingent fees are proper in will contest actions: In re Estate of Whitmore, 13 OApp3d 170, 13 OBR 205, 468 NE2d 769.

§ 2107.72 [Rules of procedure; jury trial.]

(A) The Rules of Civil Procedure govern all aspects of a will contest action, except as otherwise provided in sections 2107.71 to 2107.77 of the Revised Code.

(B)(1) Each party to a will contest action has the right to a jury trial of the action. To assert the right, a party shall demand a jury trial in the manner prescribed in the Rules of Civil Procedure. Subject to division (B)(2) of this section, if a party demands a jury trial in that manner, the action shall be tried to a jury.

(2) Notwithstanding any provision to the contrary in Civil Rule 38, a demand of a jury trial in a will contest action may be withdrawn, if either of the following applies:

(a) All parties to the action who are not in default of answer, consent to the withdrawal of the demand prior to the commencement of the trial;

(b) All parties to the action who are not in default of answer and who are present at the time of the commencement of the trial, consent to the withdrawal of the demand.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) A party to a will contest action does not have the right to a jury trial; instead, a probate court has discretion to determine whether to sit as the trier of fact in a will contest action or to impanel a jury: State ex rel. Kear v. Court of Common Pleas, 67 OS2d 189, 21 OO3d 118, 423 NE2d 427.

2. (1982) Due to the enactment of RC § 2107.72, amendments may be made to plaintiff's complaint to join necessary parties in a will contest action. These amendments would, under Civ. R. 15(C), relate back to the date of the original filing: State ex rel. Smith v. Court, 70 OS2d 213, 24 OO3d 320, 436 NE2d 1005.

3. (1983) In a will contest action, amendments may be made to a complaint to join necessary parties pursuant to CivR 15. Such amendments, under CivR 15(C), relate back to the date of the original filing: Smith v. Klem, 6 OS3d 16, 6 OBR 13, 450 NE2d 1171.

§ 2107.73 [Parties to will contest.]

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1978) Revised Code § 109.25 requires that the attorney general be made a party to a will contest action involving a charitable trust. Failure to join the attorney general as a party to the action within four months after the will is admitted to probate is a jurisdictional defect and the action must be dismissed: Hagler v. Barger, 10 OO3d 71 (App).

2. (1979) A party who would take only if the in terrorem clause was enforced was not a necessary party to the will contest: Bazo v. Siegel, 58 OS2d 353, 12 OO3d 318, 390 NE2d 807.

3. (1981) One who, at the commencement of a will contest action, has a direct, pecuniary interest in the estate which would be impaired or defeated if the instrument admitted to probate is a valid will is a necessary party to such will contest action: Trustees of Diocese of Southern Ohio v. Gilchrist, 3 OApp3d 223, 3 OBR 254, 444 NE2d 451.

§ 2107.74 Order of probate prima-facie evidence of validity.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1983) A testator's treating physician's opinion is competent in an action where the testator's mental strength and weakness are in issue; however, that opinion is not conclusive as a matter of law: Gannett v. Booker, 12

OApp3d 49, 12 OBR 190, 465 NE2d 1326.

2. (1983) In a will contest action, opposing affidavits regarding the testator's mental powers are sufficient to put the testator's mental capacity directly and squarely in issue and thus, summary judgment on that issue would be improper: Gannett v. Booker, 12 OApp3d 49, 12 OBR 190, 465 NE2d 1326.

3. (1983) The order admitting a will to probate is prima facie evidence of the validity of the will. The burden of proof in a will contest is upon and never shifts from the contestants of the will. The contestants must produce evidence which furnishes a reasonable basis for sustaining their claim: Gannett v. Booker, 12 OApp3d 49, 12 OBR 190, 465 NE2d 1326.

§ 2107.76 [Probate forever binding; exceptions.]

If within four months after a will is admitted to probate, no person files an action permitted by section 2107.71 of the Revised Code to contest the validity of the will, the probate shall be forever binding, except as to persons under any legal disability, or to such persons for four months after such disability is removed. The rights saved shall not affect the rights of a purchaser, lessee, or encumbrancer for value in good faith, nor impose any liability upon a fiduciary who has acted in good faith, or upon a person delivering or transferring property to any other person under authority of a will, whether or not the purchaser, lessee, encumbrancer, fiduciary, or other person had notice, actual or constructive, of the legal disability.

*HISTORY: 137 v H 505. Eff 1-1-79.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1982) Due to the enactment of RC § 2107.72, amendments may be made to plaintiff's complaint to join necessary parties in a will contest action. These amendments would, under Civ. R. 15(C), relate back to the date of the original filing: State ex rel. Smith v. Court, 70 OS2d 213, 24 OO3d 320, 436 NE2d 1005.

2. (1984) The savings clause of RC § 2305.19 for commencing a new action when a suit has failed otherwise than on the merits is not available in regard to a will contest action. (Alakiotis v. Lancione, 12 OMisc 257 [41 OO2d 381], followed.): Barnes v. Anderson, 17 OApp3d 142, 17 OBR 242, 478 NE2d 248.

3. (1984) Where the plaintiff voluntarily dismisses a will contest action and files a civil suit to adjudicate the same issues, but subsequently discovers that the civil suit is without merit, it is not error for the trial court to overrule plaintiff's motion to vacate judgment, which was made in an effort to revive the will contest action, as the voluntary dismissal did not constitute an adjudication upon the merits under CivR 41(A)(1) and was therefore not a final judgment, order or proceeding within the meaning of CivR 60(B): Barnes v. Anderson, 17 OApp3d 142, 17 OBR 242, 478 NE2d 248.

§ 2108.04 [Gift made effective upon death.]

(A) A gift of all or part of the body under division (A) of section 2108.02 of the Revised Code may be made by will. The gift becomes effective upon the death of the testator without waiting for probate. If the will is not probated or if it is declared invalid for testamentary purposes, the gift, to the extent that it has been acted upon in good faith, is nevertheless valid and effective.

(B) A gift of all or part of the body under division (A) of section 2108.02 of the Revised Code may also be made by any document other than a will. The gift becomes effective upon the death of the donor. The document, which may be a card designed to be carried on the person, shall be signed by the donor in the presence of two witnesses who shall sign the document in his presence. If the donor cannot sign, the document may be signed for him at his direction and in the presence of two witnesses, having no affiliation with the donee, who shall sign the document in his presence. Delivery of the document of gift during the donor's lifetime is not necessary to make the gift valid.

(C) A gift of parts of the body under division (A) of section 2108.02 of the Revised Code, may also be made by a statement to be provided for on all Ohio operator's or chauffeur's licenses or motorcycle operator's licenses, or endorsements, and on all identification cards. The gift becomes effective upon the death of the donor. The statement must be signed by the holder of the operator's or chauffeur's license or endorsement, or by the holder of the identification card, in the presence of two witnesses, who must sign the statement in the presence of the donor. Delivery of the license or identification card during the donor's lifetime is not necessary to make the gift valid. The gift shall become invalidated upon expiration or cancellation of the license or endorsement, or identification card. Revocation or suspension of the license or endorsement will not invalidate the gift. The gift must be renewed upon renewal of each license, endorsement, or identification card. If the statement is ambiguous as to whether a general or specific gift is intended by the donor, the statement shall be construed as evidencing the specific gift only. As used in this division, "identification card" means an identification card issued under section 4507.50 of the Revised Code.

(D) The gift may be made to a specified donee or without specifying a donee. If the latter, the gift may be accepted by the attending physician as donee upon or following death. If the gift is made to a specified donee who is not available at the time and place of death, the attending physician may accept the gift as donee upon or following death, in the absence of any expressed indication that the donor desired otherwise. The physician who accepts the gift as donee under this division shall not participate in the procedures for removing or transplanting a part.

(E) Notwithstanding division (B) of section 2108.07 of the Revised Code, the donor may designate in his will, card, or other document of gift the surgeon or physician to carry out the appropriate procedures. In the absence of a designation or if the designee is not available, the donee or other person authorized to accept the gift may employ or authorize any surgeon or physician to carry out the appropriate procedures.

(F) Any gift by a person specified in division (B) of section 2108.02 of the Revised Code shall be made by a document signed by him or made by his telegraphic, recorded telephonic, or other recorded message.

An individual is dead if he has sustained either irreversible cessation of circulatory and respiratory functions or irreversible cessation of all functions of the brain, including the brain stem, as determined in accordance with accepted medical standards. A physician who makes a determination of death in accordance with this section and accepted medical standards is not liable for damages in any civil action or subject to prosecution in any criminal proceeding for his acts or the acts of others based on that determination.

§ 2109.01 Definition.

"Fiduciary" as used in Chapters 2101. to 2131. of the Revised Code, except as provided in section 2109.022 [2109.02.2] of the Revised Code, means any person, association, or corporation, other than an assignee or trustee for an insolvent debtor or a guardian under sections 5905.01 to 5905.19 of the Revised Code, appointed by and accountable to the probate court and acting in a fiduciary capacity for any person, association, or corporation, or charged with duties in relation to any property, interest, trust, or estate for the benefit of another; and includes the department of mental retardation and developmental disabilities or an agency under contract with the department for the provision of protective service under sections 5123.55 to 5123.59 of the Revised Code, appointed by and accountable to the probate court as guardian or trustee with respect to mentally retarded and developmentally disabled persons.

§ 2109.02 Appointment and duties.

Every fiduciary, before entering upon the execution of a trust, shall receive letters of appointment from a probate court having jurisdiction of the subject matter of the trust.

The duties of a fiduciary shall be those required by law, and such additional duties as the court orders. Letters of appointment shall not issue until a fiduciary has executed a written acceptance of his duties, acknowledging that he is subject to removal for failure to perform his duties, and that he is subject to possible penalties for conversion of property he holds as a fiduciary. The written acceptance may be filed with the application for appointment.

No act or transaction by a fiduciary is valid prior to the issuance of letters of appointment to him. This section does not prevent an executor named in a will, or an executor nominated pursuant to a power as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code, from paying funeral expenses, or prevent necessary acts for the preservation of the trust estate prior to the issuance of such letters.

[§ 2109.02.2] § 2109.022 [Limited liability of fiduciary excluded from certain powers.]

(A) As used in this section, "fiduciary" means a trustee under any testamentary or other trust, an executor or administrator, or any other person who is acting in a fiduciary capacity for any person, trust, or estate.

(B) When an instrument under which a fiduciary acts reserves to the grantor, or vests in an advisory or investment committee or in one or more other persons, including one or more fiduciaries, to the exclusion of the fiduciary or of one or more of several fiduciaries, any power, including, but not limited to, the authority to direct or approve the acquisition, disposition, or retention of any investment and the power to authorize any act which an excluded fiduciary may propose, any excluded fiduciary is not liable, either individually or as a fiduciary, for any loss that results from compliance with an authorized direction or approval of the grantor, committee, person, or persons, or for any loss that results from a failure to take any action proposed by an excluded fiduciary that requires a prior authorization of the grantor, committee, person, or persons if that excluded fiduciary timely sought but failed to obtain that authorization. Any excluded fiduciary is relieved from any obligation to perform investment reviews and make recommendations with respect to any investments to the extent the grantor, and advisory or investment committee, or one or more other persons have authority to direct or approve the acquisition, disposition, or retention of any investment, unless otherwise expressly provided by the instrument under which the excluded fiduciary acts.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) A provision of a will which designates an attorney to represent the executor in the administration of the estate may not be considered as a condition precedent to the appointment of the executor, but is merely precautionary and not binding upon the fiduciary: In re Estate of Dearnorff, 10 OS3d 108, 10 OBR 434, 461 NE2d 1292.

2. (1984) Where the executrix of an estate appoints an attorney to represent her in the administration of the estate, a claim against the estate presented to the attorney but not to the executrix personally satisfies the presentment requirements of RC § 2117.06: Peoples Natl. Bank v. Treon, 16 OApp3d 410, 16 OBR 480, 476 NE2d 372.

§ 2109.04 Bond.

(A)(1) Unless otherwise provided by law, every fiduciary shall, prior to the issuance of his letters as provided by section 2109.02 of the Revised Code, file in the probate court in which the letters are to be issued a bond with a penal sum in such amount as may be fixed by the court, but in no event less than double the probable value of the personal estate and of the annual real estate rentals which will come into such person's hands as a fiduciary. The bond of a fiduciary shall be in a form approved by the court and signed by two or more personal sureties or by one or more corporate sureties approved by the court. It shall be conditioned that the fiduciary will faithfully and honestly discharge the duties devolving upon him as fiduciary, and shall be conditioned further as may be provided by law.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this division, if the instrument creating the trust dispenses with the giving of a bond, the court shall appoint a fiduciary without bond, unless the court is of the opinion that the interest of the trust demands it. If the court is of that opinion, it may require bond to be given in any amount it fixes. If a parent nominates a guardian for his child in a will and provides in the will that the guardian may serve without giving bond, the court may, in its discretion, appoint the guardian without bond or require the guardian to give bond in accordance with division (A)(1) of this section.

(3) A guardian of the person only does not have to give bond unless, for good cause shown, the court considers a bond to be necessary. When a bond is required of a guardian of the person only, it shall be determined and filed in accordance with division (A)(1) of this section. This division does not apply to a guardian of the person only nominated in a parent's will if the will provides that the guardian may serve without giving bond.

(B) When an executive secretary who is responsible for the administration of children services in the county is appointed as trustee of the estate of a ward pursuant to section 5153.18 of the Revised Code, and has furnished bond under section 5153.13 of the Revised Code, or when the department of mental retardation and developmental disabilities or an agency under contract with the department for the provision of protective service under sections 5123.55 to 5123.59 of the Revised Code is appointed as trustee of the estate of a ward under such sections and any employees of the department or agency having custody or control of funds or property of such a ward have furnished bond under section 5123.59 of the Revised Code, the court may dispense with the giving of a bond.

(C) When letters are granted without bond, at any later period on its own motion or upon the application of any party interested, the court may require bond to be given in such amount as may be fixed by the court. On failure to give such bond, the defaulting fiduciary shall be removed.

No instrument authorizing a fiduciary whom it names to serve without bond shall be construed to relieve a successor fiduciary from the necessity of giving bond, unless the instrument clearly evidences such intention.

The court by which a fiduciary is appointed may reduce the amount of the bond of such fiduciary at any time for good cause shown.

When two or more persons are appointed as joint fiduciaries, the court may take a separate bond from each or a joint bond from all.

*HISTORY: 140 v H 263. Eff 10-4-84.

§ 2109.13 [Deposit of personal property in lieu of bond.]

In any case in which a bond is required by the probate court from a fiduciary and the value of the estate or fund is such that the court deems it inexpedient to require security in the full amount prescribed by section 2109.04 of the Revised Code, the court may direct the deposit of any suitable personal property belonging to the estate or fund with a bank, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or trust company incorporated under the laws of this state or of the United States, as may be designated by order of the court.

The deposit shall be made in the name of the fiduciary, and the personal property desposited shall not be withdrawn from the custody of the bank, association, or trust company except upon the special order of the court. No fiduciary shall receive or collect the whole or any part of the principal represented by the personal property without the special order of the court. Such an order can be made in favor of the fiduciary only if the court within its discretion, having regard for the purpose for which the order is requested, the disposition to be made of the assets as may be released, the value of the assets as related to the total value of the estate, and the period of time the assets will remain in the possession of the fiduciary, finds that the original bond previously given and then in force will be sufficient to protect the estate; otherwise, the court, as a condition to the release of the personal property deposited, shall require the fiduciary to execute an additional bond in an amount that the court determines.

After the deposit has been made and after the filing with the court of a receipt for the personal property executed by the designated bank, association, or company, which receipt shall acknowledge that the personal property is held by the bank, association, or company subject to the order of the court, the court may fix or reduce the amount of the bond so that the amount of the penalty of the bond is determined with respect to the value of the remainder only of the estate or fund, without including the value of the personal property deposited. Neither the fiduciary nor his sureties shall be liable for any loss to the trust estate resulting from the deposit as is authorized and directed by the court pursuant to this section, if the fiduciary has acted in good faith.

This section may be invoked simultaneously with the initial application for appointment of the fiduciary if an interim receipt of the bank, association, or company for which the application for appointment as depository is being made, acknowledging that it already has received temporary deposit of the personal property described in the application for appointment as depository, accompanies the simultaneous applications for appointment of fiduciary and for appointment of the depository.

When a person is appointed guardian of several minors who are children of the same parentage and inherit from the same estate, separate bonds shall not be required. In such cases, only one application for letters of guardianship is necessary, and the letters issued to such guardian shall be in one copy and not one copy for each minor. The probate court approving and recording the bond of the guardian, if any, and issuing such letters shall charge the fees allowed by section 2101.16 of the Revised Code for such services. Such fees shall be charged but once for all the wards and not once for each ward.

(A) An administrator, special administrator, administrator de bonis non, or administrator with the will annexed shall be a resident of this state and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer such resident.

(B) To qualify for appointment as executor or trustee, an executor or a trustee named in a will or nominated in accordance with any power of nomination conferred in a will, may be either a resident of this state or, as provided in this division, a nonresident of this state. To qualify for appointment, a nonresident executor or trustee named in, or nominated pursuant to, a will shall be either an individual who is related to the maker of the will by consanguinity or affinity, or a person who resides in a state that has statutes or rules that authorize the appointment of a nonresident person who is not related to the maker of a will by consanguinity or affinity, as an executor or trustee when named in, or nominated pursuant to, a will. No such executor or trustee shall be refused appointment or removed solely because he is not a resident of this state.

The court may require that a nonresident executor or trustee named in, or nominated pursuant to, a will assure that all assets of the decedent that are in the county at the time of the death of the decedent remain in the county until distribution or until the court determines that the property may be removed from the county.

(C) A guardian shall be a resident of the county, except that the court may appoint a nonresident of the county who is a resident of the state as guardian of the person, the estate, or both; that a nonresident of the county or of the state may be appointed a guardian, if named in a will by a parent of a minor or if selected by a minor over the age of fourteen years as provided by section 2111.12 of the Revised Code; and that a nonresident of the county or of the state may be appointed a guardian if nominated in or pursuant to a durable power of attorney as described in division (B) of section 1337.09 of the Revised Code or a writing as described in division (A) of section 2111.121 [2111.12.1] of the Revised Code. A guardian, other than a guardian named in a will by a parent of a minor, selected by a minor over the age of fourteen years, or nominated in or pursuant to such a durable power of attorney or writing, may be removed on proof that he is no longer a resident of the county in which he resided at the time of his appointment, and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer a resident of the state.

(D) Any fiduciary, whose residence qualifications are not defined in this section shall be a resident of the state, and shall be removed on proof that he is no longer a resident of the state.

(E) Any fiduciary, in order to assist in the carrying out of his fiduciary duties, may employ agents who are not residents of the county or of the state.

§ 2109.30 Accounts of fiduciaries.

(A) Within nine months after his appointment, every executor and administrator shall render an account of his administration. After the initial account is rendered, every executor and administrator shall render further accounts at least once each year. Except as provided in division (C) of this section, every fiduciary, other than an executor, administrator, or guardian of the person only, shall render an account of the administration of his estate or trust at least once in each two years. An account shall be rendered by a guardian of the person only at any time, or by any other fiduciary at any time other than those mentioned in this section, upon the order of the court either at its own instance, or upon the motion of any person interested in the estate or trust, for good cause shown. Except as provided in division (C) of this section, every fiduciary, other than a guardian of the person only, shall render a final account within thirty days after completing the administration of the estate or the termination of his trust, or within any other period of time that the court may order.

Every account shall include an itemized statement of all receipts of the fiduciary during the accounting period and of all disbursements and distributions made by him during the accounting period. The itemized disbursements and distributions shall be verified by vouchers or proof, except in the case of an account rendered by a corporate fiduciary subject to section 1109.16 of the Revised Code. In addition, the account shall include an itemized statement of all funds, assets, and investments of the estate or trust known to or in the possession of the fiduciary at the end of the accounting period, and shall show any changes in investments since the last previous account. The accounts of testamentary trustees shall, and the accounts of other fiduciaries may, show receipts and disbursements separately identified as to principal and income.

Every account shall be upon the signature and oath of the fiduciary. When an account is rendered by two or more joint fiduciaries, the court may allow the account upon the signature and oath of one of them.

Upon the filing of every account, the fiduciary, except corporate fiduciaries subject to section 1109.16 of the Revised Code, shall exhibit to the court, for its examination, the securities shown in the account as being in the hands of the fiduciary, or the certificate of the person in possession of the securities, if held as collateral or pursuant to section 2109.13 or 2131.21 of the Revised Code, and a passbook or certified bank statement showing as to each depository the fund deposited to the credit of the trust. The court may designate a deputy clerk, an agent of a corporate surety on the bond of the fiduciary, or another suitable person whom the court appoints as commissioner to make the examination and to report his findings to the court. When securities are located outside the county, the court may appoint a commissioner or request another probate court to make the examination and to report its findings to the court. The court may examine the fiduciary under oath concerning the account.

When a fiduciary is authorized by law or by the instrument governing distribution to distribute the assets of the estate or trust, in whole or in part, he may do so and include a report of the distribution in his succeeding account.

An account showing complete administration before distribution of assets shall be designated "final account." An account filed subsequent to the final account and showing distribution of assets shall be designated "account of distribution." An account showing complete administration and distribution of assets shall be designated "final and distributive account."

(B) In estates of decedents in which the sole legatee or heir is also the executor or administrator, no partial accountings are required.

In estates of decedents in which none of the legatees or heirs is under a legal disability, each partial accounting of the executor or administrator may be waived by the written consent of all the legatees or heirs filed in lieu of a partial accounting otherwise required.

(C)(1) The court may waive, by order, an account that division (A) of this section requires of a guardian of the estate or a guardian of the person and estate, other than an account made pursuant to court order, if any of the following circumstances apply:

(a) The assets of the estate consist entirely of real property;

(b) The assets of the estate consist entirely of personal property, that property is held by a bank, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or trust company in accordance with section 2109.13 of the Revised Code, and the court has authorized expenditures of not more than five thousand dollars annually for the support, maintenance, or, if applicable, education of the ward;

(c) The assets of the estate consist entirely of real property and of personal property that is held by a bank, building and loan association, savings and loan association, or trust company in accordance with section 2109.13 of the Revised Code, and the court has authorized expenditures of not more than five thousand dollars annually for the support, maintenance, or, if applicable, education of the ward.

(2) The order of a court entered pursuant to division (C)(1) of this section is prima-facie evidence that a guardian of the estate or a guardian of the person and estate has authority to make expenditures as described in division (C)(1)(b) or (c) of this section.

§ 2111.02 Appointment of a guardian.

When found necessary, the probate court on its own motion or on application by any interested party shall appoint, subject to section 2109.21 and division (B) of section 2111.121 [2111.12.1] of the Revised Code, a guardian of the person, the estate, or both, of a minor, or incompetent, provided the person for whom the guardian is to be appointed is a resident of the county or has a legal settlement in the county and, except in the case of a minor, has had the opportunity to have the assistance of counsel in the proceeding for the appointment of such guardian. An interested party includes, but is not limited to, a person nominated in a durable power of attorney as described in division (B) of section 1337.09 of the Revised Code or in a writing as described in division (A) of section 2111.121 [2111.12.1] of the Revised Code.

If a person is incompetent due to physical disability, the consent of the incompetent must first be obtained before the appointment of a guardian for him, and such person may select a guardian who shall be appointed if a suitable person.

The guardian of an incompetent, by virtue of such appointment shall be the guardian of the minor children of his ward, unless the court appoints some other person as their guardian.

When the primary purpose of the appointment of a guardian is, or was, the collection, disbursement, or administration of moneys awarded by the veterans administration to the ward, or assets derived from such moneys, no court costs shall be charged in the proceeding for the appointment or in any subsequent proceedings made in pursuance of the appointment, unless the value of the estate, including the moneys then due under the veterans administration award, exceeds one thousand five hundred dollars.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1976) A citizen of Ohio has no lawful claim against the state, the Governor, or the General Assembly for civil wrongs committed against him, by one entrusted with his property, as a result of his commitment in a state institution for the mentally ill: El v. State, 48 OApp2d 290, 2 OO3d 241, 357 NE2d 61.

2. (1981) A court should be extremely hesitant to impose an involuntary guardianship. Where an application for appointment is contested, a thorough medical examination should be ordered: In re Guardianship of Corless, 2 OApp3d 92, 2 OBR 104, 440 NE2d 1203.

3. (1981) The spirit and purpose of the provision of RC § 2111.02 that "if a person is incompetent due to physical disability, the consent of the incompetent must first be obtained before the appointment of a guardian for him" requires that the "consent" should be in writing or made in open court by the proposed ward who is mentally competent: In re Guardianship of Gallagher, 2 OApp3d 218, 2 OBR 238, 441 NE2d 593.

4. (1981) The required degree of proof of mental incompetency is by clear and convincing evidence: In re Guardianship of Gallagher, 2 OApp3d 218, 2 OBR 238, 441 NE2d 593.

5. (1983) Civil Rule 17(B) clearly authorizes a court other than the probate court to appoint a guardian ad litem for the protection of an individual the court believes to be an incompetent. Probate courts do not possess exclusive jurisdiction in these matters: Dailey v. Dailey, 11 OApp3d 121, 11 OBR 176, 463 NE2d 427.

In connection with an application for the appointment of a guardian for an alleged incompetent, the court may appoint physicians and other qualified persons to examine, investigate, or represent the alleged incompetent, to assist the court in deciding whether a guardianship is necessary. If the person is determined to be an incompetent and a guardian is appointed for him, the costs, fees, or expenses incurred to so assist the court shall be charged either against the estate of the person or against the applicant, unless the court determines, for good cause shown, that the costs, fees, or expenses are to be recovered from the county, in which case they shall be charged against the county. If the person is not determined to be an incompetent or a guardian is not appointed for him, the costs, fees, or expenses incurred to so assist the court shall be charged against the applicant, unless the court determines, for good cause shown, that the costs, fees, or expenses are to be recovered from the county, in which case they shall be charged against the county.

A court may require the applicant to make an advance deposit of an amount that the court determines is necessary to defray the anticipated costs of examinations of an alleged incompetent and to cover fees or expenses to be incurred to assist it in deciding whether a guardianship is necessary.

§ 2111.05 [Estates not more than ten thousand dollars.]

When the whole estate of a ward, or of several wards jointly, under the same guardianship, does not exceed ten thousand dollars in value, the guardian may apply to the probate court for an order to terminate the guardianship. Upon proof that it would be for the best interest of the ward to terminate the guardianship, the court may order the guardianship terminated, and direct the guardian, if the ward is a minor, to deposit the assets of the guardianship in a depository authorized to receive fiduciary funds, payable to the ward when he attains majority, or the court may authorize the delivery of the assets to the natural guardian of the minor, to the person by whom the minor is maintained, to the executive secretary of children services in the county, or to the minor himself.

If the ward is an incompetent, and the court orders the guardianship terminated, the court may authorize the deposit of the assets of the guardianship in a depository authorized to receive fiduciary funds in the name of a suitable person to be designated by the court, or if the assets do not consist of money, the court may authorize delivery to a suitable person to be designated by the court. The person receiving the assets shall hold and dispose of them in the manner the court directs.

If the court refuses to grant the application to terminate the guardianship, or if no such application is presented to the court, the guardian shall only be required to render account upon the termination of his guardianship, upon order of the probate court made upon its own motion, or upon the order of the court made on the motion of a person interested in the wards or their property, for good cause shown, and set forth upon the journal of the court.

If the estate is ten thousand dollars or less and the ward is a minor, the court may, without the appointment of a guardian by the court, or the giving of bond, authorize the deposit in a depository authorized to receive fiduciary funds, payable to the guardian when appointed, or to the ward when he attains majority, or the court may authorize delivery to the natural guardian of the minor, to the person by whom the minor is maintained, to the executive secretary who is responsible for the administration of children services in the county, to the department of mental retardation and developmental disabilities or to the administrator of an agency under contract with the department for the provision of protective service under sections 5123.55 to 5123.59 of the Revised Code, or to the minor himself.

If the whole estate of a person over eighteen years of age, who has been adjudged mentally ill or mentally retarded, does not exceed ten thousand dollars in value, the court may, without the appointment of a guardian by the court or the giving of bond, authorize the deposit of the estate in a depository authorized to receive fiduciary funds in the name of a suitable person to be designated by the court, or if the assets do not consist of money, the court may authorize delivery to a suitable person to be designated by the court. The person receiving the assets shall hold and dispose of them in the manner the court directs.

§ 2111.06 [Guardian of the person.]

If the powers of the person appointed as guardian of a minor or incompetent are not limited by the order of appointment, such person shall be guardian both of the person and estate of the ward. In every instance the court shall appoint the same person as guardian of the person and estate of any such ward, unless in the opinion of the court the interests of the ward will be promoted by the appointment of different persons as guardians of the person and of the estate.

A guardian of the person of a minor shall be appointed as to a minor having neither father nor mother, or whose parents are unsuitable persons to have the custody and tuition of such minor, or whose interests, in the opinion of the court, will be promoted thereby. A guardian of the person shall have the custody and provide for the maintenance of the ward, and if the ward is a minor, such guardian shall also provide for the education of such ward.

Before exercising its jurisdiction to appoint a guardian of a minor, the court shall comply with the jurisdictional standards of sections 3109.21 to 3109.37 of the Revised Code.

(A) A person may nominate in a writing, as described in this division, another person to be the guardian of his person, estate, or both. The nomination is for consideration by a court if proceedings for the appointment of a guardian of the person, the estate, or both, for the person making the nomination are commenced at a later time. He also may direct, in such a writing, that bond be waived for a person nominated as guardian in it or nominated as a successor guardian in accordance with an authorization in it.

To be effective as a nomination, the writing shall be signed by the person making the nomination in the presence of two witnesses; signed by the witnesses; contain, immediately prior to their signatures, an attestation of the witnesses that the person making the nomination signed the writing in their presence; and be acknowledged by the person making the nomination before a notary public.

Unused sick leave, in case of death, to be paid to estate, RC § 124.39

§ 2113.05 Letters testamentary shall issue.

When a will is approved and allowed, the probate court shall issue letters testamentary to the executor named in the will or to the executor nominated by holders of a power as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code, or to the executor named in the will and to a coexecutor nominated by holders of such a power, if he is suitable, competent, accepts the appointment, and gives bond if that is required.

If no executor is named in a will and no power as described in section 2107.65 of the Revised Code is conferred in the will, or if the executor named in a will or nominated pursuant to such a power dies, fails to accept the appointment, resigns, or is otherwise disqualified and the holders of such a power do not have authority to nominate another executor or no such power is conferred in the will, or if such a power is conferred in a will but the power cannot be exercised because of the death of a holder of the power, letters of administration with the will annexed shall be granted to a suitable person or persons, named as devisees or legatees in the will, who would have been entitled to administer the estate if the decedent had died intestate, unless the will indicates an intention that the person or persons shall not be granted letters of administration. Otherwise, the court shall grant letters of administration with the will annexed to some other suitable person.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1978) A probate court is under no duty to appoint a nonresident corporation, licensed to do business in Ohio, as executor of the estate of a resident testator who designated such corporation to act in that capacity: In re Emery, 59 OApp2d 7, 13 OO3d 44, 391 NE2d 746.

2. (1981) While acknowledging deference to the testator's nomination of an executor, the court, in determining the limits of a reasonably disinterested applicant, may consider factors including, but not limited to: (1) the nature and extent of the hostility and distrust among the parties; (2) the degree of conflicting interests and obligations, both personal and financial; and (3) the underlying and aggregate complexities of the conflict: In re Estate of Henne, 66 OS2d 232, 20 OO3d 228, 421 NE2d 506.

3. (1981) In accordance with RC § 2113.05, a "suitable" person qualified for appointment as executor is an applicant who is reasonably disinterested and in a position to reasonably fulfill the obligations of a fiduciary: In re Estate of Henne, 66 OS2d 232, 20 OO3d 228, 421 NE2d 506.

4. (1981) Revised Code § 2113.05 vests authority in the Probate Court to exercise discretion in determining if an applicant for letters testamentary is a suitable person; an order granting or refusing letters of appointment is reversible only upon a finding of an abuse of discretion: In re

Estate of Henne, 66 OS2d 232, 20 OO3d 228, 421 NE2d 506.

5. (1984) A provision of a will which designates an attorney to represent the executor in the administration of the estate may not be considered as a condition precedent to the appointment of the executor, but is merely precautionary and not binding upon the fiduciary: In re Estate of Deardorff, 10 OS3d 108, 10 OBR 434, 461 NE2d 1292.

6. (1983) The removal of an executor of an estate is discretionary with the probate court. The executor's actions need not amount to violations of law or even cause injury to the estate to warrant a finding that the best interests of the estate will be served by his removal. There is no requirement that the court's finding in favor of removal be supported by clear and convincing evidence: In re Estate of Bost, 10 OApp3d 147, 10 OBR 199, 460 NE2d 1156.

(B) The probate court may remove any executor or administrator upon motion of the surviving spouse, children, or other next of kin of the deceased person whose estate is administered by the executor or administrator if both of the following apply:

(1) The executor or administrator refuses to bring an action for wrongful death in the name of the deceased person;

2. (1982) An executor of a will is not required to comply with the procedural requirements of RC § 2113.31.1 where the will specifically directs the executor to sell property: Bilikam v. Bilikam, 2 OApp3d 300, 2 OBR 332, 441 NE2d 845.

§ 2113.35 Commissions.

Executors and administrators shall be allowed commissions upon the amount of all the personal estate, including the income from the personal estate, that is received and accounted for by them and upon the proceeds of real estate that is sold under authority contained in a will, as follows:

(A) For the first one hundred thousand dollars, at the rate of four per cent;

(B) All above one hundred thousand dollars and not exceeding four hundred thousand dollars, at the rate of three per cent;

(C) All above four hundred thousand dollars, at the rate of two per cent.

Executors and administrators shall also be allowed a commission of one per cent on the value of real estate that is not sold. Executors and administrators shall also be allowed a commission of one per cent on all property that is not subject to administration and that is includable for purposes of computing the Ohio estate tax, except joint and survivorship property.

The basis of valuation for the allowance of such commissions on property sold shall be the gross proceeds of sale, and for all other property the date of death value of the other property as finally fixed for the purposes of computing the Ohio estate tax. The commissions allowed to executors and administrators in this section shall be received in full compensation for all their ordinary services.

If the probate court finds, after hearing, that an executor or administrator has, in any respect, not faithfully discharged his duties as executor or administrator, the court may deny the executor or administrator any compensation whatsoever or may allow the executor or administrator the reduced compensation that the court thinks proper.

2. (1977) Although a judge of a trial court is experienced in probate law, the determination of a reasonable attorney's fee in a matter before him must be based upon evidence adduced in open court and he may not substitute his own knowledge in its stead: In re Wood, 55 OApp2d 67, 9 OO3d 255, 379 NE2d 256.

3. (1984) It is incumbent upon a fiduciary attempting to collect both an attorney fee and a broker's commission to demonstrate that he was properly acting in a dual capacity and that he, in fact, performed extraordinary services (as a broker), so as to justify an award of broker's commission in addition to the legal fee: *Ollick v. 5. (1984) Revised Code § 2113.36 authorizing the payment out of the estate of attorney fees for services rendered in the administration of the estate provides for the payment of reasonable fees. CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) When devisees, other than the surviving spouse, have added substantial value to the mansion house after the appraisal, the surviving spouse is not entitled to purchase the property at the appraisal price. Such a sale would unconscionably prejudice the rights of the parties in interest: Wobser v. Tanner, 60 OS2d 28, 14 OO3d 195, 396 NE2d 753.

2. (1980) Revised Code § 2113.38, which authorizes the surviving spouse to file a petition to purchase the "mansion house" at the appraised value, contemplates an adversary-type proceeding in which the defendants—the heirs, devisees, legatees, lienholders et al.—are given the opportunity to show the presence of fraud, collusion or the manifest inadequacy of the price fixed in the inventory: Bratanov v. Riemenschneider, 1 OApp3d 42, 1 OBR 251, 439 NE2d 434.

3. (1980) If the evidence obtained from the adversary proceeding shows fraud, collusion or the manifest inadequacy of the price fixed in the inventory, the court shall order a reappraisal as provided in RC § 2115.17. If these items are not shown, then the price fixed in the inventory is final: Bratanov v. Riemenschneider, 1 OApp3d 42, 1 OBR 251, 439 NE2d 434.

4. (1980) The adversary proceeding contemplated by RC § 2113.38 should permit a defendant the opportunity to have pretrial discovery in the form of an independent appraisal: Bratanov v. Riemenschneider, 1 OApp3d 42, 1 OBR 251, 439 NE2d 434.

5. (1980) Filing an objection to the inventory and appraisal is not a condition precedent to attacking the appraisal under RC § 2113.38, nor a waiver of any rights: Bratanov v. Riemenschneider, 1 OApp3d 42, 1 OBR 251, 439 NE2d 434.

(B) If real estate devised in a will is subject to a mortgage lien that exists on the date of the testator's death, the person taking the real estate under the devise has no right of exoneration for the mortgage lien, regardless of a general direction in the will to pay the testator's debts, unless the will specifically provides a right of exoneration that extends to that lien.

§ 2113.85 [Definitions.]

As used in sections 2113.85 to 2113.90 of the Revised Code:

(A) "Estate" means the gross estate of a decedent as determined for federal estate tax purposes under Subtitle B of the "Internal Revenue Code of 1954," 68 Stat. 373, 26 U.S.C. 2001, as amended, and for Ohio estate tax purposes under Chapter 5731. of the Revised Code.

(B) "Person interested in the estate" means any person who is entitled to receive, or who has received, from a decedent or by reason of the death of a decedent any property or property interest included in the decedent's estate. A "person interested in the estate" includes, but is not limited to, a personal representative, guardian, and trustee. A "person interested in the estate" does not include a creditor of the decedent or of the decedent's estate.

(C) "Tax" means the federal estate tax determined under Subtitle B of the "Internal Revenue Code of 1954," 68 Stat. 373, 26 U.S.C. 2001, as amended, the Ohio estate tax determined under Chapter 5731. of the Revised Code, and any interest and penalties imposed in addition to the estate taxes.

§ 2113.86 [Apportionment of estate taxes.]

Unless the will or other governing instrument otherwise provides, the tax shall be apportioned among all persons interested in the estate. The apportionment shall be made as follows:

(A) Except as provided in divisions (B) and (C) of this section, the tax shall be computed as to each person's interest in the estate by multiplying the applicable tax by a fraction, the numerator of which is the value of the person's interest against which the apportionment computation is being made, and the denominator of which is the aggregate value of the interests of all persons interested in the estate against which apportionment is made. The values used in determining the tax shall be used for the apportionment of the tax under this section.

(B) Any tax attributable to or otherwise apportioned against the interest of a beneficiary under a decedent's will, which interest is not part of the residuary estate passing under the will, shall be apportioned as follows:

(1) The tax shall first be charged to and paid by each person's interest in the residuary estate to the extent that each person's interest is subject to apportionment under division (A) of this section, and the tax shall be charged to each person's interest in the same manner as the tax directly attributable to each person's interest is apportioned under division (A) of this section.

(2) If the tax exceeds the total value of the residuary estate that is subject to apportionment under division (A) of this section or if none of the residuary estate is subject to apportionment under this section, all or any part of the tax that cannot be apportioned under division (B)(1) of this section shall be charged to and paid by each person's interest under the residuary estate that may be exempt from apportionment under any other provisions of sections 2113.85 to 2113.90 of the Revised Code, and each person's otherwise exempt interest shall bear its proportionate part of the tax based on the value of that person's interest, as determined under division (A) of this section.

(3) If the tax exceeds the total value of the residuary estate passing under the decedent's will, any part of the tax that cannot be apportioned to the residuary estate shall be apportioned to the interest of the beneficiaries of each devise or bequest that passes under the will other than as part of the residuary estate and that is subject to apportionment, in the manner provided under division (A) of this section.

(C) No interest in income and no estate for years or for life or other temporary interest in any property or fund shall be subject to apportionment as between the temporary interest and the remainder. The tax on the temporary interest and the tax, if any, on the remainder shall be chargeable against the principal of the property or funds subject to the temporary interest and remainder.

(D) The fiduciary or any person interested in the estate who objects to the manner of apportionment of the tax may apply to the court that has jurisdiction of the estate and request the court to determine the apportionment of the tax under this section. If there are no probate proceedings, the probate court of the county in which the decedent was domiciled at death shall, upon application by the fiduciary or any other person, determine the apportionment of the tax under this section.

The fiduciary may notify any person interested in the estate of the manner of the apportionment of tax determined by the fiduciary. Upon receipt of notice, the person interested in the estate may, within thirty days after the date of receipt of the notice, indicate his objection to the manner of apportionment by application to the probate court. If the person interested in the estate fails to make the application within the thirty-day period, he is bound by the manner of apportionment determined by the fiduciary.

If the probate court finds that the assessment of penalties and interest assessed with respect to the tax is due to delay caused by the negligence of the fiduciary, the court may charge the fiduciary with the amount of the assessed penalties and interest. In any suit or judicial proceeding to recover from any person interested in the estate the amount of the tax apportioned to that person in accordance with sections 2113.85 to 2113.90 of the Revised Code, the determination of the probate court is conclusive.

If the property in possession of the fiduciary and distributable to any person interested in the estate is insufficient to satisfy the proportionate amount of the tax determined to be due from that person, the fiduciary may recover the deficiency from that person. If the property is not in the possession of the fiduciary, the fiduciary may recover from any person interested in the estate the amount of the tax apportioned to that person in accordance with this section.

(B) If the property held by the fiduciary is distributed prior to final apportionment of the tax, the distributee shall provide a bond or other security for the apportionment liability in the form and amount prescribed by the fiduciary, with the approval of the probate court that has jurisdiction of the administration of the estate.

§ 2113.89 [Action to recover share of tax; uncollectible tax.]

The fiduciary is not required to institute any suit or proceeding to recover from any person interested in the estate the amount of the tax apportioned to the person until three months after the final determination of the tax. A fiduciary who institutes a suit or proceedings within the three-month period shall not be subject to any liability or surcharge because any portion of the tax apportioned to any person interested in the estate was collectible at a time following the death of the decedent but after that time became uncollectible. If, after making a reasonable attempt to collect the tax, the fiduciary cannot collect from any person interested in the estate the amount of the tax apportioned to that person, the amount not recoverable shall be equitably apportioned among the other persons interested in the estate who are subject to apportionment.

See provisions, § 3 of SB 317 (138 v —) following RC § 2113.85.

§ 2113.90 [Action by out-of-state fiduciary or obligated person.]

(A) A fiduciary who is acting in another state or a person required to pay the tax who is domiciled in another state may institute an action in the courts of this state and may recover a proportionate amount of the federal estate tax determined under Subtitle B of the "Internal Revenue Code of 1954," 68 Stat. 373, 26 U.S.C. 2001, as amended, of an estate tax payable to another state, or of a death duty by a decedent's estate to another state, from a person interested in the estate who is either domiciled in this state or who owns property in this state subject to attachment or execution. For the purposes of the action brought pursuant to this section, the determination of apportionment by the court that has jurisdiction of the administration of the decedent's estate in the other state shall be prima facie correct.

(B) This section applies only if either of the following apply:

(1) The other state affords a remedy substantially similar to that afforded in division (A) of this section;

(2) With respect to the federal estate tax, if apportionment is authorized by the congress of the United States.

If the evidence obtained from the adversary proceedings shows fraud, collusion or the manifest inadequacy of the price fixed in the inventory, the court shall order a reappraisal as provided in RC § 2115.17. § 2117.06 Presentation and allowance of creditor's claims; property tax assessments; statements and notices required.

(A) All creditors having claims against an estate, including claims arising out of contract, out of tort, on cognovit notes, or on judgments, whether due or not due, secured or unsecured, liquidated or unliquidated, shall present their claims in one of the following manners:

- (1) To the executor or administrator in a writing;
- (2) To the executor or administrator in a writing, and to the probate court by filing a copy of the writing with it.

(B) All claims shall be presented within three months after the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator, except that claims for assessments for personal and intangible property taxes, interest, and penalties for which the decedent was personally liable shall be presented by the tax commissioner or his agent within three months after the filing of the estate tax return prescribed by section 5731.21 of the Revised Code. Every claim presented shall set forth the claimant's address.

(C) In the absence of any prior demand for allowance, the executor or administrator shall allow or reject all claims, except tax assessment claims, within thirty days after their presentation; provided that failure of the executor or administrator to allow or reject within that time shall not prevent him from doing so after that time and shall not prejudice the rights of any claimant. Upon the allowance of a claim, the executor or the administrator, on demand of the creditor, shall furnish the creditor with a written statement or memorandum of the fact and date of such allowance.

(D) If the executor or administrator has actual knowledge of a pending action commenced against the decedent prior to his death in a court of record in this state, such executor or administrator shall file a notice of his appointment in such pending action within ten days after acquiring such knowledge. If the administrator or executor is other than a natural person, actual knowledge of a pending suit against the decedent shall be limited to the actual knowledge of that person charged with the responsibility of administering the estate.

(E) Any person whose claim has been presented, and not thereafter rejected, is a creditor as that term is used in Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code. Claims that are contingent need not be presented except as provided in sections 2117.37 to 2117.42 of the Revised Code, but whether presented pursuant to those sections or this section, contingent claims may be presented in either of the manners described in division (A) of this section.

(F) If a creditor presents a claim against an estate in accordance with division (A)(2) of this section, the probate court shall not close the administration of the estate until that claim is allowed or rejected.

(G) The probate court shall not require an executor or administrator to make and return into the court a schedule of claims against the estate.

Comment by Director, Legislative Service Commission

Section 2117.06 of the Revised Code is amended by this [SB 115] act and also by Am. Sub. H.B. 291 of the 115th General Assembly. Comparison of these amendments in pursuance of section 1.52 of the Revised Code discloses that they are not irreconcilable, so that they are required by that section to be harmonized to give effect to each amendment.

The provisions of § 127 of HB 291 (140 v —) read as follows:

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) An action seeking recovery of certain estate assets from a decedent's administratrix, in which it is alleged that the administratrix fraudulently concealed material facts from claimant, is governed by the four-year limitation provisions of RC § 2305.09(C): *Thompson v. 2. (1983) Where sufficient evidence is presented to the trial court that a claim was mailed to the executor of an estate, well within the three-month presentment requirement of RC § 2117.06, and was correctly addressed and posted, and sufficient evidence is presented that the delivery rate for such a letter is one hundred percent within three days of mailing, it is within the court's discretion to weigh the evidence and determine that the claim was timely presented pursuant to RC § 2117.06, notwithstanding the executor's protest that the letter was received beyond the three-month period: Cannell v. Bulicek, 8 OApp3d 331, 8 OBR 441, 457 NE2d 891.

3. (1983) Where a claim has been properly revived, within three months after the defendant's death, against

5. (1983) Although RC § 2117.06 requires that the claims of all creditors be presented to the administrator in writing, the statute is complied with when a summons and complaint are timely served upon the administrator: Mathe v. Fowler, 13 OApp3d 273, 13 OBR 337, 469 NE2d 89.

6. (1984) Where the executrix of an estate appoints an attorney to represent her in the administration of the estate, a claim against the estate presented to the attorney but not to the executrix personally satisfies the presentment requirements of RC § 2117.06: *Peoples Natl. This section concerned schedule of debts.

§ 2117.17 Hearing on allowed claims; optional.

At any time after three months have elapsed since the date of the appointment of the executor or administrator, the probate court on its own motion may, and on motion of the executor or administrator shall, assign all claims against the estate that have been presented and any other known valid debts of the estate for hearing on a day certain. Forthwith upon such assignment, and in no case less than ten days before the date fixed for hearing or such longer period as the court may order, the executor or administrator shall cause written notice of the hearing to be served upon the following persons who have not waived the notice in writing or otherwise voluntarily entered their appearance:

(A) If it appears that the estate is fully solvent, such notice shall be given to the surviving spouse and all other persons having an interest in the estate as devisees, legatees, heirs, and distributees.

(B) If it appears probable that there will not be sufficient assets to pay all of the valid debts of the estate in full, then such notice also shall be given to all creditors and claimants whose claims have been rejected and whose rights have not been finally determined by judgment, reference, or lapse of time.

The notice required by this section shall state that a hearing concerning the debts has been scheduled, shall set forth the time and place of the hearing and shall state that the action of the executor or administrator in allowing and classifying claims will be confirmed at such hearing unless cause to the contrary is shown. The notice shall be served personally or by certified mail in the manner specified for service of notice of the rejection of a claim under section 2117.11 of the Revised Code. Proof of service of the notice to the satisfaction of the court, by affidavit or otherwise, and all waivers of service shall be filed in court at the time of the hearing. At any time before hearing, any interested person may file exceptions in writing to the allowance or classification of any specific claim. The court may cause or permit other interested persons to be served with notice and witnesses to be subpoenaed as may be required to present the issues fully.

The court, upon hearing, shall determine whether the executor or administrator acted properly in allowing and classifying each claim and shall make an order confirming or disapproving such action.

An order of the court disapproving the allowance of a claim shall have the same effect as a rejection of the claim on the date on which the claimant is served with notice of the court's order. Notice of the court's order shall be served personally or by certified mail in the manner specified for service of notice of the rejection of a claim under section 2117.11 of the Revised Code. An order of the court confirming the allowance or classification of a claim shall constitute a final order and shall have the same effect as a judgment at law or decree in equity, and shall be final as to all persons having notice of the hearing and as to claimants subsequently presenting their claims, though without notice of such hearing. In the absence of fraud, the allowance and classification of a claim and the subsequent payment of it in good faith shall not be subject to question upon exceptions to the executor's or administrator's accounts. The confirmation of a claim by the court shall not preclude the executor or administrator from thereafter rejecting the claim on discovery of error in his previous action or on requisition as provided in sections 2117.13 and 2117.14 of the Revised Code.

§ 2117.18 Taxes or forfeitures.

Taxes, penalties, and interest placed on a duplicate or added by the county auditor or the tax commissioner because of a failure to make a return or because of a false or incomplete return for taxation shall be a debt of a decedent and have the same priority and be paid as other taxes. Such taxes, penalties, and interest shall be collectible out of the property of the estate either before or after distribution, by any means provided for collecting other taxes. No distribution or payment of inferior debts or claims shall defeat such collection; but no such tax, penalty, or interest can be added before notice to the executor or administrator, and before an opportunity is given him to be heard. All taxes omitted by the deceased must be charged on the tax lists and duplicate in his name.

In all such additions to the personal tax lists and duplicate, each succeeding tax year shall be considered as beginning at the time of the completion of the annual settlement of the duplicate for the previous year with the county treasurer.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Under RC § 2117.24, a surviving spouse who, immediately prior to her decedent's death, had not lived in the marital residence for eight months and was under a restraining order prohibiting her from being at the residence, is entitled to live in the mansion house for one year, or to receive a payment equal to the fair rental value of the mansion house for one year. Revised Code § 2117.24 was enacted to protect the surviving spouse, and its language, "may remain in the mansion house," does not limit its application to one who was a resident at the time of the decedent's death: In re Johnson, 14 OApp3d 235, 14 OBR 264, 470 NE2d 492.

§ 2117.25 Order in which debts to be paid.

Every executor or administrator shall proceed with diligence to pay the debts of the deceased, and shall apply the assets in the following order:

- (A) Costs and expenses of administration;
- (B) Bill of funeral director not exceeding eight hundred dollars for funeral and burial expenses, and such funeral expenses other than the bill of the funeral director as are approved by the probate court;
- (C) The allowance made to the surviving spouse and children;
- (D) Debts entitled to a preference under the laws of the United States;
- (E) Expenses of the last sickness of the decedent;
- (F) Personal property taxes and obligations for which the decedent was personally liable to the state or any of its subdivisions;
- (G) Debts for manual labor performed for the deceased within twelve months preceding decedent's death, not exceeding three hundred dollars to any one person;
- (H) Other debts as to which claims have been presented within three months after the appointment of the executor or administrator;
- (I) All other debts for which claims have been presented after three months from the appointment of the executor or administrator.

The part of the bill of the funeral director that exceeds eight hundred dollars, and the part of a claim included in division (G) of this section that exceeds three hundred dollars shall be included as a debt under division (H) or (I) of this section, depending upon the time when the claim for the additional amount is presented.

Chapters 2113. to 2125. of the Revised Code, relating to the manner in which and the time within which claims shall be presented, shall apply to claims set forth in divisions (B) and (G) of this section. Claims for an expense of administration or for the allowance for support need not be presented. The executor or administrator shall pay debts included in divisions (D) and (F) of this section, of which he has knowledge, regardless of presentation.

The giving of written notice to an executor or administrator of a motion or application to revive an action pending against the decedent at the date of death shall be equivalent to the presentation of a claim to the executor or administrator for the purpose of determining the order of payment of any judgment rendered or decree entered in such an action.

No payments shall be made to creditors of one class until all those of the preceding class are fully paid or provided for. In the event of an insufficiency of assets to pay all the claims of one class, the creditors of that class shall be paid ratably.

If it appears at any time that the assets have been exhausted in paying prior or preferred charges, allowances, or claims, such payments shall be a bar to an action on any claim not entitled to such priority or preference.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Revised Codes § 2121.01(A)(2) provides that "a presumption of the death of a person arises * * * when the person has disappeared and been continuously absent from his place of last domicile without being heard from and was at the beginning of his absence exposed to a specific peril of death, even though the absence has continued for less than a five-year-period." As used in RC § 2121.01(A)(2), the term "specific peril" means not the ordinary perils of travel or of navigation, but some unusual and extraordinary danger: Skele v. Mutual Benefit Life Ins., Co., 20 OApp3d 213, 20 OBR 259, 485 NE2d 770.

§ 2121.06 [Descent of real estate.]

Upon the signing of the decree establishing the death of the presumed decedent, the real estate of the presumed decedent passes and devolves as in the case of actual death and the persons entitled by will, or under sections 2105.01 to 2105.21 of the Revised Code, may enter and take possession. Persons taking the real estate may sell or mortgage it and the purchaser or mortgagee takes a good title, free and discharged of any interest or claim of the presumed decedent. The persons taking such real estate shall not sell, convey, or mortgage any part thereof within the three-year period specified in section 2121.08 of the Revised Code without first giving bond in an amount to be fixed by the probate court and with sureties to be approved by the court. In the discretion of the court the bond may be taken without sureties. Such bond shall be conditioned to account for and pay over to the presumed decedent, in case within the three-year period after the decree is entered by the court it is established that the presumed decedent is still alive, the value of the real estate sold or conveyed, or in the case of the making of a mortgage, to pay the amount of the mortgage and interest thereon, or in case of a foreclosure of such mortgage, to account for and pay over the value of the real estate mortgaged.

*HISTORY: 137 v S 112. Eff 11-1-77.

§ 2121.08 [Administration of estate when decree vacated.]

(A) The probate court may at any time within a three-year period from the date of the decree establishing the death of a presumed decedent, upon proof satisfactory to the court that the presumed decedent is in fact alive, vacate the decree establishing the presumption of his death. After the decree has been vacated all the powers of the executor or administrator of the presumed decedent cease, but all proceedings had and steps taken with respect to the administration of the estate of the presumed decedent prior to the vacating of such decree remain valid. The executor or administrator of the estate of such presumed decedent who is found to be alive shall settle his account of his administration down to the time of the vacating of the decree and shall transfer all assets remaining in his hands to the person as whose executor or administrator he has acted, or to such person's authorized agent or attorney.

(B) The title of any person to any money, property, right, or interest as surviving spouse, next of kin, heir, legatee, devisee, co-owner with right of survivorship, beneficiary or other contractual payee, successor to a trust interest, or otherwise of the presumed decedent shall be subject to this section, and upon vacating of such decree as provided in this section any property, money, right, or interest, or the fair value thereof if the same shall have been sold or otherwise disposed of, may be recovered from the person who had received any such property.

(C) Except as provided in division (D) of this section, in any action against a beneficiary for the recovery of property or the value thereof, or upon the bond given as condition for delivery of money, other personal property, or sale or encumbrance of real property, the beneficiary may set off as against such claim, an allowance for services rendered in maintaining or preserving the property, and for any moneys or other considerations made or given by the beneficiary for the preservation, care, or maintenance of the property during the period of absence of the person erroneously presumed to be dead, and the reasonable value of any part of the property used for support by those whom the person erroneously presumed to be dead had a legal obligation to support during his absence.

(D) There shall be no set off as against those assets defined in division (C) of section 2121.05 of the Revised Code to be assets of the presumed decedent which were created by the decree of presumed death. Those assets created by the erroneous decree of presumed death shall be returned with interest to the person entitled thereto.

(E) Any net cash surrender value on any policies of life insurance on the life of a person erroneously presumed to be dead are subject to the set off provision in division (C) of this section. The person erroneously presumed to be dead, or persons claiming under him, may recover whatever remains of cash values from the person to whom paid. Such claimants have no recourse against the insurance company which made such payments, and it is discharged from liability on the policies affected.

§ 2125.01 Action for wrongful death.

When the death of a person is caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default which would have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages if death had not ensued, the person who would have been liable if death had not ensued, or the administrator or executor of the estate of such person, as such administrator or executor, shall be liable to an action for damages, notwithstanding the death of the person injured and although the death was caused under circumstances which make it aggravated murder, murder, or manslaughter. When the action is against such administrator or executor, the damages recovered shall be a valid claim against the estate of such deceased person. No action for the wrongful death of a person may be maintained against the owner or lessee of the real property upon which the death occurred if the cause of the death was the violent unprovoked act of a party other than the owner, lessee, or a person under the control of the owner or lessee, unless the acts or omissions of the owner, lessee, or person under the control of the owner or lessee constitute gross negligence.

When death is caused by a wrongful act, neglect, or default in another state or foreign country, for which a right to maintain an action and recover damages is given by a statute of such other state or foreign country, such right of action may be enforced in this state. Every such action shall be commenced within the time prescribed for the commencement of such actions by the statute of such other state or foreign country.

The same remedy shall apply to any such cause of action now existing and to any such action commenced before January 1, 1932, or attempted to be commenced in proper time and now appearing on the files of any court within this state, and no prior law of this state shall prevent the maintenance of such cause of action.

1. (1976) A fleeing suspect does not assume the risk as a matter of law, it is a question of fact for the jury in light of all the facts and circumstances: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

2. (1976) Although RC §§ 2125.01 et seq. and 2305.21 are triggered by an individual's death, they create distinct causes of action designed to accomplish divergent statutory purposes: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

3. (1976) Decedent should not be deemed to have assumed the risk of injury from the negligently fired warning shot as a matter of law when even the police officer who fired the shot could not have anticipated its striking the decedent: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

4. (1976) It was not error for judge in wrongful death action to refuse to charge jury on contributory negligence where suspect was shot and killed while fleeing custody of police officers: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

5. (1976) Legal obligation to support is only one of a number of factors which Ohio courts have recognized as matters which a jury can consider in awarding damages in wrongful death actions, and due to the speculative nature of the injury and the myriad factors to be considered, courts generally defer to a jury's opinion on the existence or amount of pecuniary injury: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

6. (1977) Since the father of a child has the burden of support and care, he also has the right to the earnings of that child during minority even though the child is not a member of his household, custody of such child having previously been given to the father by a court of competent jurisdiction: Motorist Mut. Ins. Co. v. Speck, 59 OApp2d 224, 13 OO3d 239, 393 NE2d 500.

7. (1978) Where a business establishment sells alcoholic beverages to one it knows or has reason to believe is intoxicated, and that person is killed as a proximate result of his intoxication, such establishment is liable in damages to the estate of the decedent, unless the deceased exhibited an absence of care on his own behalf which was equal to or greater than that of the defendant: Kernock v. The Mark II, 62 OApp2d 103, 16 OO3d 254, 404 NE2d 766.

8. (1976) It is well established under Ohio law that a police officer may be held personally liable where use of excessive force or negligence results in personal injury or death and even a justifiable use of force will not insulate an officer from liability if this otherwise justifiable conduct is negligently performed: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311 (6th Cir.).

9. (1979) In an action for wrongful death, based upon alleged medical malpractice, neither RC § 2125.01 (action for wrongful death) nor Ohio case law recognizes any recovery for the loss of any chance of survival: Williams v. Grant, 65 OApp2d 225, 19 OO3d 168, 417 NE2d 586.

10. (1982) Amendments to wrongful death act and comparative negligence statute are not to be applied retroactively in absence of evidence that changes were intended to apply retroactively. Court is thus bound by legislative intent and Ohio case law to apply law in effect on date of the accident to the trial of the case: Tackett v. Consol. Rail Corp., 536 FSupp 409 (SD).

11. (1983) The doctrine of interspousal immunity does not bar an action for wrongful death brought by the estate of a deceased against the surviving spouse: Prem v. Cox, 2 OS3d 149, 2 OBR 694, 443 NE2d 511.

12. (1982) The provisions of RC §§ 2125.01 and 2125.02 of the Wrongful Death Act, as amended February 5, 1982 (Am. Sub. H.B. No. 332), are to be applied retroactively: Robinson v. Parker-Hannifin Corp., 4 OMisc2d 6, 4 OBR 257, 444 NE2d 1084, 447 NE2d 781 (CP).

13. (1983) Damages caused by an intentional trespasser need not be foreseeable to be compensable: Baker v. Shymkiv, 6 OS3d 151, 6 OBR 206, 451 NE2d 811.

14. (1984) In an action for wrongful death pursuant to RC § 2125.01, the contributory negligence of a beneficiary is a partial defense only as to such beneficiary's share of the right to a recovery of damages, but does not constitute a defense as against other, non-negligent, beneficiaries. This issue of whether the contributory negligence of a beneficiary is the proximate cause of the wrongful death must be submitted to the jury pursuant to the comparative negligence provisions of RC § 2315.19(A)(1): Shinaver v. Szymanski, 14 OS3d 51, 14 OBR 446, 471 NE2d 477.

15. (1984) The contributory negligence of a driver of a vehicle which results in the death of his passenger is not imputed to his passenger and therefore does not affect the passenger's right of action for injuries and medical expenses proximately caused by the negligence of another driver. This right of action is maintainable under the general survival statute, RC § 2305.21, and is independent of the wrongful death action pursuant to RC § 2125.01: Shinaver v. Szymanski, 14 OS3d 51, 14 OBR 446, 471 NE2d 477.

16. (1985) A viable fetus which is negligently injured en ventre sa mere and subsequently stillborn may be the basis for a wrongful death action pursuant to RC § 2125.01: Werling v. Sandy, 17 OS3d 45, 17 OBR 37, 476 NE2d 1053.

§ 2125.02 Proceedings.

(A)(1) An action for wrongful death shall be brought in the name of the personal representative of the decedent for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse, the children, and the parents of the decedent, all of whom are rebuttably presumed to have suffered damages by reason of the wrongful death, and for the exclusive benefit of the other next of kin of the decedent.

(2) The jury, or the court if the action is not tried to a jury, may award damages authorized by divisions (B) and (C) of this section, as it determines are proportioned to the injury and loss resulting to these beneficiaries by reason of the wrongful death, and may award the reasonable funeral and burial expenses incurred as a result of the wrongful death. In its verdict, the jury or court shall set forth separately the amount, if any, awarded for the reasonable funeral and burial expenses incurred as a result of the wrongful death.

(3) The date of the decedent's death fixes the status of all beneficiaries of the action for purposes of determining the damages suffered by them and the amount of damages to be awarded. A person who is conceived prior to the decedent's death and who is born alive after his death is a beneficiary of the action.

In determining the amount of damages to be awarded, the jury or court may consider all factors existing at the time of the decedent's death that are relevant to a determination of the damages suffered by reason of the wrongful death.

(B) Compensatory damages may be awarded in an action for wrongful death and may include damages for the following:

(1) Loss of support from the reasonably expected earning capacity of the decedent;

(2) Loss of services of the decedent;

(3) Loss of the society of the decedent, including loss of companionship, consortium, care, assistance, attention, protection, advice, guidance, counsel, instruction, training, and education, suffered by the surviving spouse, minor children, parents, or next of kin;

(4) Loss of prospective inheritance, to the decedent's heirs at law at the time of his death;

(5) The mental anguish incurred by the surviving spouse, minor children, parents, or next of kin.

(C) A personal representative appointed in this state, with the consent of the court making the appointment, may, at any time before or after the commencement of an action for wrongful death, settle with the defendant the amount to be paid.

(D) All actions for wrongful death shall be commenced within two years after a decedent's death.

1. (1976) A jury's verdict in a wrongful death action in Ohio will generally not be set aside unless it is so excessive that it could not have been arrived at except as a result of passion or prejudice: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

2. (1976) Wrongful death actions are designed to recompense a decedent's beneficiaries for any "pecuniary injury" they may have suffered by virtue of his untimely death: Jones v. Wittenberg University, 534 F2d 1203, 3 OO3d 311.

3. (1978) Punitive damages are clearly excluded in wrongful death actions by RC § 2125.02. Punitive damages are available in a survival action under RC § 2305.21 if there is evidence that decedent suffered property loss or personal injury before he died. Here no evidence was presented either that decedent owned the car in which he was riding or that he survived the collision for a time sufficient to experience pain and suffering before death: Rubeck, Exr., v. Huffman, 54 OS2d 20, 8 OO3d 11, 374 NE2d 411.

4. (1977) Although RC § 2125.02 requires approval by the probate court of a settlement of a wrongful death action executed by a personal representative appointed in Ohio, the courts of Ohio will give effect to a settlement and release executed in Georgia by the decedent's widow on behalf of herself and their children before the representative was appointed: McCluskey v. Rob San Services, Inc., 443 FSupp 65, 10 OO3d 248.

5. (1978) Where a wrongful death award is made under the federal tort claims act, in an action governed by Ohio law, such award should not be reduced by the amount of income tax the decedent would have paid on future income, at least in cases involving low or average incomes. Neither should the award be reduced on account of the surviving spouse's remarriage. The effect of each of these considerations is too speculative to take into account in making an award: Kalavity v. U.S., 584 F2d 809, 11 OO3d 313.

6. (1979) Compensation for loss of the society, comfort and companionship of the decedent is not recoverable under Ohio's wrongful death law: Keaton v. Ribbeck, 58 OS2d 443, 12 OO3d 375, 391 NE2d 307.

7. (1978) Punitive damages are assessed over and above the amount adequate to compensate an injured party, and are, by definition, not available in a wrongful death action: Schaefer v. D & J Produce, 62 OApp2d 53, 16 OO3d 108, 403 NE2d 1015.

8. (1978) Revised Code § 2125.02 requires that an action for wrongful death be brought in the name of the personal representative of the deceased person and Civ. R. 17(A) specifically allows this as an exception to the general rule that an action must be prosecuted in the name of the real party in interest: De Garza v. Chetister, 62 OApp2d 149, 16 OO3d 335, 405 NE2d 331.

9. (1978) An action for wrongful death is an asset of the decedent's estate and is, therefore, sufficient to justify the appointment of an administrator or an ancillary administrator in this state, even though there existed no other necessity for such an appointment, and the deceased was not domiciled in this state, and left no property in this state. In such a case, the court for the county where the injury was received and the deceased died may properly entertain such jurisdiction: De Garza v. Chetister, 62 OApp2d 149, 16 OO3d 335, 405 NE2d 331.

10. (1981) The statute of limitations for a wrongful death action is not tolled where the defendant negligently conceals the cause of plaintiff's death: Bazdar v. Koppers Co., Inc., 524 FSupp 1194 (N.D.).

11. (1982) Where an act of medical malpractice allegedly results in the death of the patient, the controlling statute of limitations is RC § 2125.02, not RC § 2305.11(A): Koler v. St. Joseph Hospital, 69 OS2d 477, 23 OO3d 413, 432 NE2d 821.

12. (1982) The provisions of RC §§ 2125.01 and 2125.02 of the Wrongful Death Act, as amended February 5, 1982 (Am. Sub. H.B. No. 332), are to be applied retroactively: Robinson v. Parker-Hannifin Corp., 4 OMisc2d 6, 4 OBR 257, 444 NE2d 1084, 447 NE2d 781 (CP).

13. (1982) Revised Code § 2125.02, as amended effective February 5, 1982, in Am. Sub. H.B. No. 332, substantially alters the dimension and character of wrongful death actions and cannot be given a retroactive effect: Rivers v. Kairis, 2 OMisc2d 6, 1 OBR 317, 442 NE2d 494 (CP).

14. (1982) The contingency of marriage may be considered by the trier of fact in determining the amount recoverable by surviving parents for the wrongful death of their child: Terveer v. Baschnagel, 3 OApp3d 312, 3 OBR 365, 445 NE2d 264.

15. (1982) Under Ohio law, the jury in a wrongful death action is to consider the gross income of a decedent rather than the net income after taxes, and thus it is improper for the trial court to instruct the jury that its award is not subject to federal income taxes or that in calculating any loss based on future earnings of decedent, the jury should deduct federal income taxes from those earnings: Terveer v. Baschnagel, 3 OApp3d 312, 3 OBR 365, 445 NE2d 264.

16. (1982) Revised Code § 2125.02, as amended effective February 5, 1982 in Am. Sub. H.B. No. 332, and dealing with the procedures in a wrongful death action, is remedial and procedural in nature and may be applied retrospectively: Wright v. Conney, 3 OMisc2d 9, 3 OBR 298, 444 NE2d 1088 (CP).

17. (1984) An amended complaint to add a new party defendant in a wrongful death action relates back to the date the motion for leave to file the amended complaint was filed; if the motion for leave is filed within the two-year statute of limitations, the amended complaint is timely even if filed after the two-year period: Chaddock v. Johns-Manville Sales Corp., 577 FSupp 837 (S.D.).

18. (1984) Revised Code § 2125.02 as amended, effective February 5, 1982, is remedial in nature as written and promulgated by the General Assembly, and applies to all wrongful death actions tried in any forum on or after that date: French v. Dwiggins, 9 OS3d 32, 9 OBR 123, 458 NE2d 827.

19. (1984) Ohio law is applicable in determining the amount of damages recoverable in an action commenced in Ohio by Ohio representatives of an Ohio decedent killed in a foreign state, to recover under a policy of insurance issued in Ohio which limits recovery from the underinsured motorist to those damages which the insureds are "legally entitled to recover," because the compelling state interest of Ohio in fully compensating its citizens in wrongful death cases outweighs the interests of the foreign state in determining the standard of care and against subjecting its citizens to unlimited recoveries: Paul v. West American Ins. Co., 19 OApp3d 82, 19 OBR 166, 482 NE2d 1309.

20. (1984) An action pursuant to RC § 2305.11(A) for medical malpractice is not a precondition to the maintenance of a wrongful death action pursuant to RC §§ 2125.01 and 2125.02: Brosse v. Cumming, 20 OApp3d 260, 20 OBR 323, 485 NE2d 803.

21. (1984) Although originating in the same wrongful act or neglect, a claim for malpractice against a physician and a claim against the same physician for wrongful death resulting from the malpractice are two distinct claims, no part of either being embraced in the other. The time frame for filing the medical malpractice suit is governed by RC § 2305.11(A), while RC § 2125.02(D) provides that a cause of action for wrongful death shall be commenced within two years after the decedent's death: Brosse v. Cumming, 20 OApp3d 260, 20 OBR 323, 485 NE2d 803.

§ 2125.03 Distribution to beneficiaries.

(A) The amount received by a personal representative in an action for wrongful death under sections 2125.01 and 2125.02 of the Revised Code, whether by settlement or otherwise, shall be distributed to the beneficiaries or any one or more of them. The court that appointed the personal representative shall, except when all of the beneficiaries are on an equal degree of consanguinity to the deceased person, adjust the share of each beneficiary in such manner as is equitable, having due regard for the injury and loss to each beneficiary resulting from the death and for the age and condition of the beneficiaries. If all of the beneficiaries are on an equal degree of consanguinity to the deceased person, the beneficiaries may adjust the share of each beneficiary among themselves. If the beneficiaries do not adjust their shares among themselves, the court shall adjust the share of each beneficiary in the same manner as the court adjusts the shares of beneficiaries who are not on an equal degree of consanguinity to the deceased person.

The court may create a trust for children of the decedent by ordering that the portion of the amount received by the personal representative for such children be deposited in trust for the benefit of one or more of the beneficiaries, until the beneficiary reaches twenty-five years of age, and order the distribution of the amount in accordance with the provisions of the trust. Prior to appointment as a trustee of a trust created pursuant to this section, the person to be appointed shall be approved by each adult beneficiary and by the guardian of each minor beneficiary of the trust.

(B) The court shall distribute the amount of funeral and burial expenses awarded, or received by settlement, by reason of the death to the personal representative of the decedent, to be expended by the personal representative for the payment, or as reimbursement for the payment, of the expenses.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1978) The administrator of an estate who executes a contract for the sale of the decedent's realty does not breach that contract by selling the realty to other purchasers, where the contract contains the clause "subject to the approval of the probate court," and such approval is never obtained, and where the heirs have never given consent to the sale under the contract, as required by RC §§ 2127.04 and 2127.01.1: Bilang v. Benson, 62 OApp2d 134, 16 OO3d 297, 405 NE2d 311.

§ 2127.04 [Action with consent or upon request of beneficiaries or upon representative's own motion; procedure when beneficiary cannot be found.]

(A) With the consent of all persons entitled to share in an estate upon distribution, the executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed may, and upon the request of these persons shall, commence an action in the probate court for authority to sell any part or all of the decedent's real estate, even though not required to be sold to pay debts or legacies. A guardian may make such a request, or give consent, on behalf of his ward.

(B) An executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed may commence an action in the probate court, on his own motion, to sell any part or all of the decedent's real estate, even though it is not required to be sold to pay debts or legacies. The court shall not issue an order of sale in the action unless one of the following categories applies:

(1) At least fifty per cent of all the persons interested in the real estate proposed to be sold have consented to the sale; and, prior to the issuance of the order, no written objection is filed with the court by any person or persons who hold aggregate interests in the interest of the decedent in the real estate proposed to be sold, that total in excess of twenty-five per cent; and the court determines that the sale is in the best interest of the decedent's estate.

(2) No person's interest in the interest of the decedent in the real estate proposed to be sold exceeds ten per cent; and, prior to the issuance of the order, no written objection is filed with the court by any person or persons who hold aggregate interests in the interest of the decedent in the real estate proposed to be sold, that total in excess of twenty-five per cent; and the court determines that the sale is in the best interest of the decedent's estate.

(3) The real estate proposed to be sold escheats to the state under division (J) of section 2105.06 of the Revised Code.

(C) Notwithstanding any provision of the Revised Code, an executor, administrator, or administrator with the will annexed shall commence an action in the probate court to sell any part or all of the decedent's real estate if any person who is entitled to inherit all or part of the real estate cannot be found after a due and diligent search. The court shall not issue an order of sale in the action unless the sale is in the best interest of the person who cannot be found and in the best interest of the decedent's estate.

If a sale is ordered under this division, the costs of its administration shall be taken from the proceeds of the sale.

(D) A surviving spouse who is an executor or administrator of the decedent spouse's estate is not disqualified, by reason of being executor or administrator, as a person to whom a parcel of real estate may be sold pursuant to this section.

§ 2127.32 Public or private sale.

The real estate included in the court's order of sale, as provided in section 2127.29 of the Revised Code, shall be sold either in whole or in parcels at public auction at the door of the courthouse in the county in which the order of sale was granted, or at another place, as the court directs, and the order shall fix the place, day, and hour of sale. If it appears to be more for the interest of the ward or the estate to sell the real estate at private sale, the court may authorize the complainant to sell it either in whole or in parcels. If an order for private sale is issued, it shall be returned by the complainant. Upon motion and showing of a person interested in the proceeds of the sale, filed after thirty days from the date of the order, the court may require the complainant to return the order, if the premises have not been sold. Thereupon, the court may order the real estate to be sold at public sale.

If upon showing of any person interested, the court finds that it will be to the interest of the ward or the estate, it may order a reappraisalment and sale in parcels.

If the sale is to be public, the executor, administrator, or guardian must give notice of the time and place of the sale by advertisement at least three weeks successively in a newspaper published in the county where the lands are situated.

§ 2127.38 Distribution of money received.

The sale price of real estate sold following an action by an executor, administrator, or guardian shall be applied and distributed as follows:

(A) To discharge the costs and expenses of the sale, including reasonable fees to be fixed by the probate court for services performed by attorneys for the fiduciary in connection with the sale, and compensation, if any, to the fiduciary for his services in connection with the sale as the court may fix, which costs, expenses, fees, and compensation shall be paid prior to any liens upon the real estate sold and notwithstanding the purchase of the real estate by a lienholder;

(B) To the payment of taxes, interest, penalties, and assessments then due against the real estate, and to the payment of mortgages and judgments against the ward or deceased person, according to their respective priorities of lien, so far as they operated as a lien on the real estate of the deceased at the time of the sale, or on the estate of the ward at the time of the sale, which shall be apportioned and determined by the court, or on reference to a master, or otherwise;

(C) In the case of an executor or administrator, the remaining proceeds of sale shall be applied as follows:

(1) To the payment of legacies with which the real estate of the deceased was charged, if the action is to sell real estate to pay legacies;

(2) To discharge the claims and debts of the estate in the order provided by law.

Whether the executor or administrator was appointed in this state or elsewhere, the surplus of the proceeds of sale must be considered for all purposes as real estate, and be disposed of accordingly.

§ 2129.07 Proceedings to admit foreign will to record.

An authenticated copy of a will executed, proved, and allowed in a country other than the United States and territories thereof and the probate of such will must be produced by the executor, or by a person interested therein, to the probate judge of the county in which there is any estate upon which the will may operate, whereupon such judge shall continue the motion to admit it to probate for two months. Notice of the filing of such application must be given to all persons interested, in a public newspaper published in or in general circulation in the county where the motion is made, at least three weeks consecutively. The first publication shall be at least forty days before the time set for the final hearing of the motion.

If, on such hearing, it appears to the probate court that the instrument ought to be allowed in this state, it shall order the copy to be filed and recorded. The will, and the probate and record thereof, then shall have the same effect as if the will originally had been proved and allowed in that court. This section does not give effect to the will of an alien different from that which it would have had if originally proved and allowed in this state. When such copy has been filed and recorded, and when no ancillary administration proceedings have been had or are being had in Ohio, sections 2107.39 to 2107.45 of the Revised Code, relating to election shall be the same as in the case of resident decedents, except that such election shall be made not later than six months after the record of such copy.

(A) No interest in real or personal property shall be good unless it must vest, if at all, not later than twenty-one years after a life or lives in being at the creation of the interest. All estates given in tail, by deed or will, in lands or tenements lying within this state, shall be and remain an absolute estate in fee simple to the issue of the first donee in tail. It is the intention by the adoption of this section to make effective in Ohio what is generally known as the common law rule against perpetuities, except as set forth in divisions (B) and (C) of this section.

(B) For the purposes of this section, the time of the creation of an interest in real or personal property subject to a power reserved by the grantor to revoke or terminate the interest shall be the time at which the reserved power expires, either by reason of the death of the grantor or by release of the power or otherwise.

(C) Any interest in real or personal property that would violate the rule against perpetuities, under division (A) of this section, shall be reformed, within the limits of the rule, to approximate most closely the intention of the creator of the interest. In determining whether an interest would violate the rule and in reforming an interest, the period of perpetuities shall be measured by actual rather than possible events.

(D) Divisions (B) and (C) of this section shall be effective with respect to interests in real or personal property created by wills of decedents dying after December 31, 1967, with respect to interests in real or personal property created by inter vivos instruments executed after December 31, 1967, and with respect to interests in real or personal property created by inter vivos instruments executed on or before December 31, 1967 that by reason of division (B) of this section will be treated as interests created after December 31, 1967. Divisions (B) and (C) of this section shall be effective with respect to interests in real or personal property created by the exercise of a power of appointment if divisions (B) and (C) of this section apply to the instrument that exercises the power, whether or not divisions (B) and (C) of this section apply to the instrument that creates the power.

§ 2131.10 Deposit payable on death.

A natural person, adult or minor, referred to in sections 2131.10 and 2131.11 of the Revised Code as the owner, may enter into a written contract with any bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings, authorized to receive money on an investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit, and transacting business in this state, whereby the proceeds of the owner's investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit may be made payable on the death of the owner to another natural person or to any entity or organization, referred to in such sections as the beneficiary, notwithstanding any provisions to the contrary in Chapter 2107. of the Revised Code. In creating such accounts, "payable on death" or "payable on the death of" may be abbreviated to "P.O.D."

Every contract of an investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit authorized by this section shall be deemed to contain a right on the part of the owner during his lifetime both to withdraw the proceeds of such investment share certificate, share account, deposit, or stock deposit, in whole or in part, as though no beneficiary has been named, and to designate a change in beneficiary. The interest of the beneficiary shall be deemed not to vest until the death of the owner.

No change in the designation of the beneficiary shall be valid unless executed in the form and manner prescribed by the bank, building and loan or savings and loan association, credit union, or society for savings.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) Under the Ohio rules of statutory construction the singular includes the plural and the plural includes the singular. Where there is no evidence that such a construction is out of context with the language of a statute, that construction should be used. "Person" and "beneficiary" in RC § 2131.10 include both the singular and the plural; therefore, multiple beneficiaries for a "payable on death" account are legally permissible: Wingate v. 2. 4. (1981) The depositor of a payable-on-death (P.O.D.) account retains her rights to ownership and full control of such account during her lifetime. Peoples Federal S. & L. Assn., 68 OS2d 175, 22 OO3d 406, 429 NE2d 439.

5. (1981) When RC §§ 1107.08(B), 2131.10 and 2131.11 are read in pari materia, it is clear that the General Assembly intended that only natural persons may be designated as the beneficiaries of "P.O.D." 6. (1984) A guardian cannot, as a matter of law, revoke an inter vivos trust established by her ward prior to the ward's being declared incompetent without first obtaining court approval for the revocation: Friedrich v. BancoOhio Natl. Bank, 14 OApp3d 247, 14 OBR 276, 470 NE2d 467.

CASE NOTES AND OAC

1. (1977) In an RC § 2151.23(A)(2) child custody proceeding between a parent and a nonparent, the hearing officer may not award custody to the nonparent without first making a finding of parental unsuitability—that is, without first determining that a preponderance of the evidence shows that the parent abandoned the child, that the parent contractually relinquished custody of the child, that the parent has become totally incapable of supporting or caring for the child, or that an award of custody to the parent would be detrimental to the child: In re Perales, 52 OS2d 89, 6 OO3d 293, 369 NE2d 1047.

2. (1981) There is no authority for a juvenile court to commit a delinquent juvenile to a jail for adult offenders, absent a finding that housing in an appropriate juvenile facility is unavailable, or that the public safety and protection so require: State v. Grady, 3 OApp3d 174, 3 OBR 199, 444 NE2d 51.

3. (1984) Revised Code § 2151.01.1(B)(12) provides that the grant of permanent custody divests the parents of all rights, including residual rights: In re Palmer, 12 OS3d 194, 12 OBR 259, 465 NE2d 1312.

4. (1983) When a court places an abused, neglected or dependent child in the permanent custody of a children's services board thereby divesting the natural parents of all parental rights and privileges, the board has no duty to involve the natural parents in decisions concerning the provision or assistance in the acquisition of family planning information or contraceptive devices for the child: OAG No.83-088.

5. (1984) Revised Code § 3313.64(B)(2)(a) provides that "[a] child who does not reside in the district where his parent resides shall be admitted to the schools of the district in which he resides if * * * [h]e is in the legal or permanent custody of a government agency or a person other than his natural or adoptive parent." In order to obtain "legal or permanent custody" of a child, the person seeking custody must do so through the court system. Thus, an agreement, without court intervention, between a grandparent and the child's parents "granting" custody to the grandparent does not comply with RC § 3313.64(B)(2)(a) and the child has no right to attend school in the district where the grandfather resides: State ex rel. Henry v. Madison Plains Local Bd. of Edn., 20 OApp3d 185, 20 OBR 230, 485 NE2d 732.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) A child is not necessarily neglected or dependent merely because the child's mother lives with a man who is not her legal spouse. In the absence of evidence showing a detrimental impact upon the child, the relationship does not warrant the state in removing the child from parental custody in the best interest of that child: In re Burrell, 58 OS2d 37, 12 OO3d 43, 388 NE2d 738.

2. (1980) A parent's primary rights to the care and custody of a child are rights that must be protected, and parental custody will be terminated only when necessary for the mental and physical development of the child: In re Bibb, 70 OApp2d 117, 24 OO3d 159, 435 NE2d 96.

3. (1980) Unlike a finding of neglect under RC § 2151.03, which requires proof that the parents were willfully at fault in abandoning or neglecting the children or refusing to perform their parental duties, a finding of dependency under RC § 2151.04 must be grounded on whether the children are receiving proper care and support. The focus is on the condition of the children, not the fault of the parents: In re Bibb, 70 OApp2d 117, 24 OO3d 159, 435 NE2d 96.

4. (1982) In actions brought pursuant to RC §§ 2151.27 and 2151.03, the state's primary objective is not to decide conflicting claims to custody; its objective is to determine if a child is receiving proper parental care, and if that care is being provided by a relative pursuant to an agreement initiated by the child's parent, then the child is not a neglected child: In re Reese, 4 OApp3d 59, 4 OBR 109, 446 NE2d 482.

2. (1978) Where the evidence shows that to return a child to her natural parent would be clearly detrimental to the child, such child is a "dependent child" under RC § 2151.04(C) and the court is authorized to commit the child permanently to the Children's Services Board under RC § 2151.35.3(D), even though the parent might be capable of giving proper care and support to other children: In re Justice, 59 OApp2d 78, 13 OO3d 139, 392 NE2d 897.

3. (1979) Once a child has been found to be "dependent" as defined in RC § 2151.04, the "best interests" of the child are the primary consideration in determining whether an award of permanent custody is justified pursuant to RC § 2151.35.3(D): In re Cunningham, 59 OS2d 100, 13 OO3d 78, 391 NE2d 1034.

8. (1984) The court may award custody to neither parent where it finds that one parent is preoccupied with religious fanaticism and the other parent is emotionally unstable: Birch v. Birch, 11 OS3d 85, 11 OBR 327, 463 NE2d 1254.

9. (1983) Where the state can show, by clear and convincing evidence, that the "condition" or "environment" into which a newborn baby would enter would be threatening to the health and safety of the child, the state may intervene and have the child declared a "dependent child" pursuant to RC § 2151.04(C): In re Campbell, 13 OApp3d 34, 13 OBR 36, 468 NE2d 93.

The juvenile judge shall annually submit a written request for an appropriation to the board of county commissioners that shall set forth estimated administrative expenses of the juvenile court that the judge considers reasonably necessary for the operation of the court, including reasonably necessary expenses of the judge and such officers and employees as he may designate in attending conferences at which juvenile or welfare problems are discussed, and such sum each year as will provide for the maintenance and operation of the detention home, the care, maintenance, education, and support of neglected, abused, dependent, and delinquent children, other than children entitled to aid under sections 5107.01 to 5107.16 of the Revised Code, and for necessary orthopedic, surgical, and medical treatment, and special care as may be ordered by the court for any neglected, abused, dependent, or delinquent children. The board shall conduct a public hearing with respect to the written request submitted by the judge and shall appropriate such sum of money each year as it determines, after conducting the public hearing and considering the written request of the judge, is reasonably necessary to meet all the administrative expenses of the court. All disbursements from such appropriations shall be upon specifically itemized vouchers, certified to by the judge.

If the judge considers the appropriation made by the board pursuant to this section insufficient to meet all the administrative expenses of the court, he shall commence an action under Chapter 2731. of the Revised Code in the court of appeals for the judicial district for a determination of the duty of the board of county commissioners to appropriate the amount of money in dispute. The court of appeals shall give priority to the action filed by the juvenile judge over all cases pending on its docket. The burden shall be on the juvenile judge to prove that the appropriation requested is reasonably necessary to meet all administrative expenses of the court. If, prior to the filing of an action under Chapter 2731. of the Revised Code or during the pendency of the action, the judge exercises his contempt power in order to obtain the sum of money in dispute, he shall not order the imprisonment of any member of the board of county commissioners notwithstanding sections 2705.02 to 2705.06 of the Revised Code.

(1976) Where the basic function of a court is impeded by a failure or refusal of the body responsible to provide a necessary appropriation, that court possesses the inherent power to order such appropriation and to enforce its order by contempt proceedings: State ex rel. 2. (1980) The county commissioners could not collaterally attack the court's appropriation request in an appeal from the judgment of contempt: In re Appropriation for 1979, 62 OS2d 99, 16 OO3d 104, 403 NE2d 974.

3. (1981) Revised Code § 2151.10, effective July 26, 1979, is an impermissible legislative encroachment upon the inherent powers of the judiciary, and is, therefore, unconstitutional: State ex rel. Johnston v. Taulbee, 66 OS2d 417, 20 OO3d 361, 423 NE2d 80.

4. (1981) When a judge undertakes to enforce his ex parte order, directing a board of county commissioners to purchase furnishings and equipment reasonably necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the court, by proceedings in contempt, the board has remedy by way of appeal only from the finding and order in the contempt proceedings: In re Furnishings for Courtroom Two, 66 OS2d 427, 20 OO3d 367, 423 NE2d 86.

5. 6. (1983) That portion of RC § 2101.11(B), containing language substantially identical to that in RC § 2151.10, effective July 26, 1979, is unconstitutional: State ex rel. Slaby v. Summit County Council, 7 OApp3d 199, 7 OBR 258, 454 NE2d 1379.

7. (1983) Regardless of statutory authorization, the judges of the courts of common pleas and their divisions have the inherent authority to determine in the first instance, in the exercise of sound discretion, the sum of money reasonable for the efficient operation of the court, and absent an abuse of discretion in the determination of such sum, may proceed either in contempt or mandamus to receive the necessary funding from their respective counties: State ex rel. Slaby v. Summit County Council, 7 OApp3d 199, 7 OBR 258, 454 NE2d 1379.

8. (1984) A court may modify its budget request at any time if such modification is otherwise reasonable and necessary: State ex rel. Arbaugh v. Richland Cty. Bd. of Comrs., 14 OS3d 5, 14 OBR 311, 470 NE2d 880.

9. (1984) Mandamus will issue where the county commissioners fail to meet their burden of proving that the budget requests submitted for the probate and juvenile divisions of the court of common pleas were unreasonable and unnecessary: State ex rel. Rudes v. Rofkar, 15 OS3d 69, 15 OBR 163, 472 NE2d 354.

10. (1985) Mandamus action by court officials to secure the requested funding appropriation will be denied where the requested salary increases for court employees constitute an abuse of discretion. State ex rel. Britt v. Bd. of Franklin Cty. Commrs., 18 OS3d 1, 18 OBR 1, 480 NE2d 77.

(4) The number of complaints described in division (B)(3) of this section that result in the child being required, as an order of disposition made under division (A)(8) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code, to make restitution for all or part of the property damage caused by his delinquent act or for all or part of the value of the property that was the subject of the delinquent act that would be a theft offense if committed by an adult;

(5) The number of complaints described in division (B)(2) of this section in which the act upon which the adjudication of delinquency is based would have been an offense of violence if committed by an adult;

(6) The number of complaints described in division (B)(5) of this section that result in the child being committed, as an order of disposition made under division (A)(3), (4), (5), or (6) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code, to any facility for delinquent children operated by the county, a district, or a private agency or organization or to the department of youth services;

(7) The number of complaints described in division (B)(1) of this section that result in the case being transferred for criminal prosecution to an appropriate court having jurisdiction of the offense, under division (A) of section 2151.26 of the Revised Code or that involve an act of a child that is required to be prosecuted in an appropriate court having jurisdiction of the offense, under division (G) of that section.

The clerk of the court shall compile an annual summary covering the preceding calendar year showing all of the information for that year contained in the record maintained under this division. The record and the annual summary shall be public records open for inspection. Neither the record nor the annual summary shall include the identity of any party to a case.

(C) The juvenile court shall submit monthly to the department of youth services, on forms provided by the department, any data regarding all official cases of the court that the department reasonably requests. The department shall publish this data on a statewide basis in statistical form at least annually. The department shall not publish the identity of any party to a case.

(D) Not later than June of each year, the court shall prepare an annual report covering the preceding calendar year showing the number and kinds of cases that have come before it, the disposition of the cases, and any other data pertaining to the work of the court that the juvenile judge directs or that the department of youth services requests. Copies of such report shall be filed with the department and with the board of county commissioners. With the approval of the board, copies may be printed for distribution to persons and agencies interested in the court or community program for dependent, neglected, abused, or delinquent children and juvenile traffic offenders. The number of copies ordered printed and the estimated cost of each printed copy shall appear on each copy of the report printed for distribution.

[§ 2151.21.1] § 2151.211 [Employee may not be penalized for being subpoenaed in delinquency case.]

No employer shall discharge or terminate from employment, threaten to discharge or terminate from employment, or otherwise punish or penalize any employee because of time lost from regular employment as a result of the employee's attendance at any proceeding in a delinquency case pursuant to a subpoena. This section generally does not require and shall not be construed to require an employer to pay an employee for time lost as a result of attendance at any proceeding in a delinquency case. However, if an employee is subpoenaed to appear at a proceeding in a delinquency case and the proceeding pertains to an offense against the employer or an offense involving the employee during the course of his employment, the employer shall not decrease or withhold the employee's pay for any time lost as a result of compliance with the subpoena. Any employer who knowingly violates this section is in contempt of court.

§ 2151.23 Jurisdiction of juvenile court.

(A) The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction under the Revised Code:

(1) Concerning any child who on or about the date specified in the complaint is alleged to be a juvenile traffic offender, or a delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent child;

(2) To determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court of this state;

(3) To hear and determine any application for a writ of habeas corpus involving the custody of a child;

(4) To exercise the powers and jurisdiction given the probate division of the court of common pleas in Chapters 5122. and 5123. of the Revised Code, if the court has probable cause to believe that a child otherwise within the jurisdiction of the court is a mentally ill person subject to hospitalization by court order, as defined in section 5122.01 of the Revised Code, or a mentally retarded person subject to institutionalization by court order, as defined in section 5123.01 of the Revised Code;

(5) To hear and determine all criminal cases charging adults with the violation of any section of Chapter 2151. of the Revised Code;

(6) Under the interstate compact on juveniles in section 2151.56 of the Revised Code;

(7) To hear and determine applications for consent to marry pursuant to section 3101.04 of the Revised Code.

(B) The juvenile court has original jurisdiction under the Revised Code:

(1) To hear and determine all cases of misdemeanors charging adults with any act or omission with respect to any child, which act or omission is a violation of any state law or any municipal ordinance;

(2) To determine the paternity of any child alleged to have been born out of wedlock pursuant to Chapter 3111. of the Revised Code;

(3) Under the uniform reciprocal enforcement of support act in Chapter 3115. of the Revised Code;

(4) To hear and determine an application for an order for the support of any child, if the child is not a ward of another court of this state.

(C) The juvenile court, except as to juvenile courts which are a separate division of the court of common pleas, or a separate and independent juvenile court, has jurisdiction to hear, determine, and make a record of any action for divorce or alimony involving the custody or care of children[,] filed in the court of common pleas and certified by the court of common pleas with all the papers filed therein to the court for trial, provided that no such certification shall be made to any court unless the consent of the juvenile judge is first obtained. After such certification is made and consent obtained, the court shall proceed as if such action were originally begun in said court except as to awards for alimony or support due and unpaid at the time of certification, over which the court has no jurisdiction.

(D) The juvenile court has jurisdiction to hear and determine all matters as to custody and support of children duly certified by the court of common pleas to the juvenile court after a divorce decree has been granted, including jurisdiction to modify the judgment and decree of the common pleas court as the same relate to the custody and support of children.

(E) The juvenile court has jurisdiction to hear and determine the case of any child certified to the court by any court of competent jurisdiction if such child comes within the jurisdiction of the court as defined by this section.

(F) The juvenile court shall exercise its jurisdiction in child custody matters in accordance with section 3109.04 and sections 3109.21 to 3109.36 of the Revised Code.

(G) Each order for child support made by a juvenile court on or after April 15, 1985, shall be accompanied, unless the order is subject to division (C) of section 3113.21 of the Revised Code, by an order requiring the amount ordered for support to be withheld from the personal earnings or workers' compensation payments of the person required to pay the support in accordance with division (B)(1)(a) or (b) of section 3113.21 of the Revised Code, by an order requiring the amount ordered for support to be deducted from an account of the person required to pay the support in accordance with division (B)(1) (c)(i) of that section, by an order requiring the posting of bond in accordance with division (B)(1) (c)(ii) of that section, by a provisional order of the type described in division (B)(2) of that section, or by an order of the type described in division (G)(2) of that section, whichever is appropriate under the requirements of that section. Each order for child support made by a juvenile court on or after April 15, 1985, that is subject to division (C) of section 3113.21 of the Revised Code may be accompanied by an order requiring the posting of bond in accordance with that division, but shall not be accompanied by any order of a type described in division (B)(1)(a), (1)(b), (1)(c), (2)(a)(i), (2)(a)(ii), (2)(a)(iii), (2)(a)(iv), or

(G) of that section. If any person required to pay child support under an order made by a juvenile court on or after April 15, 1985, is found in contempt of court for failure to make support payments under the order, the court that makes the finding shall, in addition to any other penalty or remedy imposed, assess all court costs arising out of the contempt proceeding against the person and require the person to pay any reasonable attorney's fees of any adverse party, as determined by the court, that arose in relation to the act of contempt.

URESA actions, 24

1. (1975) After a full hearing, the retroactive modification of a prior multiple child support order will not be disturbed on appeal in the absence of an abuse of discretion by the trial court: Asztalos v. Fortney, 48 OApp2d 66, 2 OO3d 45, 355 NE2d 517.

2. (1975) The equities involved in a multiple child support order case are such that if a substantial change in material circumstances has occurred since the original decree was entered, the Juvenile Court may, upon a proper hearing, modify a support order retroactively. (McPherson v. McPherson, 153 OS 82, 41 OO 151, distinguished.): Asztalos v. Fortney, 48 OApp2d 66, 2 OO3d 45, 355 NE2d 517.

3. (1975) Where an original child support order was for a total sum on behalf of four children and did not designate a specific amount for each child, and thereafter one child was emancipated and the custody of a second child was transferred from the wife to the husband, the court, in its discretion, may modify the prior order retroactively. A modification, if any, need not be made on a pro rata basis: Asztalos v. Fortney, 48 OApp2d 66, 2 OO3d 45, 355 NE2d 517.

4. (1975) Where a court, having acquired jurisdiction over a child by virtue of a divorce action between the child's parents, certifies the matter of the child's custody to a juvenile court, the consent of the juvenile court having first been obtained, the juvenile court has exclusive jurisdiction over the child's custody by virtue of RC § 3109.06 and RC § 2151.23(D) and a finding of unfitness of the parents or that there is no suitable relative to have custody is not a necessary prerequisite to such certification: In re Height, 47 OApp2d 203, 1 OO3d 279, 353 NE2d 887.

5. (1976) A juvenile judge has no authority to commit the trial of a criminal charge against an adult to a referee and any proceedings so committed are null and void: State v. Eddington, 52 OApp2d 312, 6 OO3d 317, 369 NE2d 1054.

6. (1978) Where a petition is filed which states a proper cause of action for a writ of habeas corpus, and there is no plain and adequate remedy in the ordinary course of the law, Sections 2 and 3, respectively, of Article IV of the Ohio Constitution require the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals to exercise their original jurisdiction in habeas corpus; and in such a case, these courts cannot refuse to exercise that original jurisdiction under the doctrine of forum non conveniens: Hughes v. Scaffide, 53 OS2d 85, 7 OO3d 175, 372 NE2d 598.

7. (1977) Under RC § 2151.23(A), the Juvenile Court has exclusive original jurisdiction in applications for a writ of habeas corpus involving custody of a child and is thereby empowered to determine custody in such proceeding: In re Wright, 52 OMisc 4, 6 OO3d 31, 367 NE2d 931.

8. (1977) In an RC § 2151.23(A)(2) child custody proceeding between a parent and a nonparent, the hearing officer may not award custody to the nonparent without first making a finding of parental unsuitability—that is, without first determining that a preponderance of the evidence shows that the parent abandoned the child, that the parent contractually relinquished custody of the child, that the parent has become totally incapable of supporting or caring for the child, or that an award of custody to the parent would be detrimental to the child: In re Perales, 52 OS2d 89, 6 OO3d 293, 369 NE2d 1047.

9. (1979) A parent has forfeited his paramount right to custody if he has abandoned the child. The court must then weigh the best interests of the child in determining whether to grant the writ returning the child to the parent: In re Young, 58 OS2d 90, 12 OO3d 93, 388 NE2d 1235.

10. (1979) A parent may be denied custody if a preponderance of the evidence indicates that he has abandoned the child: Hughes v. Scaffide, 58 OS2d 88, 12 OO3d 92, 388 NE2d 1233.

11. (1979) The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction, pursuant to RC § 2151.23(A), concerning any child who is alleged in a proper complaint to be neglected, and the court does not lose jurisdiction by failing to adhere to the time limits set forth in Juv. R. 29(A) and 34(A): Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

12. (1979) A parent, alleging that he failed to receive notice of a hearing concerning the shelter care of his child, must move the juvenile court for a rehearing, pursuant to Juv. R. 7(C), before seeking a writ of habeas corpus: Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

13. (1978) The determination of whether or not a child is "dependent," as defined in RC § 2151.04, must be made as of the time of the hearing on the complaint, and a determination that a child is not a "dependent child" at one time is no bar to a later determination that the child is then "dependent": In re Justice, 59 OApp2d 78, 13 OO3d 139, 392 NE2d 897.

14. (1978) In any case where a court of common pleas has made an award of custody or an order for support, or both, of minor children, that court may certify the case to the juvenile court of any county in the state for further proceedings: Pylant v. Pylant, 61 OApp2d 247, 15 OO3d 407, 401 NE2d 940.

15. (1977) Both the courts of appeals and the juvenile courts have original jurisdiction in habeas corpus actions as to the custody of children: In re Children, 64 OApp2d 168, 18 OO3d 123, 411 NE2d 802.

16. (1981) Legitimation of the child is not a prerequisite for the natural father to have equality of standing with the mother in a RC § 2151.23(A)(2) custody action. All three methods by which a father in Ohio can legitimate his child—(1) in an acknowledgment proceeding brought under RC § 2105.18; (2) by adopting the child; or (3) by marrying the mother—require the consent of the mother, and therefore the mother can thwart any attempt by the natural father to legitimate the child. A second reason for not requiring legitimation is that such a requirement would not necessarily be in the best interests of the child, and would, in fact, result in dissimilar treatment between legitimate and illegitimate children. Therefore, where the alleged natural father of an illegitimate child has participated in the nurturing process of the child, files a complaint seeking custody of the child under RC § 2151.23(A)(2), and the mother admits that he is the natural father of the child, the natural father has equity of standing with the mother with respect to the custody of the child. The court shall determine which parent shall have the legal custody of the child, taking into account what would be in the best interests of the child: In re Byrd, 66 OS2d 334, 20 OO3d 309, 421 NE2d 1284.

17. (1981) Revised Code § 2151.23 does not limit the juvenile court to deciding only particular aspects of a juvenile's case, or in any way restrict its jurisdiction, other than by limiting the court to dealing with juveniles. Thus a juvenile may challenge in that forum the distribution of juvenile court records, including social histories, to governmental and social agencies: J. P. v. DeSanti, 653 F2d 1080 (6th Cir.).

18. (1982) The Juvenile Court acts beyond the scope of its jurisdiction when it orders the Ohio Department of Mental Health to pay the cost of care of a child placed in a private, non-public psychiatric hospital: In re Hamil, 69 OS2d 97, 23 OO3d 151, 431 NE2d 317.

19. (1981) In a child custody dispute between the parent of a child and a non-parent brought under RC § 3109.04, a suitable parent has a paramount right to custody so long as such custody is not detrimental to the child. (In re Perales, 52 OS2d 89, 6 OO3d 293, adopted for RC § 3109.04 custody disputes): Thrasher v. Thrasher, 3 OApp3d 210, 3 OBR 240, 444 NE2d 431.

20. (1983) Parent may be denied custody only if a preponderance of the evidence indicates abandonment, contractual relinquishment of custody, total inability to provide care or support, or that his custody would be detrimental to the child: Reynolds v. Ross Cty. Children's Service Agency: 5 OS3d 27, 5 OBR 87, 448 NE2d 816.

21. (1983) Revised Code § 2151.23(A) which states that "[t]he juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction under the Revised Code:  (2) [t]o determine the custody of any child not a ward of another court of this state *" confers concurrent jurisdiction upon this state's court, where another state's court has already properly assumed and exercised jurisdiction in conformity with RC §§ 3109.21 to 3109.36: Squires v. Squires, 12 OApp3d 138, 12 OBR 460, 468 NE2d 73.

22. (1983) Where a complaint is filed alleging that a child is dependent or neglected in violation of RC §§ 2151.03(B) and 2151.04(A), (B), and (C), JuvR 29(D)(2) does not prohibit the child's mother from participating in the adjudicatory hearing just because she entered a plea of "admitted" to the allegations in the complaint: In re Sims, 13 OApp3d 37, 13 OBR 40, 468 NE2d 111.

23. (1984) A court which obtains jurisdiction over and enters orders regarding the custody and support of children retains continuing and exclusive jurisdiction over such matters: Hardesty v. Hardesty, 16 OApp3d 56, 16 OBR 59, 474 NE2d 368.

24. (1985) Prohibition will not issue to prevent a juvenile court, in a URESA action, from requiring information as to a party's financial status: Manrow v. Court of Common Pleas of Lucas Cty., 20 OS3d 37, 20 OBR 285, 485 NE2d 713.

Transfer of criminal case to juvenile court:

O-Jur2d: Juv Cts § 51

§ 2151.26 Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purpose of criminal prosecution.

(A) After a complaint has been filed alleging that a child is delinquent by reason of having committed an act that would constitute a felony if committed by an adult, the court at a hearing may transfer the case for criminal prosecution to the appropriate court having jurisdiction of the offense, after making the following determinations:

(1) The child was fifteen or more years of age at the time of the conduct charged;

(2) There is probable cause to believe that the child committed the act alleged;

(3) After an investigation, including a mental and physical examination of the child made by a public or private agency, or a person qualified to make the examination, that there are reasonable grounds to believe that:

(a) He is not amenable to care or rehabilitation or further care or rehabilitation in any facility designed for the care, supervision, and rehabilitation of delinquent children;

(b) The safety of the community may require that he be placed under legal restraint, including, if necessary, for the period extending beyond his majority.

(B) The court, when determining whether to transfer a case pursuant to division (A) of this section, shall determine if the victim of the delinquent act was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled at the time of the commission of the act. Regardless of whether or not the child knew the age of the victim, the fact that the victim was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled shall be considered by the court in favor of transfer, but shall not control the decision of the court.

(C) The child may waive the examination if the court finds the waiver competently and intelligently made. Refusal to submit to a mental and physical examination by the child constitutes waiver of the examination.

(D) Notice in writing of the time, place, and purpose of such hearing shall be given to the child's parents, guardian, or other custodian and his counsel at least three days prior to the hearing.

(E) No child, either before or after reaching eighteen years of age, shall be prosecuted as an adult for an offense committed prior to becoming eighteen, unless the child has been transferred as provided in this section. Any prosecution that is had in a criminal court on the mistaken belief that the child was over eighteen years of age at the time of the commission of the offense shall be deemed a nullity, and the child shall not be considered to have been in jeopardy on the offense.

(F) Upon such transfer, the juvenile court shall state the reasons for the transfer and order the child to enter into a recognizance with good and sufficient surety for his appearance before the appropriate court for any disposition that the court is authorized to make for a like act committed by an adult. The transfer abates the jurisdiction of the juvenile court with respect to the delinquent acts alleged in the complaint.

(G) Any child whose case is transferred for criminal prosecution pursuant to this section and who is subsequently convicted in that case shall thereafter be prosecuted as an adult in the appropriate court for any future act that he is alleged to have committed that if committed by an adult would constitute the offense of murder or aggravated murder, or would constitute an aggravated felony of the first or second degree or a felony of the first or second degree.

1. (1977) Informal proceedings conducted in a juvenile court in 1962 for the purpose of determining whether or not to bind over a juvenile defendant to be tried as an adult do not constitute an "adjudicatory hearing" as described in Breed v. Jones, 421 US 519 (1975): State v. Sims, 55 OApp2d 285, 9 OO3d 417, 380 NE2d 1350.

2. (1981) The probable cause hearing required by RC § 2151.26 prior to bind-over of a juvenile for prosecution as an adult is not an adjudicatory proceeding to which jeopardy attaches. Thus the juvenile's subsequent trial as an adult does not place him in double jeopardy: Keener v. Taylor, 640 F2d 839, 22 OO3d 248 (6th Cir.).

3. (1980) A minor criminal defendant, by entering a plea of guilty, does not waive his objections to constitutional deficiencies in the hearing wherein the Juvenile Court relinquished jurisdiction to the Court of Common Pleas: State v. Riggins, 68 OApp2d 1, 22 OO3d 1, 426 NE2d 504.

4. (1981) Prohibition will not issue to prevent a common pleas court from trying a juvenile who has been transferred for prosecution as an adult: State ex rel. Torres v. Simmons, 68 OS2d 118, 22 OO3d 340, 429 NE2d 862.

5. (1981) Transfer of a charge amounting to a felony in an adult from Juvenile Court to Common Pleas Court under RC § 2151.26 and Juv. R. 30 does not discharge jurisdiction in Juvenile Court over a pending charge amounting to a misdemeanor in an adult unless the misdemeanor stems from the same act constituting the felony and is an offense included in it: State ex rel. Duganitz v. Court, 23 OO3d 572 (App.).

6. (1982) When a minor is transferred from the Juvenile Court to the Court of Common Pleas on a charge which would constitute a felony if committed by an adult, the grand jury is empowered to return an indictment under the facts submitted to it and is not confined to returning indictments only on charges originally filed in the Juvenile Court: State v. Adams, 69 OS2d 120, 23 OO3d 164, 431 NE2d 326.

7. (1982) Once a juvenile is bound over in any county in Ohio pursuant to RC § 2151.26 and Juv. R. 30, that juvenile is bound over for all felonies committed in other counties of this state, as well as for future felonies he may commit: State v. Adams, 69 OS2d 120, 23 OO3d 164, 431 NE2d 326.

8. (1981) Revised Code § 2151.35.5(A)(9) which allows the juvenile court to "make any further disposition that the court finds proper" does not authorize the court to exercise unlimited discretion in sentencing a delinquent child: State v. Grady, 3 OApp3d 174, 3 OBR 199, 444 NE2d 51.

9. (1982) The duty upon the juvenile court before ordering a relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution is, after investigation, to find there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child is one who will not be readily brought to yield, submit and respond to care, supervision and rehabilitation in any facility designed for such care of delinquent children and that the requirement as to legal restraint exists: State v. Whiteside, 6 OApp3d 30, 6 OBR 140, 452 NE2d 332.

10. (1982) The court of common pleas may not review the factual findings of the juvenile court, under RC § 2151.26(A), on the issue of the child's amenability to care or rehabilitation; such issue must be presented after trial on appeal to the court of appeals: State v. Whiteside, 6 OApp3d 30, 6 OBR 140, 452 NE2d 332.

11. (1985) In ordering a bind over, a juvenile court is not required to make written findings as to the factors listed in JuvR 30 (E): State v. Douglas, 20 OS3d 34, 20 OBR 282, 485 NE2d 711.

§ 2151.27 Complaint.

(A) Any person having knowledge of a child who appears to be a juvenile traffic offender or to be delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent may, with respect to that child, file a sworn complaint in the juvenile court of the county in which the child has a residence or legal settlement, or in which the traffic offense, delinquency, unruliness, abuse, neglect, or dependency allegedly occurred. Such a sworn complaint may be upon information and belief, and in addition to the allegation that the child is delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, dependent, or a juvenile traffic offender, the complaint shall allege the particular facts upon which the allegation of delinquency, unruliness, abuse, neglect, dependency, or juvenile traffic offender is based.

(B) Whenever a child, before arriving at the age of eighteen years, allegedly commits an act for which he may be adjudged delinquent, unruly, or a juvenile traffic offender, and the specific complaint alleging the act is not filed or a hearing is not held until after the child arrives at the age of eighteen years, the court has jurisdiction to hear and dispose of the complaint, as if the complaint were filed and hearing held before the child arrived at the age of eighteen years.

(C) If the complainant in an abuse, neglect, or dependency case desires permanent custody of the child or children, the complaint shall contain a prayer specifically requesting permanent custody.

(D) For purposes of the record to be maintained by the clerk under division (B) of section 2151.18 of the Revised Code, when a complaint is filed that alleges that a child is delinquent, the court shall determine if the victim of the alleged delinquent act was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled at the time of the alleged commission of the act.

CASE NOTES AND OAC

1. (1982) In actions brought pursuant to RC §§ 2151.27 and 2151.03, the state's primary objective is not to decide conflicting claims to custody; its objective is to determine if a child is receiving proper parental care, and if that care is being provided by a relative pursuant to an agreement initiated by the child's parent, then the child is not a neglected child: In re Reese, 4 OApp3d 59, 4 OBR 109, 446 NE2d 482.

2. (1983) In proving its case in a neglect and dependency proceeding, the state is not limited to those faults and habits of the custodial parent which are specifically listed in the complaint. It is not the intent of JuvR 10(B) to force a complainant to state in the complaint every fact surrounding each incident described: In re Sims, 13 OApp3d 37, 13 OBR 40, 468 NE2d 111.

3. (1984) Even though a complaining witness may designate a particular statute or statutes as being violated by a child, a juvenile court is free to find, on the basis of the facts alleged and proved, a violation of an additional statute and that the accused is a delinquent child: In re Burgess, 13 OApp3d 374, 13 OBR 456, 469 NE2d 914.

The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of a child in any proceeding concerning an alleged or adjudicated delinquent or unruly child when:

(A) The child has no parent, guardian, or legal custodian;

(B) The court finds that there is a conflict of interest between the child and his parent, guardian, or legal custodian.

The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of a child in any proceeding concerning an alleged abused or neglected child, and in any proceeding held pursuant to section 2151.414 [2151.41.4] of the Revised Code. The guardian ad litem so appointed shall not be the attorney responsible for presenting the evidence alleging child abuse and neglect.

In any proceeding concerning an alleged or adjudicated delinquent, unruly, abused, neglected, or dependent child where the parent appears to be mentally incompetent or is under eighteen years of age, the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interest of such parent.

The court shall require such guardian ad litem to faithfully discharge his duties, and upon his failure to do so shall discharge him and appoint another. The court may fix compensation for the service of the guardian ad litem which shall be paid from the treasury of the county.

A parent who is eighteen years of age or older and not mentally incompetent shall be deemed sui juris for the purpose of any proceeding relative to his child alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child.

In any case wherein a parent of a child alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child is under eighteen years of age, the parents of said parent shall be summoned to appear at any hearing respecting the alleged or adjudicated to be an abused, neglected, or dependent child.

A child may be taken into custody:

(A) Pursuant to an order of the court under this chapter;

(B) Pursuant to the laws of arrest;

(C) By a law enforcement officer or duly authorized officer of the court when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child is suffering from illness or injury and is not receiving proper care, as defined in section 2151.03 of the Revised Code, or is in immediate danger from his surroundings, and that his removal is necessary;

(D) By an enforcement official, as defined in section 4109.01 of the Revised Code, under the circumstances set forth in section 4109.08 of the Revised Code;

(E) By a law enforcement officer or duly authorized officer of the court when there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child has run away from his parents, guardian, or other custodian.

Taking a child into custody shall not be deemed an arrest except for the purpose of determining its validity under the constitution of this state or of the United States.

A child taken into custody shall not be detained or placed in shelter care prior to the hearing on the complaint unless his detention or care is required to protect the person and property of others or those of the child, or because the child may abscond or be removed from the jurisdiction of the court, or because he has no parents, guardian, or custodian or other person able to provide supervision and care for him and return him to the court when required, or because an order for his detention or shelter care has been made by the court pursuant to this chapter.

(A) A child alleged to be delinquent, unruly, or a juvenile traffic offender may be detained only in the following places:

(1) A certified foster home or a home approved by the court;

(2) A facility operated by a certified child welfare agency;

(3) A detention home or center for delinquent children which is under the direction or supervision of the court or other public authority or of a private agency and approved by the court;

(4) Any other suitable place designated by the court.

A child may be detained in jail or another facility for detention of adults only if the facility described in division (A)(3) of this section is not available and the detention is in a room separate and removed from those for adults. The court may order that a child over the age of fifteen years be detained in a jail in a room separate and removed from adults if public safety and protection reasonably require such detention.

The official in charge of a jail or other facility for the detention of adult offenders or persons charged with crime shall inform the court immediately when a child, who is or appears to be under the age of eighteen years, is received at the facility, and shall deliver him to the court upon request, or transfer him to a detention facility designated by the court.

If a case is transferred to another court for criminal prosecution, the child may be transferred to the appropriate officer or detention facility in accordance with the law governing the detention of persons charged with crime.

(B) Notwithstanding division (A) of this section, no child shall be placed in or committed to any adult jail or other facility for the detention of adults unless a facility described in division (A)(3) of this section is not available and then only if such child is over fifteen years of age, the public safety and protection requires that the detention be in such a place, and the detention is in a room totally separate by both sight and sound from all adult detainees.

(C) A child alleged to be neglected, abused, or dependent shall not be detained in a jail or other facility intended or used for the detention of adults charged with criminal offenses or of children alleged to be delinquent unless upon order of the court.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) There is no authority for a juvenile court to commit a delinquent juvenile to a jail for adult offenders, absent a finding that housing in an appropriate juvenile facility is unavailable, or that the public safety and protection so require: State v. Grady, 3 OApp3d 174, 3 OBR 199, 444 NE2d 51.

2. (1984) Juveniles sent to an adult jail and detained in a facility unequipped to provide individual treatment and counselling are deprived of due process. Such incarceration made for the sole purpose of frightening them and directing them away from a life of crime violates their eighth amendment rights: Doe v. McFaul, 599 FSupp 1421 (N.D.)

[§ 2151.31.3] § 2151.313 Fingerprints and photographs.

(A)(1) Except as provided in division (A)(2) of this section, no child shall be fingerprinted or photographed in the investigation of any violation of law without the consent of the juvenile judge.

(2) Fingerprints and photographs of a child may be taken by law enforcement officers when the child is arrested or otherwise taken into custody for the commission of an act that would be a felony if committed by an adult, without the consent of the juvenile judge, when there is probable cause to believe that the child may have been involved in the commission of the act. A law enforcement officer who takes fingerprints or photographs of a child under this division immediately shall inform the juvenile court that the fingerprints or photographs were taken, and shall provide the court with the identity of the child, the number of fingerprints and photographs taken, and the name and address of each person who has custody and control of the fingerprints or photographs or copies of the fingerprints or photographs.

(B)(1) Subject to division (B)(2) of this section, fingerprint and photographs of a child obtained or taken under division (A)(1) or (2) of this section, and any records of the arrest or custody that was the basis for the taking of the fingerprints or photographs, initially may be retained only until the expiration of thirty days after the date taken, except that the court may limit the initial retention of fingerprints and photographs obtained under division (A)(1) of this section to a shorter period of time. During the initial period of retention, the fingerprints and photographs, copies of the fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody shall be used or released only in accordance with division (C) of this section. At the expiration of the initial period for which fingerprints and photographs, copies of fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody of a child may be retained under this division, if no complaint is pending against the child in relation to the act for which any such fingerprints and photographs originally were obtained or taken and if the child has neither been adjudicated delinquent in relation to that act nor been convicted of or pleaded guilty to a criminal offense based on that act subsequent to a transfer of the child's case for criminal prosecution pursuant to section 2151.26 of the Revised Code, the fingerprints and photographs, all copies of the fingerprints and photographs, and all records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the fingerprints and photographs shall be removed from the file and delivered to the juvenile court. If, at the end of the initial period, such a complaint is pending against the child or the child either has been adjudicated delinquent in relation to the act or has been convicted of or pleaded guilty to a criminal offense based on the act subsequent to transfer of the child's case, the fingerprints and photographs, copies of the fingerprints and photographs, and the records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the fingerprints and photographs may further be retained, subject to division (B)(2) of this section, until the expiration of two years after the date on which the fingerprints or photographs were taken or until the child attains eighteen years of age, whichever is earlier.

During this additional period of retention, the fingerprints and photographs, copies of the fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody shall be used or released only in accordance with division (C) of this section. At the expiration of the additional period, if no complaint is pending against the child in relation to the act for which any such fingerprints originally were obtained or taken or in relation to any other act for which the fingerprints were used in an investigation authorized by division (C) of this section and that would be a felony if committed by an adult, the fingerprints, all copies of the fingerprints, and all records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the fingerprints shall be removed from the file and delivered to the juvenile court, and if no complaint is pending against the child concerning the act for which any such photographs originally were obtained or taken or concerning a similar act that would be a felony if committed by an adult, the photographs and all copies of the photographs, and, if no fingerprints were taken at the time the photographs were taken, all records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the photographs shall be removed from the file and delivered to the juvenile court. In either case, if, at the expiration of the applicable additional period, such a complaint is pending against the child, the photographs and copies of the photographs, or the fingerprints and copies of the fingerprints, whichever is applicable, and the records of the arrest or custody may be retained, subject to division (B)(2) of this section, until final disposition of the complaint, and upon final disposition of the complaint, they shall be removed from the file and delivered to the juvenile court.

(2) If a sealing or expungement order issued under section 2151.358 [2151.35.8] of the Revised Code requires the sealing or destruction of any fingerprints or photographs of a child obtained or taken under division (A)(1) or (2) of this section or of the records of an arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of any such fingerprints or photographs prior to the expiration of any period for which they otherwise could be retained under division (B)(1) of this section, the fingerprints, photographs, and arrest or custody records that are subject to the order and all copies of the fingerprints, photographs, and arrest or custody records shall be sealed or destroyed in accordance with the order.

(3) All fingerprints, photographs, records of an arrest or custody, and copies delivered to a juvenile court in accordance with division (B)(1) of this section shall be destroyed by the court.

(C) Until they are delivered to the juvenile court or sealed or destroyed pursuant to a sealing or expungement order, the originals and copies of fingerprints, and photographs of a child that are obtained or taken pursuant to division (A)(1) or (2) of this section, and the records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the fingerprints or photographs shall be used or released only as follows:

(1) During the initial thirty-day period of retention, originals and copies of fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody shall be used, prior to the filing of a complaint against the child in relation to the act for which the fingerprints and photographs were originally obtained or taken, only for the investigation of that act, and shall be released, prior to the filing of such a complaint, only to a court that would have jurisdiction of the child's case under this chapter. Subsequent to the filing of such a complaint, originals and copies of fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody shall be used or released during the initial thirty-day period of retention only as provided in division (C)(2)(a), (b), or (c) of this section.

(2) Originals and copies of fingerprints and photographs, and records of the arrest or custody that are retained beyond the initial thirty-day period of retention subsequent to the filing of a complaint, an adjudication of delinquency, or a conviction of or guilty plea to a criminal offense shall be used or released only as follows:

(a) Originals and copies of photographs, and, if no fingerprints were taken at the time the photographs were taken, records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of any such photographs shall be used only for the investigation of the act for which they originally were obtained or taken or for the investigation of any similar act that would be a felony if committed by an adult;

(b) Originals and copies of fingerprints, and records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of any such fingerprints shall be used only for the investigation of the act for which they originally were obtained or taken or for the investigation of any other act that would be a felony if committed by an adult;

(c) Originals and copies of fingerprints, photographs, and records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of the fingerprints or photographs shall be released only to:

(i) Law enforcement officers of this state or a political subdivision of this state, upon notification to the juvenile court of the name and address of the law enforcement officer or agency to whom or to which they will be released;

(ii) A court that has jurisdiction of the child's case under Chapter 2151. of the Revised Code or subsequent to a transfer of the child's case for criminal prosecution pursuant to section 2151.26 of the Revised Code.

(D) No person shall knowingly do any of the following:

(1) Fingerprint or photograph a child in the investigation of any violation of law other than as provided in division (A)(1) or (2) of this section;

(2) Retain fingerprints or photographs of a child obtained or taken under division (A)(1) or (2) of this section, copies of any such fingerprints or photographs, or records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of any such fingerprints or photographs other than in accordance with division (B) of this section;

(3) Use or release fingerprints or photographs of a child obtained or taken under division (A)(1) or (2) of this section, copies of any such fingerprints or photographs, or records of the arrest or custody that was the basis of the taking of any such fingerprints or photographs other than in accordance with division (B) or (C) of this section.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Revised Code §§ 2151.412 and 2151.414 are applicable only where the child or children have previously been determined dependent, neglected or abused, their temporary custody has been committed to a children services board, a welfare department or a certified organization, and an order is sought changing temporary to permanent custody. These sections are not applicable where the original request was for permanent custody, and an order of temporary custody was issued pending hearing on the complaint as provided by RC § 2151.33: In re Covert, 17 OApp3d 122, 17 OBR 185, 477 NE2d 678.

§ 2151.34 Treatment of children in custody; detention home.

No child under eighteen years of age shall be placed in or committed to any prison, jail, or lockup, nor shall such child be brought into any police station, vehicle, or other place where the child can come in contact or communication with any adult convicted of crime or under arrest and charged with crime. A child may be confined in a place of juvenile detention for a period not to exceed ninety days, during which time a social history may be prepared to include court record, family history, personal history, school and attendance records, and such other pertinent studies and material as will be of assistance to the juvenile court in its disposition of the charges against such juvenile offenders.

Upon the advice and recommendation of the judge, the board of county commissioners shall provide, by purchase, lease, construction, or otherwise, a place to be known as a detention home, which shall be within a convenient distance of the juvenile court, and not used for the confinement of adult persons charged with criminal offenses, where delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused children, or juvenile traffic offenders may be detained until final disposition. Upon the joint advice and recommendation of the juvenile judges of two or more adjoining or neighboring counties, the boards of county commissioners of the counties shall form themselves into a joint board, and proceed to organize a district for the establishment and support of a detention home for the use of the juvenile courts of those counties, where delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused children, or juvenile traffic offenders may be detained until final disposition, by using a site or buildings already established in one of the counties, or by providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of the necessary buildings thereon.

The county or district detention home shall be maintained as provided in sections 2151.01 to 2151.54 of the Revised Code. In any county in which there is no detention home, or which is not served by a district detention home, the board of county commissioners shall provide funds for the boarding of such children temporarily in private homes. Children who are alleged to be or have been adjudged delinquent, unruly, dependent, neglected, abused, or juvenile traffic offenders, may, after complaint is filed, be detained in the detention home or certified foster homes until final disposition of their case. The court may arrange for the boarding of such children in certified foster homes or in uncertified foster homes for a period not exceeding sixty days, subject to the supervision of the court, or may arrange with any county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, or certified organization to receive for temporary care children within the jurisdiction of the court. A district detention home approved for such purpose by the department of youth services under section 5139.281 [5139.28.1] of the Revised Code may receive children committed to its temporary custody under section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code and provide the care, treatment, and training required.

In case a detention home is established as an agency of the court, or a district detention home is established by the courts of several counties as hereinbefore provided, it shall be furnished and carried on, as far as possible, as a family home in charge of a superintendent or matron in a non-punitive neutral atmosphere. The judge, or the directing board of a district detention home, may appoint a superintendent, a matron, and other necessary employees for such home and fix their salaries. During the school year, when possible, a comparable educational program with competent and trained staff shall be provided for those children of school age. A sufficient number of trained recreational personnel shall be included among the staff to assure wholesome and profitable leisure-time activities. Medical and mental health services shall be made available to insure the courts all possible treatment facilities shall be given to those children placed under their care. In the case of a county detention home, such salaries shall be paid in the same manner as is provided by section 2151.13 of the Revised Code for other employees of the court, and the necessary expenses incurred in maintaining such detention home shall be paid by the county. In the case of a district detention home, such salaries and the necessary expenses incurred in maintaining such detention home shall be paid as provided in sections 2151.341 [2151.34.1] to 2151.3415 [2151.34.15] of the Revised Code.

In case the court arranges for the board of children temporarily detained in such foster homes, or arranges for such board through any private certified organization, a reasonable sum to be fixed by the court for the board of such children shall be paid by the county. In order to have such foster homes available for service an agreed monthly subsidy may be paid and a fixed rate per day for care of children actually residing therein.

§ 2151.35 Hearing procedure; findings; record.

The juvenile court may conduct its hearings in an informal manner and may adjourn such hearings from time to time. In the hearing of any case, the general public may be excluded and only such persons admitted as have a direct interest in the case.

All cases involving children shall be heard separately and apart from the trial of cases against adults. The court may excuse the attendance of the child at the hearing in cases involving abused, neglected, or dependent children. The court shall hear and determine all cases of children without a jury.

If the court finds from clear and convincing evidence that the child is an abused, neglected, or dependent child, or finds beyond a reasonable doubt that the child is a delinquent or unruly child or a juvenile traffic offender, the court shall proceed immediately, or at a postponed hearing, to hear the evidence as to the proper disposition to be made under sections 2151.352 [2151.35.2] to 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code. If the court does not so find, it shall order that the complaint be dismissed and that the child be discharged from any detention or restriction theretofore ordered.

A record of all testimony and other oral proceedings in juvenile court shall be made in all proceedings that are held pursuant to section 2151.414 [2151.41.4] of the Revised Code or in which an order or disposition may be made pursuant to division (A)(4) of section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code, and shall be made upon request in any other proceedings. 1. (1979) The conduct of a parent is relevant under the terms of RC § 2151.35 solely insofar as that parent's conduct forms a part of the environment of the child. As a part of the child's environment such conduct is only significant if it can be demonstrated to have an adverse impact upon the child sufficient to warrant state intervention. That impact cannot be simply inferred in general, but must be specifically demonstrated in a clear and convincing manner: In re Burrell, 58 OS2d 37, 12 OO3d 43, 388 NE2d 738.

3. (1982) An agreement by a parent with the welfare department for permanent surrender of a child prior to consent of the juvenile court is not only revocable by the parent prior to consent of the juvenile court, but such revocation also operates to dissolve the offer to surrender: In re Williams, 7 OApp3d 324, 7 OBR 421, 455 NE2d 1027.

4. (1985) In proceedings where parental rights are subject to termination, both the Juvenile Rules and the Revised Code prescribe that such proceedings be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional hearings (RC § 2151.35 and JuvR 29 and 34, construed and applied.): In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

6. (1984) In an action seeking a determination of dependency and neglect and an order of permanent custody of a child, the statutes of Ohio make no exception to the privilege attaching to the communications between psychiatrist and patient, psychologist and patient (or client), and to the privilege, if it exists, between social workers employed in the office of the psychiatrist and psychologist and client: In re Decker, 20 OApp3d 203, 20 OBR 248, 485 NE2d 751.

[§ 2151.35.3] § 2151.353 [Disposition of abused, neglected or dependent child.]

(A) If the child is adjudged an abused, neglected, or dependent child, the court may make any of the following orders of disposition:

(1) Permit the child to remain with his parents, guardian, or other custodian, subject to such conditions and limitations as the court prescribes, including supervision as directed by the court for the protection of the child;

(2) Commit the child to the temporary custody of the department of public welfare, a county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, any other certified organization, either parent or a relative residing within or outside the state, or a probation officer for placement in a certified foster home;

(3) Commit the child to the temporary custody of any institution or agency in this state or another state authorized and qualified to provide the care, treatment, or placement that the child requires;

(4) Commit the child to the permanent custody of the county department of welfare which has assumed the administration of child welfare, county children services board, or to any other certified organization, if the court determines that the parents have acted in such a manner that the child is a child without adequate parental care, it is likely that the parents would continue to act in such a manner that the child will continue to be a child without adequate parental care if a reunification plan were prepared pursuant to section 2151.412 [2151.41.2] of the Revised Code, and the permanent commitment is in the best interests of the child. If the court grants permanent custody under this division, the court, upon the request of any party, shall file a written opinion setting forth its findings of fact and conclusions of law in relation to the proceeding.

(B) No order for permanent custody shall be made at the hearing at which the child is adjudicated abused, neglected, or dependent except and unless the complaint alleging the abuse, neglect, or dependency contains a prayer requesting permanent custody and the summons served on the parents contains a full explanation that the granting of an order for permanent custody permanently divests them of their parental rights and contains a full explanation of their right to be represented by counsel and to have counsel appointed pursuant to Chapter 120. of the Revised Code if they are indigent.

If after making disposition as authorized by division (A)(2) or (3) of this section, a motion is filed in accordance with section 2151.413 [2151.41.3] of the Revised Code, which motion requests permanent custody of the child, the court may grant permanent custody of the child to the movant in accordance with section 2151.414 [2151.41.4] of the Revised Code.

(C) No order of temporary custody shall be made unless the summons served on the parents contains a statement that an adjudication of abuse, neglect, or dependency may result in an order of temporary custody, a full explanation that the granting of an order of temporary custody will cause the removal of the child from their legal custody until the court terminates the order of temporary custody or permanently divests them of their parental rights, and a full explanation of their right to be represented by counsel and to have counsel appointed pursuant to Chapter 120. of the Revised Code if they are indigent.

2. 3. (1978) Where the evidence shows that to return a child to her natural parent would be clearly detrimental to the child, such child is a "dependent child" under RC § 2151.04(C) and the court is authorized to commit the child permanently to the Children's Services Board under RC § 2151.35.3(D), even though the parent might be capable of giving proper care and support to other children: In re Justice, 59 OApp2d 78, 13 OO3d 139, 392 NE2d 897.

5. (1979) A finding of parental unfitness is not a mandatory prerequisite to an award of permanent custody to a child welfare agency, although it may enter into a consideration of the child's "best interests." Consideration of "best interests" should not enter into the initial step of adjudicating dependency: In re Cunningham, 59 OS2d 100, 13 OO3d 78, 391 NE2d 1034.

6. (1983) Due process does not require a formal and full-blown adversary hearing in every case involving constitutionally protected liberty or property interests; therefore, the Hamilton County Welfare Department is not required to disclose the identity of persons who complain about parental misconduct, where the welfare department has temporary legal custody of the child and the parent, who has physical custody, is effectively notified of the charges against her and is provided a hearing to confront those charges: Doe v. Staples, 706 F2d 985 (6th Cir).

7. (1983) In cases involving children in the temporary legal custody of the Hamilton County Welfare Department, when removal from a natural parent is deemed appropriate by the welfare department, due process requires that parents be given notice prior to removal, with reasons for the removal, and that parents be afforded full opportunity at a hearing to present witnesses and evidence and have a right to a retained attorney, and that the hearing be conducted by a neutral and detached hearing officer who is to state in writing the decision reached and the reasons therefore: Doe v. Staples, 706 F2d 985 (6th Cir).

8. (1982) In a case in which a social welfare agency moves for permanent custody of a child for adoptive placement, if the record reveals that the non-custodial parent has maintained a continuing interest in his or her child's welfare, RC § 2151.41.2(C) places a mandatory duty on the social welfare agency to prepare a comprehensive reunification plan for that non-custodial parent: In re Ball, 5 OApp3d 56, 5 OBR 152, 449 NE2d 490.

9. (1982) Neither RC § 2151.04 nor 2151.35.3 is unconstitutionally broad or vague: In re Williams, 7 OApp3d 324, 7 OBR 421, 455 NE2d 1027.

10. (1984) Parents do not have a constitutional right to counsel at temporary custody proceedings: Beard v. Williams Cty. Dept. of Social Services, 12 OS3d 40, 12 OBR 35, 465 NE2d 397.

11. (1982) Revised Code § 2151.41.4(A) lists numerous determinations to be made by the juvenile court during a hearing upon a motion for permanent custody, but the statute does not require these determinations to be listed in the court's judgment entry, and thus, the failure to do so is not error. Such determinations would be appropriately included within the court's findings of fact and conclusions of law, if they were requested by any of the parties pursuant to RC § 2151.41.4(B): In re Covin, 8 OApp3d 139, 8 OBR 196, 456 NE2d 520.

12. (1983) In conducting the adjudicatory phase of the hearing under RC § 2151.41.4, the best interests of the child should not enter into the determination of whether the child is receiving adequate parental care. The focus, at this stage, is on the parents and on what they are providing in terms of food, shelter and care, as well as what they are capable of providing in the future: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

13. (1983) Hearsay is not admissible in adversarial juvenile court proceedings at which a parent, charged with neglecting his or her children, may lose custody of the children: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

14. (1984) When a case concerning a child is transferred or certified from another court, the certification from the transferring court is deemed to be the complaint: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

15. (1984) Such certification does not constitute a complaint in the juvenile court that such child is neglected, dependent or abused and those dispositions provided for under RC § 2151.35.3 pertaining to neglected, dependent or abused children, including an award of permanent custody to a county welfare department which has assumed the administration of child welfare, are not applicable to such a child, disposition thereof being subject to and controlled by RC § 3109.04: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

16. (1984) Any time a dependent child is temporarily placed with someone other than a parent, a reunification plan should be formulated. In cases where the child is placed with a relative, pursuant to RC § 2151.353(A)(2), the court should formulate the reunification plan itself or appoint an agency with some expertise in the area to formulate one: In re Patterson, 16 OApp3d 214, 16 OBR 229, 475 NE2d 160.

17. (1985) Revised Code § 2151.412 does not require a juvenile court to order a reunification plan when it makes a dispositional order pursuant to RC § 2151.353(A)(4): In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

[§ 2151.35.5] § 2151.355 Disposition of delinquent child.

(A) If a child is found by the court to be a delinquent child, the court may make any of the following orders of disposition:

(1) Any order that is authorized by section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code;

(2) Place the child on probation under any conditions that the court prescribes. If the child is adjudicated a delinquent child because he violated section 2909.05, 2909.06, or 2909.07 of the Revised Code and if restitution is appropriate under the circumstances of the case, the court shall require the child to make restitution for the property damage caused by his violation as a condition of the child's probation. If the child is adjudicated a delinquent child because he violated any other section of the Revised Code, the court may require the child as a condition of his probation to make restitution for the property damage caused by his violation and for the value of the property that was the subject of the violation he committed, if it would be a theft offense, as defined in division (K) of section 2913.01 of the Revised Code, if committed by an adult. The restitution may be in the form of a cash reimbursement paid in a lump sum or in installments, the performance of repair work to restore any damaged property to its original condition, the performance of a reasonable amount of labor for the victim approximately equal to the value of the property damage caused by his violation or to the value of the property that is the subject of the violation if it would be a theft offense if committed by an adult, the performance of community service or community work, any other form of restitution devised by the court, or any combination of the previously described forms of restitution.

(3) Commit the child to the temporary custody of any school, camp, institution, or other facility for delinquent children operated for the care of delinquent children by the county, by a district organized under section 2151.34 or 2151.65 of the Revised Code, or by a private agency or organization, within or without the state, that is authorized and qualified to provide the care, treatment, or placement required;

(4) If the child was adjudicated delinquent by reason of having committed an act that would be an aggravated felony of the third degree or a felony of the third or fourth degree if committed by an adult, commit the child to the legal custody of the department of youth services for institutionalization for an indefinite term consisting of a minimum period of six months and a maximum period not to exceed the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years;

(5) If the child was adjudicated delinquent by reason of having committed an act that would be an aggravated felony of the first or second degree or a felony of the first or second degree if committed by an adult, commit the child to the legal custody of the department of youth services for institutionalization in a secure facility for an indefinite term consisting of a minimum period of one year and a maximum period not to exceed the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years;

(6) If the child was adjudicated delinquent by reason of having committed an act that would be the offense of murder or aggravated murder if committed by an adult, commit the child to the legal custody of the department of youth services for institutionalization in a secure facility until the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years;

(7) Impose a fine not to exceed fifty dollars and costs;

(8) Require the child to make restitution for all or part of the property damage caused by his delinquent act and for all or part of the value of the property that was the subject of any delinquent act that he committed and that would be a theft offense, as defined in division (K) of section 2913.01 of the Revised Code, if committed by an adult. If the court determines that the victim of the child's delinquent act was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled at the time of the commission of the act, the court shall, regardless of whether or not the child knew the age of the victim, consider this fact in favor of imposing restitution, but that fact shall not control the decision of the court. The restitution may be in the form of a cash reimbursement paid in a lump sum or in installments, the performance of repair work to restore any damaged property to its original condition, the performance of a reasonable amount of labor for the victim, the performance of community service or community work, any other form of restitution devised by the court, or any combination of the previously described forms of restitution.

(9) Suspend or revoke the operator's license issued to the child, or suspend or revoke the registration of all motor vehicles registered in the name of the child;

(10) Make any further disposition that the court finds proper.

(B) At the dispositional hearing and prior to making any disposition pursuant to division (A) of this section, the court shall determine whether the victim of the delinquent act committed by the child was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled at the time the delinquent act was committed and whether the delinquent act would have been an offense of violence if committed by an adult. If the victim was sixty-five years of age or older or permanently and totally disabled at the time the act was committed, regardless of whether or not the child knew the age of the victim, and if the act would have been an offense of violence if committed by an adult, the court shall consider these facts in favor of imposing commitment under division (A)(3), (4), (5), or (6) of this section, but these facts shall not control the court's decision.

(C)(1) When a juvenile court commits a delinquent child to the custody of the department of youth services pursuant to this section, the court shall not designate the specific institution in which the child is to be placed by the department, but instead shall specify that the child is to be institutionalized or that the institutionalization is to be in a secure facility if that is required by division (A) of this section.

(2) When a juvenile court commits a delinquent child to the custody of the department of youth services, the court shall provide the department with the child's social history, medical records, section or sections of the Revised Code violated and the degree of the violation, and any other records of the child that the department reasonably requests. The court at that time also shall give notice to the school attended by the child of the child's commitment by sending to that school a copy of the court's journal entry ordering the commitment. As soon as possible after receipt of the notice described in this section, the school shall provide the department of youth services with the child's school transcript. However, the department shall not refuse to accept a child committed to it, nor shall a child committed to it be held in a county or district detention home because of the court's failure to provide the records it is required to provide under this division or because of a school's failure to provide the records it is required to provide under this division. The department of youth services shall provide the court and the school with an updated copy of the child's school transcript and shall provide the court with a summary of the institutional record of the child when it releases the child from institutional care. The department also shall provide the court with a copy of any portion of the child's institutional record that the court specifically requests within five working days of the request.

(D) At any hearing at which a child is adjudicated delinquent, or as soon as possible after the hearing, the court shall notify all victims of the delinquent act, who may be entitled to a recovery under any of the following sections, of the right of the victims to recover, pursuant to section 3109.09 of the Revised Code, compensatory damages from the child's parents; of the right of the victims to recover, pursuant to section 3109.10 of the Revised Code, compensatory damages from the child's parents for willful and malicious assaults committed by the child; and of the right of the victims to recover an award of reparations pursuant to sections 2743.51 to 2743.72 of the Revised Code.

[§ 2151.35.7] § 2151.357 [Cost.]

In the manner prescribed by division (C)(2) of section 3313.64 of the Revised Code, the court shall, at the time of making any order that removes a child from his own home or that vests legal or permanent custody of the child in a person or government agency other than his parent, determine the school district that is to bear the cost of educating the child. Whenever a child is placed in a detention home established under section 2151.34 of the Revised Code or a juvenile facility established under section 2151.65 of the Revised Code, his school district as determined by the court shall pay the cost of educating the child based on the per capita cost of the educational facility within such detention home or juvenile facility. Whenever a child is placed by the court in a private institution, school, residential treatment center, or other private facility, the state shall pay to the court a subsidy to help defray the expense of educating the child in an amount equal to the product of the daily per capita educational cost of such facility and the number of days the child resides at the facility, provided that such subsidy shall not exceed five hundred dollars per year. The subsidy shall be paid quarterly to the court.

[§ 2151.35.8] § 2151.358 [Sealing, expungement of records.]

(A) As used in this section, "seal a record" means to remove a record from the main file of similar records and to secure it in a separate file that contains only sealed records and that is accessible only to the juvenile court. A record that is sealed shall be destroyed by all persons and governmental bodies except the juvenile court.

(B) The department of youth services and any other institution or facility that unconditionally discharges a person who has been adjudicated a delinquent or unruly child shall immediately give notice of the discharge to the court that committed the person. The court shall note the date of discharge on a separate record of such discharges.

(C) Two years after the termination of any order made by the court or two years after the unconditional discharge of a person from the department of youth services or other institution or facility to which the person may have been committed, the court that issued the order or committed the person shall:

(1) If the person was adjudicated an unruly child, order the record of the person sealed;

(2) If the person was adjudicated a delinquent child, either order the record of the person sealed or send the person notice of his right to have his record sealed.

The court shall send the notice within ninety days after the expiration of the two-year period by certified mail to the person at his last known address. The notice shall state that the person may apply to the court for an order to seal his record, explain what sealing a record means, and explain the possible consequences of not having his record sealed.

(D) At any time after the two-year period has elapsed, any person who has been adjudicated an unruly or delinquent child may apply to the court for an order to seal his record. The court shall hold a hearing on each application within sixty days after the application is received. Notice of the hearing on the application shall be given to the prosecuting attorney and to any other public office or agency known to have a record of the prior adjudication. If the court finds that the rehabilitation of the person who was adjudicated a delinquent child has been attained to a satisfactory degree, the court may order the record of the person sealed.

(E) If the court orders the adjudication record of a person sealed pursuant to division (C) or (D) of this section, the court shall order that the proceedings in the case in which the person was adjudicated a delinquent or unruly child be deemed never to have occurred. All index references to the case and the person shall be deleted and the person and the court may properly reply that no record exists with respect to the person upon any inquiry in the matter. Inspection of records that have been ordered sealed may be permitted by the court only upon application by the person who is the subject of the sealed records and only by the persons that are named in his application.

(F) Any person who has been arrested and charged with being a delinquent child, and who is adjudicated not guilty of the charges against him in the case or who has the charges against him in the case dismissed, may apply to the court for an expungement of his record in the case. The application may be filed at any time after the person is adjudicated not guilty or the charges against the person are dismissed. The court shall give notice to the prosecuting attorney of any hearing on the application. The court may initiate the expungement proceedings on its own motion.

Any person who has been arrested and charged with being an unruly child, and who is adjudicated not guilty of the charges against him in the case or who has the charges against him in the case dismissed, may apply to the court for an expungement of his record. The court shall initiate the expungement proceedings on its own motion if an application for expungement is not filed.

If the court upon receipt of an application for expungement or upon its own motion determines that the charges against any person in any case were dismissed or that any person was adjudicated not guilty in any case, the court shall order that the records of the case be expunged and that the proceedings in the case be deemed never to have occurred. If the applicant for the expungement order, with the written consent of his parents or guardian if he is a minor and with the written approval of the court, waives in writing his right to bring any civil action based on the arrest for which the expungement order is applied, the court shall order the appropriate persons and governmental agencies to delete all index references to the case; destroy or delete all court records of the case; destroy all copies of any pictures and fingerprints taken of the person pursuant to the expunged arrest; and destroy, erase, or delete any reference to the arrest that is maintained by the state or any political subdivision of the state, except a record of the arrest that is maintained for compiling statistical data and that does not contain any reference to the person.

If the applicant for an expungement order does not waive in writing his right to bring any civil action based on the arrest for which the expungement order is applied, the court shall, in addition to ordering the deletion, destruction, or erasure of all index references and court records of the case and of all references to the arrest that are maintained by the state or any political subdivision of the state, order that a copy of all records of the case except fingerprints held by the court or a law enforcement agency be delivered to the court. The court shall seal all of the records delivered to the court in a separate file in which only sealed records are maintained. The sealed records shall be kept by the court until the statute of limitations expires for any civil action based on the arrest, any pending litigation based on the arrest is terminated, or the applicant files a written waiver of his right to bring a civil action based on the arrest. After the expiration of the statute of limitations, the termination of the pending litigation, or the filing of the waiver, the court shall destroy the sealed records.

After the expungement order has been issued, the court shall, and the person may properly, reply that no record of the case with respect to the person exists.

(G) The court shall send notice of the order to expunge or seal to any public office or agency that the court has reason to believe may have a record of the expunged or sealed record. An order to seal or expunge under this section applies to every public office or agency that has a record of the prior adjudication or arrest, regardless of whether it receives notice of the hearing on the expungement or sealing of the record or a copy of the order to expunge or seal the record. Upon the written request of a person whose record has been expunged or sealed and the presentation of a copy of the order to expunge or seal, a public office or agency shall destroy its record of the prior adjudication or arrest, except a record of the adjudication or arrest that is maintained for compiling statistical data and that does not contain any reference to the person who is the subject of the order to expunge or seal.

(H) The judgment rendered by the court under this chapter shall not impose any of the civil disabilities ordinarily imposed by conviction of a crime in that the child is not a criminal by reason of the adjudication, nor shall any child be charged or convicted of a crime in any court except as provided by this chapter. The disposition of a child under the judgment rendered or any evidence given in court is not admissible as evidence against the child in any other case or proceeding in any other court, except that the judgment rendered and the disposition of the child may be considered by any court only as to the matter of sentence or to the granting of probation. The disposition or evidence shall not operate to disqualify a child in any future civil service examination, appointment, or application.

(I) In any application for employment, license, or other right or privilege, any appearance as a witness, or any other inquiry, a person may not be questioned with respect to any arrest for which the records were expunged. If an inquiry is made in violation of this division, the person may respond as if the expunged arrest did not occur, and the person shall not be subject to any adverse action because of the arrest or the response.

(J) An officer or employer of the state or any of its political subdivisions who knowingly releases, disseminates, or makes available for any purpose involving employment, bonding, licensing, or education to any person or to any department, agency, or other instrumentality of the state, or of any of its political subdivisions, any information or other data concerning any arrest, complaint, trial, hearing, adjudication, or correctional supervision, the records of which have been expunged or sealed pursuant to this section, is guilty of divulging confidential information, a misdemeanor of the fourth degree.

1. (1976) Evidence of acts by a defendant, which is otherwise admissible under RC § 2945.59 and which does not constitute part of a disposition or evidence given in court, is not barred by RC § 2151.35.8, even though the evidence tends to show the commission of another crime by the defendant when a juvenile: *State v. 2. O-Jur2d: Juv Cts § 21

§ 2151.38 [Custody of child; early release.]

(A) When a child is committed to the legal custody of the department of youth services, committed to the permanent custody of a county department of welfare that has assumed the administration of child welfare, a county children services board, or a certified organization, or committed pursuant to division (A)(4) of section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] or 2151.414 [2151.41.4] of the Revised Code, the jurisdiction of the juvenile court in respect to the child so committed shall cease and terminate at the time of commitment, except as provided in divisions (B) and (C) of this section and except that if the department of youth services or any county department, board, or certified organization having permanent custody makes a motion to the court for the termination of permanent custody, the court upon the motion, after notice and hearing and for good cause shown, may terminate permanent custody at any time prior to the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years. The court shall make disposition of the matter in whatever manner will serve the best interests of the child. All other commitments made by the court shall be temporary and shall continue for a period that is designated by the court in its order, until terminated or modified by the court, or until a child attains the age of twenty-one years.

(B)(1) If a child is committed to the department of youth services pursuant to division (A)(4) or (5) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code, the department shall not release the child from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, and as a result shall not discharge the child, order his release on parole, or assign him to a family home, group care facility, or other place for treatment or rehabilitation, prior to the expiration of the prescribed minimum periods of institutionalization unless the department, the child, or the child's parent requests an early release from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, from the court that committed the child and the court approves the early release in a journal entry, or unless the court on its own motion grants an early release. A request for early release by the department, the child, or the child's parent shall be made only in accordance with division (B)(2) of this section.

If a child is committed to the department of youth services pursuant to division (A)(6) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code, the department shall not release the child from institutional care in a secure facility, and as a result shall not discharge the child, order his release on parole, or assign him to a family home, group care facility or other place for treatment or rehabilitation, prior to the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years unless the department, the child, or the child's parent requests an early release from institutional care in a secure facility from the court that committed the child and the court approves the early release in a journal entry, or unless the court on its own motion grants an early release. A request for early release by the department, the child, or the child's parent shall be made only in accordance with division (B)(2) of this section.

(2)(a) If the department of youth services desires to release a child committed to it pursuant to division (A)(4) or (5) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, prior to the expiration of the prescribed minimum periods of institutionalization or if it desires to release a child committed to it pursuant to division (A)(6) of that section from institutional care in a secure facility prior to the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years, it shall request the court that committed the child for an early release from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable.

Upon receipt of a request for a child's early release filed by the department at any time, or upon its own motion at any time, the court that committed the child to the department shall either approve the early release from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, by journal entry or schedule a time within thirty days for a hearing on whether the child is to be released.

(b) If a child who has been committed to the department pursuant to division (A)(4), (5), or (6) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code or the parents of such a child seek his release from institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, prior to the expiration of the prescribed minimum period of institutionalization or prior to the child's attainment of the age of twenty-one years, whichever is applicable, the child or the child's parent shall request the court that committed the child to grant such an early release. No such request initially may be made prior to the expiration of thirty days from the day on which the child began his institutional care or institutional care in a secure facility, whichever is applicable. Upon the filing of such an initial request for early release, the court either shall approve the early release, by journal entry, shall schedule a time within thirty days for a hearing on whether the child is to be released, or shall reject the request without conducting a hearing. If an initial request for early release is rejected, the child or the child's parent may make one or more subsequent requests for early release, provided that no such request shall be made prior to the expiration of thirty days from the day on which a hearing was conducted on any previous request filed by the child or the child's parent, or, in relation to a request filed immediately after an initial request, prior to the expiration of thirty days from the day on which the initial request was rejected without hearing or the day on which a hearing was conducted on the initial request. Upon the filing of any request for early release subsequent to an initial request, the court shall either approve the early release, by journal entry, or schedule a time within thirty days for a hearing on whether the child is to be released.

(c) If a court schedules a hearing to determine whether a child committed to the department should be granted an early release, either upon receipt of a request filed by the department under division (B)(2)(a) of this section or filed by the child or the child's parent in accordance with the time periods prescribed in division (B)(2)(b) of this section, or upon its own motion, it shall order the department to deliver the child to the court on the date set for the hearing and present to the court at that time a treatment plan for the child's post-institutional care. The court shall determine at the hearing whether the child should be released from institutionalization or institutionalization in a secure facility, whichever is applicable. If the court approves the early release, the department shall prepare a written treatment and rehabilitation plan for the child pursuant to division (D) of this section, which shall include the terms and conditions of his release. It shall send the committing court and the juvenile court of the county in which the child is placed a copy of the plan and the terms and conditions that it fixed. The court of the county in which the child is placed may adopt the terms and conditions set by the department as an order of the court and may add any additional consistent terms and conditions it considers appropriate. If a child is released under this division and the court of the county in which the child is placed has reason to believe that the child has not deported himself in accordance with any post-release terms and conditions established by the court in its journal entry, the court of the county in which the child is placed shall schedule a time for a hearing on whether the child violated any of the post-release terms and conditions. If the court of the county in which the child is placed determines at the hearing that the child violated any of the post-release terms and conditions established by the court in its journal entry, the court may, if it determines that the violation of the terms and conditions was a serious violation, order the child to be returned to the department for institutionalization or institutionalization in a secure facility, consistent with the original order of commitment of the child, or in any case, may make any other disposition of the child authorized by law that the court considers proper. If the court of the county in which the child is placed orders the child to be returned to a department of youth services institution, the time during which the child was institutionalized or institutionalized in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, prior to his early release shall be considered as time served in fulfilling the prescribed minimum period of institutionalization or institutionalization in a secure facility that is applicable to the child under his original order of commitment. If the court orders the child returned to a department of youth services institution, the child shall remain in institutional care for a minimum period of three months.

(C) If a child is committed to the department of youth services pursuant to division (A)(4) or (5) of section 2151.355 [2151.35.5] of the Revised Code and the child has been institutionalized or institutionalized in a secure facility, whichever is applicable, for the prescribed minimum periods of time under those divisions, the department, without approval of the court that committed the child, may release the child from institutional care or discharge the child. If the department releases the child from institutional care and then orders his release on parole or assigns him to a family home, group care facility, or other place for treatment or rehabilitation, the department also shall prepare a written treatment and rehabilitation plan for the child pursuant to division (D) of this section, which shall include the terms and conditions of his release or assignment, and shall send the committing court and the juvenile court of the county in which the child is placed a copy of the plan and the terms and conditions that it fixed. The court of the county in which the child is placed may adopt the terms and conditions as an order of the court, and may add any additional consistent terms and conditions it considers appropriate. The release, discharge, release on parole, or assignment shall be in accordance with division (C) of section 5139.06 of the Revised Code. Upon notification of a pending release, discharge, release on parole, or assignment in accordance with that division, the committing court shall enter the notification in its journal. If a child is released on parole or is assigned subject to specified terms and conditions and the court of the county in which the child is placed has reason to believe that the child has not deported himself in accordance with any post-release terms and conditions established by the court in its journal entry, the court of the county in which the child is placed may, in its discretion, schedule a time for a hearing on whether the child violated any of the post-release terms and conditions. If the court of the county in which the child is placed conducts a hearing and determines at the hearing that the child violated any of the post-release terms and conditions established in its journal entry, the court may, if it determines that the violation of the terms and conditions was a serious violation, order the child to be returned to the department of youth services for institutionalization or in any case, may make any other disposition of the child authorized by law that the court considers proper. If the court of the county in which the child is placed orders the child to be returned to a department of youth services institution, the child shall remain institutionalized for a minimum period of three months.

(D) The department of youth services shall, prior to the release of a child pursuant to division (B) or (C) of this section:

(1) After reviewing the child's rehabilitative progress history and medical and educational records, prepare a written treatment and rehabilitation plan for the child, which shall include terms and conditions of the release;

(2) Completely discuss the terms and conditions of the plan prepared pursuant to division (D)(1) of this section and the possible penalties for violation of the plan with the child and his parents, guardian, or legal custodian;

(3) Have the plan prepared pursuant to division (D)(1) of this section signed by the child, his parents, legal guardian, or custodian, and any authority or person that is to supervise, control, and provide supportive assistance to the child at the time of the child's release pursuant to division (B) or (C) of this section;

(4) File a copy of the treatment plan prepared pursuant to division (D)(1) of this section, prior to the child's release, with the committing court and the juvenile court of the county in which the child is to be placed.

(E) The department of youth services shall file a written progress report with the committing court regarding each child released pursuant to division (B) or (C) of this section, at least once every thirty days unless specifically directed otherwise by the court. The report shall indicate the treatment and rehabilitative progress of the child and his family, if applicable, and shall include any suggestions and recommendations for alteration of the program, custody, living arrangements, or treatment. The department shall retain legal custody of a child so released until it discharges the child or until the custody is terminated as otherwise provided by law.

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) Where children are adjudged neglected under RC § 2151.03 and committed to the temporary custody of a social agency, the agency should plan for the rehabilitation and reunification of the children with their family and the court should insist that the agency make a conscientious effort to bring the plan to fruition before considering the alternative of adoptive placement: In re Neglected Children, 18 OO3d 283 (CP).

2. (1979) Where there are visitations and an ongoing relationship between children in foster home placement and their mother, the likelihood that the foster parents will become the "psychological parents" of these children is quite negligible: In re Neglected Children, 18 OO3d 283 (CP).

3. (1982) In a case in which a social welfare agency moves for permanent custody of a child for adoptive placement, if the record reveals that the non-custodial parent has maintained a continuing interest in his or her child's welfare, RC § 2151.41.2(C) places a mandatory duty on the social welfare agency to prepare a comprehensive reunification plan for that non-custodial parent: In re Ball, 5 OApp3d 56, 5 OBR 152, 449 NE2d 490.

4. (1982) Section 3 of Am. Sub. H.B. No. 695, concerning the phase-in of RC §§ 2151.41.2, 2151.41.3 and 2151.41.4, requires that a written comprehensive reunification plan be included in the second annual review made after the effective date of the Act (October 24, 1980), of any child who is in temporary custody upon such effective date pursuant to court order under RC Chapter 2151. or pursuant to RC § 5103.15: In re Smith, 7 OApp3d 75, 7 OBR 88, 454 NE2d 171.

5. (1984) Any time a dependent child is temporarily placed with someone other than a parent, a reunification plan should be formulated. In cases where the child is placed with a relative, pursuant to RC § 2151.353(A)(2), the court should formulate the reunification plan itself or appoint an agency with some expertise in the area to formulate one: In re Patterson, 16 OApp3d 214, 16 OBR 229, 475 NE2d 160.

6. (1985) Revised Code § 2151.412 does not require a juvenile court to order a reunification plan when it makes a dispositional order pursuant to RC § 2151.353(A)(4): In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

7. (1984) Revised Code §§ 2151.412 and 2151.414 are applicable only where the child or children have previously been determined dependent, neglected or abused, their temporary custody has been committed to a children services board, a welfare department or a certified organization, and an order is sought changing temporary to permanent custody. These sections are not applicable where the original request was for permanent custody, and an order of temporary custody was issued pending hearing on the complaint as provided by RC § 2151.33: In re Covert, 17 OApp3d 122, 17 OBR 185, 477 NE2d 678.

[§ 2151.41.3] § 2151.413 [Agency may file motion requesting permanent custody.]

(A) A county department, board, or certified organization that is granted temporary custody pursuant to an order of disposition under division (A)(2) or (3) of section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code of a child that is not abandoned or orphaned or of an abandoned child whose parents have been located may file a motion in the court that made the disposition of the child requesting permanent custody of the child if a period of at least six months has elapsed since the order of temporary custody was issued or the submission of the revised initial plan if the child is an abandoned child whose parents have been located.

(B) A county department, board, or certified organization that is granted temporary custody pursuant to an order of disposition under division (A)(2) or (3) of section 2151.353 [2151.35.3] of the Revised Code of a child that is abandoned or orphaned may file a motion in the court that made the disposition of the child requesting permanent custody of the child, if the child is abandoned, whenever it can show the court that the parents cannot be located and, if the child is orphaned, whenever it can show that no relative of the child is able to take permanent custody of the child.

1. (1982) Section 3 of Am. Sub. H.B. No. 695, concerning the phase-in of RC §§ 2151.41.2, 2151.41.3 and 2151.41.4, requires that a written comprehensive reunification plan be included in the second annual review made after the effective date of the Act (October 24, 1980), of any child who is in temporary custody upon such effective date pursuant to court order under RC Chapter 2151. or pursuant to RC § 5103.15: In re Smith, 7 OApp3d 75, 7 OBR 88, 454 NE2d 171.

[§ 2151.41.4] § 2151.414 [Hearing on motion for permanent custody; notice; determinations necessary for granting motion.]

(A) Upon the filing of a motion for permanent custody of a child by a county department, board, or certified organization that has temporary custody of the child, the court shall give notice of the filing of the motion and of the hearing, in accordance with section 2151.29 of the Revised Code, to all parties to the action, which notice shall contain a full explanation that the granting of permanent custody permanently divests the parents of their parental rights and a full explanation of their right to be represented by counsel and to have counsel appointed pursuant to Chapter 120. of the Revised Code if they are indigent, and shall conduct a hearing to determine all of the following:

(1) If the county department, board, or certified organization has made a good faith effort to implement the initial and comprehensive reunification plans for the child that were approved by the court pursuant to section 2151.412 [2151.41.2] of the Revised Code;

(2) If the parents have acted in such a manner that the child is a child without adequate parental care, and will continue to act in the near future in such a manner that the child will continue to be a child without adequate parental care. In making this determination, the court shall consider all relevant factors, including but not limited to, the following considerations:

(a) The extent to which the parents of the child have conformed to the initial and comprehensive plans for the child that were approved by the court pursuant to section 2151.412 [2151.41.2] of the Revised Code and the extent to which the parents have fulfilled their obligations under the plans;

(b) Any existing emotional or mental disorders of the parents and the anticipated duration of the disorders;

(c) Any physical, emotional, or sexual abuse of the child by the parents that occurs between the date that the original complaint alleging abuse was filed and the date of the filing of the motion for permanent custody;

(d) Any existing excessive use of intoxicating liquor or drugs of abuse by the parents;

(e) Any physical, emotional, or mental neglect of the child by the parents that occurs between the date that the original complaint alleging neglect was filed and the date of the filing of the motion for permanent custody.

(3) If it is in the best interest of the child to permanently terminate parental rights.

(B) The court may grant permanent custody of a child to a movant if the court determines at the hearing held pursuant to division (A) of this section, by clear and convincing evidence, that the child is not abandoned or orphaned and the parents have acted in such a manner that the child is a child without adequate parental care, and will continue to act in the near future in such a manner that the child will continue to be a child without adequate parental care, that the child is abandoned and the parents cannot be located, or that the child is orphaned and there are no relatives of the child who are able to take permanent custody. The court may consider the wishes of the child in relation to the motion for permanent custody and the custodial history of the child as factors in making its determination, but the wishes and custodial history of the child shall not control the decision of the court. If the court grants permanent custody of a child to a movant under this division, the court, upon the request of any party, shall file a written opinion setting forth its findings of fact and conclusions of law in relation to the proceeding.

Role of state, 1

1. (1979) Children of a family have a right to the companionship of their siblings. The role of the State should be to do everything that can be done to keep the children of a family together so that they may enjoy the advantages of mutual companionship, love and protection: In re Neglected Children, 18 OO3d 283 (CP).

2. (1982) Section 3 of Am. Sub. H.B. No. 695, concerning the phase-in of RC §§ 2151.41.2, 2151.41.3 and 2151.41.4, requires that a written comprehensive reunification plan be included in the second annual review made after the effective date of the Act (October 24, 1980), of any child who is in temporary custody upon such effective date pursuant to court order under RC Chapter 2151. or pursuant to RC § 5103.15: In re Smith, 7 OApp3d 75, 7 OBR 88, 454 NE2d 171.

3. (1984) Lack of a RC § 3109.27 affidavit or pleading did not deprive the juvenile court of jurisdiction to grant permanent custody to the welfare department: In re Palmer, 12 OS3d 194, 12 OBR 259, 465 NE2d 1312.

4. (1982) Revised Code § 2151.41.4(A) lists numerous determinations to be made by the juvenile court during a hearing upon a motion for permanent custody, but the statute does not require these determinations to be listed in the court's judgment entry, and thus, the failure to do so is not error. Such determinations would be appropriately included within the court's findings of fact and conclusions of law, if they were requested by any of the parties pursuant to RC § 2151.41.4(B): In re Covin, 8 OApp3d 139, 8 OBR 196, 456 NE2d 520.

5. (1983) Hearsay is not admissible in adversarial juvenile court proceedings at which a parent, charged with neglecting his or her children, may lose custody of the children: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

6. (1983) Hearings for permanent custody under RC § 2151.41.4 must conform to the Rules of Juvenile Procedure. Hence, pursuant to JuvR 29 and 34, the proceedings should be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional stages: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

7. (1983) In conducting the adjudicatory phase of the hearing under RC § 2151.41.4, the best interests of the child should not enter into the determination of whether the child is receiving adequate parental care. The focus, at this stage, is on the parents and on what they are providing in terms of food, shelter and care, as well as what they are capable of providing in the future: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

8. (1984) When a case concerning a child is transferred or certified from another court, the certification from the transferring court is deemed to be the complaint: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

9. (1984) A certification does not constitute a complaint in the juvenile court that such child is neglected, dependent or abused and those dispositions provided for under RC § 2151.35.3 pertaining to neglected, dependent or abused children, including an award of permanent custody to a county welfare department which has assumed the administration of child welfare, are not applicable to such a child, disposition thereof being subject to and controlled by RC § 3109.04: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

10. (1984) Revised Code §§ 2151.412 and 2151.414 are applicable only where the child or children have previously been determined dependent, neglected or abused, their temporary custody has been committed to a children services board, a welfare department or a certified organization, and an order is sought changing temporary to permanent custody. These sections are not applicable where the original request was for permanent custody, and an order of temporary custody was issued pending hearing on the complaint as provided by RC § 2151.33: In re Covert, 17 OApp3d 122, 17 OBR 185, 477 NE2d 678.

[§ 2151.42.1] § 2151.421 [Report of child abuse or neglect; investigation; plan of cooperation.]

Any attorney, physician, including a hospital intern or resident, dentist, podiatrist, practitioner of a limited branch of medicine or surgery as defined in section 4731.15 of the Revised Code, registered or licensed practical nurse, visiting nurse, or other health care professional, licensed psychologist, speech pathologist or audiologist, coroner, administrator or employee of a child day-care center, administrator or employee of a certified child care agency or other public or private children services agency, school teacher or school authority, social worker, or person rendering spiritual treatment through prayer in accordance with the tenets of a well recognized religion, who is acting in his official or professional capacity, and has reason to believe that a child less than eighteen years of age or any crippled or otherwise physically or mentally handicapped child under twenty-one years of age has suffered any wound, injury, disability, or condition of such a nature as to reasonably indicate abuse or neglect of the child, shall immediately report or cause reports to be made of such information to the children services board or the county department of human services exercising the children services function, or a municipal or county peace officer in the county in which the child resides or in which the abuse or neglect is occurring or has occurred.

Anyone having reason to believe that a child less than eighteen years of age or any crippled or otherwise physically or mentally handicapped child under twenty-one years of age has suffered any wound, injury, disability, or other condition of such nature as to reasonably indicate abuse or neglect of the child may report or cause reports to be made of such information to the children services board, the county department of human services exercising the children services function, or to a municipal or county peace officer.

The reports shall be made forthwith by telephone or in person forthwith, and shall be followed by a written report, if requested by the receiving agency or officer. The written report shall contain:

(A) The names and addresses of the child and his parents or person or persons having custody of the child, if known;

(B) The child's age and the nature and extent of the child's injuries, abuse, or neglect, including any evidence of previous injuries, abuse, or neglect;

(C) Any other information which might be helpful in establishing the cause of the injury, abuse, or neglect.

Any person who is required to report cases of child abuse or neglect may take or cause to be taken color photographs of areas of trauma visible on a child and, if medically indicated, cause to be performed radiological examinations of the child.

When the attendance of the physician is pursuant to the performance of services as a member of the staff of a hospital or similar institution, he shall notify the person in charge of the institution or his designated delegate who shall make the necessary reports.

Upon the receipt of a report concerning the possible abuse or neglect of a child, the municipal or county peace officer shall refer the report to the appropriate county department of human services or children services board.

No child upon whom a report is made shall be removed from his parents, stepparents, guardian, or other persons having custody by a municipal or county peace officer without consultation with the children services board or the county department of human services exercising the children services function unless, in the judgment of the reporting physician and the officer, immediate removal is considered essential to protect the child from further abuse or neglect.

The county department of human services or children services board shall investigate, within twenty-four hours, each report referred to it under this section to determine the circumstances surrounding the injury or injuries, abuse, or neglect, the cause thereof, and the person or persons responsible. The investigation shall be made in cooperation with the law enforcement agency. The county department of human services or children services board shall report each case to a central registry which the state department of human services shall maintain in order to determine whether prior reports have been made in other counties concerning the child or other principals in the case. The department or board shall submit a report of its investigation, in writing to the law enforcement agency.

The county department of human services or children services board shall make any recommendations to the county prosecutor or city director of law that it considers necessary to protect any children that are brought to its attention.

Anyone or any hospital, institution, school, health department, or agency participating in the making of the reports, or anyone participating in a judicial proceeding resulting from the reports, shall be immune from any civil or criminal liability that might otherwise be incurred or imposed as a result of such actions. Notwithstanding section 4731.22 of the Revised Code, the physician-patient privilege shall not be a ground for excluding evidence regarding a child's injuries, abuse, or neglect, or the cause thereof in any judicial proceeding resulting from a report submitted pursuant to this section.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to define as an abused or neglected child any child who is under spiritual treatment through prayer in accordance with the tenets and practice of a well-recognized religion in lieu of medical treatment.

Any report made under this section is confidential, and any person who permits or encourages the unauthorized dissemination of its contents is guilty of a misdemeanor of the fourth degree.

Reports required by this section shall result in protective services and emergency supportive services being made available by the county department of human services or children services board on behalf of children about whom the reports are made, in an effort to prevent further neglect or abuse, to enhance their welfare, and, whenever possible, to preserve the family unit intact. The department of human services shall exercise rule-making authority under Chapter 119. of the Revised Code to aid in the implementation of this section.

There shall be placed on file with the juvenile court in each county and the department of human services an initial plan of cooperation jointly prepared and subscribed to by a committee consisting of the county peace officer, all chief municipal peace officers within the county, the prosecuting attorney of the county and the director of law of each city, and the children services board or county department of human services exercising the children services function as convened by the county director of human services. The plan shall set forth the normal operating procedure to be employed by all concerned officials in the execution of their respective responsibilities under this section and division (B) of section 2919.21, division (B)(1) of section 2919.22, division (B) of section 2919.23, and section 2919.24 of the Revised Code. The plan shall include a system for cross-referral of reported cases of abuse and neglect as necessary, and shall also include the name and title of the official directly responsible for making reports to the central registry.

1. (1978) The phrase "having reason to believe," as used in RC § 2151.42.1, is equivalent to "known or suspected" as used in 45 CFR 1340.3-3(d). 2. (1979) The provisions of RC § 2151.42.1 impose the duties of investigation and disposition of reported cases of child abuse and neglect solely on children services boards and county welfare departments which have assumed the functions of a children services board, and, therefore, prohibit delegation of these duties to private entities: OAG No.79-067.

§ 2151.65 Single-county and joint-county juvenile facilities.

Upon the advice and recommendation of the juvenile judge, the board of county commissioners may provide by purchase, lease, construction, or otherwise a school, forestry camp, or other facility or facilities where delinquent, as defined in section 2151.02 of the Revised Code, dependent, abused, unruly, as defined in section 2151.022 [2151.02.2] of the Revised Code, or neglected children or juvenile traffic offenders may be held for training, treatment, and rehabilitation. Upon the joint advice and recommendation of the juvenile judges of two or more adjoining or neighboring counties, the boards of county commissioners of such counties may form themselves into a joint board and proceed to organize a district for the establishment and support of a school, forestry camp, or other facility or facilities for the use of the juvenile courts of such counties, where delinquent, dependent, abused, unruly, or neglected children, or juvenile traffic offenders may be held for treatment, training, and rehabilitation, by using a site or buildings already established in one such county, or by providing for the purchase of a site and the erection of the necessary buildings thereon. CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Revised Code §§ 2151.34.12 and 2151.77 require that the costs of operating and maintaining district juvenile detention and rehabilitation facilities be apportioned among the counties participating in the district on the basis of the counties' actual use of such facilities where no levy has been approved pursuant to RC § 5705.19(A). Neither a joint board of county commissioners formed pursuant to RC §§ 2151.34 and 2151.65 nor a district board of trustees appointed pursuant to RC §§ 2151.34.3 and 2151.68 has the authority to direct or permit the apportionment of such costs in any other manner: OAG No.84-052.

2. (1984) A board of county commissioners has the authority pursuant to RC § 305.26 to compound or release, in whole or in part, or otherwise settle payments due the county as a result of an erroneous apportionment of the costs of operating and maintaining district juvenile detention or rehabilitation facilities: OAG No.84-052.

§ 2151.85 [Unmarried minor may seek abortion without notice to parent, guardian or custodian.]

(A) A woman who is pregnant, unmarried, under eighteen years of age, and unemancipated and who wishes to have an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian may file a complaint in the juvenile court of the county in which she has a residence or legal settlement, in the juvenile court of any county that borders to any extent the county in which she has a residence or legal settlement, or in the juvenile court of the county in which the hospital, clinic, or other facility in which the abortion would be performed or induced is located, requesting the issuance of an order authorizing her to consent to the performance or inducement of an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian.

The complaint shall be made under oath and shall include all of the following:

(1) A statement that the complainant is pregnant;

(2) A statement that the complainant is unmarried, under eighteen years of age, and unemancipated;

(3) A statement that the complainant wishes to have an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian;

(4) An allegation of either or both of the following:

(a) That the complainant is sufficiently mature and well enough informed to intelligently decide whether to have an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian;

(b) That one or both of her parents, her guardian, or her custodian was engaged in a pattern of physical, sexual, or emotional abuse against her, or that the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian otherwise is not in her best interest.

(5) A statement as to whether the complainant has retained an attorney and, if she has retained an attorney, the name, address, and telephone number of her attorney.

(B)(1) The court shall fix a time for a hearing on any complaint filed pursuant to division (A) of this section and shall keep a record of all testimony and other oral proceedings in the action. The court shall hear and determine the action and shall not refer any portion of it to a referee. The hearing shall be held at the earliest possible time, but not later than the fifth business day after the day that the complaint is filed. The court shall enter judgment on the complaint immediately after the hearing is concluded. If the hearing required by this division is not held by the fifth business day after the complaint is filed, the failure to hold the hearing shall be considered to be a constructive order of the court authorizing the complainant to consent to the performance or inducement of an abortion without the notification of her parent, guardian, or custodian, and the complainant and any other person may rely on the constructive order to the same extent as if the court actually had issued an order under this section authorizing the complainant to consent to the performance or inducement of an abortion without such notification.

(2) The court shall appoint a guardian ad litem to protect the interests of the complainant at the hearing that is held pursuant to this section. If the complainant has not retained an attorney, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent her. If the guardian ad litem is an attorney admitted to the practice of law in this state, the court also may appoint him to serve as the complainant's attorney.

(C)(1) If the complainant makes only the allegation set forth in division (A)(4)(a) of this section and if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that the complainant is sufficiently mature and well enough informed to decide intelligently whether to have an abortion, the court shall issue an order authorizing the complainant to consent to the performance or inducement of an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian. If the court does not make the finding specified in this division, it shall dismiss the complaint.

(2) If the complainant makes only the allegation set forth in division (A)(4)(b) of this section and if the court finds, by clear and convincing evidence, that there is evidence of a pattern of physical, sexual, or emotional abuse of the complainant by one or both of her parents, her guardian, or her custodian, or that the notification of the parents, guardian, or custodian of the complainant otherwise is not in the best interest of the complainant, the court shall issue an order authorizing the complainant to consent to the performance or inducement of an abortion without the notification of her parents, guardian, or custodian. If the court does not make the finding specified in this division, it shall dismiss the complaint.

(3) If the complainant makes both of the allegations set forth in divisions (A)(4)(a) and (b) of this section, the court shall proceed as follows:

(a) The court first shall determine whether it can make the finding specified in division (C)(1) of this section and, if so, shall issue an order pursuant to that division. If the court issues such an order, it shall not proceed pursuant to division (C)(3)(b) of this section. If the court does not make the finding specified in division (C)(1) of this section, it shall proceed pursuant to division (C)(3)(b) of this section.

(b) If the court pursuant to division (C)(3)(a) of this section does not make the finding specified in division (C)(1) of this section, it shall proceed to determine whether it can make the finding specified in division (C)(2) of this section and, if so, shall issue an order pursuant to that division. If the court does not make the finding specified in division (C)(2) of this section, it shall dismiss the complaint.

(D) The court shall not notify the parents, guardian, or custodian of the complainant that she is pregnant or that she wants to have an abortion.

(E) If the court dismisses the complaint, it immediately shall notify the complainant that she has a right to appeal under section 2505.073 [2505.07.3] of the Revised Code.

(F) Each hearing under this section shall be conducted in a manner that will preserve the anonymity of the complainant. The complaint and all other papers and records that pertain to an action commenced under this section shall be kept confidential and are not public records under section 149.43 of the Revised Code.

(G) The clerk of the supreme court shall prescribe complaint and notice of appeal forms that shall be used by a complainant filing a complaint under this section and by an appellant filing an appeal under section 2505.073 [2505.07.3] of the Revised Code. The clerk of each juvenile court shall furnish blank copies of the forms, without charge, to any person who requests them.

(H) No filing fee shall be required of, and no court costs shall be assessed against, a complainant filing a complaint under this section or an appellant filing an appeal under section 2505.073 [2505.07.3] of the Revised Code.

(I) As used in this section, "unemancipated" means that a woman who is unmarried and under eighteen years of age has not entered the armed services of the United States, has not become employed and self-subsisting, or has not otherwise become independent from the care and control of her parent, guardian, or custodian.

Each judge shall be elected by the electors of Cuyahoga county in the same manner as is provided for the election of judges of the court of common pleas. The terms of office of the judges of the juvenile court shall begin as follows: January 1, 1959, January 2, 1959, January 1, 1963, January 2, 1963, January 3, 1977, and January 3, 1987. Each of the judges of the juvenile court shall have the same judicial duties.

(Including latest amendments effective July 1, 1985)

RULE 1. Scope of rules; applicability; construction; exceptions

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1983) The Rules of Civil Procedure have no applicability to a custody proceeding in the court of common pleas, juvenile division. Rather, the Rules of Juvenile Procedure govern such proceedings: Squires v. Squires, 12 OApp3d 138, 12 OBR 460, 468 NE2d 73.

The representation of juveniles before the court: a look into the past and the future. Note. 31 CaseWresLRev 580 (1981).

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1973) The guarantee of the right to be represented by counsel set forth in Juvenile Rule 4(A) does not, as to a nonindigent party, require that trial be continued indefinitely until counsel can be obtained, but merely requires, if it does not appear that counsel cannot be obtained through the exercise of reasonable diligence and a willingness to enter into reasonable contractual arrangements for counsel's services, that a reasonable opportunity be given to the party before trial to employ such counsel: In re Bolden, 37 OApp2d 7, 66 OO2d 26, 306 NE2d 166.

2. (1977) The guardian ad litem appointed for a child in a dependency action where the interest of the child and the parent may conflict must have no ties or loyalties to anyone with an adversary interest in the outcome such as a natural parent or the prospective adoptive parents: In re Christopher, 54 OApp2d 137, 8 OO3d 271, 376 NE2d 603.

3. (1977) Where an infant child has been in the custody of prospective adoptive parents as a result of a permanent order of custody in a dependency action and that permanent order is subsequently vacated and the parent moves to terminate temporary custody, it appears that the interests of the child and parent may conflict and a guardian ad litem must be appointed for the child pursuant to Juvenile Rule 4(B) prior to the hearing on the mother's motion to terminate custody: In re Christopher, 54 OApp2d 137, 8 OO3d 271, 376 NE2d 603.

4. (1984) Pursuant to RC § 2151.35.2, a child, his parents, custodian, or other persons in loco parentis, if indigent, is entitled to be represented in all juvenile proceedings by a public defender in accordance with the comprehensive system set forth in RC Chapter 120., regardless of whether the outcome of the proceeding could result in a loss of liberty: OAG No.84-023.

5. (1985) An attorney should not serve as both guardian ad litem and appointed counsel where there is a conflict in such roles: In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

RULE 7. Detention and shelter care

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) A parent, alleging that he failed to receive notice of a hearing concerning the shelter care of his child, must move the juvenile court for a rehearing, pursuant to Juv. R. 7(G), before seeking a writ of habeas corpus: Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

2. (1979) Juvenile Rule 7(G) provides that a party may move for a rehearing on a decision relating to detention or shelter care; thus habeas corpus relief is not available: Petry v. McGinty, 60 OS2d 92, 14 OO3d 331, 397 NE2d 1190.

RULE 10. Complaint

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1975) While the certification shall be deemed to be the complaint in the juvenile court, such certification does not constitute a complaint in the juvenile court that such child is dependent or neglected and those dispositions provided for under RC §§ 2151.35.3, 2151.35.4, and 2151.35.5 pertaining to unruly, delinquent, dependent, or neglected children are not applicable to the disposition of such a child, disposition thereof being subject to and controlled by RC § 3109.04: In re Height, 47 OApp2d 203, 1 OO3d 279, 353 NE2d 887.

2. (1983) In proving its case in a neglect and dependency proceeding, the state is not limited to those faults and habits of the custodial parent which are specifically listed in the complaint. It is not the intent of JuvR 10(B) to force a complainant to state in the complaint every fact surrounding each incident described: In re Sims, 13 OApp3d 37, 13 OBR 40, 468 NE2d 111.

3. (1984) Even though a complaining witness may designate a particular statute or statutes as being violated by a child, a juvenile court is free to find, on the basis of the facts alleged and proved, a violation of an additional statute and that the accused is a delinquent child: In re Burgess, 13 OApp3d 374, 13 OBR 456, 469 NE2d 914.

4. (1984) Such certification does not constitute a complaint in the juvenile court that such child is neglected, dependent or abused and those dispositions provided for under RC § 2151.35.3 pertaining to neglected, dependent or abused children, including an award of permanent custody to a county welfare department which has assumed the administration of child welfare, are not applicable to such a child, disposition thereof being subject to and controlled by RC § 3109.04: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

5. (1984) When a case concerning a child is transferred or certified from another court, the certification from the transferring court is deemed to be the complaint: In re Snider, 14 OApp3d 353, 14 OBR 420, 471 NE2d 516.

RULE 11. Transfer to another county

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1983) Juvenile Rule 11 governs venue in a custody proceeding in the juvenile division, and JuvR 11(A) states, in essence, that if the child resides in one county and the proceeding is commenced in another county, transfer to the county of the child's residence is optional: Squires v. Squires, 12 OApp3d 138, 12 OBR 460, 468 NE2d 73.

RULE 13. Temporary disposition; temporary orders; emergency medical and surgical treatment

Law Review

The outer limits of parental autonomy: withholding medical treatment from children. Comment. 42 OS LJ 813 (1981).

RULE 22. Pleadings and motions; defenses and objections

(A) Pleadings and motions. Pleadings in juvenile proceedings shall be the complaint and the answer, if any, filed by a party. A party may move to dismiss the complaint or for other appropriate relief.

(B) Amendment of pleadings. Any pleading may be amended at any time prior to the adjudicatory hearing. After the commencement of the adjudicatory hearing, a pleading may be amended upon agreement of the parties, or if the interests of justice require, upon order of court. Such order shall where requested grant a party reasonable time in which to respond to an amendment.

(C) Answer. No answer shall be necessary. A party may file an answer to the complaint, which, if filed, shall contain specific and concise admissions or denials of each material allegation of the complaint.

(D) Prehearing motions. Any defense, objection or request which is capable of determination without hearing on the allegations of the complaint may be raised before the adjudicatory hearing by motion. The following must be heard before the adjudicatory hearing, though not necessarily on a separate date:

(1) Defenses or objections based on defects in the institution of the proceedings;

(2) Defenses or objections based on defects in the complaint (other than failure to show jurisdiction in the court or to charge an offense which objections shall be noticed by the court at any time during the pendency of the proceeding);

(3) Motions to suppress evidence on the ground that it was illegally obtained;

(4) Motions for discovery.

(E) Motion time. All prehearing motions shall be filed by the earlier of (1) seven days prior to hearing, or (2) ten days after the appearance of counsel. The court in the interest of justice may extend the time for making prehearing motions.

The court for good cause shown may permit a motion to suppress evidence under subsection (D)(3) to be made at the time such evidence is offered.

(F) State's right to appeal upon granting a motion to suppress. In delinquency proceedings the state may take an appeal as of right from the granting of a motion to suppress evidence if, in addition to filing a notice of appeal, the prosecuting attorney certifies that (1) the appeal is not taken for the purpose of delay and (2) the granting of the motion has rendered proof available to the state so weak in its entirety that any reasonable possibility of proving the complaint's allegations has been destroyed.

Such appeal shall not be allowed unless the notice of appeal and the certification by the prosecuting attorney are filed with the clerk of the juvenile court within seven days after the date of the entry of the judgment or order granting the motion. Any appeal which may be taken under this rule shall be diligently prosecuted.

A child in detention or shelter care may be released pending this appeal when the state files the notice of appeal and certification.

This appeal shall take precedence over all other appeals.

(Amended, eff 7-1-77)

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1977) In a juvenile proceeding an objection, raised after trial and submission, based on a failure of the testimony to establish the age of the accused juvenile relates to jurisdiction over the person and not to jurisdiction in the court, and is waived under Juvenile Rule 22(D)(2): In re Fudge, 59 OApp2d 129, 13 OO3d 176, 392 NE2d 1262.

2. (1981) Where the state has timely filed a notice of appeal from the granting of a motion to suppress, but has failed to make a proper certification as required by JuvR 22(F), a court of appeals may, pursuant to AppR 3(E), allow the amendment of the timely filed notice of appeal and certification so that there may be full compliance with JuvR 22(F): In re Hester, 1 OApp3d 24, 1 OBR 85, 437 NE2d 1218.

3. (1981) Inasmuch as JuvR 22(A) provides that a party may move "for other appropriate relief," a juvenile presumably may move to limit the court's use of social histories before and during the adjudication. If it does not authorize such relief, then JuvR 45 provides the procedure when no procedure is specifically prescribed: J. P. v. DeSanti, 653 F2d 1080 (6th Cir.).

4. (1982) The state is not barred from prosecution following an unsuccessful appeal from the sustaining of a motion to suppress so long as the state's certification upon appeal pursuant to JuvR 22(F) [or CrimR 12(J)], that the evidence suppressed was of such nature that the prosecution could not be successful without it, was made in good faith. If such certification were not made in good faith, the time consumed in determining the appeal from the motion to suppress must be charged to the state as undue delay in prosecution of the accused with respect to a determination of whether there has been a violation of the accused's right to a speedy trial: In re Hester, 3 OApp3d 458, 3 OBR 539, 446 NE2d 202.

 Custody hearing, 11
 Denial of custody, 8
 Hearsay evidence, 9
 Modification of custody order, 12
 Mother's participation, 10
 No contest plea, 5-7
 Time limits, 1-3

1. (1976) The time limits of RC § 2945.71 et seq., for the prosecution of criminal offenders do not apply to an adjudicatory hearing on a complaint alleging a child to be a juvenile traffic offender. The only applicable time limit, outside JuvR 29, is the six months limitation for prosecution of a minor misdemeanor stated in RC § 2901.13(A)(3): In re TLK, 2 OO3d 324.

2. (1977) The ten day period of limitations in JuvR 29(A) is procedural only and such rule confers no substantive right upon an accused to have his case dismissed if he is not tried within the designated time: In re Therklidsen, 54 OApp2d 195, 8 OO3d 335, 376 NE2d 970.

3. (1979) The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction, pursuant to RC § 2151.23(A), concerning any child who is alleged in a proper complaint to be neglected, and the court does not lose jurisdiction by failing to adhere to the time limits set forth in JuvR 29(A) and 34(A): Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

4. (1978) When, in an adjudicatory hearing held pursuant to Juv. R. 29, the only evidence of guilt utilized by the court is testimony presented at the preliminary hearing, where the accused exercised adequate rights of cross-examination, he is denied no constitutional right: In re Gantt, 61 OApp2d 44, 15 OO3d 67, 398 NE2d 800.

5. (1982) The procedure for pleas in Juvenile Court in relation to a delinquency complaint differs substantially from the pleas provided by CrimR 11 in an adult criminal proceeding. There is no statement in CrimR 11 that a no contest plea results in a waiver of a defendant's right to challenge evidence against him as is specifically provided for by JuvR 29(D)(2) in relation to an admission of allegations of the complaint: In re Green, 4 OApp3d 196, 4 OBR 300, 447 NE2d 129.

6. (1982) The no contest plea in a juvenile proceeding is not the unequivocal admission of the allegations of the complaint contemplated by JuvR 29(D). Being something less than an admission, it must be construed as a denial and the prosecuting attorney must prove the issues of delinquency beyond a reasonable doubt. (JuvR 29(E)): In re Green, 4 OApp3d 196, 4 OBR 300, 447 NE2d 129.

7. (1982) Where a juvenile enters a no contest plea to a delinquency complaint apparently on the basis that she would be able to appeal the juvenile court's ruling on the pretrial motion to suppress, as would be true in an adult criminal case, the court erroneously disposes of the case on such plea. (JuvR 29, construed): In re Green, 4 OApp3d 196, 4 OBR 300, 447 NE2d 129.

8. (1983) Parent may be denied custody only if a preponderance of the evidence indicates abandonment, contractual relinquishment of custody, total inability to provide care or support, or that his custody would be detrimental to the child: Reynolds v. Ross Cty. Children's Service Agency, 5 OS3d 27, 5 OBR 87, 448 NE2d 816.

9. (1983) Despite the mandate of JuvR 29 that juvenile proceedings be conducted in an informal manner, otherwise inadmissible hearsay evidence is not admissible at the adjudicatory stage of a neglect and dependency proceeding, because the importance of the parental interests involved demand an accurate determination of the facts surrounding a complaint alleging neglect or dependency and requires substantial compliance with the Rules of Evidence: In re Sims, 13 OApp3d 37, 13 OBR 40, 468 NE2d 111.

10. (1983) Where a complaint is filed alleging that a child is dependent or neglected in violation of RC §§ 2151.03(B) and 2151.04(A), (B) and (C), JuvR 29(D)(2) does not prohibit the child's mother from participating in the adjudicatory hearing just because she entered a plea of "admitted" to the allegations in the complaint: In re Sims, 13 OApp3d 37, 13 OBR 40, 468 NE2d 111.

11. (1983) Hearings for permanent custody under RC § 2151.41.4 must conform to the Rules of Juvenile Procedure. Hence, pursuant to JuvR 29 and 34, the proceedings should be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional stages: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

12. (1984) A party seeking to modify a dispositional custody order must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the modification is in the best interests of the child: In re Patterson, 16 OApp3d 214, 16 OBR 229, 475 NE2d 160.

13. (1985) In proceedings where parental rights are subject to termination, both the Juvenile Rules and the Revised Code prescribe that such proceedings be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional hearings. (RC § 2151.35 and JuvR 29 and 34, construed and applied.): In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

RULE 30. Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution

Law Review

Juvenile law—the waiver of juvenile court jurisdiction. State v. Adams, 69 OS2d 120 (1982). Case note. 16 AkronLRev 324 (1982).

Relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution of juveniles. Comment. 8 NoKyLRev 377 (1981).

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1982) Once a juvenile is bound over in any county in Ohio pursuant to RC § 2151.26 and Juv. R. 30, that juvenile is bound over for all felonies committed in other counties of this state, as well as for future felonies he may commit: State v. Adams, 69 OS2d 120, 23 OO3d 164, 431 NE2d 326.

2. (1982) When the juvenile court makes a determination as to a juvenile offender's amenability to rehabilitation, it must consider the five factors set forth in JuvR 30(E); however, the juvenile court need not resolve all of these factors against the juvenile to warrant the court in relinquishing its jurisdiction and transferring him for prosecution as an adult: State v. Oviedo, 5 OApp3d 168, 5 OBR 351, 450 NE2d 700.

3. (1982) Pursuant to JuvR 30(G), an order of transfer is sufficient if it demonstrates that the statutory requirement of "full investigation" has been met and that the issue has received the full attention of the juvenile court: State v. Oviedo, 5 OApp3d 168, 5 OBR 351, 450 NE2d 700.

4. (1982) The duty upon the juvenile court before ordering a relinquishment of jurisdiction for purposes of criminal prosecution is, after investigation, to find there are reasonable grounds to believe that the child is one who will not be readily brought to yield, submit and respond to care, supervision and rehabilitation in any facility designed for such care of delinquent children and that the requirement as to legal restraint exists. (RC § 2151.26(A), construed): State v. Whiteside, 6 OApp3d 30, 6 OBR 140, 452 NE2d 332.

5. (1985) In ordering a bind-over, a juvenile court is not required to make written findings as to the factors listed in JuvR 30(E): State v. Douglas, 20 OS3d 34, 20 OBR 282, 485 NE2d 711.

RULE 32. Social history; physical examination; mental examination; custody investigation

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) Disclosure of juvenile court records, including social histories, to appropriate governmental and social agencies is not unconstitutional: J. P. v. DeSanti, 653 F2d 1080 (6th Cir.).

2. (1982) Where the court granted a motion that the father undergo a psychological evaluation, the court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to order the father's second wife to also undergo an evaluation: In re Reynolds, 2 OApp3d 309, 2 OBR 341, 441 NE2d 1141.

3. (1984) An indigent parent in a custody hearing who has the right to a free court-ordered psychological evaluation may not limit disclosure of adverse results of such testing unless the court order granting the evaluation limits the purpose of the report solely for the parent's defense: In re Green, 18 OApp3d 43, 18 OBR 155, 480 NE2d 492.

RULE 34. Dispositional hearing

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1973) Error cannot be predicated on the juvenile court's holding a dispositional hearing immediately following an adjudicatory hearing and its failure to continue the dispositional hearing for a reasonable time to enable the party to obtain or consult counsel, as prescribed by Juvenile Rule 34(A), unless it affirmatively appears in the record that the affected non-indigent party has requested such continuance: In re Bolden, 37 OApp2d 7, 66 OO2d 26, 306 NE2d 166.

2. (1979) The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction, pursuant to RC § 2151.23(A), concerning any child who is alleged in a proper complaint to be neglected, and the court does not lose jurisdiction by failing to adhere to the time limits set forth in Juv. R. 29(A) and 34(A): Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

3. (1983) Hearings for permanent custody under RC § 2151.41.4 must conform to the Rules of Juvenile Procedure. Hence, pursuant to JuvR 29 and 34, the proceedings should be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional stages: In re Vickers Children, 14 OApp3d 201, 14 OBR 228, 470 NE2d 438.

4. (1984) A party seeking to modify a dispositional custody order must prove by clear and convincing evidence that the modification is in the best interests of the child: In re Patterson, 16 OApp3d 214, 16 OBR 229, 475 NE2d 160.

5. (1984) A further dispositional order continuing an original temporary custody order, issued pursuant to JuvR 34, constitutes a final appealable order: In re Patterson, 16 OApp3d 214, 16 OBR 229, 475 NE2d 160.

6. (1985) In proceedings where parental rights are subject to termination, both the Juvenile Rules and the Revised Code prescribe that such proceedings be bifurcated into separate adjudicatory and dispositional hearings. (RC § 2151.35 and JuvR 29 and 34, construed and applied.): In re Baby Girl Baxter, 17 OS3d 229, 17 OBR 469, 479 NE2d 257.

7. (1984) An indigent parent in a custody hearing who has the right to a free court-ordered psychological evaluation may not limit disclosure of adverse results of such testing unless the court order granting the evaluation limits the purpose of the report solely for the parent's defense: In re Green, 18 OApp3d 43, 18 OBR 155, 480 NE2d 492.

RULE 37. Recording of proceedings

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Under RC § 1347.08, a juvenile court must permit a juvenile or a duly-authorized attorney who represents the juvenile to inspect court records pertaining to the juvenile unless the records are exempted under RC § 1347.04(A)(1)(e) or RC § 1347.08(C) or (E)(2). Under JuvR 37(B), the records may not, however, be put to any public use except in the course of an appeal or as authorized by order of the court: OAG No.84-077.

2. (1984) Revised Code § 1347.04 does not operate to exempt juvenile courts from the provisions of RC Chapter 1347. with respect to the courts' records of matters pertaining to juveniles; however, if a juvenile court has any personal information systems which are comprised of investigatory material compiled for law enforcement purposes, such systems are exempt from RC Chapter 1347. under RC § 1347.04(A)(1)(e): OAG No.84-077.

RULE 40. Referees: appointment; powers; duties

(A) Appointment. The juvenile judge may appoint one or more referees. The appointment of a referee may empower him to act in a single proceeding or in a specified class of proceedings or portions thereof. The juvenile judge shall not appoint as referee any person who has contemporaneous responsibility for working with, or supervising the behavior of children who are subject to dispositional orders of the appointing court or any other juvenile court.

(B) Powers. An order of reference to a referee may specify or limit his powers and may direct him to report only upon particular issues or to do or perform particular acts or to receive and report evidence only and may fix the time and place for beginning and closing the hearings and for the filing of his report. Subject to the specifications and limitations stated in the order, the referee has and shall exercise the power of the court to regulate all proceedings in every hearing before him and to do all acts and take all measures necessary or proper for the efficient performance of his duties under the order. He may summon and compel the attendance of witnesses and may require the production before him of evidence upon all matters embraced in the reference, including the production of all books, papers, vouchers, documents and writings applicable thereto. He may rule upon the admissibility of evidence unless otherwise directed by the order of reference and has the authority to put witnesses on oath and may himself examine them and may call parties to the action and examine them upon oath. The referee shall make a report of the proceeding, including evidence offered and excluded, in the same manner and subject to the same limitations as provided in Rule 37 for hearings by the court.

(C) Proceedings.

(1) Meetings. When a special reference is made in a specific case, the clerk shall forthwith furnish the referee with a copy of the order of reference. Upon receipt thereof unless the order of reference otherwise provides, the referee shall forthwith set a time and place for the first meeting of the parties or their attorneys, or for the hearing of the case, to be held promptly after the date of the order of reference and shall notify the parties or their attorneys or both. When a general reference has been made for a specified class of proceedings or portions thereof, the clerk or the referee shall forthwith upon receiving the case set a time and place for hearing of the case, to be held promptly after receiving the case, and shall notify the parties or their attorneys or both.

Any party, on notice to the other parties and to the referee, may apply to the court for an order requiring the referee to expedite the matter and to make his report. If a party fails to appear at the time and place appointed, the referee may proceed ex parte, or, in his discretion, may take appropriate steps to have the absent party brought before him forthwith or at a future day, or may adjourn the proceedings to a future day, giving notice to the absent party of the adjournment.

(2) Witnesses. The parties may procure the attendance of witnesses before the referee by the issuance and service of subpoenas as provided in Rule 17. If without adequate excuse a witness fails to appear or to give evidence, he may be punished as for a contempt and be subject to the consequences, penalties, and remedies provided in Rule 17.

(D) Report.

(1) Contents and filing. The referee shall prepare a report upon the matters submitted by the order of reference or otherwise. The referee shall file the report with the judge and forthwith provide copies to the parties. The report shall set forth the findings of the referee upon the case submitted, together with a recommendation as to the judgment or order to be made in the case in question, but the referee shall file with the report a transcript of the proceedings and of the evidence only if the court so directs.

(2) Objections to report. A party may, within fourteen days of the filing of the report, serve and file written objections to the referee's report. Such objections shall be considered a motion. Objections shall be specific and state with particularity the grounds therefor. Upon consideration of the objections the court may: adopt, reject or modify the report; hear additional evidence; return the report to the referee with instructions; or hear the matter itself.

(3) Stipulation as to findings. The effect of a referee's report is the same whether or not the parties have consented to the reference. When the parties stipulate in writing that a referee's findings of fact shall be final, only questions of law arising upon the report shall thereafter be considered.

(4) Draft report. Before filing the report a referee may submit a draft thereof to counsel for all parties for the purpose of receiving their suggestions. The referee shall sign any findings or decision and file it together with any exceptions.

(5) When effective. The report of a referee shall be effective and binding only when approved and entered as a matter of record by the court. The referee's findings of fact must be sufficient for the court to make an independent analysis of the issues and to apply appropriate rules of law in reaching a judgment order. The court may adopt the referee's recommendations about appropriate conclusions of law and the appropriate resolution of any issues. However, the court shall determine whether there is any error of law or other defect on the face of the referee's report even if no party objects to such an error or defect. The court shall enter its own judgment on the issues submitted for action and report by the referee.

(6) Factual findings. A party may not assign as error the court's adoption of a referee's finding of fact unless an objection to that finding is contained in that party's written objections to the referee's report. The court may adopt any finding of fact in the referee's report without further consideration unless the party who objects to that finding supports that objection with a copy of all relevant portions of the transcript from the referee's hearing or an affidavit about evidence submitted to the referee if no transcript is available. In deciding whether to adopt a referee's finding of fact, the court may disregard any evidence which was not submitted to the referee unless the complaining party demonstrates that with reasonable diligence he or she could not have discovered and produced that evidence for the referee's consideration.

(7) Permanent and interim orders. The court may enter judgment on the basis of findings of fact contained in the referee's report without waiting for timely objections by the parties, but the filing of timely written objections to the referee's report shall operate as an automatic stay of execution of that judgment until the court disposes of those objections and thereby vacates, modifies or adheres to the judgment previously entered. The court may make an interim order on the basis of findings of facts contained in the referee's report without waiting for or ruling on timely objections by the parties where immediate relief is justified and such an interim order shall not be subject to the automatic stay caused by the filing of timely objections to the report, but no interim order shall extend more than twenty-eight (28) days, unless within that time, for good cause shown, the court extends it for one like period.

(Effective 7-1-75; amended, eff 7-1-85)

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1984) Where a juvenile, adjudged to be delinquent by a referee, files objections to the referee's report, and where the court then reserves judgment on the objections and requests the referee to supply a statement as to the evidence in the hearing, and where a supplemental report of the referee is then filed with court, but no copy of the supplemental report is served on the juvenile or his counsel, it is error for the court to then approve the referee's report, as supplemented, for the juvenile was not given an opportunity to object to the supplemental report in compliance with JuvR 40(D): In re Weimer, 19 OApp3d 130, 19 OBR 219, 483 NE2d 173.

RULE 42. Consent to marry

(A) Application where parental consent not required. When a minor desires to contract matrimony and has no parent, guardian, or custodian whose consent to the marriage is required by law, the minor shall file an application under oath in the county where the female resides requesting that the judge of the juvenile court give consent and approbation in the probate court for such marriage.

(B) Contents of application. The application required by subdivision (A) shall contain:

(1) The name and address of the person for whom consent is sought;

(2) The age of said person;

(3) The reason why consent of a parent is not required; and

(4) The name and address, if known, of the parent, where the minor alleges that his parent's consent is unnecessary because the parent has neglected or abandoned him for one year or longer immediately preceding the application.

(C) Application where female pregnant or delivered of child born out of wedlock. Where a female is pregnant or delivered of a child born out of wedlock and the parents of such child seek to marry even though one or both of them is under the minimum age prescribed by law for persons who may contract marriage, such persons shall file an application under oath in the county where the female resides requesting that the judge of the juvenile court give consent in the probate court to such marriage.

(D) Contents of application. The application required by subdivision (C) shall contain:

(1) The name and address of the person or persons for whom consent is sought;

(2) The age of such person;

(3) An indication of whether the female is pregnant or has already been delivered;

(4) An indication of whether or not any applicant under eighteen years of age is already a ward of the court; and

(5) Any other facts which may assist the court in determining whether to consent to such marriage.

If pregnancy is asserted, a certificate from a physician verifying pregnancy shall be attached to the application. If an illegitimate child has been delivered, the birth certificate of such child shall be attached.

The consent to the granting of the application by each parent whose consent to the marriage is required by law shall be indorsed on the application.

(E) Investigation. Upon receipt of an application under subdivision (C), the court shall set a date and time for hearing thereon at its earliest convenience and shall direct that an inquiry be made as to the circumstances surrounding the applicants.

(F) Notice. If neglect or abandonment is alleged in an application under subdivision (A) and the address of the parent is known, the court shall cause notice of the date and time of hearing to be served upon such parent.

(G) Judgment. If the court finds that the allegations stated in the application are true, and that the granting of the application is in the best interest of the applicants, the court shall grant the consent and shall make the applicant referred to in subdivision (C) a ward of the court.

(H) Certified copy. A certified copy of the judgment entry shall be transmitted to the probate court.

RULE 44. Jurisdiction unaffected

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1979) The juvenile court has exclusive original jurisdiction, pursuant to RC § 2151.23(A), concerning any child who is alleged in a proper complaint to be neglected, and the court does not lose jurisdiction by failing to adhere to the time limits set forth in Juv. R. 29(A) and 34(A): Linger v. Weiss, 57 OS2d 97, 11 OO3d 281, 386 NE2d 1354.

RULE 45. Procedure not otherwise specified

CASE NOTES AND OAG

1. (1981) Inasmuch as JuvR 22(A) provides that a party may move "for other appropriate relief," a juvenile presumably may move to limit the court's use of social histories before and during the adjudication. If it does not authorize such relief, then JuvR 45 provides the procedure when no procedure is specifically prescribed: J. P. v. DeSanti, 653 F2d 1080 (6th Cir.).

RULE 47. Effective date

(A) Effective date of rules. These rules shall take effect on the first day of July, 1972. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the rules take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.

(B) Effective date of amendments. The amendments submitted by the supreme court to the general assembly on January 12, 1973, shall take effect on the first day of July, 1973. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the amendments take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.

(C) Effective date of amendments. The amendments submitted by the supreme court to the general assembly on January 10, 1975, and on April 29, 1975, shall take effect on July 1, 1975. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the amendments take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.

(D) Effective date of amendments. The amendments submitted by the supreme court to the general assembly on January 9, 1976 shall take effect on July 1, 1976. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the amendments take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.

(E) Effective date of amendments. The amendments submitted by the supreme court to the general assembly on January 14, 1980, shall take effect on July 1, 1980. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the amendments take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.

(F) Effective date of amendments. The amendments submitted by the Supreme Court to the General Assembly on December 24, 1984 and January 8, 1985 shall take effect on July 1, 1985. They govern all proceedings in actions brought after they take effect and also all further proceedings in actions then pending, except to the extent that their application in a particular action pending when the amendments take effect would not be feasible or would work injustice, in which event the former procedure applies.
